about Food ... What's Cooking?

By the author of "THE FACE IN THE ASPIC"

The only explanation is that the twins be identical and that they be alive. The same rule applies to calves of a kind is part of a government project to determine the effects of different diets on the growth of cows and calves. A single set of twins can provide as much data to researchers as 40 head of cattle of the same general type.

Finding calves that are really identical, with the same markings, color and hair patterns, is not easy.

For the same reason, when you buy calf meat—veal—it is seldom the same quality. You may think you will take a longer cooking period than another, even though both seemed to be of approximately the same quality.

The usually tender because it is young meat. But it can be tough and tasteless if not properly cooked. To give a roast shoulder of veal zest and snappy flavor, roast it with an apricot breast of veal.

Order a 4 pound cut of shoulder of veal. Have butcher remove bone from meat for stuffing. Wipe meat with a damp cloth. Sprinkle inside with salt and pepper.

Prepare the following stuffing: Combine 2 cups of white bread crumbs with 1-4 cup butter or margarine, 3-4 cup stewed or canned apricots from which pits have been removed, 1 small onion chopped fine, 1 teaspoon salt and 1-8 teaspoon pepper. Add 1-4 cup apricot juice to make stuffing moist enough to hold well.

Tie meat with heavy white twine or fasten with wooden skewers. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Place on a rack in a roasting pan. Roast at 325 degrees allowing approximately 40 minutes per pound. Or insert meat thermometer into thickest part of meat before roasting. Remove roast from oven when thermometer registers 180 degrees.

inserts of matching lace. Her accessories were pale pink. The mother of the groom was not present.

Following their honeymoon trip Mr. and Mrs. Navan will take up residence in Toronto. For travelling the bride wore a navy blue gabardine suit with matching accessories.

A number of guests were present from Toronto and other outside points.

Kingsridge

By Alice Ross Colver

"No. Just find Henry, my man man of all work. He's back in the stables somewhere. I'm too lazy of all work. He's back in the Mama your troubles."

He stood next to her, his face on a level with hers. He had always liked Alicia. Even if she had married Lester for his money and nobody questioned that, there was a gallantry about her that was admirable. For it was easy to imagine what her life with him must be, yet she never permitted a breath of complaint to escape her or word of commiseration to be said to her. She certainly played the game. Suddenly he felt ashamed of himself.

"I have no troubles," he said "Not really, I mean."

"Liar."

He met her eyes. They were always warm, but now, looking into them he saw with astonishment that they were blazing. It brought him to a startled attention.

"Isn't Audrey treating you right?" she went on, dropping her gaze to her hands that she began moving around and around on the wheel.

It never occurred to him that this might be merely an, idle question, that the whole conversation might have been started as a break in her own thoughts which were no longer bearable. He was always slow and stupid with women and he had been out of touch with them for so long that he had become even more so. He simply felt amazed that she should have discerned his difficulty with such ease. Amazed, disconcerted. He said, fumbling for decency, "I guess it's me."

She looked at him again and something flashed across her face and was gone. Shock, perhaps that she had inadvertently made such a discovery, followed at once by compassion. But she only said lightly "poor Frank."

He could have dropped it there. He meant to. She was not one of their intimate group. Because of Lester she was seen more often with the older couples. The Kings and the Bairds and their crowd. But her understanding seemed to have touched a spring lock in his will, he heard himself saying "we're all out of step. You know?"

She did not answer for a moment. Then she laughed shortly, half closing her eyes as she looked down to the town below.

"Yes, I know," she said, "I know, all right." Suddenly her voice was a harsh challenge. "So what do you do?" she demanded. "What do you do I ask, you?"

He was silent. He felt impaled by her question. Impaled and imperilled. As if he must help her and helping her, help himself. Had she meant it that way? It was hard to believe. When he had never—neither of them had ever.

"I don't know," he said, hearing his reply odd and thick in his ears.

She leaned away from him; her two gloved hands again sliding around the wheel. Away, her. Around and together and apart and.

"Think it over," she said watcher hands. "Think it over. And if you find the answer," she lifted her head and he saw her gray eyes stormy and desperate in the whiteness of her face, "tell me what it is."

Susan came early for Gerry that night and he had known she would. He heard her eager footsteps coming up the stairs and then he heard them slow to a careful walk as the hall and finally stop dead before his door. It was a long moment before she knocked. But he understood her uncertainty perfectly for it lay on him too. Between them was the sense of emotion piling up to an impending crisis for which neither was quite prepared.

Yet none of this showed as he opened his door to her and swept out his arm in a long welcoming gesture. "Come in. I've a company chair waiting for you this time. Let me take your coat."

With a little laugh of relief at his ease, she slipped it off and tossed it onto the bed. Then, plumping up the cushions on the old wicker chair, he motioned her to it with another grand gesture.

She laughed again and dropped down, the full folds of her black velvet skirt almost hiding her little black pumps, the dark masses of her hair swinging away from the shoulders of her sheer white blouse as she looked up at him. He was so many different people, she was thinking. It was fascinating. The first night when they had danced, he'd been reckless and devil-may-care and a little frightening. That next morning when had had breakfast together, he'd been cross first then not forlorn exactly. You couldn't call him that because he gave such an impression of independence and strength. But, well maybe lonely was the word. Anyway, he had touched her sympathy. He had roused her protective instinct. And now so easy. Almost happy like other people. As if, after this one week here, he had divested himself of that hard shell he wore. As if, given a chance, meeting a little kind friendliness, he could be most awfully sweet.

She said, composure returning to her "I took Jane home and then I came back for you because I wanted to talk. And we won't have a chance with the family."

Gerry nodded, turned the remaining straight chair to a place opposite her and sat astride it, his arms resting on the back, his eyes dancing so that her heart did a lively little jig in response. She could feel it jumping around like crazy under her blouse and she wondered if it showed through.

"Good," he said. "Begin."

"No. You begin. I want to hear about Wednesday night." Were they going to go on? I know Alicia was. But was he?"

Gerry reached for cigarettes on the table, struck a match, shook one out for each of them, lit them, and answered while he was thus busy.

"He was all right, I guess. Sort of a frozen fish, isn't he."

He blew a ring of smoke into the air and, watched it float away. "She's not. She loves them." This was safe, he was thinking. This preserved the status quo of friendliness between them. Besides he wanted to hear.

Susan settled against the cushions. "Well, there's not much to tell. She was a chorus girl or something on Broadway and he fell for her. She was much younger but she married him. For his money, they say. He has terrible ugly pots. But I never could tie that up with the kind of person she is. She doesn't really seem to care, I mean, about money or possessions or anything like that. So it must have been something more than money. Don't you think?"

He shrugged. "Search me. Although that's a pretty good incentive."

"Anyway, she married him and they moved here, and Kingsridge being the Mecca of a place that it is, gave them the entree-over. The fact that one of the first things they did was to, . ." She stopped short in acute embarrassment, the color flooding her face.

"I know, they were nice to my unfortunate mother. Go on."

"Oh" that was terrible," she murmured softly, "I could kick myself." In her distress she put out her half-smoked cigarette.

He reached forward over the back of the chair and laid one hand on her knee. "It doesn't matter. There was never any love lost between my mother and me. He smiled suddenly, compellingly his dark face lighting up. "There's no. Feel better?"

"Well, that was a nice thing." she said, now at ease. "I never liked her and I never knew about it. But Nanna, of course, didn't. So it took the Brandts a long time to break in her. Nanna said it was because of her Broadway background. Doesn't that trip-make you absolutely sick. It does me.

He grinned. "Me, too."

She sighed faintly. "It did Mather—Audrey, you know well She was the first to invite Alicia to a bridge. And by hand it is Audrey sometimes. She sees things all right. The only trouble is she sometimes loses her vision just when she needs it most."

"For instance what?"

"Yes." She looked at him. "Shall we talk about you now?"

"Just a minute. Getting back to the Brandts. How does she. . . Well, you can see they aren't very happy. What makes her stick him?"

"She can't help it. She doesn't have a cent, or," she added, "maybe she feels obligated. I suppose she might."

"Yes," he agreed. "She might. But doesn't she really have a cent?"

"Really. He gives her rings and pins and stuff and junk like that. She has simply stunning jewelry. But he holds the money bags. Just the same, when people want anything for charity or anything they go to her—not him."

"And get it!"

"But plenty. She makes him fork over. She's really a swell person, Gerry. Always so interested in everybody. I guess she has to be since she hasn't any children. It must help. Anyway, I like her. Don't you?"

The committee had decided on the latter company, and had received a liberal discount on the gowns. It was decided to purchase a pastor gown for the organist. Rev. Scott wished to express thanks for his gown. Mrs. Harry Sine also expressed her thanks to the committee.

The president conveyed to the meeting the hope of the pastor that each one would attend church next Sunday in honor of their mother. Mrs. Robertson read a letter from the Salvation Army regarding their annual appeal for funds. It was decided to donate the usual amount.

Lists were given out for food required for the catering at Scott's livestock sale, May 16th, at the Teacher's Convention, Y.M.C.A., Belleville.

The president mentioned that a bus was leaving Belleville, May 16th for a meeting of the Dominion Council at Ottawa. All interested to contact Mrs. Dobbs, Belleville.

The next meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. Arthur Housego, the second Thursday in June. Mrs. Orval Stratton's group to be in charge.

Mrs. Claude Clarke reported she had print on hand for sewing. Also aprons cut out. Mrs. Elliott presented gifts to the oldest mother present, Mrs. Rose, aged 93 years, also Mrs. Howard and Mrs. Joseph Huff. The youngest mother present was Mrs. Gerald Stratton, who also received a momentum.

Several visitors were present at this interesting meeting. The meeting closed with refreshments served by the group leader and assistants.

Joe E. Brown Recalls Interesting Experiences While Playing in Harvey

Hollywood, May 15 — (AP) — Joe E. Brown is parting company with is best pal and meal ticket —Harvey, the man-sized invisible rabbit.

After 4 1-2 years both have dates in Hollywood. The hare will cavort with James Stewart in a screen version of the play bearing his name, Brown plans a television show and is juggling movie offers.

The cigar-mouthed comic and his long-eared friend will say their final goodbyes in a few months hence when they return from Australia on the last lap of a marathon road show.

Joe is quitting the Mary Ellen Chase comedy, he said, "Because I don't want to be thought of as a one-role actor."

There aren't many places where "Harvey" hasn't been seen. The 37-year-old play was first screened through the Elwood P. Dowd role 1,300 times before leaving for the Antipodes. He played many of the major United States and Canadian cities and took the play to London.

Why has Brown, one of the top money-making film stars of the 1930s, stuck with a play so long?

"I like it. I have a clean taste in my mouth when the audience leaves the theatre." He added that Elwood P. Dowd is closest to playing himself. "Like Elwood I always have a wonderful time wherever I am."

Joe has a reputation as a "clean" comedian. He recalled he almost turned down "Harvey" because Dowd is a drinking man. But he got around it, like this:

"I've a theory that it doesn't look nearly so bad if you don't actually hoist a glass to your lips. There is only one scene with liquor—when Dowd takes a bottle from behind a book case. Frank Fay (star of 'Harvey' on Broadway) pulled it out and took a slug. I just set the bottle on a table beside me."

The actor disagrees that author Chase, who holds that Harvey should be visible in the film. "It would be ridiculous. The play is a fantasy. The rabbit is in the mind." (The studio plans to film alternate endings, one showing Harvey, and let the preview audience decide.)

Keep Seeing Rabbit

Even though the rabbit doesn't exist, Brown says people keep saying they see it.

"The first week I was in the play a man came to the theatre manager and said: 'I have a suggestion. The play's a hit, granted. But one thing is ridiculous —the rabbit should not be on stage.'"

Does Joe see Harvey?

"Of course—figuratively. I'd be looking in the wrong place if I didn't. The hardest part of my role was learning to focus my eyes on the spot in thin air where Mervey was supposed to be."

Bond-Selling Machinery Goes Into High Gear

Ottawa, May 15 (CP)—Bond-selling machinery went into high gear across the country today to start the ball rolling on the big post refunding operation undertaken in federal history.

Some 350 investment dealers and their 8,300 agents and some 9,600 branches of Canada's banks will take orders on $7439000,000 worth of new government bonds to finance repayment of two federal loans.

Finance Minister Abbott announced the new offerings, to be made available either in the long or short-term variety at rates of interest which are just slightly below those offered by the government in previous years.

The long-term bonds will run for 18 years, bearing an interest rate of 2½ per cent and maturing June 15, 1968. They are being offered at 99.50 per cent to yield about 2.79 per cent to maturity. The government can call them for retirement any time after June 15, 1961.

The short-term bonds, noncallable, will run for two years, bearing an interest rate of two per cent. They are being priced at 99.80 per cent to yield about 2.05 per cent.

Various Denominations

Every one will be able to place orders for the bonds, to be available in a variety of denominations. The 2 ½ per cent bonds will be issued in denominations of $500, $1,000, $5,000 and $100,000. The two-per-cent bonds will be issued in similar denominations with the exception of the $500 category.

Entire proceeds of the new loan, said Mr. Abbott, will be used to refund the three-per-cent 1935 bonds, amounting to $1,000,000. They will be redeemed June 1. The government also will redeem some $439,000,000 of the per-cent First Victory Loan bonds called for payment June 1.

The Bank of Canada will start receiving orders from the investment dealers and banks Thursday and Mr. Abbott gave no indication when the bond books to be closed.

He thus urged all interested investors to act promptly. The minister's statement said the amount of subscriptions to be accepted for each maturity will be determined by Mr. Abbott when the books are closed.

126 Canadian Planes Attend Civil Air Meet

Rochester, N.Y., May 15 (CP) —In the largest civil air show of its kind ever attempted, 126 Canadian planes with 312 Canadians flew here Saturday for the civil air meet. All types of planes were in the Armada from Canada, Coming from Montreal, Ottawa, Kingston, Carp, Gananoque, Toronto, Brantford, St. Catharines, Welland, Oshawa and Kitchener.

Bad weather developed during the day and five planes at the Montreal contingent were forced to put down at Watertown, N.Y., while one from Kingston also landed short of the goal. All later finished the flight. As the Canadians left, planes at the Rochester Flying Club escorted them 40 or 50 miles outside the city.

A bronze plaque commemorating the event was presented to the Rochester Pilots Association by Sam Bernardo of Toronto, past president of the Royal Canadian Flying Clubs Association.

Canadian Navy Bands Salute Will be 'O Canada'

Ottawa, May 15 (CP) — A further step in the "Canadianization" of the Royal Canadian Navy is seen in the adoption of "O Canada" in place of 'Rule Britannia" as a formal salute by navy bands.

The present policy is to make the Canadian navy more distinctly Canadian," a navy spokesman said, and the adoption of Canadian patriotic airs is in line with that policy. It does not reflect any change in the navy's relations with Britain."

"O Canada" will in future be played as a salute to the chief of naval staff, the naval board of Canada, admirals of the fleet, admirals and commanders-in-chief.

Two other changes were announced by naval headquarters. The first air last new bars of the chorus of "The Maple Leaf Forever" will salute vice-admirals and rear admirals instead of "Iolanthe."

The salute for commodores and equivalent officers and officials will be "C'Est L'Aviron qui Nous Mene En Tout," instead of "Garz of Old Gaul." "C'Est L'Aviron" is an old Canadian paddling song.

"It is felt that these tunes will make us sound more typically Canadian," the spokesman said.

Convicted Spy Spends 16 Hours Day in Cell

London, May 15 (Reuters) — Klaus Fuchs, convicted atomic spy, spends 16 hours a day in a small cell, 12 by 8 feet, on the first floor of a London jail.

It is the same jail —Wormwood Scrubs prison, on the western fringe of London — where William Joyce, better known as "Lord Haw Haw," was taken to be hanged four years ago.

Fuchs was one of Britain's top atomic scientists. Earlier this year the German-born scientist was sentenced to 14 years imprisonment on two counts of betraying Western secrets to Russia.

The Sunday Express, in a story about the convicted spy, said the Federal Bureau of Investigation agents dug here soon from the United States to question Fuchs will find him a changed man.

Once natty, the former scientist now is just a number clothed in a rough suit of prison grey, the Sunday Express said. It added that his soft, delicate hands are calloused from scrubbing and making mail-bags. He's 2 hours a day.

Fuchs is allowed to read two books a week, but nothing technical, the paper said, he has struck up a friendship with another prisoner, Brian Donald Hume, Hume was jailed this year as an accessory-after-the-fact to the murder of an automobile dealer whose dismembered body Hume admitted dumping near the mouth of the Thames from an airplane.

On nine occasions, Fuchs had been taken from prison routine to a small room to be interviewed by agents of MI-5 Britain's counter-espionage service.

When he entered Wormwood Scrubs prison, instructions were given that all his mail should be looked over by MI-5. But he has written no letters and received only printed tracts from religious societies.

Double Drowning Among 8 Fatalities During Weekend

(By The Canadian Press)

Five traffic accidents, a double drowning and a suicide were among eight fatalities reported in Ontario during the weekend.

The double drowning occurred at Hallow Lake, a few miles east of Dorset in Northern Haliburton county. A trout fishing expedition resulted in a capsized boat, and George Coulson, 41, and Allison, and his companion identified only as a man named Arnold Sarvis lost their lives.

Searchers recovered the body of Coulton, who was married with four children, and were still dragging for that of Arnold.

Clifford Roach, 43, was killed near Kitchener when his car skidded off the road. Five-year-old Frank Short was killed by a truck in Kitchener-Lake and A. W. Betson, 22, was fatally injured when his motorcycle struck a stone and threw him in a ditch near Oshawa. Charles P. McRobbie, 70, was electrocuted when his car hit a hydro pole at Winchester. Alf Smith, Edward Mitchell, 53, was fatally injured by a motor car on Saturday.

The other death was that of Ernest Robinson, 48-year-old Kirkland Lake carpenter, whose body was found hanging from the rafters in a cabin at North Bay.

And if it rises sharply, as it might if heavy rain fell or its tributaries started to kick up, a speedy, army-directed evacuation of the greater Winnipeg area's 350,000 population could be necessary.

Brig. Ronald Morton, the army flood-control commander, said at the weekend such a plan is ready. It calls for camps on high ground several miles from each bank of the river, fed and supplied from army dumps now being organized.

Six square miles of greater Winnipeg, about one-twelfth of its area, are inundated. Whole suburbs have had to be evacuated. Several thousand homes have been surrounded and abandoned to the water. The business centre of the city is threatened if the water rises much more, but river experts said that it is not expected if the weather holds.

Whole Towns Evacuated

Southward through the flat, winding Red River valley the situation was even worse. Whole riverside towns from Emerson to Winnipeg have been entirely evacuated, except for anti-looting patrols and an occasional telegrapher. All communication with some places has been cut.

Flood-control headquarters has made it plain it will be weeks before the Red is back to normal and all evacuees are back at home.

Maj.-Gen. F. F. (Fighting Frank) Worthington, director of Canada's civil defence planning, said flood damage already has surpassed that of the Fraser River floods of 1948. Those floods were classed by Ottawa as a "national emergency."

River Levelling Off

C. M. Stephens, Manitoba's Deputy Resources Minister, was the first officially to break the good news that the Red was levelling off in stricken greater Winnipeg. The fact had been apparent for a couple of days in the statistics of the river's height.

He said the flood crest probably would reach Winnipeg and St. Boniface by Tuesday noon, and that "given good weather we discount the possibility of any sudden rise."

"But sudden storms or prolonged rain and we're in for serious trouble," he warned.

W. D. Hurst, Winnipeg city engineer, said the river likely will not reach the 31 foot level he predicted earlier, despite a recent rise at Emerson. (The river dropped 1 1-2 inches there last night).

When Mr. Stevens spoke to newspaper men at a conference Brig. Morton's headquarters in the legislative building, the river had held steady at 30.2 feet for 13 hours. The reading was the same for 11 hours more, then eased down a little more than an inch to 30.1. It was still at that figure at 4:00 a.m. CDT.

However, engineers said the drop meant almost nothing. A north wind chasing the water upstream could cause a temporary fall.

Hold Peak a Week . . . . . .

There will be no sudden break in the flood crest, Mr. Stevens said. The river might fluctuate a bit but would hold near its peak for about a week.

During that time dikes will be settling and may collapse. Heavy rain anywhere in the Red's watershed could bring a drastic rise and threaten the metropolitan area, including downtown Winnipeg, for a couple of miles on each side of the river.

Plans for emergency evacuation of the populace to dry land beyond the flood-risk area would go into effect if the Red reached 33.5 feet, about 37 1-2 inches above its present reading.

So far the mass evacuation of greater Winnipeg has been voluntary, under the urging — but not the order — of Brig. Morton's headquarters. The aim is to "thin out" the population, swollen by perhaps 20,000 evacuees from the Red River Valley, to make a rush evacuation easier if it comes.

10,000 Residents Leave

Headquarters figures showed about 38,000 left the city area Friday and Saturday. An unofficial estimate indicated the total of evacuees to Sunday night was something less than 15,000—about one-fifth of greater Winnipeg's normal population.

Brig. Morton said that wasn't fast enough. So did Viscount Alexander, who spent a few hours here Sunday inspecting dikes and damaged districts.

"There has to be a quicker evacuation than at present," said the Governor-General, Allied Commander-in-Chief in Italy during the war with rank of Field Marshal.

"More people have to get out, providing they have some place to go.

"Old, women and children, and invalids all come under what I call the useless mouths. They use up food. Let's keep the young and able, who can and are willing to work."

He told a press conference that plans should be laid for possible evacuation of everyone (which has been done by a military-civilian committee under Brig. R. S. Malone of Winnipeg), and that outside cities should be approached for accommodation.

"If you're ready for the worst and something not so bad happens, you can take it in your stride. And if the worst does occur, you're ready for that, too."

Confused Affair

St. Boniface and its Norwood suburb lie between two east-west sections of the Red river, bounded by the Red on the west side and by the tiny tributary Seine River on the east. The Assiniboine, which drains western Manitoba and northern Saskatchewan, flows in from the west directly opposite Norwood.

The evacuation area is about two miles from north to south and 1½ miles east to west. Low-lying parts of Norwood were evacuated a week ago. Since then the river has risen several feet, endangering the whole of St. Boniface.

Last night's evacuation was a confused affair. The army's first statement said it affected everyone. This was twice amended when municipal officials changed their minds—first to "women and children", finally to "women with children".

Two special trains were spotted at sidings on either flank of the main east-west road.

About 400 of an expected 1,200 showed up. Eventually one train was cancelled and the other took all the evacuees.

Cross Row Ramp

But 1,217 cars crossed a hastily-built new ramp leading to Provencher bridge, reopened for the occasion after being closed for repairs for several days. Canadian National Railway officials in Winnipeg said four extra cars were needed at the last minute for women and their children who wanted to go to Saskatoon.

There were two smaller evacuations during the weekend. Early Saturday police cars and loud-speaker trucks dinned the message that a dike guarding the Winnipeg approach to Norwood bridge was being abandoned and that 20 blocks of Fort Rouge, near the business area, would be flooded. A few hundred residents left the narrow neck of land bounded by the Red and the Assiniboine, behind the Fort Garry Hotel.

A relatively few families were moved out of the area of St. Boniface lying east of the Seine, to the Canadian Pacific Railway line.

All St. Vital Flooded

The weekend population transfers, even that in St. Boniface-Norwood, were only a patch of other evacuations since the Red first rose beyond Winnipeg's 18-foot flood-risk stage April 21.

Last week between 18,000 and 20,000 residents of St. Vital, a suburban municipality wedged between the Red and the Seine, south of St. Boniface, were told to flee. The rivers rushed to meet each other across a two-mile gap. Now the whole of St. Vital is flooded.

In Fort Garry, south of Winnipeg, and west of the Red, the University of Manitoba area is flooded almost to the north-south Pembina highway. The highway is cut. Wildwood residential district is under water and the flood has crept slowly toward the C.N.R. tracks.

North of Fort Garry a colonlike bend in the Red is River-view—deserted and flooded back to Osborne Street. Between them, caught in a tight, double reverse, is tiny Kingston Crescent, a part of St. Vital, where some of greater Winnipeg's worst inundation has occurred.

St. Boniface itself was protected by the seven-mile-long Lyndale Drive dike. Flooding to Sunday had been confined to a narrow strip along the Seine, on the east edge of the more-populated section and blocks where the Seine and Red meet in the north. St. Boniface Whiteley Park race track, with water to the eaves of unused stables, is in the later sector.

Flooding Along Assiniboine

There is some flooding in Fort Rouge and in a narrow strip along both sides of the Assiniboine. The most-concentrated flooding in this sector is in a loop of the Assiniboine along Wellington Crescent, just east of Maryland bridge.

Along the Red, where its northerly course skirts east-bank Elmwood, flooding runs from Louise Bridge almost to Redwood bridge on both sides of the river. The worst is behind Glenwood Crescent.

West Kildonan, west of the red, is flooded narrowly near the Redwood bridge clear north to Kildonan Park at Greater Winnipeg's extreme north end. Water is within about a block of North Main Street.

In East Kildonan, where Leighton Avenue dike broke last week, water extends inland for several blocks, crossing Henderson highway in places. The flooding also affects some sparsely-populated parts of North Kildonan.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

WHY NOT RENT 'EM BOATS?

Nearly fifty wet bedraggled youngsters from 11 to 14 years of age wended their way homeward the other night, smiling and happy, but not necessarily unworried about parental reaction to their near-soaked condition.

They had not been indulging in boyish pranks in the river, illegal fishing or anything of a nautical nature. Nautical, in the true sense of the word, that is.

Believe it or not they had been playing baseball, and enjoying it despite the disgraceful condition of the grounds on which they got rid of their baseball "steam".

The kids had taken their equipment and whatnot to the East Hill playgrounds, which at that time was better suited for recreation for ducks, wild or otherwise. But the watersoaked terrain did not deter the kids. They wanted to play baseball. They did.

The field was a quagmire. Water lay in large ponds on the surface. The youngsters carried armfuls of leaves and deposited them around "home plate" or where it was supposed to be, in order to provide some kind of foothold for the batters. They stood ankle deep in the leafy slush. A hitter established his way to first base and the fielders gloried in two or three inches of watery mud.

But the care-free youngsters were not worried. Undaunted and grimy, they "played ball". They had a fine time of their lives as they said, and "even you please, mister, write sumpin in the paper about it".

Belleville youngsters may not have the recreation facilities that the lads of other cities enjoy to inspire their spirit, or recrease the urge to play their favorite games.

The above incident is evidence enough of the extreme need of properly maintained and supervised city parks. Not only for sports-minded youngsters but for those who desire equally healthful recreation and fun as well. Parks are no separated facilities, except for one or two exceptions operated by private citizens.

The Board of Education in co-operation with the City Parks Board and City Council with the YMCA offering a guiding leadership, is responsible for the social support of the proposed Recreation Commission. Every parent, and others who have an interest in the health and safety of the city's future citizens should get solidly behind this project.

Remember, the building of Belleville in an expanding community such as Belleville is just as important, if not more so, as the construction of houses.

QUIEN SABE?

What's going on over in Picton, from a baseball point of view? We note that a meeting was held in the "Spanish Town" recently and a slate of officers for the Picton Athletics baseball club named. Missing were those three sports stand-bys Ron Church, Lou Yanover and Walter Fraser. What goes on, men? Has the trio decided to become silent partners in a business sense, or the literal meaning of the word. If, Richfield is the honorary presidents with Dr. Carmen Slack slated to hold down the presidential chair. Harry Doyle is first vice with Hizzoner Mayor Billy Hanley, second vice. Third is Ralph Gibson. The treasurer is Ray McKinnon and secretary Ron Sivel. Directors are J. R. Hills, George Kellogg, Charles Hepburn, George Perry and Harold (Kitty) Abbott. "Kitty", incidentally was named coach. Where are the boys of the old-bridge. New blood does not hurt any organization, sports or otherwise. But it does seem passing strange, to this desk at least, that such names as Fraser, Yanover, Church and Goodwin with a Mallett thrown in for good measure are missing from the administrative line-up.

SHADES OF THE BOMBERETTES

Thanks to the Northern Electric sports department, ladies softball which bloomed under the aegis of the late Ken. Colling, Eddie Schrieder, "Chuck" Burnett and a few others, some years ago and like the Arabs "silently folded away", is staging a comeback. The N. E. is sponsoring a girl's softball squad this season, which has been entered in the Lakeshore Girls' Softball League, an affiliate of the Provincial Womens' Softball Association. Included in the loop are, besides the N. E., the teams from Cobourg, and one each from Trenton, and Grafton.

* * *

Coach and Manager of the Electrics Lassies is Moe Fogarty with "Chuck" Barriage, as assistant coach. Chairman is Ann McGrath (if the name is spelled wrong, Ann, blame that demon publicist of yours, Jerry Mahoney). Coach Mahoney says that most of the 1940 team is available but he needs two more pitchers and a catcher. In fact any girl of intermediate calibre is welcome to try out with the squad. The schedule will be announced within the next two days.

THE SKY LOOKS BRIGHTER

Coach Speedy St. Louis of the Belleville baseball entry in the District League smiled happily last night. His last-minute entry in the loop has attracted a large number of baseballers, past, present and future. And the boys appear to have plenty of enthusiasm and are digging into the training licks with lots of pep. Over 30 aspirants turned out for the first two workouts, and St. Louis is pleased with things as they are at present.

"In fact," he said, "if some of the fellows who have ideas of playing for outside teams would decide to stay here, I can safely predict that Belleville will field a team as good as any in the District League. A lot of youngsters are turning out and showing plenty of ability. We've got Bobby Bunton, "Chuck" Barriage, "Lefty" Noakes, Billy Strahan as the nucleus for a pitching staff while Huck Reeves and Russ Soules have turned out for catching duties. Peter Cavers, Dave Lockyer and other juniors have been in the practices and in addition there are some newcomers to the city who have definitely played baseball before and should be an asset to the team."

CHANGE OF NAME

McFarlanes Woodenware softball entry in the "A" Section of the Commercial Softball League has changed names. Henceforth the squad will be known as Ramsay's Paints, it was learned over the weekend. The McFarlane Company withdrew its sponsorship and Earl Dirrah of Ramsay's came to the rescue. The assumption of the sponsors of the team by the former Belleville baseball star will not affect the schedule other than the change of name. Darragh's fine gesture in assuming the sponsorship of the team, is greatly appreciated, by not only league officials but members of the team as well. It will continue under the managership of Ken Hall.

Stan Musial's .467 Batting Mark Has St. Louis Cards Battling For Lead in National

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

If Stan Musial isn't the greatest hitter in baseball today, then his figures are a pack o flies. At that, some of his slugging feats this season have been almost unbelievable.

One look at Musial's sky-scraping .467 batting mark and it is easy to understand why St. Louis Cardinals are in second place in the National League, only half a length behind the pace-setting Philadelphia Phils.

The mighty Cardinal ace smacked a single, double and triple Sunday to lead St. Louis to an 8-7 triumph over Cincinnati Reds. He drove in a run and scored twice. Musial now has his safely in all but two of the 19 games he's played.

Johnny Hopp, veteran Pittsburgh first-baseman, enjoyed the greatest batting day of his major-league career as the Pirates swept both ends of a National League doubleheader from the Cubs in Chicago, 6-5 and 16-9. Hopp collected six hits in six times at bat in the second game. He smashed two home runs, drove in three runs and scored three times.

In all, the Pirates registered 21 hits off six pitchers to win the first game in a breeze, but it took a pinch single by rookie George Strickland with the bases loaded in the ninth to pull the first game out of the fire.

The Cubs also lost the services of Mal Jeffcoat who is approximately six to eight weeks. The outfielder suffered a broken collar bone while making a diving catch in the first inning of the opening game.

Win Streak Ended

The six-game winning streak of the Phillies ended when New York Giants won a 4-3 thriller in the opener of a National League doubleheader in Philadelphia. Successive triples by Whitey Lockman and Dick Sisler had the tying run on third with one out in the ninth. Larry Jansen, however, bore down to retire the next two batters. Bob Thomson's three-run homer in the first was the big blow.

The Phils came from behind a 5-1 deficit to forge ahead, 9-7, at the end of eight innings in the second game, halted by the curfew. It will be resumed from that point on when the two teams meet again in Philadelphia. Until then, the game will not figure in the standing.

Walter Cooper continued his heavy hitting since joining Boston, but he could not prevent Brooklyn Dodgers from sharing a 6-4 National League triumph'over the Braves. Cooper, who drove in five runs against the Dodgers Saturday with a homer and double, collected another four-bagger as well as a pair of singles in four times at bat.

Letty Hal Newhouser, long Kingpin of Detroit's pitching staff, ran into heavy going in his first American League start this year as St. Louis Browns tamed the Tigers 7-3. The 28-year-old veteran, sidelined for a month because of a sore left shoulder, lasted only three innings.

N.Y.-Yankees Second

New York Yankees remained half a game behind the American-League-leading Tigers when visiting Philadelphia Athletics overcame a 7-1 deficit to edge them out 9-8.

Big Walter Dropo continued his heavy hitting as Boston Red Sox divided a doubleheader with Washington Senators. The rookie first-baseman homered in each game. The Sox won the first 8-1. Dropo's sixth round-tripper, with two on, was hardly enough as the Nats went on a 10-hit rampage to win the second 10-5. Sam Mele, former Red Sox outfielder, got four hits in the nightcap and Eddie Yost homered in each game for the Nats.

WALKING ON RAILROAD TRACKS IS DANGEROUS

Railroad tracks were never intended for pedestrians. Yet, many of us are guilty of using them as highways. Newspaper accounts each year bear witness to the large number of accidents caused by such carelessness. The few moments you save are not worth the risk you take. Such "short-cuts" may end in death or at the least, serious injury. For your own protection, stop! look! listen! Keep off the tracks! Don't let your youngsters play near them! Practice the safety-first rule. It's "Good Citizenship".

Annual Regatta Of Canoe Assoc. Will be One Day

(By The Canadian Press)

The Canadian Canoe Association's annual meeting at Kingston Saturday decided that this year's annual regatta will be held at Lake Bay, Ottawa, on Aug. 12. After lengthy debate a proposal to make it a two-day affair was rejected.

The Olympic Games Committee, empowered to select and manage the team to participate in the 1952 races in Finland, was named.

Edgar Gilbert, one of the veteran officers of the association, relinquished his post of secretary-treasurer owing to ill-health. A new office, honorary commodore, was created, and Mr. Gilbert was unanimously elected to this post.

The meeting decided that when more than nine crews are entered in the half-mile war canoe event at the annual regatta, an elimination trial will be staged in the morning among those cews which finished third in club competition. The winning crew will be eligible for the C.C.A. championship final.

Toronto Marlboros received a double-barrelled welcome Saturday when they returned from the west after winning the Allan Cup. The team, led by Coach Joe Primeau and Manager Harold Ballard, was led through Union Station by a brass band. Controller John Innes, acting in place of absent Mayor Hiram McCallum, headed the civic welcoming committee which did an about-face on original plans.

Signing of Ralph Tooby and Keith English, two key players of Montreal Alouettes, Grey Cup football champions, was announced Saturday by Coach Lew Hayman.

Toronto Wanderers English rugby team Sunday defeated Westmount of Montreal 13-0 in the first rugger game of the season at Montreal. Des Patton scored two tries.

Earl (Doc) Whittall, Canada's paddling envoy to Scandinavian countries, returned to Montreal Sunday after a three-week trip to Sweden where he instructed leading paddlers in the art of blade-wielding, Canadian style. Whittall left immediately for Kingston, where the Canadian Canoe Association's annual meeting opened Saturday.

Carl Voyles, former coach of Brooklyn Dodgers, arrived Saturday to take over as coach of the combined Hamilton Tigers and Wildcats for the next three years. He promptly told assembled players and candidates for the team that "no player who is just playing for his cheque is going to make the club We don't want him."

An executive meeting of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association at North Bay Sunday appointed a committee to enlist the support of the Ontario Hockey Association in seeking a separate affiliation between the NOHA and CAHA. Since its inception 26 years ago the NOHA has been a subsidiary of the OHA.

The Canadian Ski Association held its annual meeting at Ottawa during the weekend and decided sites for 1951 championship events. The Canadian championship and downhill and slalom contests will be held at Mont Tremblant in Quebec on dates to be decided later. The Canadian jumping and cross-country championships were awarded to Ottawa — to be held in the Gatineau Valley on dates tentatively set as Feb. 17-18, 1951. Fred S. Urquhart of Montreal was re-elected president. E. R. Herbert, North Bay, was elected a director.

At Silverstone, Northampton, England, Guiseppe Farina, speed-loving Italian doctor, Saturday, drove his bright red Alfa Romeo automobile to victory in the 11th Grand Prix of Europe. Farina averaged 80.26 miles an hour for the 310 mile test.

Program for the 1952 Olympic Games will be almost identical with that the 1948 contests. The executive council of the International Olympic Committee Saturday at Copenhagen refused either to enlarge or to trim drastically the program for the coming games.

"Mr. America" for 1950 is a 25-year-old Los Angeles muscle man named John Farbotnik. He was so designated Saturday night at the close of the Senior United States Amateur Athletic weightlifting championships held, strangely enough, in the sedate surrounding of Philadelphia's Academy of Music.

Johnstown, the winner of the 76th Kentucky Derby, died unexpectedly Sunday at the Claiborne, Ky., stud farm of A. B. Hancock. Johnstown had a successful season at the races as a three-year-old, winning, in addition to the derby, the Wood Memorial, Belmont, Withers and Dwyer Stakes.

New York, May 15 — (AP)— Big Johnny Mize, for 14 years one of the most feared hitters in the major leagues, today was sent to Kansas City by New York Yankees.

Two other players were consigned to the American Association farm along with Mize, who was bought by the world champions last August from New York Giants. They were pitcher Duane Pillette and infielder Billy Martin, both of whom were optioned on a 24-hour recall basis.

Wednesday midnight is the deadline for major league clubs to reduce rosters to a maximum of 25.

The Yankees also announced that pitcher Clarence Marshall and outfielder Johnny Lindell would be among the missing by deadline time.

Marshall has been informed that a deal is pending with another club involving him. Lindell also will be transferred to some other club.

A Yankee official said that Mize had been sent to Kansas City after he had expressed a willingness to play in the American Association. That was the only way the club could have sent the veteran first baseman to the minors. A 10-year-man can demand and receive his release before accepting a transfer to a league of lower classification.

Mize, 37 last Jan. 7, has been bothered by a lame right shoulder following an injury last September. He feels that steady work will enable him to get back into shape.

Mize led the National League in batting in 1939, he drove in the most runs in 1940, '42 and '47. He won the home run crown in 1939 and '40, and tied Ralph Kiner for the honor in 1948. He hit three homers in a game five times, a record. He reached his homer peak in 1947 with 51.

Kvasnak Living Up to Advance Touting on Him

(By The Canadian Press)

Alex Kvasnak is living up to pre-season touting in the inter-county baseball league.

The big, 23-year-old centre-fielder, who has done the rounds in many professional and semi-professional leagues, Saturday smiled and batted his Waterloo Tigers to a 7-2 victory over St. Thomas Legionaires.

Kvasnak was signed up as playing-manager several weeks before the Intercounty league got under way and was expected to give Tigers power, plus. Saturday he did just that—getting three hits in four trips at bat, that drove in three runs, stealing two bases and making a sensational catch in the outfield.

In three other intercounty games, London Majors made their home opener a winning one by beating Kitchener Legion 6-2, Stratford Nationals went down 6-1 to Brantford Red Sox and Galt Terriers downed Guelph Maple Leafs 7-2.

At Waterloo, righthander Al Dumouchelle coupled with Kvasnak for the winner. He scattered five hits to the Legionnaires and fanned 12 batters for his second win in as many starts.

Jumped On Hurler

Tigers jumped on pitcher Doc Dougherty for seven runs and seven hits in six innings. Dougherty was relieved by Mat Matthews in the seventh. Jim Muldoon, Tiger second baseman, got two hits, one a two-run homer in the sixth frame.

At London, tireless Tommy White went the route for the Majors and held Kitchener to four hits. He fanned one and walked seven.

Tommy Howe started on the mound for Kitchener. He lasted three innings, giving up two runs and four hits. Roy Tredgett took over to start the fourth and finished up.

Shortstop Russ Evon was the batting star for Majors with two triples. Kitchener managed to score the runs in the fourth and sixth innings.

The Red Sox started off by counting four runs in the first inning and got another two in the third. The only run by Nationals came in the last inning.

Starting hurler Billy Gibbs turned in a solid performance for the Sox until the sixth inning. He was relieved in favor of Alf Gavey although Brantford was leading 6-0.

Pedro Jaurez paced Brantford with three hits—a triple, double and single. He drove in five runs. Harry Mooradian batted in the other.

Lasted Two Frames

Terriers hit three Guelph hurlers for 15 hits, including three doubles.

Lefty Marty Philp lasted less than two innings for Guelph, and big Red Kaiser went along until the seventh when he made way for a pinch hitter. Bill Leader finished up.

Holt, Horne and Lillie each belted in two runs for Galt—all of them on four trips at bat.

Big Jim Bagby went the distance for the winners and had only one poor inning—the sixth when he gave up three hits and committed an error. However, Bagby helped in his victory role by getting three hits in five trips at the plate.

After the game, Guelph lodged a protest, claiming Dick Walker was ineligible to be on the coaching lines. Walker is reported to have been given permission to play by league president Otto Manski, although his release papers are not yet filled by the league.

The BLACK-THROATED BLUE WARBLER is one of our most delightful spring migrants. His vivid color pattern of black, grey-blue and white is most distinctive and attractive. He nests in evergreens, and is a very valuable insect-eater. He should be protected.

Shorter Stretch May be Factor In Preakness

Baltimore, May 15 — (AP)— Listen to horse racing experts try to pick a winner and you'll hear everything up to astrology mentioned. Maybe even that.

Usually the word recurring is "distance". This is true particularly in figuring three-year-olds just getting around to running a mile and more.

The front runners in the Kentucky Derby showed they could weather a 1¼ miles—one sixteenth longer than this Saturday's Preakness. But where did they show their distance stuff in the stretch? There spoon a problem.

The old Pimlico course, where the No. 2 till in the American triple crown will be run, has a shorter stretch than either Churchill Downs or Belmont.

This can mean a lot to such a come-from-behind runner as C. T. Chenery's Hill Prince, which could do no better than second in the Derby. When the distance was reduced to a mile on the shorter Belmont stretch in the Withers, last Saturday, Hill Prince finished first with King Ranch's Middleground, the Derby winner, second. Five other colts are considered good prospects to compete with Middleground and Hill Prince in the Preakness.

They are Mrs. Andrew Schultinger's Ferd, third in the Withers; C. V. Whitney's Mr. Trouble, third in the Derby; Mrs. James Carson's Kinsman; Middleground's stablemate On The Mark; Sylvester W. Labrot's Arcave and William H. Labrot's Balkan.

William Goetz' Your Host, Derby favorite who faded to finish ninth after setting the pace for a mile, was declared out of the Preakness Sunday. He will be shipped back to California.

Me...farm with Nickel?

The gears of that combine, for instance, are made of tough, long-lasting Nickel Alloy Steel because of the terrific strains they have to bear.

Think of the punishment tractor parts have to take! That's why axles, gears and other critical parts are made of Nickel Steel. It gives greater strength, longer wear.

There's a lot of Nickel in that truck—in its gears, steering knuckles, and numerous other parts.

Forty-three years of research have uncovered hundreds of uses for Nickel in the United States and other countries. Now Nickel exports bring in millions of U.S. dollars yearly. These dollars help pay the wages of the 14,000 Nickel employees in Canada and also help pay Canadian railwaymen, lumbermen, iron and steel workers and other men and women making supplies for the Nickel mines, smelters and refineries.

Bold bidders are not necessarily wise bidders. They take too many chances against stacked As. As in the case of defenders who go to a no-trump game after opposing one bid.

A duplicate match came this way:

NORTH
♠10 9 6
♦7 2
♣10 9 7 6

WEST
♠K Q J
♥9 7 5
♦ 4
♣5 2

EAST
♠8 7 2
♥3
♦K J 10 9 8 6
♣A Q 3

SOUTH
♠5 4 3
♥A K J 9
♣K J 4

At one table the bidding went like this:

North	East	South	West
1 Dbl	Pass	2 D	Pass
2 NT	Pass	3 D	Pass
3 NT	All Pass

The Horse Sense opening bid South promised five suit tricks which at least four were high cards. This is the same as saying at least four no-trump tricks being them.

Against such an opening the defenders are indeed bold in going to a no-trump game. Their play will depend on developing a long suit because of their lack of sufficient high cards.

Whereas this is possible, it is taking the odds against a strong player. A careful or clever pair of bending players too often find a lot of frustrating place to bring the long suit.

The general idea is that there are only 12 high cards (aces, kings, queens) in a pack. If one side has four of them the other side can have no more than eight. If an opening one bidder could have more than four. Which would be worse for the opponents.

The opening lead from north was a heart. East hand goes down dummy. The contract does not look tough. Four diamond tricks are possible. Nine tricks seem easy with club ace and four spades.

But south and north have something to say about this. When it came up in a championship match the foresight by south spiked the chances of declarer. Could you have done it?

GIRL SAVES FAMILY

Campbellford, May 15.—(CP)—Thirteen-year-old Ruth Milne saved a brother and two sisters in their home Saturday when a fire broke out while the parents were attending a funeral. Soon after Mr. and Mrs. James A. Milne left the house, sparks from a chimney set the roof on fire and the house was destroyed. Only a few article of furniture were salvaged.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

A week ago, Clarence Brown celebrated 25 years of film directing by selecting the five great lovers of the screen. He chose Boyer, John Barrymore, Clark Gable, John Gilbert and Rudolph Valentino.

"I don't like the title," the French actor told me. "I have never liked it and have never been flattered by being known as such."

"I have never liked being typed in one particular role. In Paris, I always played a wide variety of roles and I have tried to do the same here. The trouble is that two or three performances always stick in the public mind."

This may come as a blow to hundreds of night club and amateur imitators, but Boyer added that he never uttered the words: "Come wid me to the Casbah." Somebody else dreamed up the line.

Away From Romance

The actor is going far afield from romance in his current movie. He is playing a priest in "The First Legion."

A season ago, Boyer doffed his toupee to play on Broadway in "Red Gloves," his first American stage appearance. I asked if he would appear without the hairpiece in the picture.

"No," he replied, "I always like to look the same on the screen. Lighting is a different matter in pictures too. There has to be a definite hairline."

Montreal Hurler Racks up Fourth Straight Win

(By The Associated Press)

Omar (Turk) Lown, whose 1949 International League tenure was highly unprofitable, ranks today with the ball circuits Aces.

The Brooklyn-born righthander of the high-flying Montreal Royalf has four victories to his credit and no defeats. Last year he won only one game and lost seven before he was sent to Fort Worth of the Texas League, where he did an about-face and copped eight—including a no-hitter—and lost one.

Lown Sunday turned in his fourth triumph as he held the Royals to a 7-0 decision over Baltimore Orioles in the second half of a doubleheader.

The Royals also took the opener, 6-5, in 10 innings. Al Glendridge won the game with a bases-loaded single.

Rochester moved to within half a games of second-place Jersey City by taking both games of a twin bill from the Giants, 2-1 and 7-5. Righthander Johnny Yuhas, gunning for his fifth victory, left the game in the fifth after he was struck on the head by a thrown ball while warming up for second.

Veterans Bud Byerley and Jim Prendergast pitched Syracuse Chiefs to 6-0 and 6-2 triumphs respectively over the last-place Buffalo Bisons.

The up-and-coming Springfield Cubs also won a doubleheader, beating Toronto Maple Leafs 5-4 and 4-3.

Ed Ihde granted only four hits in the first game but needed help from Warren Hacker in the ninth when the Leafs slaged a three-run rally. Bob Spicer went the route in the second game, yielding only three hits.

Montreal, May 15 (CP)—Provincial police said here last night that 15 persons were arrested at Yamachiche, Que., during the weekend during a police raid on a cock fight. Thirty roosters were seized. Yamachiche is 20 miles west of Three Rivers.

While The HIDDEN ROOM was being shot on location in Mayfair, Haigh, the acid-bath murderer, was pulling off one last of his crimes nearby. By a freak, film and facts were so much alike that not only the film but all publicity on it was banned until the death sentence had been passed on the murderer. In the issue of the London Mirror; commenting on the case, which resulted in the editor going to jail for contempt of court, he ran this still from The HIDDEN ROOM showing Robert Newton as a murder suspect. When released, The HIDDEN ROOM was sensational at the boxoffice.

Answer to Saturday's Puzzle:

Little Benny's Note Book

I was taking a Saturday walk Ma was eating breakfist with her hat on, and pop dropped his napkin and rewched down to get it, saying, Owtch, horse blanket to bite my back herts.

William, if those panes have started again, you're going a-round to see the doctor, and no fuss and feathers, ma said, and pop said, I'll say I am. I'll go confounded soon, if this keeps up, he said.

Now William, there's no time sooner than the present, ma said, you'll go feral thing after break-fist, and I'll go with you on my way down town to make dubbly sure you get there, she said.

Oh, it's not as urgent as all that, pop said. I can bend over all rite it's just the straightening up again that hertz. If I couldn't bend either way, I'd be around at the doctor's office like a flash, he said, and ma said, William, you've heard my last werds on the subject.

Yes, my dear, they were very intriting, pop said. Say, where's that 3 pound medical book of yours? What's the name of it—The Home Physician, isn't it? It's sure to have some simple re-medy, like more greens or fast, I'll look it up rite now, he said.

Which he went and started to do, taking the books off all the shelfs to see what was in back of them, being still more books but not The Home Physician, and pop said, By gollies, it's disappeered.

What, The Home Physician? ma said, and pop said, No, my pane in the back. All I needed was a little exercise lowering and blat-ting books, and if I could find The Home Physician I'll bet, that's just what it would say.

Kingston United played host Saturday to Belleville Navy and in a hard-fought game, won 4-0.

It was a tough game for the Navy boys who were short five men due to a breakdown on the road. However they were not downhearted and played three of their crippled players, making a team of ten men, four short of the Kingston team.

Navy Held

This no doubt set the Navy right on their toes for they held the score down to 1-0 the first half through a terrific barrage of attacks. Navy goalie Alf Hughes and backs Fred Jones, Bill Salter and Don Longhurst played an outstanding gruelling game of defence whilst the energetic Captain Jack Jones was everywhere at once trying hard to even the score and at the same time help out the defence.

In the second half the Navy opened up their attack in hope of tying the score and made several attacks in the Kingston penalty zones. There were several good placed wing passes but the Navy centre forward was just not there to put the ball in the net.

C.P.R. Bridge Is Blown up, Reprisal Blamed

Grand Forks, B.C., May 15 (CP)—A Canadian Pacific Railway bridge was blasted Sunday night in what provincial police said was a "reprisal raid" by Sons of Freedom Doukhobors.

Bombing of the 197-foot steel bridge on the C.P.R.'s Kettle Valley line following the arrest Sunday of 40 "Sons" on arson raid made parading charges.

The Bridge, 2½ miles east of this Kootenay settlement, was badly damaged but a railway spokesman said traffic on the line will be resumed tomorrow night.

Joe Pickerel, unlike his piscatorial pal Spunky the Speckle, gave a full-bag reception to eager-beaver fishermen over the season-opening weekend.

Fresh from their annual duties of depositing their roe in river, stream and lake under-water maternity wards, the pickerel, despite some pre-season poaching inroads, were apparent in large hungry numbers.

They went for the man - made bait like Man O' War to the post. Reports say they gobbled everything, well nearly everything in sight, and the result was a pile-kerel in every skillet, and sometimes two. Sardine rations were left unmolested in pantries.

West Lake near Wellington, was productive of some nice catches. Over 30 boats were noted on Saturday searching for the elusive pickerel and they came back well-laden.

The Trent River yielded some good hauls, one city angler returning home early with his quota.

The pickerel, it is reported, are in full run albeit in a fighting mood as many stories (fish) will testify.

Some catches of pike were reported, but it appears this cousin of Joe Pickerel was not in his receptive mood.

Mother's Day Service

Mother's Day was observed with special services in the churches of Madoc Village. At Trinity United Church a special service was held with the pastor, Rev. Mr. Poulter, bringing a message to the parents in this modern day. The home life of the child, the environment and the duties of the parents to the training of "their children. A solo "Mother" was sung by C. I. Ross and lettergraphed by six little girls, and a special baptismal service, when the little babes of Mr. and Mrs. Rankin, Mr. and Mrs. Don Ashe and Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Blakely were baptized.

Special flowers were placed in the church by Mr. and Mrs. L. Bennett and Mr. Charles Conley in memory of loved ones deceased.

At St. Peter's Presbyterian Church a special Mother's Day service was held in the morning, with Rev. M. W. Heslip delivering a special message. A young people's choir of 30 voices provided the music for the service with Ronnie Robertson as organist.

At St. John's Anglican Church, on Sunday evening, Rev. W. T. Good gave a special Mother's Day message to his parishioners and special Mother's Day hymns were used during the service. The choir of St. John's Anglican are preparing for a special musical service for Sunday morning May 22nd when they will be assisted by the choirs of Queensboro and Bannockburn Parish, and the Rev. Canon Davis of Kingston will be the special speaker.

The Standard said the Japanese troops, "which took part in the battle of Hainan," are being transferred to Chinese Communist Gen. Chen Yi's third army. Earlier reports said as many as 30,000 Japanese veterans from Manchuria fought in Red Gen. Lin Piao's vaunted "steel corps" in south China.

How Some Mothers Mark Mother's Day

Los Angeles, May 15—(AP) —How they celebrated Mother's Day:

Mrs. Norman Hanson, 26, professional diver—while her nine-year-old daughter and others looked on—descended 220 feet to the ocean floor off Catalina, laid claims to a new women's record.

Mrs. Elden Parnell, age 26, mother of six—gave birth to a seventh in the family car while her husband was racing the stork to a hospital. A policeman acted as midwife.

CONSERVATIVES WIN 2 FEDERAL BY-ELECTIONS

G. Hees, Mrs. Fairclough Successful Candidates.

Toronto, May 16 (CP)— The Progressive Conservative party won two federal by-elections Monday. It retained Toronto Broadview by a wide margin and wrested Hamilton West from the Liberals in a tight race.

Mrs. Ellen Fairclough, 45-year-old Hamilton controller, became the first woman member of the present Parliament when she won in a three-way race in Hamilton West by a plurality of 388 votes.

George Hees, 39, former Toronto Argonaut football player and now executive of a Venetian Blind Factory, kept Toronto Broadview's long party with a victory over three other candidates, including runner-up Ruth Radford, Liberal.

Three of the seven candidates in the two by-elections — one Labor-Progressive and two CCF lost their $200 deposits because they failed to get half as many votes as the winner.

The returns:

Toronto Broadview (155 of 160 polls); Prof. George Grube, CCF 4,765; Hees, Progressive Conservative 10,157; Ruth Radford, Liberal 5,677; Charles Weir, Labor-Progressive 161.

Conference Between Stalin And Lie in Kremlin Climaxes 'Save the U.N.' Mission

The conference climaxed the "Save the U.N." mission which had brought Lie hastening around the world to see the Russian leader.

Diplomats speculated that China's representation in the U.N. was a major topic at the discussions. No details of the talks were disclosed, but it is not thought here that the Russians showed any signs of modifying their refusal to participate in any U.N. organization in which Chiang Kai-Shek's government is represented.

Russia has demanded that the Peiping government of Mao Tse-Tung be recognized as China's representative in the United Nations.

Present with Lie and Stalin at the meeting were Vice-Premier V. M. Molotov and Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky. The interview came after Lie—seeking to ease East-West tension—had conferred with President Truman in Washington and with top officials in London, Paris and here in Moscow.

The 90-minute interview was considered a rather long one for the Soviet Prime Minister. It was considered here that Lie and Stalin discussed not only the China question but other basic points of East-West tension as well.

There was speculation that Lie might discuss his talk with Stalin at a press conference he has scheduled tentatively for tomorrow.

All Moscow newspapers reported the meeting today on their front pages, publishing the brief communique announcing the conference at which the United National Information Centre here issued.

CRIPPLING RAIL STRIKE ON U.S. ROADS SETTLED

Carriers Win Fight On Principal Issue

Chicago, May 16 — (AP) — The worst railroad strike in the United States in four years was settled today and striking firemen on five major rail systems were ordered back to their job immediately.

The affected carriers — their passenger and freight service disrupted by the six-day walkout — planned to resume normal service "as rapidly as possible."

The carriers said they won the fight on the principal issue — not to hire a second fireman on multiple-unit diesel locomotives. They said the union, the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers, withdrew its demands on the issue, which has been in dispute between the Brotherhood and carriers for more than 10 years.

Union President David B. Robertson, in a statement, termed it a "satisfactory," the settlement "of all issues involved."

The Union said it did not withdraw "entirely" its request for assignment of a third man on big diesel locomotives. A spokesman said the Brotherhood "modified" its demand.

The Union said the agreement eliminated wage differentials which it said existed in pay of firemen on all passenger steam locomotives and straight electric locomotives. They had lower rates than firemen on coal burning or diesels, the union said. The new agreement, it said, brings all rates at the same level. No figures were given.

Effective May 10th

The strike started May 10 and had tied up the Baltimore and New York Central, the Southern Railway and Santa Fe systems. It was extended to the southwestern district of the Union Pacific Railroad last Saturday.

Although only some 18,000 locomotive firemen went on strike, the walkout affected much of the U. S. rail transportation and had made idle 200,000 other workers — mostly railroad employees.

The union and carriers had met continuously with federal mediators for nine hours during the night and early morning hours.

A railroad spokesman said the carriers, after the major issue was settled, "had no trouble at all" drawing its demand, agreed to and signed the new charges "that certain practices in connection with the operation of these trains were in violation of existing contracts."

While two fact-finding boards cleared the carriers of these charges," the carrier spokesman said, "they agreed to go before a third board — an arbitration board — for a final decision in to be binding on both sides."

EIGHT-ALARM FIRE IN BALTIMORE

Baltimore, May 16 — (AP) — An eight-alarm fire, visible for five miles, Monday night burned through a block-long furniture warehouse and spread to a nearby lumber yard and mill plant and sent 150 persons fleeing from their homes. But no one was injured. Cause of the fire was unknown. Damage was not estimated.

7-Mile Lyndale Dike Now Main 'Crisis' Point

If It Fails All Business District Will be in Danger

By NORMAN MICHIE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Winnipeg, May 16. (CP)—The eyes of two flood-weary, crippled cities focussed today on a precarious, 14-foot-high dike and the hundreds of empty homes it protects from the bloated Red.

For three weeks the river, higher than since 1852, has eaten at the huge earth-and-sandbag barrier which skirts St. Boniface and its Norwood suburb, opposite the Winnipeg business district.

Other whole suburbs in the metropolitan area have been inundated by the Red. The Winnipeg business section has been threatened. Even most of St. Boniface has been evacuated as "precautionary measure."

But the Lyndale dike—pet project of contractor Rosario Brabant who nursed it from a frail ditch-flip to the strongest dike in greater Winnipeg—still holds.

Main 'Crisis' Point

Sandbags around the Riverside power stations and protection of the water supply were infinitely more important. Power and water failure would be the only likely cause of general evacuation of all greater Winnipeg if the now-cresting river rose unexpectedly.

But to thousands of volunteers who have piled its sandbags, the seven-mile Lyndale dike was the main "crisis" point.

Today it was a case of watch and wait. Engineers said the dike seemed in good shape. But there was fear constant seepage had eaten away its base, threatening to topple sections outward into the river.

The army said it was unsafe to pile more weight on it. Instead 200 civilians and 120 [illegible] men worked last night and today strengthening its back. Sixty bulldozers, nine draglines and 60 trucks worked earth and gravel to make the dike thicker. Two hundred other volunteers filled sandbags to plug any minor break.

Experts said the Red and its tributary Assiniboine and Seine would have to fall five feet at Winnipeg and Lyndale dike and others in greater Winnipeg could be called out of danger.

Floor Holds Steady

For 30 hours up to 5:00 a.m. E.D.T. today the Red and its tributary Assiniboine and Seine held steady at 30.1 feet. That is 12 feet above the flood-risk level in Winnipeg district, but an encouraging one-inch foot below the 1950 high reported Sunday.

D. S. Stephens, provincial minister of Resources for Manitoba, said yesterday the river's crest was expected to extend generally for a yard and mill plant and sent 150 persons fleeing from their homes. But no one was injured. Cause of the fire was unknown. Damage was not estimated.

EGGS, TOMATOES SHOWER ON DEAN AT HAMILTON

Hamilton, May 16 — (CP) — The Dean of Canterbury doggedly completed his local speaking engagements on behalf of the Canadian Peace Congress Monday night despite a barrage of eggs and tomatoes and one large rock that showered members of his audience with glass splinters.

Very Rev. Hewlett Johnson — the so-called red dean — who advocates friendship with Soviet Russia, spoke before two audiences, at the Central and Hungarian halls. He repeated that "Russia does not want war" and declared "the people of the world are hungry for peace." He urged that people join the Peace Congress to bring this about.

The 76-year-old dean and Rev. J. G. Endicott, chairman of the Peace Congress, were on the platform in the first hall when an audience of 500 was interrupted once as a side door was flung open and a number of rotten tomatoes were thrown at the speakers.

The main trouble started when the dean and the Congress members moved to another hall where an audience of 400 waited.

Fateful Questions Face Leaders Of Atlantic Alliance Nations

London, May 16. (AP)—The risk of a possible depression if too much is spent on defence lies squarely before the Foreign Ministers of the 12-country Atlantic Alliance at their meeting here. The fateful questions whose answers may mean the difference between the war and peace boil down to these:

How many guns must the West muster to be confident of knocking back any Russian aggression which they fear may come?

If they build and pay for a safe number of guns, will the gunmaking bring on economic misery which communism can use to capture the Allies one at a time from within?

Committees of experts met all day to write resolutions attempting to answer both these questions safely and translate their answers into a plan of action.

Later today the Foreign Ministers, with State Secretary Dean Acheson of the United States presiding, will take up the resolutions. Two or three sessions stretching through. Wednesday probably will be needed to iron out conflicting views and to decide on a course of action.

Their generals and defence ministers, meeting last month, laid plans for large-scale rearmament which, simultaneously, would include a total ground force of 30 divisions backed by British and American air forces.

The finance ministers at the same time contended that economies could not stand such drains on manpower, materials and money.

HOUSE APPROVES PRIVATE BILLS ON PIPELINES

Ottawa, May 16. (CP)— The Commons has cleared from a crowded order paper a big legislative bunching block—western oil and gas pipe-line legislation.

Filibustered last session and again in this one, two private bills to incorporate western pipeline companies were given final reading Monday night in a last-minute flurry of debate and divisions. There were four recorded votes which split party lines and the bills were approved "on division"—indicating disapproval without a recorded vote.

They now go to the Senate where demands for assurance of an All-Canada pipe-line route could be renewed. But this is considered unlikely since the Senate passed them last year and they later bogged down in the Commons.

The bills are those incorporating the Alberta Natural Gas Company and Trans-Mountain Pipe Lines Limited. Both companies seek the right to construct natural gas pipe lines from the oil fields of Alberta to the Pacific Coast.

CAR TURNS OVER FOUR TIMES

Lindsay, May 16. (CP) — A Toronto minister and five other persons on their way to a church rally escaped serious injury Monday night when their automobile blew a tire, turned over four times and came to rest upside down.

The minister, Rev. Arthur Poynter, director of the Young People's Choral Society of Toronto, continued and addressed the rally at Bethany, five miles southeast of Lindsay.

National Appeal Of Relief Fund Made Over Air

Winnipeg, May 16 — (CP) — A dominion-wide appeal for support of the Manitoba flood relief fund was made Sunday night over a national CBC hook-up.

Brig. R. J. Manson, flood control commander and one of the four speakers, said the fund "was intended for relief but for rehabilitation."

Others on the program were Premier Campbell, Chief Justice T. K. Williams of Manitoba and Mayor Garnet Coulter of Winnipeg.

Brig. Morton said "rehabilitation of homes and property will be a vast undertaking even with the financial assistance of the Red Cross and government agencies."

Chief Justice Williams said "the need is greater than mere words can express.

"We can appeal to everyone, everywhere who has the ability to help us to help ourselves to our assistance in this great distress — now."

Disaster Relief Fund Organized, Donations May Be Sent to Bank Branches

Belleville, through its mayor and a cross section of citizens, moved swiftly today to establish a disaster relief fund committee primarily designed to send financial aid to the flood-stricken people of Winnipeg. Donations, however, will be received for the relief victims of Rimouski and Cabano.

At a meeting held in the City Hall council chambers this morning Mr. J. M. Wood, head of the J. M. Wood Company, Bridge Street and John Street, and a resident of Winnipeg for 24 years, was named chairman of the committee.

Honorary presidents are Mayor Jack Allin, Alderman J. C. Anderson, Warden Clarke Rollins, of Hastings County, Alderman McLean Haig, Mrs. Georgia Smith, Morley Duff, president of the Belleville branch of the Red Cross, and the Rev. C. A. Perkin, president of the Ministerial Association.

Press, Radio to Assist

The working committee is composed of the radio and press, and representatives of service clubs and organizations which will be augmented at the request of the chairman.

The honorary treasurer is Mr. Hefley Hefley, manager of the Royal Bank branch here. Donations will be received at all branches of banks in the city. Money received will be forwarded direct to Winnipeg where official receipts for income tax purposes will be issued, if requested.

The committee, it was pointed out, will confine its activities strictly to the raising of finances for relief purposes. Flood-fighting equipment is being sought by the provincial and city officials which up to the moment has had no instructions to receive financial donations. It was further pointed out, there will likely be no campaign to collect clothing. Suggestions regarding a slogan and name of the committee were also solicited.

pired, the suggested slogan being "Think—it could have been us". These suggestions with the appointment of a secretary were left to the chairman and his committee for action.

Methods of raising funds other than through private subscription were discussed and it was suggested that a tag day be held and a large tub placed in the corridor of the Bata Shoe, Bridge Street where small donations could be received. Other matters will be taken up immediately by the committee.

Some discussion took place over the purpose of the committee as to whether it would raise funds for the relief of Winnipeg, Rimouski and Cabano disaster victims, or confine its activities to the financial relief of the Winnipeg flood victims.

Mainly For Flood Victims

It was decided for the moment to concentrate on relief of flood victims, with advertising pointing the finances from funds would be accepted for the Rimouski and Cabano relief projects.

For the accommodation of rural residents, it was decided that the city before evening, it was suggested, this radio station, CJBQ will operate as a receiving centre for donations "after hours."

Mayor Jack Allin who presided at the meeting said that the government-sanctioned appeal-to-donations method was needed to get relief to the people of Canada. Everywhere there is a desire to help and it is clear that Canadians from coast to coast are eager to render every aid.

He said in closing that he hoped the people of Belleville and district would generously respond to the appeal, and send the relief victims of Winnipeg the largest financial contribution possible.

Chushan Islands Are Abandoned By Nationalists

Taipeh, Formosa, May 16—(AP) Nationalist China tonight announced abandonment of the Chushan Islands.

The official announcement, coming on the heels of vows by the Nationalists to defend the islands to the death, said 150,000 troops were withdrawn.

Only Monday a Nationalist general from there, who insisted that he not be named, said the battle for the Chushans had not started. The Chushans were extremely important to the Nationalists. From that base 100 miles southeast of Shanghai, an effective air and naval blockade of the big communist port had been effected.

Inquiry Opens Into Crash Of British Plane

Cardiff, Wales, May 16. (AP) —A Tudor V airliner crash in which 30 persons were killed may have been caused by flying tail-heavy, crown counsel said today.

The inquiry into the crash plunged into the world's worst commercial air disaster of last March 29.

The Tudor V was returning on a charter flight from Dublin with 78 football fans and a crew of five. It crashed within seconds of landing at Llandow Airfield, near here.

Air Ministry experts who examined the wreckage presented evidence of structural or mechanical defects before the crash, said Edmund Davies, crown counsel. The inquiry is expected to last eight days.

Man Risks Life to Snatch Bear Cub, Just Beats Mother to Car

Port Arthur, May 16 —Always mind your own business when a mother bear is in the vicinity, and remember the value your life and limb, molest her cubs. Those are the lessons Dan Guzzell has observed in the bushlands.

With reckless disregard for both Mike Guzzell of Port Arthur snatched a month-old cub literally from under the mother's tail yesterday and today the black furry creature, weighing about 15 pounds, is playing a new life in the basement of Mr. Guzzell's home.

The kidnapping took place on Shebandowan Rd., the actual capture by the man's son, Dan Guzzell, 19, on the side of the road not more than 20 feet from the mother bear and between 40 and 50 feet from Mr. Guzzell's car.

Moved by a crazy impulse, Mr. Guzzell said, he jammed on the brakes on seeing the mother bear, followed by two cubs, scramble across the road ahead of him. Leaping out, Mr. Guzzell ran after the trio, grabbed the rear end by the scruff of the neck and raced back to the car.

In equal frenzy the cub warned the mother who reared up, growling. Then the bear came down on all fours to set out in pursuit. By the time Mr. Guzzell had the car door open, the adult bear was level with the front door. She stood there as the car picked up speed.

"I didn't realize until afterward the risk I was running," Mr. Guzzell said last night.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, May 16 — (CP) — Prices were mixed in brisk trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Easier tendencies continued in market leaders for a second successive session. Low-priced mining stocks again held the trading limelight. Volume for the first three hours was 2,075,000 shares.

Gains and losses were about balanced in Industrials but market leaders were among the losers. Papers were in moderate demand for some slight fractional advances.

Senior golds slipped fractions while juniors steadied from Monday's sharp late decline. Penny prospects traded heavily. Bevcourt, Dulama, McMarmac, and Wingait were among the more active and higher issues.

Base metals moved irregularly, opening lower but pushing into plus territory at the half-way mark. Noranda was ahead a fraction and Waite Amulet and United Keno Hill were strong.

Illegal Possession Of Pickerel Ends in Court

Charged with having illegal possession of pickerel or with fishing illegally, a total of 13 persons appeared on the docket of the city magistrate's court today. Six pleaded guilty out of court and paid fines and costs ranging from $13 to $23 each, while seven others made personal appearances in court.

Of these three pleaded guilty and were assessed fines ranging from $13 to $18; three others had their cases enlarged for one week, while still another had his charge dismissed by the Magistrate.

Pay Fines

Pleading guilty out of court were Percy Badgley, Norman Noyes, Clayton Kellar, John W. Mitts, John Hillier and Charles Noyes, all of whom paid $13 fine and costs with the exception of Norman Noyes who was assessed $23.

Robert Allen was assessed $15 fine and $3 costs when he pleaded guilty to being in possession of pickerel. Games Inspector Claude Winters said Allen had approximately 70 pounds of pickerel in a bag when he was apprehended. Gordon Asselstine paid $15 for being in possession of two pickerel, while William Keegan paid the same amount following a guilty plea to a charge of grappling.

Three Cases Enlarged

Robert Carey, Robert Rump and Ernest Arnem pleaded not guilty to charges and had their cases enlarged for one week.

Glen Schike of Rossmore was acquitted of a charge of being in possession of pickerel. Magistrate T. Y. Wills accepted his word that he had merely accepted a ride in Robt. Allen's car and had nothing to do with the fish found in Allen's possession.

All the charges were laid following infractions of the game and fisheries act which allegedly took place in the city during the latter part of April.

Recreation Program For City Playgrounds Close to Reality After Monday Night's Meeting

Plans for an organized recreation program under competent supervision at city playgrounds this summer are much closer to reality as a result of last night's meeting of Belleville's newly - formed Recreation Commission held at the Y.M.C.A.

Representatives of the city's various service clubs and community organizations pledged a total of $1120. The Commission hopes to raise $3,700 for its work this summer by voluntary contributions and the sale of "subscriber's tickets" which are being sold by the various community organizations.

Y.M.C.A. officials estimate that the total cost of the proposed recreation program will be about $7,300. This figure includes the salaries of trained personnel to supervise activities at the seven junior and three senior city playgrounds and also the cost of sports equipment and operation al expenses.

Something Must be Done

Most thinking citizens of the community are beginning to realize that something should be done to organize and supervise recreation, Enos David, chairman of the Recreation Commission, told the meeting.

In urging organizations and individuals to give their support to the Commission's drive to raise funds, Mr. David said, "If we can operate the ambitious program we hope to on that budget it will be akin to a miracle. Last year, Oshawa spent $35,000. on a similar program.

Mr. David emphasized the importance of having "trained personnel to carry out the work. It is better to have no supervision than poor supervision. Nothing in the city is more important than the welfare of the children. What better place can one spend money than by investing in the future citizens of the community."

Ernie Colebourne, president of the Kinsmen Club, pointed out that his organization "has a large undertaking on at present in raising $50,000 for a community swimming pool." Mr. Colebourne said that he was "quite sure the Kinsmen will come through with a contribution at a later date."

Wants Council to Provide

R. H. Tanner, speaking for the Queen Victoria Home and School Association agreed with the principle of the program but expressed the opinion that "it was a matter for city council. If this is done by private enterprise this year," said Mr. Tanner "what is to prevent next year's council saying that the citizens did it last year, why not let them continue."

In reply, Alderman R. T. Potter stated that while there was criticism of the existing tax rate there were also demands for a "health unit, incinerator and sewage disposal plant." Dr. Potter pointed out that it "is impossible to do everything at once," and the only way to get the program started this year was "to go ahead."

Supports Point of View

Alderman C. D. Tice supported this point of view, "If the money had been available, council would have given aid", declared Mr. Tice. Mr. Tice indicated he was sure there would be a considerable force in council as "members of the council are agreeable to the project."

L. W. Digby of the Canadian Legion said that proceeds from the sale of tickets and the money raised at a band concert and fireworks display to be held on July 7, would be turned over to the Parks Board.

Donations at last night's meeting included: Chamber of Commerce, $100.00; King George and Central Committee Playground Fund $150; Y's Men's Club, a maximum of $250; St. Julien Chapter I.O.D.E., $100; Kiwanis $100; Quinte Skating and Tennis Club $25. It is expected that a considerable amount will be realized from the sale of individual "Subscribers' tickets".

In summing up the financial statement of contributions received to date, Henry N. Becker, chairman of the Recreation Commission Finance Committee said, "There is little doubt that the objective we need this year will be reached."

Others present representing their respective organizations included: A. S. Martin, Kinsmen; Jim Musgrove, Belleville Collegiate Institute Home and School Association; Gordon Carter, Optimist Club; Harold Mott and R. L. Cowan, Rotary; Gordon J. Davies, Quinte Skating and Tennis Club; Al Davis and N. E. Edwards, Y.M.C.A.; Earl Mason, Y's Men's Club; Mrs. W. J. Gander, King George Home and School Association; J. A. Thornbury, Kiwanis; Freeman Burrows, Chamber of Commerce; Mrs. F. M. Carscallen, St. Julien Chapter I.O.D.E.

HON. J. EARL LAWSON

The death of Hon. J. Earl Lawson, former Progressive Conservative minister, removes an able and popular figure in the political and business life of Canada. A comparatively young man, he was in his sixties year, Mr. Lawson rose from relative obscurity to a position of national eminence.

In able lawyer, he directed the national election campaign that saw the late Viscount Bennett returned to office as Prime Minister of Canada. He also won his own seat on that occasion and subsequently, on the retirement of Hon. Ernest Matthews, became Minister of National Revenue.

At the succeeding election Mr. Lawson lost his seat and retired from political life, devoting himself to the practice of law. He had become associated with the J. R. Bank theatre interests and became their managing director in Canada.

Mr. Lawson had a pleasant and amiable personality. He also possessed ability and initiative. The combination of these qualities with natural integrity advanced him far—in public and professional life.

There is a lesson in his career. No one need be born to a silver spoon in his or her mouth to advance in this great country. What Earl Lawson did others can do. His life is an exemplification of fine Canadianism. It is a message to young men starting out in the world today.

THE QUEEN MOTHER'S CARPET

The royal carpet, the patient handiwork of the Queen Mother Mary, has been touring North America and everywhere on its journey it has had amazing attention with thousands of persons visiting exhibitions.

It is now drawing very large crowds in Toronto, Victoria, B.C., 17,000 persons viewed it within ten hours the lights on the Parliament Buildings were turned on for the occasion. 12,000 saw it in Vancouver. There is nothing of the thrill which was felt by the people may be inferred from the overheard remark of a grandmother to her little girl, "When she comes into a room, it is just like when our own dear grandmother was saying. Miss Cecilia Hardie of the Women's Voluntary Services, London, England, who has been touring America with the carpet heard the elderly woman's comment and later said, "And that is the best of the exhibition but there is no one to say mind of whom she spoke."

Wherever the carpet has been on view in leading American cities in art galleries and museums there has been no change for admission, costs of the tour are defrayed through the sale of picture cards, brochures and other booklets. The closing date, June 15, has been set and it is not surprising that the receipt of offers to buy the carpet, the work of a woman beloved and respected the world for the great service she rendered the Commonwealth while she was Queen and her husband George the Fifth was King and in the succeeding years which she has been known as Queen Mother.

The purpose of one's labor and industry is nobly exemplified in this work of the Queen-Mother to whom it was a labor of love and of patriotism. It is her personal gift to the solution of the pressing British problem of the shortage and represents more than a million pounds. In a very real sense it is a personal gift and there is inspiration in the loving labor centres even upon trivial things like this rug. Into it the Queen Mother has put a great deal of herself and her high ideals.

It has been a labor for the great cause, the cause of peace.

The success of the tour of the carpet in North America is inspiring to the entire English-speaking world also to lands which are not part of the British Commonwealth. Individuals and nations may well find a challenging to this piece of work by one who has as Queen Mother Queen Mother been beloved in the Motherland and world.

To the many tens of thousands who have seen the Queen Mother's gift to Britain it has a deep significance in weaving and patient labor Her Majesty gave to this work of hands and heart. It has significance to the women the men of the Commonwealth and other lands in an vexed with problems.

Such a work of love signifies home and fireside her in palace, mansion or cottage.

MORE POGONOTOMY!

The incidence has nearly doubled in a decade. Over 53 per cent men have already been affected.

Sociologists aren't worried, though, because "pogonotomy" means shaving. As for the big pogonotomy interests razor blade and electric shaver manufacturers and repairers — they are finding plenty to cheer about.

The United States whisker-whittlers last year bought a total of three billion razor blades — twice as many as in 1939. Blade sales, in fact, are running even higher. They purchased or got for Christmas 1,725,000 new electric shavers, 44 per cent more than a decade ago.

THE PACKSACK

GREGORY CLARK

An artist's supply dealer tells me that he has not twice but perhaps fifteen times had as his number of people buying oil paints, watercolor and canvases from him that he had only ten years ago.

The hobby of painting is growing like a well bounded Jack. Sir Winston Churchill has had something to do with the craze. People in all walks of life, from business tycoons and executives down to bus drivers and middle-aged housewives are taking to landscape painting, still life and portraiture of dogs, cats and even grandchildren.

The results are awful. You never know now what you are walking into when you visit a friend's home. The art gallery isn't already spread all over the mantel and the top of the piano and temporarily stuck on all available wall space, it will be tested out, the instant you permit the conversation to languish. These amateurs have the eager air of brides wanting to show you the kitchen. They get a little hand or ill-at-ease about the matter; but in their eyes is a beseeching expression. They are about be impressed.

"That's got," says your amateur, modestly, "a little touch of Matisse about it, hasn't it? Or is it Picasso?"

You see? It is all the fault of these professional moderns in art. They made painting look as if anybody could do it. And the result is, anybody can. In the old days, when art was a science, and a landscape painting looked like nothing you had ever seen, but only wished you had, the amateurs of painting were few and far between, and were kept in pretty close check by their families and friends.

But when the world's highest paid artists paint as if they had overweight hand managers or maladjusted motormen, what is to prevent overweight bank managers or maladjusted motormen from supposing they can paint?

MY DEAR OBSTETRICIAN

A firm of automobile makers tells us the so-and-so car is the common meeting ground for the world's most distinguished people and urges us to visit the dealer and add our name to the list of the distinguished list...The funny part of,this is that a good many persons of fair repute respond to such suggestion, not just the dealers and crooks.

Many communications from Yankee Wiseacres, the customers of trick "medicines," send us my information (being just an ordinary doctor I should be grateful to the Wiseacres for enlightenment), what "my obstetrician" would prescribe or "my pet psychiatrist" says, and apparently the Wiseacres assume that the specialist's pronunciamento will settle my hash.

Without purporting to be any better qualified to have an opinion upon the practice of medicine than a hundred thousand "ordinary" doctors in practice are fully as sound and dependable as the run of trick specialists.

By "trick specialist" I mean a doctor who competes with the honest practitioners of the community by "high pressure" patronage—tricks the public, or the gullible portion of it, into believing that he is a specialist in something because he calls himself a "specialist" he knows more or has greater skill than his "ordinary" doctor, the family doctor, home physician or practitioner.

According to the medical directory compiled by the national medical organization there are approximately 100,000 physicians in practice—about 50,000 of these are specialists. If the figures are correct there is no reason to estimate that less than 5,000 of the practitioners who hold themselves out as specialists are such specialists.

The "trick specialist" I mean the doctor who engaged in general practice for five or ten years, became particularly interested in a special field of practice, took a leave of absence or gave up the exercise of post-graduate study in that special field, and finally widened his practice to his chosen special field. He announced his limitation of practice to his medical colleagues. His only public announcement was a line under his name on his professional sign, card or office door: Practice limited to...whatever specialty he had chosen. The real specialist is hard to find these days in the ruck of trick "specialists" who employ every means to attract customers away from the family doctor.

The real specialist first gains and then holds the respect and confidence of his colleagues, and they refer patients for his help in consultation with them in difficult cases. The real specialist gives the doctor his opinion or advice or counsel or skill but does not try to supplant the doctor as physician to the patient or family. The real specialist is a doctors' doctor. We need real specialists as much as ever, but I discovery if genuine people would be better off, economically and physically, if a letter to bring that "specialists" now infesting the country were exposed as ethical quacks.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Woman Sixty-Five

Could a woman aged 65 who had her menopause twenty years ago possibly have a baby if she married again? (Mrs. M. T.)

Answer—Anything is possible except a mouse's nest in the cat's room. Such a pregnancy is unique as a woman who has had the menopause can no longer conceive.

Acid Condition My Eye

Daughter, 7, has an acid condition. Please tell me the cause of what affects her eyes. (Mrs. L. A.)

Answer—Not an odd notion. Better give the child the benefit of proper medical treatment and spare the doctor your funny notion about "acid condition."

Club Foot

Man I am about to marry had club foot at birth, lie in bed seven children and none of the others have it. Is it safe to be transmitted to our children? (Miss L. A.)

Answer—No. Club foot is not heritable. It is just an accident of birth and may occur in any family.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

Nathaniel Hawthorne, on his visit to England, called upon Thomas Carlyle, bearing a letter with an introduction by Barry Cornwell. Writing of the visit in his journal, Hawthorne said: "Mr. Hunt met us at the door of his little house; a very plain and shabby little house, in a continuous range of others like it, with no vestige of a garden before it, and nothing behind it, but a narrow street, and nothing beautiful inside or out."

But then he went on to tell about the man himself, how "beautiful and venerable" he was, and how gentle and courteous in manner. He described his intelligent talk, and his graceful way of explaining things. He wrote of his "luxuriant growth of heart — a soul in which to sow the seeds of love, and they will spring up and bear fruit a hundred fold when they parted the great man took both of Hawthorne's hands in his, and smiled a farewell. He had left a "shabby house," but a palace in his heart. He left within it. I have visited many a beautiful home, but left with no memory of a "beautiful soul" within it. I have also visited many a shabby home, and have been greeted by Hawthorne, and forgot all about its furnishings, but with the memory of the one within stamped indelibly upon my heart.

One of the most beautiful souls I have ever known, I met in Chilton, once, when visiting his college course. He was a retired minister and lived in a single room all alone. He had a brilliant mind and it was a treat just to listen to him talk, and upon dozens of topics, for he was a well informed man, and one who took such delight in spending his last dollar to make his occasional sermons here and there. He has now long gone to his reward, but the memory of his beautiful soul is as vivid to me today as when we talked together.

Many a humble home or cottage has sent out into the world a great spirit and a beautiful soul to administer to mankind's healing and giving aid to the diseased, the afflicted and enslaved. It was a beautiful soul who exclaimed: "Yonder have I my home, and birds of the air have nests; but the Son of man hath not where to lay His head."

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

NOT ALONE

Scaffolding will never erect a building but scaffolding very decidedly helps the builder.

Apply this to some of the situations of daily life. Education will never make us wise but education promotes wisdom on the part of those who are really seeking it. Even though the Bible is the Word of God, it never has converted a single soul or changed a human life for the better. But the Bible is the most potent of all the instruments by which, under the power of his Holy Spirit, God works in spiritual richness in a life and brings about a transformation of purpose; provided the individual in question wants these things to occur.

Everything in life is scaffolding, helping us to erect the beautiful building of life, designed by the Great Architect, and built under the care and supervised by the Great Architect. What miserable hovels some men and women build for the glory of life is that so many—and most of these humble people —build such beautiful structures, make so much out of their God-given opportunities.

Life has been described as an adventure, a pilgrimage, a conflict. Life is also a building project. The circumstances of our lives are the scaffolding which God is the Architect; we are the builders. The Holy Spirit shows us how to put the great design into operation.

Sides Determined To Hold Lines To Bitter End

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

Two notable developments abroad emphasize that the cold war in Europe has reached an impasse, with both sides digging in and determined to hold their present lines to the bitter end.

In the western camp we find the big three democracies—Britain, France and the United States —meeting in London with the other Atlantic-pact countries to perfect western Europe's defences against possible Soviet aggression. That defence includes both economic and military fields.

On the Russian side the iron curtain is being tightened for the purpose of putting an impenetrable barrier between the satellites and the democracies. The tightening of the curtain this time involves a further political purge in Poland in order to bring that country under close Soviet control.

Does this mean that the cold war is approaching its end Not by a long shot!

It merely means that the Russians, having been halted in the western rush are consolidating in Europe and are shifting the weight of their attack to the far eastern front.

Meantime the Russians are expected to continue their tactics of harassment— presumably largely economic— against the western powers. Part of the Soviet cold war strategy has been to put a heavy an economic strain as possible on the democracies.

One of the most striking developments in western camp came in the meeting of the Big Three foreign ministers just prior to the current Atlantic Pact conference. The Big Three decided that it was impossible to proceed with a German peace treaty so long as Russia refused to agree to a unified Germany.

However, the three ministers agreed that Western Germany should be fully integrated with western Europe, economically and defensively.

An important aspect of this Big Three agreement was the decision to keep western Germany armed camp of occupation troops for defence purposes. The agreement is particularly effective because Chancellor Adenauer, Chancellor of the West German government, and other west German leaders approved the Allied decision.

SHERIFF CUTS WIRE

El Paso, Tex., May 15 (AP)— A sheriff's officer scaled a pole at the New Mexico border Saturday night and cut Western Union wires leading to Anapro, N. M., race news service.

Sheriff Joe Campbell said the action disrupted race service to the west coast and Mexico.

Campbell said he hopes the action taken here will set a precedent throughout the United States. "If the wire-service and newsdissemination part of horse race betting can be stopped," he said, "I'm sure organized gambling in the country can be curtailed."

HAS HELPFUL HUSBAND

"Not everyone's husband is a chemist, so I pass on what Ed told me. Both my wash looked dingy and yellow. 'Blue is one of the seven colours that combine to make white,' he said. 'Without blue there is no pure white.' Now I just swish Reckitt's Blue in the final rinse for a wash that's snowy white every time. Out of the blue comes the whitest wash. And with Reckitt's Blue I avoid any danger from chemicals that may damage fabrics."

CHRIST CHURCH MEN'S CLUB

Christ Church Men's Club had a most enjoyable evening at their weekly meeting on Tuesday, last, in Christ Church Parish Hall when a fine representation of the Tabernacle United Church Men's Club and their minister, Rev. F. R. Harback, joined them for a social evening.

After a brief period of business, the chair was given over to Canon Grant Dearling, for his usual short weekly talk the subject being "The Weather," or "Atmosphere" in the home.

MARMORA

Mother's Day Services Featured By Music, Flowers

Marmora — Mother's Day was observed at St. Andrew's United Church on Sunday with morning and evening services, the pastor, Rev. G. D. Young, B.A., B.D., officiating. The church was artistically decorated, the daffodils, tulips, roses and other blooms and also blooming plants.

Flowers in memory of Mrs. Catharine Reynolds were donated by Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Wells, and by Mrs. Minnie Fox and also flowers in memory of W. A. Sanderson by Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Sanderson and Robert.

At the morning service the, order of worship, compiled by the Ontario Council of Christian Education, was closely followed. The scholars of the Sunday School occupied pews with their teachers. The choir was two-fold: members of the Glee Club occupied the seats on the north side, while the lady members of the Senior choir, occupied the other seats.

Early in the service, the unveiling of the cradle roll with its 25 names was carried out by Mrs. F. S. Sweet, who outlined its purpose, and Mrs. A. Crossen, who read the names.

Later three children received the Sacrament of Baptism: Suzan Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John McGregor; Thomas Andrew, son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Vilniff; and Sharon Ann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Rogers.

The Glee Club rendered as their anthem, the negro spiritual, "Steal Away to Jesus."

The Home

In his address the pastor followed the appointed theme, "God works through homes." He mentioned the constitution of the home He said that the buildings of Winnipeg were simply houses when pillaged and a few days ago. "Pray God they will soon be homes again." While there is no record of Paul's boyhood, or home left to us, the preacher pointed out "Any man who wrote to the Ephesians, as he did, realized the value of a home for he reiterated, "Honor thy father and thy mother that it may be well with thee, and thou mayest live long on the earth. May it be written that yours is a home in which God could work. The family is still the basic unit of our civilization."

The evening service was conducted by the Women's Missionary Society members and girls of the Explorer's Groups. The service concluded with a flower service in which Panie Fox recited the poem, "To Mothers."

Roses were presented to the mothers, and the solo, "Mother of Mine" was rendered by Mrs. E. C. Prentice.

By Alice Ross Colver

"But I'm sorry for her too, a little," Susan went on. "Every once in a while there's a look about her. Well, I mean, she makes me think of lightning chained to a tree, sort of."

He looked startled. . . .

"Didn't you feel that about her, too?"

"Well, yes, a little. Now that you mention it," he answered carefully.

"But I didn't come here to talk about Alicia Brandt. I came here really to talk to you." She paused. She had the most peculiar feeling when she was with him, she was thinking. Sometimes as if she were much much younger and again as if she were a great deal older. At the moment she older. Sort of like a mother checking up on her child. Tipping her head to one side she looked at him questioningly and asked. Have you done anything about getting a job yet?"

He grinned at her. "Anxious? Well, lady, I'll tell you. I've read all the Help wanted ads in two or three papers every day."

"You have! "Have you found anything interesting?"

He lifted a shoulder. "Not many. The catch is they want men who are experienced.' I'm not experienced."

"I know. But didn't you answer any, anyway?"

"Have you heard anything?"

"Well, hardly. It's been only a few days, you know."

"Of course, I'm just impatient, I guess. I do so want to see you settled somewhere before I go back to school."

"Settled! Yes, settled of course." His face grew thoughtful. It would be strange to be settled. He had never been settled in anything anywhere.

"I'm offered to help you whenever you want him to," she went on. In a little rush of pleasure that she had been able to manage that for him.

"Tim?"

"Timothy Grant. He's a sort of brother to me. Self-elected."

He felt a quick stab of jealousy go through him. "Is that all he is really?"

She nodded. "That's all." Her tone was positive, her look honest. "So don't think anything else. It's simply, well, he's offered to do for you what Don would do if he were in business instead of college. Tim will introduce you to the Personnel Director at LMI in any time you want him to.

Gerry was silent. He was trying to imagine that interview. He was trying to see himself connected in any way with International Mechanical Bureau. The trouble was the whole world of business was a closed book to him. Nothing in his life had prepared him for any of its requirements and the realization made him feel inept and green, and furiously impatient with himself because he felt so.

"What is it?"

This was one of her young moments when she felt utterly unable to say what is on her mind to say. Yet she must let him know that she wanted him to be careful with her people tonight. He was so proud, so quicktempered, so mocking and . . . and almost cruel at times. But he mustn't be Not tonight. In her anxiety her husky voice held a shrill tremor.

"Well, this is the thing. You know, I spoke to grandfather about helping you the way he is willing to help my father. And I have a feeling, no matter what you think, that tonight maybe he is going to. Maybe this is your chance. So if you could possibly be, well, the way you are with me now—" She stopped breathless.

Of a sudden the air between them was charged with emotion. He said in a low tone, "how am I with you now?" And she answered urgently "Oh, just darling." And then they were both on their feet staring at each other and the next moment she was in his arms.

It was nothing he had planned or wanted. Simply there she was looking at him with that lovely light on her face, that selfless, humble, proud desire to reassure him that she was on his side and in a surge of feeling beyond his control of understanding, he had reached for her, or a moment she had stood poised in shock, then with a small gasp of swift, startled joy she came to him. He held her now in an exultation that contained no thought that was even a little savage as he felt the pounding throb of her slender body against his, the passionate throb of her kisses. Then, after that first wild moment, something hot touched his cheek. The small scalding tear recalled him sharply to himself, and, almost roughly, he put her from him.

She said "I don't know why I'm c-crying."

"Listen Sue." He tried to force his mind to be cool again, to weigh and consider the possible profit and loss for him in this situation which he had indvertently precipitated. "We're rushing things a bit, I think. Don't you?"

She shook her head. She had backed against the door and stood there now, the pale heart of her face in the frame of her dark hair, shining with the bright energy that filled her, her pansy-purple eyes starred by the the stirring beauty of it.

"We didn't rush anything." Her low voice made a song of her words. "It just happened. It was bound to happen. I've known it from the beginning So have you."

"Perhaps," he agreed, struggling with an imminent strange pressure on mind and heart. "The thing is— your family isn't ready for anything like this from us yet."

"No. And they never will be. But what does that matter?"

He made an abrupt, violent gesture. "So help me! They will be. That's all I want! To makes them take me. Not just because of you." His voice, his whole body, was shaking.

She said "oh." And then, softly, "I'm sorry. I'm very stupid. Very young. And very stupid."

"No, not very stupid." Gerry stood looking at Susan. "I'm the one. I. . ."He stopped, amazed at the great certainty of his thought which like a light breaking after a storm, had dispelled in a second all the clouds that had befogged him. The thing was — he couldn't go after Susan as he had first thought of using because he loved her. The classic miracle had happened to him and in its happening everything had changed. What had been possible before was now impossible and what had been confused had assumed a pure and beautiful form.

He went to her and took her in his arms again but with gentler, this time.

"I want you," he said. "But I can't have you until I can take care of you."

"You can have me any time."

"No." he put his hands on her shoulders and held her from him, his dark eyes burning. "When I take you it'll be for keeps."

"But of course."

He shook her gently back and forth. "Don't you understand? Your family doesn't like me. They will fight me. Anyway they can. But if I can provide for you, I can snap my fingers at them. If I can't —well in time you'd go back to them."

"I wouldn't. No matter what, I wouldn't."

His hands slid from her shoulders and caught hers and held them tight. "That's what you think, darling. But I know better. Why, what else could you do? No. You got to have a job. I've got to begin to be somebody. Then they can't do anything. Then they'll listen."

"I want to make them listen now. I want to shout this from the housetops."

He smiled. He was pushing back her hair from her face in a slow, unbelieving wonder at the way life had changed for him. "No," he said again. "Not yet."

"Why?"

"Because. . ." He hardly knew himself. Perhaps because he was afraid, as years ago he had been afraid, of the Judge's power and his own insecurity. Perhaps because, side by side with his daring ran the habit of caution. I've told you why," he excalimed. "Do you want to make a fool out of me?"

Stanied, she shook her head.

"Then put out that light in your face."

She drew away "You've put it out for me," she said.

It was true. She stood there before him extinguished. But it had to be that way for the time being. No use to risk greater antagonism. The job was the thing and tonight, if Susan was right, he might get it. "Don't you see?" he asked. And she nodded.

Kings Ridge. It was different, entering it this time by invitation and with the re-enforcement of Susan's love. That did away with the need for the ravade that had carried him along before. It gave him more real confidence. At the same time he was not without trepidation for the old fear — what can they do to me?—walked with him still.

At the front door he stopped Susan. "Remember," he said to her. "No skyrockets in your eyes when you meet me. No Roman candles. No burning stars. Not one! I'm not shot at sunrise."

She nodded smiled gravely up at him and then they went in.

The family was all waiting in the living room. The judge, sunken but courteous; Elizabeth, frankly frigid; Audrey, nervous and a bit too talkative; Frank heavily silent. As if to counterbalance their attitude, Donald overdid himself in friendliness, and that realizing that he had, he shrugged the whole thing off his shoulders. Gerry knew where he stood, Sue, too.

There were cocktails. There were cigarettes. There was a background of dinner music over the radio. And suddenly Gerry felt the way he used to before a dangerous mission. Poised, alert, completely confident. Something might happen to all the others in the party but not to him.

A gong sounded, and Elizabeth rose. "We will go in," she announce id.

In the. The white, white damask, the gleaming silver, the best English china, The delicate crystal. And John moving around the table in his snowy coat proffering browned chicken on a silver platter and French fried potatoes and tiny green peas in other silver servers as if Gerry were visiting royalty. He wanted to wink at John, to whisper "remember eight or nine years ago?" but he refrained. "Hello John," he said only. "How is Nellie? Tell her I'll see her later." And John's domed black head bent respectfully.

THIS PICTURE of the first aluminum plant in the British Empire was taken in 1900. That was only 14 years after Charles Martin Hall had discovered how to make aluminum cheaply by using electricity.

The plant was erected in semi-wilderness at Shawinigan Falls because the river was being harnessed to provide electricity. Aluminum was the first to use this power. Today Shawinigan Falls has many other industries and is a hustling, thriving city.

Alcan, too, has been growing during these fifty years. Today the company has 12 plants providing jobs for 11,000 Canadians and supplying aluminum to more than 1000 Independent Canadian manufacturers from coast to coast.

EGGS, TOMATOES

Put in Hurry Call

Police, who had tried to keep the mounting crowd on the move, put in a hurry call for reinforcements and four carloads of cops arrived. Several of the policemen were hurt in fortunate as Dean Johnson. One constable was hit square in the eye with an ancient egg and others were shoved around.

Two men, George and Richard Ive, were bundled into a police cruiser and taken to police headquarters where they were charged with creating a disturbance.

The Dean's second address was interrupted when a large square of cement was tossed through a plate-glass window and fragments of glass cutting several persons. Police refused entry to Archie McMillan, anti-Red editor of the Weekly Hamilton Review, who was in the thick of the heckling when the Dean was unable to finish his speech here last week.

When the meeting was over, police escorted the Dean out of a back door and he entered a car waiting in a darkened alley. Some of the crowd discovered the secret and there were more eggs.

The Dean is scheduled next at Timmins on Wednesday and the meeting there, under auspices of the Labor-Progressive Party, will be held in the open air. Mayor Philip Fay of Timmins has declared the English churchman is "not a welcome visitor" and requests for use of the Mcintyre Arena or the pavilion dance hall were refused.

HOUSE APPROVES

In a last-ditch opposition stand Monday night, the Progressive Conservative and C.C.F. parties put forward two amendments to each bill and forced four divisions of the House.

The House voted 98 to 34 and 100 to 35 against the Progressive Conservative amendment. It was sponsored by Howard Green (PC-Vancouver-Quadra), a leader in the Canada-First policy fight and asked that the bills be sent back to committee for consideration of a proviso that any pipe line built must follow an all-Canadian route.

CCF Amendments Lost

The votes against the CCF subamendment were 97 to 34 and 100 to 34. These, sponsored by M. W. Herridge (CCF-Kootenay West) sought a provision to regulate tariffs and rates to be charged by pipe-line operators "for the protection of the Canadian consumer."

The Social Credit Party voted for the bills but in three of the four votes Rene Ouellet (CCF-Moose Jaw) sided with the government against his own party.

Main argument of government spokesmen has been that the Board of transport commissioners, which must grant a licence to any company, has the final say on the route the proposed line must follow.

George Drew, Progressive Conservative Leader, has contended the government itself has the power and responsibility to decide on the route. This he said was a responsibility it could not escape.

A. L. Smith (PC-Calgary West) said Speaker of the legislature without assurance of an all-Canadian route would be the responsibility of the government.

Evacuation Plan Prepared

At the House opening Justice Minister Garson said a well-integrated plan for the evacuation of flooded Winnipeg has been prepared to be put into effect the minute the river rises.

Defence Minister Claxton said more than 4,000 service personnel now were engaged in flood work in Manitoba. This did not include 30 R.C.A.F. planes and crews flying out bed patients from Winnipeg hospitals and taking in needed supplies in the biggest air lift in Canada's history.

The final phase of the lengthy and often bitter pipe-line debate was highlighted by a clash between Trade Minister Howe and various members of the opposition. At one point Mr. Howe said of Howard Green:

"He goes around the parliament buildings with a smirk on his face, a Bible in his hand and stiletto up his sleeve. He is ready to put him or stab him as it suits his purpose at the moment."

"Are you going to challenge me to a duel too?" shot back Mr. Green.

Mr. Howe said the Vancouver member had "referred to the fact I was an American."

Mr. Green denied this and said he had asked why the minister was "America first" in his attitude toward the Canada-first policy the Progressive Conservatives advocated in the pipe-line issue.

Drew Demands Withdrawal

At another point the minister clashed with Mr. Drew when he said the pipe-line filibuster was "not a Canadian stunt" and came from the United States.

Mr. Drew demanded withdrawal of "any statement that I or any other member of this House has acted under instructions from the United States."

Mr. Howe said he did not say that. But inquiries into the background of west coast transmission lines, which received incorporation at the last session of parliament, showed it was indirectly controlled by the Sunray Oil Company of Delaware, an American firm which builds, and operates pipe lines.

The question of routes had only been brought forth "as a herring to cover up the effort to shut off competition from the United States pipe-line company," said Mr. Howe.

No Reflection

Still later Mr. Green asked withdrawal of "an innuendo" by Mr. Howe that he (Mr. Green) was acting on representations of the West Coast Transmission Company. Committee chairman J. A. Dion (L-Robertval) said he did not think the minister had intended to reflect on Mr. Green.

Mr. Howe said he would not and would not pre-judge the pipe-line route issue on evidence by members of parliament in the debate. He would advise the government at the proper time when evidence given before the transport commissioners had been considered. There was the consumer to be considered. He was the man who eventually would pay the cost.

Replies to Charge

Solon Low, Social Credit leader, replying to a charge by George Cruickshank (L—Fraser Valley) that the Social Credit members had been told to keep quiet in the debate, said his party members had not spoken "out of common decency". They were still hoping "somebody would come to his senses" and that the bills would pass. He said Social Creditors could vote as they wished.

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, said the pipe lines should be operated as public utilities in cooperation with the western provinces. It was obvious there would only be one line and whichever company won the right to build would have a monopoly.

CONSERVATIVES

Hamilton West (165 polls complete): Alfred Collingdon, CCF 3,200; Ellen Fairclough, Progressive Conservative 7,960; Harold Lazier, Liberal 7,592.

The results brought Conservative strength in the Commons to 67. The Liberals now have 186 members.

The standings:

Liberals 186; Progressive Conservatives 42; CCF 13; Social Credit 10; Independent 8; Independent Liberal 3; vacant 3; total 265.

Three Vacancies

The three remaining vacancies — Montreal Cartier, Halifax, and Annapolis-Kings — will be filled in by-elections June 12.

Mrs. Fairclough, proprietor of a successful Hamilton accounting firm, had campaigned on the belief that there should be at least one woman in the Commons. The House had been without a woman member since last June 27 when Mrs. Gladys Strum, CCF, lost out in the Saskatchewan constituency of Qu'Appelle.

The Hamilton West by-election resulted from appointment to the Ontario Supreme Court of Hon. Colin Gibson who held the seat from 1940 to 1950. Before that the constituency had been constantly Conservative.

The victory for Mr. Hees, father of three daughters, kept Toronto Broadview in the Conservative fold where it has been since 1933. T. L. Church, whose death early this year precipitated the vote, successfully contested the seat from 1935 on.

Prime Minister St. Laurent said that "while I am naturally disappointed that the Liberal candidates were not successful in today's by-elections, the very light vote suggests that most of the people remained satisfied with present government."

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, said the two victories for his party indicated public dissatisfaction with the government's attitude to their interests.

Light Turnout

Compared with last June 27, the turnout in both ridings was light. Total vote in Hamilton West was 18,772—less than half the 41,464 eligible—and almost 10,000 below the 28,000 who cast ballots in the general election. Toronto Broadview ballots numbered just more than 21,000 of 43,437 eligible and compared with 27,000 a year ago.

The reduced vote in Toronto Broadview was reflected in the final figures for Miss Radford and Prof. Grube. Miss Radford had 9,316 a year ago to run Mr. Church a close race. He won with 10,507, he lost almost 8,000 this time while Prof. Grube, who contested the seat unsuccessfully for the fourth time, was also down about 3,000. The Communist vote was also reduced, from 269 last time to less than 200.

Mrs. Fairclough won in Hamilton West despite the fact she polled fewer votes than when she lost to Mr. Gibson last June. She had 8,252 then against 12,244 for Mr. Gibson. Monday she got less than 8,000 votes. The C.C.F. also lost ground. Mr. Cullington's 2,200 votes compared with 6,748 for J. S. Allen last year.

SEVEN-MILE

The average Winnipegger looked ahead with optimism.

But the head of army-directed flood control warned that "tragedy of life or further loss of property is still quite possible."

Voluntary evacuation, which has already stripped greater Winnipeg of 80,000 of its 350,000 normal population, must be continued until all danger was past, he said.

Still Complications

Heavy rain or a surge in the Saskatchewan River could cause boine, a tributary running through the city, could still cause serious complications. Even if the waters slowly receded—as expected—the soggy, strained dikes might collapse.

But last night radio stations carried no frantic calls for volunteers, and many were turned away from loading stations usually humming with activity.

The hurrah of evacuees continued, but apparently on a reduced scale. Where thousands had crammed railway and bus stations, now a few hundred moved to the safety of dry centres east and west.

Hospital patients were still being sent across the prairies, but the Red Cross said that exodus, too, had slowed.

Life at greater Winnipeg, six of its 75 or 80 square miles already lost to the two rivers and the smaller mins, was on a quasi-wartime scale. Theatres were closed; blocks of business buildings were without central heating or elevator service; pumps throbbed in the main streets and pedestrians dodged hoses draining flooded basements; residential districts were deserted and in darkness, washed by the filthy current.

Two Bridges Still Open

Two of the four bridges across the Red were open. Many other city bridges were closed or restricted to essential traffic. Public transportation was disrupted, with street car and bus services cancelled or detoured.

Flood control headquarters ned that heavy rains anywhere the watersheds of the three vers might quickly wipe out tiny yardage gained and them surging to the all-time hi of 1826.

The Assiniboine, which roug parallels Portage Avenue on course to meet the Red was ing slightly miles west in Bra chewan, but no serious trouc was expected.

Gives Some Details

Meanwhile, in Ottawa, Justice Minister Garson gave parliament some details of the "E" plans the emergency schemes for clearing almost everyone from Winnipeg if torrential rain or other causes should raise the Red to 35 feet.

Last weekend he conferred wi civic and military authorities flew over a river-made lake which has swallowed more than 200 square miles of southern Manitoba's farmland.

Under the plan the army would provide housing and food camps east and west of the city. Stocks of food and vital supplies such as gasoline have been gathered and cached. Enough milk, butter, eggs and meat have been placed in cold storage to tide over a host of evacuees until reserves arrive.

Rail transportation in both directions would still be open with the city cut through middle.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

THE TURK COMES TO BELLEVILLE

If June 14th evening, the "Meet the Turk Night" as whatever it may be finally dubbed is not a success, financially or otherwise, It won't be through the fault or lack of organization. It is the date when Turk Broda, internationally famous Maple Leafs goalkeeper and his diadem of National Hockey League softball stars invade the village where they will cross diamond rapiers with the best the Commercial Softball League has to offer.

* * *

The Kinsmen Club, sponsors of the sports function, has appointed a topflight committee to handle the admission-free affairs while the Commercial Softball League will look after player details. Working hand-in-glove these committees will produce one of the best sports festivals this city has seen in some time.

* * *

Eddie Schreiber, well known sportsman, official and former athletic star has been named by the Kinsmen to chairman its committee. Working with him are Ken McNaught who will handle the publicity and advertising; Don (Bridgeroom) Barrett, who will take care of the grounds work, Dick Moore, secretary-treasurer of the Commercial Softball Association who will be in charge of ticket distribution and sales, and Jack McNab, who is in charge of the parade activities. A quintet of sportsmen who can be depended upon to do a topflight job.

* * *

President Don Lee, of the Commercial Softball League and secretary treasurer Jack Dunn will look after the loop's player angles with vice president Bill Dennis named to act in a ticket-distributing capacity as far as the league is concerned.

* * *

Some arrangements were completed at a special meeting of the committee last night. Broda and his team, or the most of them will arrive in the city shortly after two o'clock and will embark on a program program which will include a tour of the city and its environs. It was suggested that the two-storey yHll the Ontario School for the Deaf, the hospital, and the Trenton Air Station while arrangements will be made for them to meet the young hockey fans of the city at a mass meeting to be held in a downtown area. Co-operation of the schools will be asked in this matter.

* * *

Known to hockey fans from coast-to-coast through their connections with the Maple Leafs, the players will naturally be the shrines of the town-wrship as the part of the youngsters of the city. Many of them will be taking their first look at such National League luminaries as Broda, Ray-Timgerson, Gus Mortson, Jimmy Thompson, Bill Quackenbush, Fleming Mackell, Cal Gardner, Ed. Soldo and many others, or at least glimpse of Bill Durnan, Montreal Canadiens goalkeeper who may be here. It should be a great day and night for hockey-minded moppets.

* * *

It will be something more than a "look-see" for the kids. Broda has generously donated an autographed goalie hockey stick to be awarded to the youngster selling the most tickets. Five or more brand new softballs, autographed by the National League softball stars will also be given as prizes to ticket-selling youngsters. These will be on display later on in the windows of Jack McNab's sports shop on Front Street.

* * *

In the tentative stage are plans to hold a parade just prior to game time when the National League stars and their local foemen will be taken through the main thoroughfares, headed by the Trenton Band, to the Exhibition Grounds. The players will be introduced individually to the crowd which will gather over a public address system, the use of which has been generously donated by Art. Booth and Son, well-known city radio and television company.

* * *

But there is more to the game than a sports spectacle. The gate proceeds will be devoted exclusively to the Kinsmen Club Swimming Pool Fund, and the clubmen hope that the sports - loving public will add a generous amount to the ticket offers through their purchase of tickets. Box seats in the Exhibition Ground grandstand, all reserved, will go on sale at a dollar each. The first three rows behind the boxes, also reserved will be tabbed at $1.75 while the general admission will be 50 cents and youngsters under twelve years of age, 25 cents.

* * *

Representing the city of Belleville in the Battle with Broda will be a team selected from the ranks of the squads in the "A" section of the Commercial Softball League. President Lee said last night that three players will be selected from each team with the choice left to Manager Herbie Henn of the Brewers Warehouse team, Coach Cy. Barriage, of the Kinsmen Athletic Club and others. In any event, the strongest team the city can field will line up against the starry visitors.

URGENT — HELP WANTED

While we here in Ontario are taking softball games, swimming pools, baseball and fishing, cussing the weather because the seeds are not yet in the garden, and wondering if we can make that summer cottage week-end, out in Winnipeg, grim-faced, weary Canadians are staging a desperate battle with the rapids of the Red and the Assiniboine.

Many of them homeless through the ravages of the muddy flood waters, sleeping in public buildings; many of them torn away from their families and living in the uncertainty of what the morrow will bring, yet fighting tooth and nail in a determined effort to save what is left of their city, these blood brothers uncomplaining, undefeated, need our help!

Their morale is high. There is no panic. They are manning the dykes, bolstering the bridges, standing hip-deep in turbid muddy water, filling sandbags and in general carrying on a fight against the flood demon that has gained for them the admiration of not only their fellow Canadians but the rest of the civilized world.

But they, as was said before, need our help. They need new heavy socks; new heavy gloves; hip-length rubber boots; flashlights extra-heavy duty and batteries, and financial aid. If you have any of the required equipment items and want to help the gallant Winnipeggers, package them and send them to the Riggs Motors, Pinnacle Street. Today a special meeting was held with regard to financial assistance. You will be informed as to where to send your cash donations. Do what you can. Give what you can afford. But do it now!

WHAT'S THIS?

Wrestling fans will go on a meat diet here Friday night — and there'll be plenty to chew on, and about. Nearly 600 pounds of pachydermic brawn will clash in the main bout when Yukon Eric tangles torso with Ski Hi Lee, the Ozarkian "hunks" slow-motion dynamite. There'll be plenty of fireworks, kiddies, when Ozark bone-crusher Eric 276 pounds of Tennessee beef off the Community Chest of the pride of the Yukon. Hey! McCready is back again with an old favorite. If you like 'em rough and nasty, in the person of Warren Bockwinkle, Mick' Gold, a newcomer, will open the festivities against Joe Christie.

Major League Clubs Busy Clearing Deck for Wednesday Deadline on 25-Player Limit

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

New York, May 16 (AP)—Most of the major league clubs today were busily engaged clearing the decks in order to come within the 25-player limit.

The deadline goes into effect tomorrow at midnight, exactly a month after the start of the season.

A feverish two days of buying and selling resulted in the release of 13 players and the sale of two others to rival clubs in the majors. More are sure to feel the ax. With some 30 hours to go, there are 19 surplus athletes.

Brooklyn's Dodgers, with 30 on their roster, must dispose of five. Detroit is next with three over the limit. Cleveland, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia Phillies were just within the limitations while Washington, the two St. Louis clubs, Cincinnati and the Chicago Cubs were one apiece.

Clubs already within the prescribed limit include the two Boston and New York clubs, Chicago White Sox and Philadelphia Athletics. The Yankees have 25 exclusive of Dick Kryhoski. They were given special permission to carry the extra man indefinitely. The Giants were expected to bring up outfielder Monte Irvin from their Jersey City farm club and release veteran flychaser Mike McCormick.

Log Off Roster

The Yankees lopped off five players Monday. They sold outfielder Johnny Lindell to the Cardinals, pitcher Clarence Marshall to the Browns and hotion-ed veteran first baseman Johnny Mize, rookie infielder Al (Billy) Martin and pitcher Frank Pillette to their Kansas City farm club of the American Association.

The Giants optioned pitcher Frank Hiller to Minneapolis and outfielder Pete Milne to Jersey City, Fanovich, a bonus player was released on waivers from the Reds.

The White Sox assigned shortstop Jim Baumer to Colorado Springs of the Western Association, and released pitcher Bill Connelly to Toledo. Baumer is a recent buyer signed by the Sox last year.

The Cubs placed Hal Jeffcoat on the voluntary retired list and recalled Bob Borkowski from Springfield of the International League to take his place in the outfield. Jeffcoat broke his collar bone in a game Monday.

The Red Sox, after sending pitchers Bob Gillenen Barrett, Ermido and Gordon Mueller to Louisville, recalled Jim Suchecki, another pitcher. Suchecki had a 2-2 record with Louisville. The Braves optioned Walker Linden to Milwaukee to get down to the prescribed player limit.

Only one regular game was scheduled Monday: That between the Dodgers and Braves in Brooklyn. Rain, however, washed it off the boards just as the teams were getting ready to start.

Strong Hurling Keeping Jersey Giants in Race

(By The Associated Press)

That elusive winning formula —explosive power and strong pitching — is keeping Jersey City hot after the league-leading Montreal Royals in the International League chase.

The Little Giants broke loose with a savage 23-hit attack Monday night to humble Rochester 20-3 and move within 2 1-2 games of Montreal.

Roger Bowman went the distance for Jersey City, marking the sixth complete game turned in by a 'Tiger pitcher in the last eight games.

The Giants sped to a 16-2 lead after four innings, leaving Rochester starter Dick Bokelmann his third loss.

All was not lost for the 1,143 Rochester fans, though. As a reward for turning out in the cold, damp, foggy weather, the Royals management announced all rainchecks would be honored at another game. That, incidentally, was before the roof fell in on the home forces.

London Majors Defeat Guelph By 3-2 Count

(By The Canadian Press)

The box score went like this: Hit by pitcher, Alexander (Judd), by Judd (Alexander).

That was the terse explanation of what went on on the mound between London Majors and Guelph Maple Leafs in one of two senior Intercounty Baseball League games last night. London won the game 3-2.

Pitchers Ted Alexander of London and Oscar Judd of Guelph got a hit each—even if it was hitting each other with the ball. Alexander got credit for the win.

In the other game Stratford Nationals scored an 8-7 victory over Kitchener Legionnaires at Stratford.

At London, Majors chalked up their second victory in three starts even though Judd, an ace southpaw from Ingersoll, limited them to four hits. Majors got all their runs in the third inning, while Leafs collected one in the first and another in the second.

Alexander went the route for Majors and gave up seven hits.

Cash in on Errors

At Stratford, Nationals cashed in on two errors in the bottom half of the ninth inning.

It started when Alex Sichewski, usually-reliable Kitchener centre-fielder, misjudged Billy Flick's high fly for a two-base error. When Al Lewis misplayed badly to first on Howie Carman's grounder, Flick scored the winning run from second.

Bill Russ went the distance for Stratford and was tagged for 11 hits, while striking out nine. Joe Hutton, former Stratford hurler went well for four innings and then went wild. He walked six batters, uncorked two wild pitches and hit one batter before he was relieved by Bobby Schnurr in the fifth.

Thackston was the big gun for Stratford, getting in two runs on two hits in four trips to the plate. Legionnaires counted two runs in the second and two more in each of the fifth and sixth innings. They scored a single in the fourth. Stratford runs came in the third, fourth, fifth, sixth and ninth.

No games are slated for tonight. Tomorrow it's Stratford at Galt, St. Thomas at Guelph and London and Waterloo Tigers.

Teams and scores are Bowl-O-Drome "Pin-Setters;" Saylor, 698, Delins 610, Fitzgerald 646, Corliss 649 and Bateman 690—3294.

Sports Roundup

New York, May 16 (AP) — A baseball scout who recently figured in Cardinal departed with the comment that he'd better find some players soon or he wouldn't be scouting any more. And another baseball-wise gent around the sports scene says there is an "alarming" shortage of managers who have a real future in the game...Don't ask us why. They can't all be spending their time watching big league games on television instead of playing on the sandlots.

John Davis, Indiana U. halfback, was used chiefly as a defensive player last fall...Came spring practice time, John decided he'd like to try lugging the leather and asked quarterback Ray Petruskas to give him a chance...The first time he took the ball, Davis galloped 99 yards to score against the first team...He crossed the goal with a big grin on his face and was obviously ready for a modest acceptance of compliments from visiting Canadian coach Frank Filchok of the Interprovincial Rugby Football Union Montreal Alouettes, who was standing behind goal...Instead, Frank fixed him with a baleful look and shouted: "You had the ball in the wrong hand." Canadian Sport Snapshots

By JOHN D. HAMILTON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, May 16 (CP)— Jake LaMotta is having more trouble pitching opponents than a lefthanded movie star has finding a starring role.

It isn't that there aren't worthy men waiting for the first chance to settle Bronx Bull's world middleweight championship, won last June and so far undefended. There are too many of them — and a rough bunch they are, too.

Ray (Sugar) Robinson, the welter king, has beaten Jake four out of five times. Laurent Dauthuille, the French middleweight who now makes his home in Montreal, outpointed LaMotta before Jake won the title. Rocky Graziano could put up quite a scrap against his fellow New Yorker. And Robert Villemain, another Frenchman, is rated a fair chance against LaMotta.

Ban (Montreal Star) O'Meara points out one reason why Dauthuille has been by-passed in Jake's search for an opponent:

"If they could get LaMotta back here for an outdoor show against 'Dot Wheel'— that one would probably get a gate similar to the Green-Deuthuille fight (here last summer), but a lot of eagles have to be tossed out before Jake would take a chance on another punting expert. No one dealt him here in his last fight against the busy little French fighter."

Ban Adds:

"Dauthuille has every right to a return fight with LaMotta but Graziano will get that shot." Miss Reddish.

Montreal also is going ahead as a racing centre, Andy (Montreal Standard) O'Brien says that the track has made a big comeback in recent years. In 1943, the Montreal "handle" was $220,843.

"Last year, in the same number of days, it hit $1,045,768 at Blue Bonnets," Andy writes.

The reason, says Andy, is the energetic efforts of the track's management and plenty of financial backing.

Grunt and Groan Boys Edging Into Bigtime

New York, May 16 (AP) — Wrestling's grunt-and-grimace boys are edging back into the bigtime with a new set of muscle bound heroes and some fresh twists to old capers.

A seven-act show at Madison Square Garden Monday night drew 14,346 patrons, who shelled out $42,311. The previous Garden mat presentation took in $50,000-plus.

When the wrestlers move into the Garden — a couple of times a year and they want to make it a habit — they put all their stars into one big package.

Monday night the customers got the works — from Antonino Rocca, The Agile, barefooted Argentine, to Primo Carnera, the Italian hulk of a man who once held the world's heavyweight boxing championship.

Favorite of the ladies is Gene (Mr. America) Stanley, a generously muscled Chicago citizen who has a mop of peroxide-blonde hair.

The main go sent Rocca, high-leaping, South American who is advertised as being unbeaten, against "Lord" Leslie Carlton of England, who wrestles with an Oxford accent

Lord Carlton makes his appearance with a cane and monocle plus a valet. Rocca subdued Carlton with a series of leaping kicks and a treacherous hold known to millions of television viewers as the back-breaker."

Sammy Jethroe In Game to Hit Not to Run Bases

Brooklyn, May 16—(AP)—Boston's fleet-footed Sammy Jethroe, who once outraced Olympic sprinter Barney Ewell, is in the game to hit—and not to run.

The Braves No. 1 candidate for "rookies of the year" honors is convinced he will hit .300 in the Majors.

"I've been praying a long time for it," Jethroe said, "and too many people will be disappointed if I don't. So, I'm in this thing to hit."

The 32-year-old Negro speedster, off to a fast, almost sensational start, batting in the leadoff post, Jethroe has thumped national League pitching for a .343 mark in 24 games.

In addition, he is tied with Stan Musial for the most hits, 33, and with teammate Buddy Kerr for the most triples, three. He is second in runs, 23, and stolen bases, four.

Boston purchased Jethroe, an outfielder by trade, from Brooklyn Dodgers last Oct. 1 for $100,000 and three players. Jethroe had a remarkable year with Montreal in the International League last season, leading in six individual offensive departments, including a record-breaking 89 stolen bases.

Does he think he can steal that many bases in the big time?

"I've got a few so far," explained Jethroe. "About this time at Montreal last year I didn't have any but by the time the season was over I had 89. It'll be tough getting that many up here."

Chatham Maroons Win One Half Of Hockey Title

By The Canadian Press

Two senior amateur hockey championships—one for the east and one for the west—will rule the rinks of the United States this year as a result of a scheduled playoff that never was played.

The amateur Hockey Association of the United States announced Monday following its annual meeting that the Spokane (Wash.) Flyers have been awarded the western title and the Chatham (Ont.) Maroons the eastern crown. Each team will have possession of the Senior United States trophy for six months.

Spokane, representing the Kootenay League comprised mostly of British Columbia clubs, was to have entered a playoff fo the 1950 national senior championship with Chatham, playoff winner of the International Amateur League.

Their meeting was delayed and the Spokane team disbanded before a champion was determined. A squabble developed over which club would be given the title.

The U.S.A.H.A. ruled that it would prefer to recognize two sectional champions rather than decide a single titleholder by legislation instead of actual competition.

To guard against a repetition of the mixup the convention adopted a new playoff plan for 1950-51 in which the country will be divided into four zones, with champions from each zone meeting in two semi-final playoff rounds and winners going on to a title series.

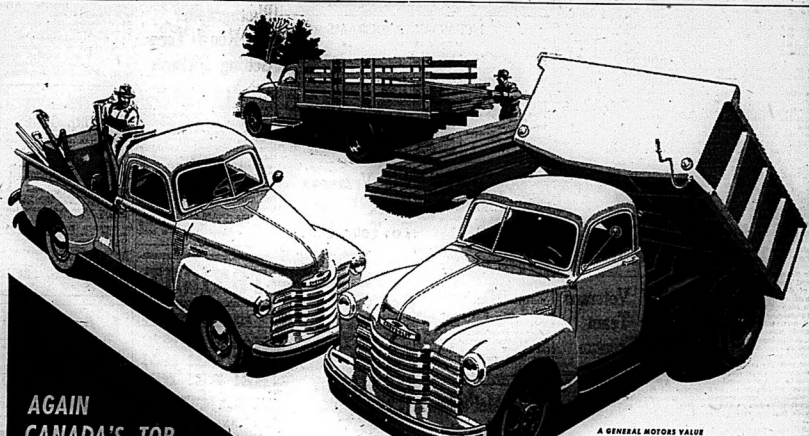
The first small community in Ontario to vote in favor of Sunday sports is Port Dover, resort hamlet on the Lake Erie shore 25 miles south of Brantford.

Under provincial legislation Sunday sports are permitted in communities that vote in favor in local plebiscites, and Toronto and Windsor have already done so. Monday Port Dover voted almost three to one in favor.

Less than one-third of the eligible voters, 1,645, cast their ballots. They voted 365 in favor, 133 against.

Decision of which Canadian city will be awarded the 1954 British Empire games will not be made for at least a week.

Ken Yost of Winnipeg, National secretary of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, Monday said balloting had been held up because of flood conditions in Manitoba.



"Some of the letters explaining the voting didn't get out of Winnipeg until late last week due to the floods," Yost said. "It probably will be at least a week before complete returns are in."

More than 350 horses already are at Blue Bonnets race track at Montreal for the opening of the racing season next Saturday, it was announced Monday. Several horses worked out during the day in preparation for the Inaugural Handicap which will be the feature race opening day.

At Providence, R.I., Georgie Arculo of providence, New England featherweight champion, won a unanimous decision over Rudy Pasco, formerly of Toronto, after fighting out of Paterson, N.J., in a 10-round bout Monday night. Arculo weighed 127 3-4 to Pasco's 129 1-2.

My partner and I bid and made three diamonds after sitting in the east and west positions. Our co-pair set north-south elsewhere and found themselves defending against three no-trump by west.

North led a heart which was the suit named by south who started the bidding. Despite the opening bid by south, west insisted on going to three no-trump when east bid diamonds twice.

A look at the dummy hand in east shows an interesting possibility. To make three no-trump the declarer will need some of the diamond tricks in east. And his future entry there is in clubs.

Cashing diamond tricks there can be prevented only by depleting east entries. The depletion must be done before diamonds can become established. Timing is obviously of great importance here.

Our teammate in south studied this and came up with a brilliant line of defense. She took trick one with heart king and made a return lead of her club king. It was an amazing middle play.

East won this with club ace and went on defense with a spade. A diamond from west was planned in east. South took with the queen and returned club jack, another sacrifice lead.

In desperation east refused this set had to take the next club. This was east blocked out of diamond tricks. The upshot was that south got three hearts and two diamonds that wrecked the contract.

A deliberate sacrifice lead is known as a Deschappelles coup. Without seeing all the cards two of them in one deal are unusual. This kind of defence is hot stuff.

Hollywood, May 16 (AP)—Any Saturday night, you can see such performers as Dana Andrews, Robert Preston and Victor Jory hauling chairs, tables and other props into a tiny park building on Pasadena.

And shortly before 11 p.m. you can see the same persons hauling stuff away. Another performance of 18 actors, incorporated, has been given.

Until recently, the acting group kept its activities sub rosa. But one of the members, character actor Marvin Ashkum, divulged some of the details to me on the set of "Beyond the Sunset."

The 18 actors, most of them graduates of the Pasadena playhouse, have been gathering for six months. After reading plays at each others' houses, they decided to go in for the real thing. They rented a building from the Pasadena Park Commission at $10 per Saturday night.

Pres Shaw

"We presented Ibsen's 'A Doll's House' first" recalled Ankrum. "We played it free of charge to a number of invitational audiences. They were invited to pay—if they liked us. About 75 per cent of them did, and soon we had close to 300 members. We now present a play on four successive Saturday nights."

The company performs with the central staging technique, which means they are in the middle of a room with the audience all around them. No large scenery is required.

The 18 perform their weekly stint for the love of acting and to improve their own craft. The project is non-profit.

Capsule Review

"The Asphalt Jungle" (M-G-M) ranks with "The Maltese Falcon" and "The Killers" as one of the fine films of its crime. Armed with a beautifully-constructed screen play, John Huston has fashioned an exciting picture that avoids all the pitfalls of most crime movies. The picture has no stars, but is filled with tough and memorable characters. Standouts: Sterling Hayden, Louis Calhern, Sam Jaffee.

ANAF Veterans Soccer Team Edges Trenton

The Army and Navy Vets squad scored their first win of the season last night when they defeated Trenton Merchants by two goals to one at the Fairgrounds. There was very little to choose between the two teams. The vets had much the heavier team and seemed to be playing together better than they had done previously. Possibly secretary Bob Gallinger has had the boys out on a few train-ing nights.

The first goal of the match came about fifteen minutes before the changeover and was scored for Trenton by Campbell. Two more goals were scored in the first half. Soon after the second period had opened the Trenton goal had a lucky escape when Jack Reid back Eric Meyer just manged to clear the ball off the goal line with the goal-keeper beaten. The Vets first goal came from Ashton who scored from a spot kick awarded when one of the Trenton boys handled the ball in the penalty area. Balzy scored the Vets second from a scramble in front of the Merchants' goal. Both teams were very enthusiastic and seemed to make up in enthusiasm and sportsmanship for their lack of soccer skill.

Referee—Les Digby.

The following players have been selected to play in a trial match to be played at Bain Memorial Park, Trenton, on Wednesday 17th May. This trial game is to enable the Bay of Quinte Football Association executive to pick an All Star team to take on the All Star team from the Toronto Senior League on the same grounds on Saturday, May 27th.

Team 'A' — Wick (Trenton), Wright (Bata), Jones and Jones (Navy), Hughes, Angus and Miller (Flyers), Planowski, Mueller and Falcon (Batawa); Reid (Vets), Carter (Navy), Lane (Belleville United).

Team 'B'— Blakey and Scott (Belleville United), E. Helyer and Salisbury (Trenton), Kendall and Wall (Flyers), Ross and Murphy (Navy), Hawrilyw (Batawa), Law, Woodcock and Eatherley (6 R.D.).

Referee—Jack Johnson.

New York, May 16—(AP)—Aja Vrzanova, 19-year-old world figure skating champion, came to North America "just for a holiday" and not in response to 30 proposals of marriage.

The pretty, Czech exile said today that's the way she offers — "mostly from Americans"—she got after winning the world title in London last March.

Aja arrived in Canada last week and the only proposal she has accepted so far is to tour the United States as the star of an ice show. After that, the graceful continental beauty hopes to develop her whirls and spins into a movie career.

After Aja won the world title, the Czech government asked her to go to Moscow for exhibitions. She refused, at first, saying she had commitments in other European capitals. Then she decided not to return to Prague.

Her father still is in Czechoslovakia, connected with the finance ministry. She hasn't heard from him for some time. Her mother was aboard one of three fleeing Czech planes that landed at an American base near Munich late in March. She remained in Germany.

ALBERTA HOUSING

AT THE McCARTHY—Audie Murphy, as the legendary Billy the Kid, has an itching trigger-finger when Gale Storm tries to dissuade him from joining a feud shooting match. The two are co-starred in Universal-International's Technicolor adventure, "The Kid From Texas," opening Wednesday at Odeon's McCarthy Theatre.

Photographer Has Rough Time Getting Pictures

Niagara Falls, N. Y., May 16 — (AP) — Photographer Roy Crogan of the Niagara Falls Gazette, who took dramatic rescue pictures Monday, said he and nine others nearly had to be rescued, too.

Air currents from the whirling blades of the helicopter used to rescue a woman and two pilots came close to blowing Crogan, a reporter, six firemen and two park employees from a rock off the Three Sister Islands, Crogan said.

Crogan climbed over a barbed-wire barricade on a bridge and waded through muck to a rock about 110 feet from Mrs. Jeannette Bugay, 25, who was clinging to another rock above the Canadian Falls.

He shot 18 pictures with his speed graphic at one-fiftieth of a second, F-8 lens opening. Some were distributed to newspapers as Associated Press wirephotos.

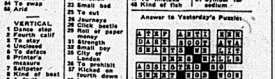
SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK By R. J. SCOTT

Little Benny's Note Book

I was taking a walk with pop to help his appetite and his figure and we started to go passed the little Grade, and some man was taking one poster out of the frame so he could put another one in to cover a new picture was coming on one he was taking out having a big face of Minerva Marshall smiling on it, and saying, "Minerva Marshall in Purple Passage, This Week Only."

Time matches on, pop said, the week only is now last week only. By golies want to talk to him chap, he said.

Meening the man changing the posters, and pop went up to him saying, Well, that looks like pleasant work.



It would seem a lot more pleasant if it was all I had to do, the man said. But I do everything around here from taking tickits at the door to sweeping out the place and helping to handle the popcorn rush during intermissions, he said, and pop said, Do you have mutch trubble with amature artists drawing mustaches on the ladies faces in these posters?

We used to, that's one reason we have glass doors on these frames, the man said, and pop said, See what you mean. Well now it happens that have a morbid craving, almost an obsession, to embellish a poster of Minerva Marshall in that manner. Perhaps it's a subconscious instinct to revenge myself for all the unpleasant hours I've spent sitting through her pictures. Anyway, since this particular poster seems to of outlived its usefulness, perhaps you wouldn't mind if I took advantage of the opportunity. It may relieve me of the necessity of having to consult a syko anealist, he said.

German and Jap Athletes Will be Contestants

Copenhagen, Denmark, May 16 — (AP) — When the olympic flag is hoisted in Finland in the summer of 1952, German and Japanese athletes probably will be among approximately 6,000 men, women taking the olympic oath in Helsinki's new Stadium.

Japan's participation in the 1952 summer and winter games is almost assured. Japan, unlike Germany, never was banned by the International Olympic Committee.

German participation is a more delicate problem. The I.O.C. decided Monday to accept an olympic committee from western Germany—provisionally and under certain reservations.

Those reservations were kept secret by the I.O.C. members. After a full meeting, reservations were handed to a five-man committee, which met behind closed doors late Monday night. The committee was to report to the I.O.C. today.

There is a strong feeling among the delegates that Germany should again be a member of the olympic family but that it should only include western Germany.

No Word Received On Outcome Of Quick Search

Edmonton, May 16 — (CP) — No immediate word was received Monday night on the outcome of a quick aerial search for a C-54 plane reported to have been seen on the ground about 25 miles northwest of Watson Lake.

An RCAF Dakota en route from Edmonton to Whitehorse, Y.T., made a pattern search sweep over the area. The plane was piloted by Wing Commander J. M. Sutherland, Commanding Officer of the RCAF base at Whitehorse.

The report on the plane was made Saturday at Fairbanks, Alaska, by two airmen. They said they spotted the downed aircraft — with all four engines showing — while aboard a U. S. transport plane flying from Great Falls, Mont., to Fairbanks last April 22. No explanation was given for the delay.

A C-54 transport plane with 44 persons aboard disappeared in this area last Jan. 26. The greatest aerial search in Canada's history failed to locate it.

Many Doctors Attend Meeting

Ottawa, May 16 — (CP)—Doctors from every section of Ontario were arriving Monday night for the 75th annual meeting of the Ontario Medical Association, which has opened its five - day session.

When all delegates have checked in, officials expect the final register will be between 150 and 175.

Heart disease and cancer—the two greatest killers — will be discussed by leading authorities. Today's session will be devoted to a symposium on cancer diagnosis at which seven reports will be given by authorities in their respective fields.

Dr. W. V. Johnston of Lucknow, 1949-50 president of the Association, is presiding over meetings this week. Just before the convention's close, he will turn over the office to Dr. E. K. Lyon of Leamington, president-elect. Council meetings are under the chairmanship of Dr. W. W. Bartlett, Brampton.

FIRST WORLD SERIES

The World Series baseball classic was originated in 1903 by Pittsburgh, winner of the National League flag, and Boston Red Sox, American League champions.

Father and Son Stranded on Lonely Island

Fort Frances, May 16 (CP)—An International Border commercial fisherman and his teenage son are stranded on a small, uninhabited island near Brule Narrows on Rainy Lake, it was learned today.

Clarence Gveson, 41, and his 16-year-old son Duane have been on the island since Saturday when their plane broke through lake ice as they were landing.

The only way the two can get out before the ice breaks up is to make their way in a rubber life raft across two miles of ice and water to Brule Narrows, 25 miles east of here, where a plane can pick them up.

COMMITTED FOR TRIAL

Stratford, May 16 — (CP) — The three Dalton, Ont., district men charged with manslaughter in the death of 69-year-old Bernard McDonnell following a scuffle in his Mitchell home, Monday were committed for trial before the Supreme Court of Ontario.

The trio — John J. Krauskopf, 21, Thomas Kelly, 39, and Ryan Jordon, 26 — were released on bail of $5,000 each.

Toronto, May 16 (CP)— Norman M. Samuel, 46-year-old Toronto broker, Monday was fined $70,000 for violations of the Foreign Exchange Control Regulations.

J. J. Robinette, counsel for the Foreign Exchange Control Board, said the fine was the highest ever imposed for breaches of the regulations.

Charges against Samuel were that he possessed foreign currency illegally, purchased securities from a non-resident, sold securities to a non-resident, dealt with non-resident depts without a permit and illegally endorsed securities.

The $70,000 fine included the amount estimated by investigator George Croley as the profit Samuels made on the illegal operations. The charges cover a period between May 15, 1947 and Dec. 31, 1949.

Two Car Ferries Are Headed For Scrap Heap

Montreal, May 16 — (CP) — The two car ferries, which for 42 years plied Lake Ontario between Rochester, N.Y., and Cobourg, are headed for the scrap heap.

The Canadian National Railways, which with the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad is the joint owner of the ferries, announced the scrapping decision after the auction block failed to produce any satisfactory bids for the vessels.

The ferry run was abandoned because of what the C.N.R. described as a "decline in traffic after the Second World War."

Irish News Letter:

Show Goes on at Little Abbey Theatre Despite Interruptions

By MICHAEL O'MARA
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Dublin, May 16—(CP)— The historic Little Abbey Theatre is used to interruptions from its patrons. But the show goes on.

Ever since J. M. Synge's then-controversial "The Playboy of the Western World" was produced in January, 1907, and was jeered and counter-jeered every night for a week—the actors kept talking but they couldn't always be heard—the Abbey has often been a cockpit of conflicting opinions.

Synge's detractors said he was "anti-clerical". That's the charge also levelled against the latest play to stir up trouble here.

The piece is Seamus Byrne's "Design for a Headstone," a somber drama set in the internment camp for Irish patriots. Local critics found the play's conflict between a marxist prisoner, played by Walter Macken, and the priest chaplain, played by Liam O Foghlu, hard to grasp, unformed and inconclusive.

Strong Language

Some of the strong language Byrne put in the mouths of his characters prompted the Irish Independent to ask:

"Is it necessary for realism to make such free use of the name of the Divinity on our Dublin stages?"

Lobby Protest

The first three performances went off quietly, but the fourth night was marked by shouts from the back seats of "this is an insult to Irishmen!" and "this is an insult to the temperance union."

Midway through the third act, a man rose from his seat, informed his fellow patrons "this is enough," and left. About 20 followed him out, shouting "we cannot listen to this."

Lobby Protest

In the Abbey's tiny lobby, the anti-Byrne group held a meeting, passing the resolution that "as Irish Catholics we should protest against the stage of the National Theatre being used as a mount on the Catholic priesthood and as the basis for an attack on the mystical body of Christ."

One of the group, Thomas O'Connor, said the stage was being used for the glorification of the Marian revolution without an opportunity being given for an adequate reply."

A police car drove up, constables entered the lobby and "suggested" the group disperse.

Theatre officials assured reporters who hurried to the Abbey that the play would continue for the balance of its run.

There were no further immediate protests. Five days later the Independent reported.

Pearson Warns Dollar Hunt Might Force Canada to Choose Between UK and US Market

London, May 17 (Reuters)

Canada's External Affairs Minister warned Britain Tuesday night that "international dollar hunt" might force Canada to choose between the United Kingdom and the United States as a market for her exports.

But L. B. Pearson urged Britons not to write Canada off as a former colony rapidly on its way to becoming an American "satellite."

"Believe me, that is not true," he told a Canada club dinner. "Our future includes the closest possible co-operation with, but not absorption by the United States.

"It includes also the maintenance of our family relationship with the Commonwealth of Nations."

Pearson spoke frankly of Canada's own great dollar needs and the difficulties she had in balancing the demands of her dollar trade with her desire to maintain her markets in Britain.

"People here must not be surprised or feel aggrieved" expanding the market for our goods in the United States.

"The United States is now our best customer, and we hope that we will be able to maintain this development without diminishing our trade across the Atlantic.

"Above all, we hope that circumstances will not force us to make a choice of markets between the United Kingdom and the United States."

He said Canada's "dualism" her ties with both the United States and with Britain — extended beyond the economic into the political field and was often used Canada discomfort."

But a "change of enormous importance" came with the creation of the Atlantic Pact."

"We are now all in together — the United Kingdom, the United States and Canada, and the other members of our alliance," he said

"This change has taken place primarily because of the emergence of a common danger to the security of all the peoples of the free western world and of the deadly threat to the values of our civilization which we now face together.

Scientists Urge Set up Of 'Fertility Clinics'

London, May 17 — (AP) — A government-appointed committee of scientists urged Britain today to set up "fertility clinics" to help childless married couples have babies. Regional fertility clinics should be established under the National health scheme, the committee said. Biologists and physicians make up the committee, an agency of the Royal Commission on population which the government created six years ago.

San Francisco, May 17—(AP)—Queen Mother Nazli said today court intrigue forced King Farouk to disown and imprison his young sister Princess Fathia.

And Fathia, 19, announced firmly that she would defy her brother by remarrying, in a Moslem rite, Ismail Khalil. She married the 31-year-old Coptic Christian commoner civilly here April 25.

Prince Muhammed Ali, Fathia's uncle and heir-apparent, "is scheming to get the throne" of Egypt. The Prince is chairman of the Royal Council which Tuesday stripped Fathia of her title and property.

The Prince "is always plotting ways to make Fathia look bad, and to make Farouk look bad in the Queen charged. "He is an evil influence on the king and surrounds him with bad advisers. . . .

"If Ilad wanted money, he could get from Riaz, any diplomatic post he wanted—any ambassadorship in any country in the world—if he would leave the Princess."

Search Continues For Gunmen Holed Up in North

Beaverton, May 17 — (CP)— Provincial police Tuesday night said search is continuing in this district 50 miles north of Toronto for two gunmen who attempted to hold-up a Manitoba motorist Tuesday afternoon and then escaped in a car.

Constable William Andrews of Beaverton would not say whether the police had any clues to the identity of the wanted men, but earlier he had said he believed they were two fugitives from the penitentiary at Toledo, Ohio, Paul Russell, 24, and his brother Lloyd, 29, escaped from Toledo May 8 and last week at Sault Ste. Marie Mich., stolled a posse of 200 policemen, soldiers and bushmen.

Roadblocks were thrown up throughout the Beaverton district after E. J. Ireland, 60, of Binscarth, Man, reported his escape from two dark, unshaven men.

He said he was driving north on No. 12 highway when another car forced him to the side of the road. The men, one armed with a revolver, forced him to drive down a sideroad, he said, but he broke away and escaped.

$220,710,000 Spent On Farm Implements

Canadian farmers went on a buying spree last year to boost the sale of new farm implements and equipment to an all-time peak of $220,710,000. The Bureau of Statistics said Tuesday that the 1949 sales were 19 per cent higher than the preceding year's $170,668,000 mark and 78 per cent above the 1947 total of $122,395,000.

WELFARE POLICY MUST PARALLEL CHANGING NEEDS

Hon. P. Martin's Tribute To Medical Association

Ottawa, May 17 (CP)—Canada's welfare policy must parallel the changing needs of her people, Health Minister Martin said today.

Canadians could be proud of "the great forward strides" they had made in social justice," said Mr. Martin in a speech prepared for delivery at a luncheon meeting of the Ontario Medical Association.

He paid special tribute to the general practitioners, who constituted "so large a part of the medical profession."

"The first essential of any government health program is to strengthen your hand to speed you most immediately responsible for health," Mr. Martin told Association members. "In helping to bring better health to its citizens a government must look to your profession for leadership. Without your confidence and collaboration no new health program could be fully successful."

In any new programs nothing must be done to lower the high standards of medical training, research or practice for which Canada had won world recognition.

On Voluntary Basis

A "package plan" of medical-hospital insurance—on a voluntary basis—yesterday received the backing of the Ontario Medical Association at its final council meeting.

Dr. H. S. Dunham, of Toronto, O.M.A. executive secretary, said at a press conference that the association had reaffirmed its stand that medical services should be provided on a voluntary basis.

He estimated that 288,000 Ontario residents now were covered by the O.M.A.-sponsored medical services plans.

Through an agreement made 15 years ago with the Provincial government, the association administers services to 123,000 welfare patients.

It also had sponsored two other plans of prepaid medical care, one in Toronto and the other at Windsor.

But while these had local acceptance it was felt necessary two years ago to establish a province-wide program. The result was Physicians' Services Incorporated, which has had wide acceptance.

The logical follow-up to the latter was a similar plan for co-operation with the Ontario Hospital Association, Dr. Dunham said.

Dr. Dunham expressed the hope that with the support of the profession and public the new arrangement could be put into operation in the not too distant future.

CANADIANS SAVE $3,000,000,000 IN FOUR YEARS

Seigniory Club, Que., May 17— (CP) — Thrifty Canadians have socked away more than $3,000,000,000 in the last four years. What's more, they're increasing their savings at the rate of $400,000,000 a year.

This was disclosed today by J. E. Coyne, deputy-governor of the Bank of Canada, in a speech prepared for delivery before the annual meeting of the Canadian Life Insurance Officers Association.

While Canadians are thrifty, they also are cautious, the deputy-governor added. Although this pile of cash together with surpluses accumulating in corporation accounts could be sufficient to meet Canadian investment needs, Canada still is getting much of her investment requirements from foreign sources.

The trouble, indicated Mr. Coyne is that Canadians are "not too anxious" to get into the savings investment field of developing resources. They favor more conservative investments such as housing mortgages and the like. This is all right as far as it goes, but it was not enough.

Receives Foreign Capital

Thus, whether Canada needed foreign capital or not Canada was continuing to receive foreign capital simply because foreign investigators have established themselves in Canada and are showing more interest in developing resources in Canadians.

"Experience of the last few years has shown," said Mr. Coyne, "that someone is going to develop these sources and industries of this country. If not Canadians, then Americans, Britons and Europeans.

"One-half of all dividends of all Canadian corporations," said Mr. Coyne, "are paid to non-residents."

The way to bring an end to this export of dollars is for banks and insurance companies who hold at least 50 per cent of their assets to transmute greater amounts of the individuals' savings into productive investment."

"The rate at which Canada has been growing," he said, "will depend on how much and what kind of capital investment is undertaken from year to year. . ."

'Image of Her Father'

Serowe, Bechuanaland, May 17 — (Reuters) — "Seretse" baby girl born Monday to Ruth Khama — white Queen of the Bamangwato — is reported to be the "image of her father," African leader of that tribe. A matron at the hospital where the child was born said little Jacqueline is fine. "Rumors that the baby was premature are untrue," she said. "She is fully mature and in good health."

HOMES WITHOUT GAS

Vancouver, May 17 (CP)—An estimated 10,000 greater Vancouver homes were without cooking gas Tuesday night following an explosion at a British Columbia Electric Company gas plant. The explosion ripped apart a compressor adjoining a gas storage tank in the east end, injuring three B.C.E.R. employees, two of them seriously. The blast was felt a mile away.

HOUSE SETS UP NEW COMMITTEE ON LEGISLATION

One Code for Service Discipline is Aim

Ottawa, May 17 (CP) — The Commons had plenty to say Tuesday about putting power in the hands of either civil or military authorities and the government was told laws made by Parliament itself ought to be supreme.

Opposition members first attacked what they termed "arbitrary" power in the hands of the Postmaster General to cut off the mail of anyone he thought was attempting fraud.

Later in a debate on the government's new, streamlined national defence legislation, they warned against putting too much faith in the old, traditional courts martial. In fact, some would reduce its jurisdiction to a small list of military offences and have service personnel sent to civil courts for other crimes.

The House set up a committee for further study of the defence legislation, a bulky document under which all Canada's sailors, soldiers and airmen will be brought under a single code of service discipline.

Western Senator Urges Formation Of Single Govt.

Ottawa, May 16 — (CP) — A white-haired 74-year-old Western Senator Tuesday urged the Upper Chamber to back the idea of a single, unified government for all freedom-loving countries as a means to obtain 100 years of peace.

Senator T. A. Crerar (Liberal-Manitoba) said if civilization is to live, then the world had to act quickly for the "sands are running out" and a third world war soon may come.

Supporting a motion of Senator W. D. Euler (L — Ontario) calling for a conference of Atlantic Pact nations to develop the theme of a single government, Senator Crerar said such a union could bring together no less than 300,000,000 persons.

He would usher in an era of a century of peace and present a bulwark against the imperialistic aggressive ambitions of communist Russia. It would mean integration of industries and would mean for Canada an expansion of world markets needed to bolster prosperity.

Senator Crerar said he realized the task of a single government would mean the loss of sovereignty, but this had been done before without any bloodshed. The provinces had given up their sovereignty when they united under Confederation in 1867. The 48 states in the United States had done the same thing when they merged into a union about 150 years ago.

Grandmothers Nurse Babies With Aid Of Native Herbs in Gold Coast Colony

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
(Associated Press Science Editor)

New York, May 17. (AP)— Grandmothers nurse babies in the British Gold Coast Colony of Africa.

This was reported to the International Pediatrics Association Congress on Obstetrics and Gynecology today by Dr. Leonard Goodman, New York.

"I have observed a strange phenomenon," he said, "where the grandmother of a child whose mother has died in childbirth or is very ill and unable to nurse baby, after a short interval of treatment with certain native herbs to suckle her grandchild, notwithstanding that she herself may have had no child for many years."

Obstructed labor in childbirth is regarded as a sure sign of unfaithfulness of the wife, and is subjected to three days of crossquestioning by the wife's entire family in an effort to extract a confession. It is believed that if she confesses, the baby will then be born.

Extra fingers or toes are common in these babies. These are regarded as signs of misconduct on the mother. Any other deformity is apt to be considered a sign of the child's misconduct.

Many of the native medical practices are harmful, Dr. Goodman said, but the use of herbs to induce a white doctor is considered incompetent, unless his treatment includes similar herbs. He said, notwithstanding that she herself — preferably an extremely painful one.

First Time River Has Held Steady Since Flood Began

Light Rain May Prod Red To Further Destruction

By R. J. ANDERSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Winnipeg, May 17. (CP)—The flooding Red River rolled on through greater Winnipeg today with deceptive, quiet terribleness. But it held almost steady.

To this city of throbbing pumps the river's breather brought confirmation that the crest had leveled off and probably would now begin a gradual drop from heights untouched in more than a century.

Coupled with the hopefulness however, was wariness. The city's protecting dikes, officials said, are showing signs of weakening.

Twenty-seven days after the Red here first touched flood level — an official reading of 18 feet — Winnipeggers faced this situation:

1. The river level at 6 a.m. E.D.T. was 30.2 feet. This was the same as at 6 p.m. yesterday when the first change in 43 hours—a rise of one-tenth foot—had been recorded.

2. There was a possibility of a one-inch drop in the river level sometime today.

3. The weather forecast generally was favorable—cloudy with only scattered showers. What hard-hit greater Winnipeg feared was a heavy rain throughout the valley, and this was not an immediate prospect.

4. Rain last night apparently had no effect on the surging Red. It measured only one-tenth inch and lasted only a few hours.

Timmins, May 17—(CP)—Members of the Labor-Progressive party said that Most Rev. Peter Johnson, Dean of Canterbury, and Rev. James Endicott, chairman of the Canada-China Council, would speak today at the Labor-Farmer Temple here. Previously arrangements had been made for an open air meeting after sponsors of the Timmins arena were unable to rent any local halls.

U.S. PROPOSES INTERNATIONAL ARMY FOR ALLIES

London, May 17. (AP)—The United States is proposing its North Atlantic Allies to run formation of an internation army against the threat of Russian aggression.

The decision whether to do probably will be made today by the Foreign Ministers of the Atlantic Pact countries, meeting secret deliberations here for third and perhaps final day.

Bigger and more efficient industrial production particularly needed to underpin the costly defence effort, in the view of American diplomats. The United States is reported to be urging Europe to show more speed, determination and confidence in economic efforts.

The international army idea h developed from a view, held an increasingly wide scale, th a group of strong armies pled to each other do not make a ified or efficient defence force.

Sir Basil Brooke in Toronto On 'Strictly Friendly Visit'

Toronto, May 17—(CP)— Sir Basil Brooke, prime minister of Northern Ireland, was received today at city hall and went to lunch with Mayor Hiram McCallum.

He told reporters he came here on a "strictly friendly visit" and hoped to meet many old friends. ada College before going to city hall. He called on Lieutenant-Governor Lawson at the parliament buildings and visited Upper Canada College before going to city hall shortly before noon.

About five hours before Sir Basil reached city hall, Robert Roberts, a city property department worker, told police he had seen an army armoured car of the type used by troops to camouflage manoeuvres, near a flagpo on a "strictly friendly visit" and at the city hall. A second police official said later that t car would bring Sir Basil to the smoke bomb and Sir Basil's visit had been established.

Roberts, a police official r called that leaflets urging a d demonstration to greet Sir Basil the city were distributed here la week. The text of the leaflet said the Irish people and the Irish National Association of Canada.

When reporters told Sir Ba about the smoke bomb, he emptily said he had "many, many old friends" might have left it on the lawn.

"I would think they would s tired of this nonsense," he adde "I've been getting that all my life. I was harmless. It had no timi device.

3-Day Shopping Parade in City Starts Thursday

Seventy city stores, earmarked by yellow banners "Belleville Bargain Days," will be the convergence points for, what is expected thousands of bargain-appreciative customers.

The three day "assault" which ends Saturday night, will probably end in a smashing victory for the "invaders." It cannot be otherwise, taking into consideration the all-out array of merchandise at prices that cannot but lure the bargain hunter.

Department stores, druggists, radio and appliance stores, hardware, ladies wear, shoe stores, furniture dealers, men's wear shops, variety stores, jewellers and plumbing and heating shops have joined forces in offering price-smashing values. Belleville should entice the most "hard-boiled" housewife to the scenes of activity.

There are no restrictions. Your money is as good as that of Mrs. Whoosit. There will be no favors shown. The first come will be first served, and the wise will "get in on the ground floor" the minute the first store opens its doors for "the charge."

That is the general picture of this more or less sensational affair of topflight merchandise priced within reach of everyone.

Today's editions and those of tomorrow will carry more startling news regarding values to be obtained in this three day Belleville Bargain offer.

Fighting 'Peggers Need Help, Local Fund Now Under Way, Leave Donations at City Banks

Gaunt and weary, the man paddled his small canoe through the muddy waters that defended his home in flood-thricken Winnipeg.

Grimed with the dirt of flood-battle, he rested wearily on his paddle as he neared the place where once his trim neat home, with its lawns and garden housed his family.

The chimney reared a stubby slender head above the reddish water. Flood waves slapped at the eight inches of brick which was all that was visible of his home.

He lowered a piece of cord with a weight attached into the water. Minutes later he pulled it in. It took 37 feet of cord to reach the man's lawn.

Slowly, he paddled away. But there was no look of despair in the lines that furrowed his shoulders. There was work to do, if other homes were to be saved.

Homes Complete Loss

His home will be a complete loss. The ravaging effects of pounding flood waters will take their toll, on hundreds of such dwellings. But the gaunt 'Peggers are not counting their losses. They are too intent on saving the remainder of their city from the destroying talons of the flood demon.

It will take millions of dollars to rehabilitate these fellow-Canadians. Communities large and small all over Canada are rallying to the aid of the flood victims. Everybody can help with their donations whether large or small.

Yesterday Belleville formed a Disaster Relief Committee, with Mr. J. M. Wood as chairman. Geo. H. Cayser of the Ontario Intelligencer has been named general secretary. An executive working committee has been formed.

The campaign for funds is now on.

Please leave your contributions at any bank in the city. But do it now. Other communities have already sent in cash donations.

Let's get up in there with the rest of them.

Rotary Club Luncheon Guests Of Hospital

Members of the Rotary Club were guests at luncheon Monday at the board of Governors, superintendent and staff of the Belleville General Hospital. The luncheon was served in the staff dining room with Rotary president Fred Deacon in the chair. Later the meeting was turned over to Rotarian Pere McGuire, chairman of the board of governors, who formally welcomed his fellow clubmen to the hospital.

H. W. Wakefield, hospital superintendent also welcomed the visiting Rotarians and after reading, arrangements for a conducted tour of the institution urged the clubmen to come forward with any suggestions they may have in mind during and following the inspection.

"We are presenting a model hospital here," he said. "There are many inadequacies but we are striving to make it as perfect as it wants."

Hospital charges in Belleville, he went on, "were the same as those in other large centres. The number of in-patients treated last year amounted to 9,000 as against 5,800 in 1939. There were 900 tuitnover last year, hospitalization facilities paid over one-half million dollars."

The clubmen were divided into six groups for the tour of inspection, and escorted by special guides.

$1,500 Damage When Car Hits Side of House

To be awakened at two o'clock in the morning to find the house porch shifted several feet and a motor car knocking at the front door was the experience Tuesday morning of the J. W. Garrow family, 31 Hamilton Ave.

Norman Woodcock, aged 35, of 105½ Station Street was driving his Canadian Ford when the car he was driving went out of control. The vehicle smashed off a hydro pole, then crossed the boulevard and sidewalk, went across a lawn, through a hedge and through a wire fence and hedge before smashing into the Garrow house.

The force said the woodwork was shifted several feet by the force of the impact with approximately $500 damage being done to the building. The car was almost a total wreck with damage estimated at $1,000.

Occupants of the car escaped unhurt. They were members of the Garrow family, asleep upstairs got a big scare as the car crashed into the side porch.

Miles of Streets Will be Oiled During Summer

Approximately ten miles of streets and roadways in the city will be oil treated this year, the work to commence as soon as possible after the first of June.

Tenders asked by the city for oiling of streets will close May 31st.

The parking department is now preparing the roadways for surfacing with oil treatment, the necessary grading and levelling expected to be fully completed by early June. Roadways in Parkwood Heights where stone was applied during the winter, and also in the new subdivisions being developments south of the highway, are included.

As a measure to assist in laying the dust until the street oiling is completed, sprinkling of the used motor oil is being made by the public works department truck.

City Engineer Chas. Mott says local gasoline service station operators have been very co-operative in making the used motor oil available to the city. The oil does a fairly good job as a dust layer and saves the city money. The oil is worked into the roadway during the process of grading and levelling.

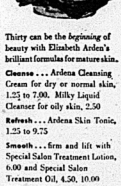
Multiple Injuries Suffered by Welfare Officer

Suffering multiple injuries when his light English-model car crashed into a road roller on the Foxboro highway one mile north of the village, George A. Whitman, city sanitary inspector, is in serious condition in the Belleville General Hospital.

Whitman suffered a dislocated hip, fractured pelvis and lacerated ribs and lacerations of the scalp. He was taken to hospital where he is under the care of Dr. R. T. Potter.



The accident took place shortly after nine o'clock this morning, when Mr. Whitman was motoring to Belleville from his home at Glen Ross near Stirling.

Mr. Whitman was following a City Cleaner delivery truck driven by John Holcroft, R. R. 1, Foxboro. The driver of the cleaner truck turned out to pass a road roller owned by the H. J. Although seriously injured Whitman was able to crawl from the wrecked auto.

Pleads Guilty To Passing Bogus Cheques

A story of gambling, with borrowed money and finally ending through passing of bogus cheques failing to make good betting losses had its sequel in police court here Tuesday when a local young man appeared on five charges of passing bad cheques.

Appearing unattended, counsel other than that offered by the local representative of the Salvation Army, Peter Laskaris, R. Colebourne Street, pleaded guilty to the five charges of passing the bad cheques and was remanded by Magistrate T. Y. Wills for sentence. The accused had no previous criminal record.

Involved in Gambling

Police Inspector J. C. Hayes told the court that Laskaris, had had the misfortune to be unsuccessful in a business venture He had become involved in gambling and had sold his truck to pay losses. Then he had borrowed money wherever possible, and had finally turned to passing cheques.

All the cheques passed were of amounts ranging from $46 to $55 and were passed with local business firms, cash being received in each case.

"Looks like a case of desperate gambling with the accused being unable to recuperate his losses," commented Magistrate Wills after he remanded Laskaris for sentence.

IN MEMORIAM

SMITH — In loving memory of my mother, Elizabeth M. Smith, who passed away May 17, 1949.

Sadly missed by my daughter, Marguerite and family. M17

EATON — In loving memory of my dear husband, Alfred Eaton, who passed away May 17, 1948.

Beside your grave I often stand, And wonder why it had to be, That death took you away from me. Not one other, not three, But you were mine and I loved you two

One year ago I had to part, Sadly missed I loved with all my heart.

The wound's so deep it will not heal, Only those who have lost know how I feel.

But I'll be brave, dear Mac, And pray to God each day,

And ask Him to take me home to you. For He will guide the way,

EATON — In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Alfred Eaton, who passed away May 17, 1948.

Time has flown since we left you, We would give, We would give, to rest and more To hear your voice and see your smile.

And greet you at our door.

But fate, we can do, dear father, Is go and tend your grave,

And keep fresh flowers of love To the mound where you are made.

To us you were a father, Cherish him while you may,

Lovingly remembered, not just today But every day, by daughter Ramona and son Ronald. M17

PASCOE — In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Harold Edward Pascoe, who passed away on May 17, 1944.

Six years have passed and gone Since one we loved so well Left home, our home on earth With Jesus Christ to dwell.

To him we have left you, Our little one so dear, To watch and guard and keep you Till you see us here.

But the love of him who sleeps Is ever dear. M17

Shall never pass away.

Sadly missed by father, mother, sisters and brothers. M17

SMITH — In loving memory of a dear mother, Elizabeth Smith, who passed away one year ago today.

Gone from us that smiling face, That gentle voice we hear, A heart that won so many friends We cannot keep dear.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto May 17 (CP)—Prices bounced up and down as the session progressed on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Most changes were held to small amounts as market leaders fluctuated between the plus and minus columns. Low priced gold stocks again accounted for much of the heavy trading.

Volume for the first three hours was 2,033,000 shares.

In industrials utilities, foods constructions and liquors were lower while refining oils brightened. Papers and steels were mixed.

Penny prospects traded heavily in golds for some good gains. Newlund Mines, a feature of recent markets held the spotlight on a strong advance. Dulama, Norseman and Lynx Yellowknife were also brisk.

Base metals edged ahead into new high ground early in the day but eased slightly at the half way mark. Consolidated Smeltters and Quemont dropped fractions while International Nickel brightened. Anacon Lead continued advancing briskly.

Western oils also slumped from opening fractions. Losses more than tripled gains.

No. 14 Highway Being Resurfaced

Motorists using No. 14 highway between Belleville and Foxboro will appreciate the resurfacing job now underway by the McFarland Construction Company, of Picton.

One of the oldest highway pavements in Central Ontario, the road was built over 25 years ago, the surface of recent years having become extremely wavy with result that auto springs and shock absorbers are given an extreme test when travelling that part of the highway. One year ago part of the highway was resurfaced while this year other sections of the road are getting the same treatment.

Partnership Dissolved

Lipson's Furniture House operating as a partnership business is now dissolving their partnership. Those connected in this business were Mr. Lipson's father of Picton, Mr. Irving Cooper and Mr. Milton Saltz of Belleville. The Lipson Furniture House, which has carried on business since and Uptown.

Mr. Cooper, and Campbellford, is now disposing of their entire stock, and at the conclusion of their disposal sale, the Lipson's Furniture House business will be carried on by Mr. Alex Lipson of Picton, under his name.

Excuse Not Convincing

Adams, Mass., May 17 (AP) — Gams Warded Lee B. Sanderson's story of a shrinking trout failed to impress fellow Warden William J. Kulish, or for that matter, Judge Henry W. Kulish. Warden Kulish told Judge Kulish he found Sanderson fishing in a state forest — with an undersized trout in his creel. Sanderson contended the fish was a legal six inches when he caught it four hours earlier, "and must have shrunk." Ten dollars, said Judge Kulish.

'Blind People Make Great Contribution to Society' Says Speaker at Annual Meeting

"Blind people have made a great contribution to society" stated Mr. R. W. Heath, chief librarian of the Canadian Institute for the Blind, as he spoke to the Hastings County Advisory Board at their annual meeting in Stirling.

"The greatest poet of all times was Homer, who was blind," Mr. Heath said in the course of his remarks. "He furnished the intellectual background for our best letters. Milton wrote his greatest poems after he lost his sight. Mr. Braille was a blind Frenchman who invented the system that has brought intellectual emancipation to blind people all over the world. Mr. Faucet was an Englishman who instituted parcel post, a convenience we all enjoy. A man named Hoskinson was blinded during the blitz and he invented the block buster. In the department of chemical research, Dr. Wayne Woolley was given the award for the greatest contribution toward dietetics."

Mr. Heath cited many other notable figures in Canadian affairs and showed that the blind have transcended the idea that they merely helping themselves, they try to give help to other people. "It is not all take and no give" Mr. Heath claimed.

Mr. Heath became blind at the age of six, but went to a school for the sighted and graduated from the University of Manitoba. He is not only chief librarian, but does considerable writing and editorial work for the publications of the Institute.

Can Be Prevented

Mr. Heath stated that over half of the cases of blindness could be prevented except for ignorance and carelessness. It was important to have knowledge of what to do. In 1924, a papyrus was written listing 20 different kinds of blindness. The attitude of people to the blind had changed, and this change of ideas was due to the Christian religion. The blind owed a tremendous debt to Christianity.

Mr. Heath said the world in its organization for the work of the blind," Mrs. Heath stated, "is only 32 years it has grown to be the largest organization of its kind in the world. For many years come workers for the blind from every country in the world. According to Collier's magazine, Canada is away out in front. We are the only country with a unity of organizations. We have a placement department, that puts men and women into industry and shops, so that for every dollar that comes more than two dollars goes into the pockets of the blind, who are able to help themselves by the greatest benefit they can have, the right to work.

Day in Life of Blind

"Let us look at the day of an individual blind person. He awakens to the sound of the Braille clock, which he has purchased at cost from the Institute. He turns on the radio which the government allows him to operate without license. He cooks an egg for breakfast timing it with a timer marked in Braille which rings a little bell, when the sands runs out. He gets out his white cane and goes on a bus trip, which is not to his work downtown. His job is provided by the institute. He might go to the library for a talking book, or to the movies on a free pass. He might play Braille bingo. When he was invented at the Institute, or one of many other games provided with special equipment, for recreation is the spark that gets him out of his inertia."

At present the Institute is in the midst of a building program of over a million dollars.

Mr. Douglas Bewa, President of the Advisory Board, was chairman of the meeting, which was the occasion of a supper provided by the ladies of St. Paul's United Church in Stirling when forty members and guests sat down to a bountiful meal of chicken and hot biscuits and all the accompanying dishes suitably prepared and greatly enjoyed.

Encouraging Reports

Encouraging reports were given of successful tag days and increased contributions throughout the country. Mr. Charles Randall spoke briefly on the White Cane Club, which has been organized in Belleville. It gave the blind an opportunity to make new acquaintances and friends. Thanks were expressed to the Kinette Club, which has assisted at the meetings which are held in the YMCA each month.

Mrs. H. Rollins reported on the New Year's dinner provided by the Rotary Club of St. Andrew's Church in Belleville.

Mr. C. E. Bell, honorary treasurer brought a report of the financial statement for the year, the details of which were given by Miss Robbin. This showed that $35,788 was contributed this year, an increase of $1,721 over last year.

In the report from the Home teacher Miss Rose Munro, it was stated that the main purpose of this department is to help the blind persons become as independent as possible. Fifty persons were given instruction in Hastings County.

119 Blind Registered

The Field Secretary, Mr. P. L. Timmins reported that in this territory which was formerly nine counties had been reduced to six. There were 119 blind persons registered in the county with 71 men and 48 women. He referred to the radio program which is put on by the blind and heard over the local station on Sunday last Tuesday of the month. The social services, income tax, legal, letters and assistance in helping with problems. Many were making use of the library, which now more than 23,000 books in embossed type. Talking books are also in demand and circulate widely. Radio sets are loaned out, and knitting machines and repaired. All members were remembered at Christmas with gifts. Cash, fuel and clothing were provided in emergency cases or with supplementary assistance in small people. The Kinette Club had provided white canes, to twelve persons.

For the six counties there has been provided a home economist, one field secretary, one driver-chauffeur, and one sighted stenographer.

Mr. A. D. Archibald read a statement of the finances for the county.

Thanks For Grants

Mr. T. J. Flurey expressed thanks to the speaker, Mr. Heath, and to the Rotary Club of Stirling and Hastings county council for grants in aid of the work for the blind. Mr. Flurey expressed thanks for their co-operation; to the press, radio, clergy, schools and the citizens who had assisted; to the Rotary, Kinette, and Y's Men's Clubs and to other service clubs for their interest; and to the Women's Institutes in Foxboro and Plainfield.

The nominating committee brought in the following list of officers for the Hastings County Advisory Board: Chairman, Mr. R. Bews; 1st Vice chairman, Mrs. H. Rollins; 2nd vice chairman, Mr. Mark Tripp; 3rd vice chairman, Mrs. F. Houchin; Secretary, Mr. S. Fairman; Treasurer, Mr. A. D. Archibald; honorary treasurer Mr. A. J. Malone, (and one to be appointed); Welfare Convener, Miss M W. Peck; Public Relations, Mrs. R. C. Ward, Miss F. Vandervoort.

Tells of Trip To Europe, Britain

Anthony Cekota of Batawa, who recently completed a trip to England and Western Europe, described in detail the conditions of the countries visited, at the meeting luncheon of the Kiwanis Club held at the Centre on Tuesday. Mr. Cekota spent many years in journalism in his native country of Czechoslovakia and escaped to this country after having been held a prisoner-of-war by the Nazis shortly after the outbreak. He is most modest as he brought back a message, that had optimism for the future that could only be achieved after a fierce fight against many forces, hoping to maintain democratic way of life.

"England to-day "is going through a terrible crisis because they were totally unprepared for war although many knew it was coming and in the war they took the brunt of the onslaught until other countries could come to their rescue. Many of them they had spent all their money and that food was still short. Meat is restricted to one meal a day and there is a limit to the amount that can be spent in cafes. Mr. Cekota stated there were many commodities still rationed and queueing is still prevalent. "Despite the rationing" the speaker said "the people do not look unhappy and this is proof that man does not need as much food as he is eating."

Highly Taxed

The people of Britain are the highest taxed people of the world, and the interest they have no security, they are up to their necks in debt and see no way of getting out and are despondent and courageed but they are coming back and expect to build, believe they will again take their high place in the world of Nations.

Turning to France Mr. Cekota stated that the French people were skilled workers and very everything they produced, especially their wines and liquors, was of the finest quality procurable. He stated that the French people thought a man a fool when he drank water because wine is the chief beverage in France. During his tour he visited the battlefields of Verdun, that had been ravaged by two wars and he stated not much change could be noticed with respect to cleaning up the desolation.

Turning to Western Germany, Mr. Cekota stated there was a new civilization growing up and that the people pressured from the old Germany under Hitler. The speaker was introduced by Cliff Baragar and his appreciation was expressed by Stan Loss. The vote of thanks was tendered by Tom Carruthers was seconded by Leonard Harry Trepanier presided at the luncheon with Vic White as song leader and Leo B. Biggs presided at the piano.

Appeal for Clothing, Other Articles Disappointing Says Red Cross Head

Hip rubber boots, woollen socks, flashlights, rubber gloves and clothing of all kinds are needed at once to help the flood fighters and victims of the Winnipeg flood disaster.

Right Rev. Ralph Pinnacle St. is the local collection depot for relief equipment. "After three days of collections, the response of Belleville citizens has not been very satisfactory," Lee B. Adams told the Ontario Intelligencer this morning.

12 Parcels Received

Up until noon today, only 12 small parcels had been received at the depot which is open for collections 24 hours a day. The parcels contain several pairs of woollen socks, three pairs of rubber gloves, a pair of short rubber boots, three flashlights and a man's suit coat.

"The response so far has been disappointing," said Morley Duff, president of the Red Cross in charge of collections. "Whatever we do, we must do in a hurry," declared Mr. Duff. "The need is urgent, and now is the time as there is little will be of little use if they arrive after the flood is all over."

The items collected are to be forwarded to Halton and then flown to the flood area at once. Belleville residents are urged to contribute four most badly needed articles, waders, gloves, socks and flashlights.

"These articles do not need to be new as long as they are usable," Mr. Adams said. He explained that clothing of any kind should be washed before it is sent as it is increasing every hour. Yesterday, a disaster relief committee was set up to receive clothing aid for the flood victims.

The committee, headed by Mr. J. M. Wood, is composed of members of the radio, and press and other organizations will be requested at the request of the committee.

While the need for financial contributions is great, clothing for the victims is also urgently required. Although Belleville is a long way from the Manitoba disaster residents here know from experience the misery and suffering caused by flood waters and the Red Cross is anxious to collect as much material as possible as soon as possible.

Regimental Artillery Parade Held at Armouries Shows Intensive Training by Men

The 3rd Battery, Gananoque and detachments of the 32nd and 34th Batteries, Belleville, and the 9th, 2nd Tank Regiment (SP), Adolphustown, were the highlight in the informal regimental parade of the unit in the Bridge St. Armouries last night.

It was a regimental parade in the sense that the unit paraded as a whole before the special demonstrations took place while individual batteries, the 3rd, 32nd, 34th and the 47th of Napanee took part in battery drills.

Later, with their slater batteries looking on from points of vantage in the balcony the 3rd Battery gave an outstanding demonstration of the conditions of the countries visited, at the meeting luncheon of the Kiwanis Club held at the Centre on Tuesday. Mr. Cekota spent many years in journalism in his native country of Czechoslovakia and escaped to this country after having been held a prisoner-of-war by the Nazis shortly after the outbreak. He is most modest as he brought back a message, that had optimism for the future that could only be achieved after a fierce fight against many forces, hoping to maintain democratic way of life.

"England to-day "is going through a terrible crisis because they were totally unprepared for war although many knew it was coming and in the war they took the brunt of the onslaught until other countries could come to their rescue. Many of them they had spent all their money and that food was still short. Meat is restricted to one meal a day and there is a limit to the amount that can be spent in cafes. Mr. Cekota stated there were many commodities still rationed and queueing is still prevalent. "Despite the rationing" the speaker said "the people do not look unhappy and this is proof that man does not need as much food as he is eating."

Highly Taxed

The people of Britain are the highest taxed people of the world, and the interest they have no security, they are up to their necks in debt and see no way of getting out and are despondent and courageed but they are coming back and expect to build, believe they will again take their high place in the world of Nations.

The speaker was introduced by Cliff Baragar and his appreciation was expressed by Stan Loss. The vote of thanks was tendered by Tom Carruthers was seconded by Leonard Harry Trepanier presided at the luncheon with Vic White as song leader and Leo B. Biggs presided at the piano.

Drill Competition

Following the drill competition, the 3rd Battery gave an outstanding demonstration of the "Gun Position Should Fall In". The precision-like movements of the unit bespoke intensive training. This was followed by a demonstration of the various manoeuvres of the unit and the "show" proved instructive to their unit mates as well as entertaining to spectators. The drill was under the command of Major. Ken Warwick.

The second demonstration was given by a military transport and mechanical vehicle squad drawn from the ranks of the 32nd and 34th Batteries under the command of Captain Doug. Chant and Sergeant Harper.

No Word of Command

The demonstration was done with no word of command, the troops going through their manoeuvres by whistle. Manning and mounting of the vehicles, moving and spotting them to their original positions was climaxed by a slow march-past-the-parade.

During the regimental parade promotions of two non-commissioned officers and one gunner were promulgated. Promoted were Sergeant I. Beresford to Warrant Officer 11; Sergeant C. Marouf to staff sergeant and Gunner R. Jamieson to acting sergeant. All are members of the 3rd Battery.

O. C. Holds Conference

Following the parade Lieut. - Col. G. M. McGregor Commanding Officer held a conference with his officers in the mess. During the conference motion pictures depicting life in Newfoundland and Lunenburg, N. S., were shown on the main floor of the armouries.

Later when the different messes were opened, Col. McGregor, Lieut.-Col. P. H. Wills, the battery commanders, Captain Mc-Pherson, Captain Welrmier and the Regimental Sergeant Major visited them. A tour of the messes was also made by the RSM and battery sergeant majors of the unit.

Selected as the best - dressed man on parade was Gunner A. McDonald of the 3rd Battery.

Hatcheries Feed and Egg Dealers Report Slackening of Business

Belleville hatcheries and feed dealers report a slackening off of chick and feed sales which they attribute to the recent cancellation of the British contract and the resultant drop in egg prices.

The cutting off of the British market and the drop in prices has made a big difference in the number of eggs coming into the station," Mrs. W. R. Bartlett told the Ontario Intelligencer this week. Her husband operates Bartlett's Poultry Station at 8 Mc-Annany. Street.

Chick Sales Down

Bill Hitchon, who is in charge of the J. S. McKenzie and Son hatchery at 15 Bridge St. said, that "chick sales are certainly down 25 per cent." Mr. Hitchon went on to say that he was referring to chicks that would be raised for egg production when they would as many chicks as last year but added that these will go into broilers which are killed off every 12 weeks."

Mr. Hitchon blames this situation directly on the loss of the British market and the drop in prices. Furthermore there was a slow buying in January which was also true of pullet eggs will just hit the tail end of the production peak from the old Germany under Hitler.

The decrease in the number of chickens is having its effect on feed sales. Sales of laying poultry feeds are definitely off and it is declared by Mr. Bishop, of Bishop Feeds, 106 South Church. "Feed prices are down 25 per cent and Mr. Bishop, "and the farmers can't afford to-day except on calves and beef cattle."

Across the road at Campbell Feeds, Jack Campbell, the story was the same. "High feed prices and the price of eggs has knocked the bottom out of poultry," said A. C. Campbell. The big buyers who raise upwards of 1,000 hens bought the same but the small farmers with flocks of less than 200 have stopped buying," added Mr. Campbell.

Expect Higher Egg Prices

The consensus that the hip prices of feed and low egg prices will be combined to make farmers reduce their flocks. Last fall, statistics released by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, revealed that a decrease of 10 per cent in the number of chicks would mean that there would be no surplus of eggs this year. Belleville feed dealers and hatchery operators interviewed agreed that the conditions were having a similar effect on poultry production right across Canada. They also predicted that the result will be much higher eggs prices next fall.

Grass, Rubbish Fires Cause Little Damage

A total of six alarms were answered by the local fire department yesterday with grass and rubbish fires predominating. Very little damage was reported as result of any of the blazes.

Slight damage was caused to a shed at the rear of the Deacon plant on Dundas Street, when the frame structure caught from a rubbish blaze. A spark falling on the roof of a residence on the Kingston Road near the Bakelite plant caused firemen another run but the blaze was extinguished before much damage was done. Firemen were also called to a poultry dump and to a grass fire on Wallbridge Road and a rubbish fire on Russell Street behind the old arena.

SEARCH FOR TREASURE

Romance appeals to human beings, an instance of which the prominence given recently to the possibility that a ship of Spanish Armada, famed in history of the time of Queen Elizabeth's dauntless mariners smashed the Spanish and broke the power of Spain, was blown up and sunk in Tobermory Bay, Scotland. According to the stories that followed the Spanish disaster and the triumph of Francis Drake that ship was to be sought because reports said she carried jewels, gold and Spanish doubloons to a mighty sum into a fortune of five million dollars in present currency. A writer in the New York Times says there are doubts of the Florencia and that Andrew Lang and F. Thicknesse ransacked the records of the Armada and found that "she was made her way back to Spain and was the hulk on the bottom of Tobermory Bay is the San Bautista of Sicily. Whether or not that ship carried treasure has never been established. The first attempt to find the supposed Florencia was made in 1665 with a diving bell. An otherwise unknown Archibald Miller has on account of what he found after working on the site between 1680 and 1683. There is no question that the work was located by him and others, for which reason it is to understand why royal divers should waste time on what has been performed over and over again."

What has been recovered since that day is not very much, some silver or pewter plates, some coins, a few cannon balls, a carpenter's plane and miscellaneous articles. Most of past years have actually felt bars of metal. Yet hopeless chase that everybody should the Spanish entrust $5,000,000 to a single ship? Was there that money in the entire Spanish Armada?"

But the tradition lingers on. Mean dearly loves a yarn minor of hidden or lost treasure. It breathes the very and atmosphere of the days of Drake and Frobisher others who sailed the Spanish Main and laid the foundation of the modern world through intense exploration. Days of the best men of the days of the greatest impact to the Northern World and especially of the Western. The Times comments on this persistent tradition of treasure in the Spanish ship and says "Hope springs eternal in the treasure-hunters breast. Whatever one of a valuable cargo raised by ingenious engineering tools his mind drifts back to the wreck in Tobermory and a new attempt is made to raise a treasure which be mythical. Likely more money has already been in Tobermory Bay than will ever be raised."

Whatever the ultimate result of this quest, whether or there is lost gold from Spanish galleons, there will be in the mind's eye and in the soul of the antic folk a dream of treasure yet to be found.

PANSIES ON A SHEEP

Often as sheep-wander over rocky hillsides, burrs and of various weeds will stick to the wool on the sheep's Then the sheep wander along, the burrs and seeds from those and fall to the ground and new plants begin to grow.

But this is not what happened in some parts of Australian last year. Why, they had so much rain that the seeds of dry on the sheep's back and fall to the ground. The were so well watered that they clung to the wool and to grow. The farmers said they had never known it happen before, and they had never seen such weirdlooking sheep.

What a pity the farmers had not known about the other beforehand, or they might have planted flower on the sheep's backs and had travelling flower gardens. Wouldn't it be fun to see herds of pansies off a sheep's back! — United Church Observer.

PRESERVE THE FORESTS

As more people go into the woodlands they are advised this season to exercise the greatest precaution to prevent fires. In the last analysis fires mostly are said to be result of carelessness.

One of the greatest losses a people can suffer is that of fire, which destroys the growth of timber of years and brings the soil on which trees might grow.

Fire can play havoc not only in burning down timber also in destroying the soil in which forests grow.

Care in handling fire matches is one of the great signals for those to observe who enter the woods.

The Dominion Government has announced that any citizens given by citizens for the victims of the floods at Winnipeg and the disastrous fire at Rimouski may be deducted for income tax purposes. It is an eminently proper thing and one that will command general approval.

SLEEPING CHILD

He above his tousled head,
Terry lies in bed;
that twinkled through the day
to shut the world away,
now we needn't keep;
Terry's fast asleep.

Scrubbing grown-ups down in the stairs,
Scrubbing about your woes and cares.
In the politicians all!

Whom you voted for last fall;
Raise your voices without fear;
Not a word will Terry hear.

Wag your head and use your lungs;
Strain your throats and race your tongues;
Shout that times are growing worse;
All that's wrong today rehearse.
Chatter, each in comfort deep;
Little Terry's sound asleep.

THE PACKSAK

By GREGORY CLARK

Public relations men, in the old days, were either ex-newspapermen who knew their way around the publishing world and had a nose for a story and guidance in it. Or else they were executives of the gospel or politics who had a flair for words and who had extraordinary powers of persuasion. They were recruited mostly by malefactors of great wealth or by corporations engaged in fleecing the public. Their job was to keep stuff out of the papers and get it in.

Public relations, today, is a recognized branch of management in practically all industry and all business. Even the professions have public relations staffs. Their job, in a word, is to handle the contact of their employer with the public and the press, whether by paid advertising, news, information, right down to meeting and dealing with you at the bank. The public who try to come into personal contact with anybody.

In one of these highly organized public relations departments lately, I ran into a snag in the person of a highly intelligent young lady who had, doubtless, taken a very graduate course in economics and business administration and was the assistant to the head of the department, and it was her unhappy duty to decline to give out certain information I was in search of.

There was no way around her. When I asked to see someone on the management side, I found that the public relations staff, she patiently explained to me, was the function of public relations to shield management. When I asked her, then, how the public got in touch with her organization, she allowed her scorn to conquer her patience.

"You will pardon me for mentioning it," she said, "but you are a private individual. You speak as if you were the public. We are supposed to be dealing with public, not with the private individuals."

That little guy, Joe Public, apparently is dead.

PITCHING HORSESHOES

By Billy Rose

MANHATTAN NEWSREEL

There's a beggar in New York with a new sales approach: "Can you please, Mister, spare the price of a teddy bear for my sick little daughter?"

It so happens that this panhandler hasn't got a sick little daughter, but that doesn't mean you have to turn him down if you meet up with him. His story is hearts-and-flowers stuff, and I'll tell it to you as it was told to me the other night by Charles Washburn, the Broadway gag agent.

"A few days before Easter," said Charlie, "I was standing in front of a toy shop on Fifth Avenue when a seedy-looking guy tapped me on the arm and asked if I could spare the price of a teddy bear. When I told him I quit his kidding, he explained he wanted it for his little girl, and that if I didn't think he was on the up-and-up he'd write his name and address on a piece of paper and I could have it delivered.

"Well, filled with the old Easter spirit I walked into the shop and picked a Spanish galleon bear, but when I handed the slip to the girl who waited on me she gave me a funny look and said I was the third person that afternoon who had ordered one sent to that address.

"It smelled like a good human interest story to me, so I had her wrap up the toy and set out to deliver it myself. It was a flat in a walk-up tenement in the 50's near Tenth Avenue, and the door was opened by a woman who looked as if she could use a little sleep.

"What you got there,' she said, 'another teddy bear?'

"'How do you know?' I asked.

"'I've been getting two or three every afternoon for the last month,' she said. 'Step inside.'

"Tim, it turned out, was her husband and he had been missing for several weeks. Things hadn't been going well with them for quite some time, and when his unemployment insurance ran out last March the going got real tough. Then, to make things worse, their three-year-old daughter ,Peggy, had taken sick and the doctors at the clinic couldn't seem to do much for her.

"The teddy bear angle had come about this way: Shortly after Peggy became ill, she asked for a teddy bear and kept talking about it all the time. Tim said he thought it would do her more good than all the medicine, but what with the room rent and food, they just couldn't afford to buy one. A month ago he walked out of the house, and ever since teddy bears had been arriving at the rate of two or three a day.

"'With all those toys,' I said to the woman, 'your daughter must be a happy little girl.'

"'They're too late to do any good,' she said. 'Peggy died two days before her father left. And the teddy bears I've been getting not have helped anyhow—she had leukemia.'

"Frankly, I told her I couldn't understand why a man was mooching a teddy bear for a dead child' the woman said she was afraid Tim had cracked up. He was getting sent to a psychopathic ward by now, and in his fuzzy condition he probably still thought the kid was alive.

"'Well, then,' I said, 'what have you been doing with all the teddy bears?'

"The woman told me she had gotten to know the doctors at the clinic pretty well, and when her husband disappeared they sent the toys over to her at the hospital as cleaning woman.

"'There are a lot of kids in the charity ward where I work,' she said, 'and they get a big kick out of those bears.'"

Nude Parading Brings Terms To Thirty-Six

Nelson, B.C., May 17 (CP)— Thirty-six Sons of Freedom Doukhobors were sentenced to three years in prison for nude parading.

The sentences brought the total to 67 since April 28, when 31 were given two-year sentences on similar charges.

At Grand Forks, another 16 members of the radical Doukhobor sect drew three-year sentences Tuesday and another was given a suspended sentence on nudism charges.

While the magistrate recited the verdict against Peter Verigin, their nearby "capital" of Krestova burned down another home. It was the fifth fire said in or near Krestova since the Sons of Freedom began a campaign of recent string of outbreaks in April.

At Victoria Tuesday night, Attorney-General Gordon Wismer said he had asked the RCMP to increase the force in the province to further outbreaks. Up to now, Provincial Police have been handling the situation.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

BEDROCK

Do you read detective stories? Recently I sat in a group of citizens of Union learned — who each month meet to discuss some significant book, article or modern literary conceivable type of literature—has, over the past twenty years, been thoroughly discussed by this group, and at the last meeting it was devoted to the detective story. The greatest detective story of all time—"The Moonstone" by Wilkie Collins, written 75 years ago and still considered by the connoisseurs the best ever written—was under discussion.

Strange is what one of the greatest English scholars of modern times, who was the guest at that meeting, had to say: " have stopped reading the modern novel because while I admire realism I am simply tired of the filth of the average novel today. To me the detective story, which makes sharp distinctions between right and wrong and looks always for the triumph of right and the defeat of evil, is not only an interesting but a wholesome form of fictional stimulus" in these days The bedrock of morality is to be found in the detective story. Some of the greatest scholars, statesmen, and saints of modern times have been addict of this type of literature; and more to their glory."

So here is an added reason why we should read detective and mystery stories. And if you haven't read "The Moonstone," get it immediately.

RATTLE THOSE BONES BUT DON'T TWIST THEM

In line with Darwin's theory concerning the survival of the fittest, untold thousands of years have contributed to the ultimate selection of the type of bones we now possess. Bones have been shortened, lengthened, thinned and thickened according to the needs of the individual competing for survival. Modern man has little natural need for the bony structure of the Neanderthal or other primitive man. The highly unnatural and restrictive strains placed upon bones in what is called "sport" such as football, can hardly be expected to contribute much to the bony formation of the man of the remote future.

Many thousands of years from now, the effect of modern laboratory devices may result in the development of a species of man of considerably lighter bony frame—less than that existing man today.

Man today has a bony framework capable of resisting enormous stresses—but with certain and often unsuspected limitations. According to the National Bureau of Standards, human bone has double the inherent strength of seasoned hickory and about onefourth that of cast iron. Fractions of bone removed from the extremities can withstand a pressure of 32,000 pounds before giving way, yet the same bones give way to twisting strains at 3,000 pound per square inch.

Strong as bones may be, the tendons and ligaments attaching to them has snapped. Streaks applied counter to the usual order of range of a bone's movement can be resisted to a point for between 2,000 and 3,000 pounds of rotary manner. Thus fractures reluctantly undergo the scrutiny of an X-ray examination of an injured area because they feel that the force involved is not sufficient to cause a fracture.

A case in point involved a ballet dancer. Years of practice had produced enormously strong and supple muscles which enabled her to leap about effortlessly and land "light as a cat". In a routine practice drill, she noticed a stinging pain in her leg following a leap in which, landing awkwardly she stopped a twisting turn. X-ray examination of the leg revealed a fracture extending from the shins of the way up the entire outer bone of the leg.

Fractures caused by direct force often involve twisting forces. Wrestling fans are often amazed at the terrific forces which are applied to the extremities without producing fractures, yet the experienced wrestler soon becomes aware of his vulnerability when twisting force is applied and moves quickly to transfer the direction of the force against less vulnerable planes.

The value of "relaxing" when taking a tumble is not based upon pure imagination but has a lot of mechanical sense behind it. A bone can stand more direct force than twisting force. If the tendons attached to the bones are in a state of rigid contraction, the fall may result in severe laceration and result in a fracture, whereas if the muscles and tendons are relaxed only direct violence is involved.

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

LISTEN!

It is amazing how much we learn merely by listening to others. In fact I believe that we can gain a liberal education by this method. Over the years I have traveled thousands of miles in trains, and one way to miss the passing of time is to sit in the club car, on a long journey, and listen to the talk that is always evident. I have picked up many a valuable idea thus.

If you think you have nothing going out of your mind, but plenty entering, you will really select what you want to stay in. If so you will find that by listening to me, you may not agree with what is said, but you will be getting thoughts, perhaps many of them clarifying what may be troubling you at the moment.

You can very well put it down that a good listener is an intelligent person, one that people like to know. On the other hand the talker, if he does not stop listening, may reveal himself as one you would not like to know! And so you see ahead if you just listen.

Many a life-long friend I have gained from listening to him through a chance meeting or while traveling on a vacation, or a long business trip. People are most full parade at such times, and so reveal themselves naturally. Often they will confide things that they would never dream of revealing at any other time. To such a one it pays to listen.

The late William Allen White was a dear friend of mine. He was a brilliant writer, but I recall little when in a group of other brilliant people he remained silent. I have sat with him in many a group where the talk lasted for hours, and rarely did a word from him. But I knew that he was getting all that. Listening always do. Good ones, I mean.

Listeners are always around. Often they hear things that were not meant for their ears! In public places it is best to compose talk. Listeners are good reporters. Never too good, and sometimes dangerous. We should watch our words, and listen to the many other things that are "of good report."

Frog's Descant Tops Youthful Choristers

Toronto — (CP) — Grade IX pupils aren't the only singers in Miss Muriel Perkins' class in suburban East York's Hartman Jones public school. Croaker, the class mascot, a two-inch swamp tree frog trills with the best of them.

Croaker entered Grade II as first-class exhibit in a nature-study lesson. It was only when nature study was over and music class began that Croaker's singing talent was recognized. Now he forms a major part of the class' choral work and entertainment.

Miss Perkins and her pupils aren't the only ones to be entertained by the "velvet frog" however. Principal A. M. Ballantyne, reporters and photographers has also taken the class and Croaker singing together and he says he will have a permanent record made of the mezzo-soprano frog and his human accompaniment.

"People might not believe it without the evidence," he said. "You should have seen the children's eyes light up when they heard Croaker singing with them. It's like something out of a fairy story for them."

Moderator of United Church Predicts Greater Progress In Church Union in Future

In spite of the fact that he is somewhat worried by the uncertainty lost to Satan during the last 25 years, Dr. Ross Wilkie, speaking, B.D., D.D., Moderator of the United Church in Canada is optimistic about the future and predicts "far greater progress toward full church union in the years to come".

Dr. Brewing made these observations in an address delivered at Holloway Street United Church Tuesday afternoon. The occasion was a special silver jubilee service to commemorate the 25th. anniversary of the formation of the United Church. The service was held in connection with the May meeting of the Belleville Presbytery held at Holloway St. United Church yesterday. The order of service was the same as that observed on the first service of the United Church in Toronto in 1925.

Gospel Only Universal Force

Turning to the world situation, Dr. Brewing said, "Today, the two greatest nations of the world are threatening each other with ruin and destruction against each other that nations have ever before dreamed of using. The Gospel of Jesus Christ is the only universal force of power in the world today."

The Moderator described the last quarter century as "the most disturbed years of human history." In Dr. Brewing's words "At present world conditions are the result of "the birth of 'One World' and the awful agonizing birth pains of that movement. While the idea of 'One World' was not widely accepted in North America until after the late Wendell Wilkie published a book by that name, Christians "are known at this writing for centuries," said Dr. Brewing.

Hopes Not Fully Realized

Hopes that the amalgamation of the several denominations who united in 1925 would be able to influence governments and improve social conditions have not been realized to as great an extent as expected said Dr. Brewing. The Moderator went on to say that in some respects the church is straying afresh against the use of alcohol but is strangely weak in opposing its sale.

The church has no fresh word in war. We still go on signing pacts with men who didn't invite us to help draw up the treaties. If we are strong enough to sign these pacts, we are strong enough to write some of our own pacts declared Dr. Brewing.

"Like the prairies where it was born, the United Church is ushering in a country of various ideological and political ideas there is no gap in this amazingly united christian" said the Moderator "sees its future and has power in this unity."

Spearheading Movement

Dr. Brewing told his audience that the United Church is the largest interdenominational union since the breaking up of Christianity began and is "spearheading" the movement for world wide union of all Christian Churches. The Moderator predicted that "all united" and the world movement with a united spiritual movement at its heart."

If the church is to continue its rapidly expanding work, it will need 925 young men and women each year for the next five years, to train as full time workers. In chairman of the Presbytery, presided at the service and introduced the speaker. The service of Holy Communion was administered by Rev. C. D. McLellan of Napanee. Also assisting at the service were Rev. Alfred Poulter, Madoc; Rev. Fred Lane, Wellington and Rev. W. R. Merrick, Selby.

COLLEGIATE NEWS

Since there was no assembly Wednesday there is very little to report on this week. Highlights of the past week was the cadet inspection. However I'll leave that to Turvey to tell.

Elections for the Girls' Athletic Society took place Wednesday and Thursday. The following are the new officers: president, Helen Weston; vice president, Carol Weston, secretary, Beth Holmes, and treasurer, Joan Harback.

Practice is going on strong for Field Day events coming up shortly. Also coming up are exams that are so close that it almost scares one to think of it. Now that's as over let's settle down, shall we?

I happened on this poem a few days ago and thought it so appropriate to the weather that I'm sending it on to you:

THE RAIN

I hear leaves drinking rain,
I hear rich leaves on top
Giving the poor beneath
Drop after drop;
'Tis a sweet choice to hear
These green leaves drinking rain.

And when the Sun comes out,
After the rain shall stop,
A wondrous light will fill
Each dark, round drop,
I hope the sun shines bright,
'Twill be a lovely sight.
—Topsy.

Shavings

Are our teachers quick, alert, keen-eyed and calm in a moment of disaster. Remember one day last week when eagle - eyed Townsend who was supervising a ball game, espied smoke coming from the roof of Church St. house. What did he do? Why he did the natural thing, he hollered to Trwin who was supervising a high-jumping contest. What did Erwin do? Apparently he did not hear because he didn't do anything. However, lightning Bradley tore across the street, through the house, climbed out an upstairs window and began tearing off shingles with the assistance of nimble Jim McKay who had scaled the roof over the verandah. The fire was quickly put out when a father dear owner appeared out the window with a basin of water. Bravo teachers!

Sports

It's all over, cadets that is. The winning companies in both boys' and girls' cadet corps were A companies.

MARIO ... in his distinctive feature about Food ... What's Cooking?

By the author of "THE FACE IN THE ASPIC"

Okra, or gumbo, is a vegetable that people seldom eat alone. Native to Ethiopia, okra was brought to Colonial America but never achieved popularity until Louisiana cooks started to use it to make gumbo soup.

The ordinary chicken gumbo soup, for which canners buy thousands of tons of okra, has many variations created by southern cooks. Shrimp, lobster, oyster and ham gumbo all depend for their lovely flavor upon the little green sticky pods.

Although okra feels rough and prickly when fresh, this disappears during cooking. Don't cook okra in an iron pot or the pods will become discolored although entirely safe to eat.

Order 1 1-2 pounds of boneless shoulder of veal. Have the meat cut into 1-inch cubes. Wipe with damp cloth. Remove any bone splinters.

Melt fat to a depth of 1-4 inch in a heavy saucepan. Add veal. Sprinkle with 1 teaspoon salt, 1-2 teaspoon oregano, 1 teaspoon chili powder and 1-8 teaspoon pepper.

Add 1-3 cup finely chopped onion and 1 chopped medium size green pepper. Cook well. Let meat continue to simmer slowly for 5 minutes. Add 1 No. 2 can of tomatoes chopped and 2 tablespoons tomato paste.

Simmer over lowest flame until veal is nearly tender, about 1 1-2 hours. Add 3 cups of fresh okra, washed, trimmed and cut into 1-2 inch thick slices.

Cover saucepan with lid and simmer until okra and meat are tender, about 30 minutes more. Skim off any excess fat from surface.

English Teacher Sees "Old Girls" In United States

By CHARLES E. WHITING

Richmond, Surrey, England, (AP) — A middle-aged "Miss Jips" has bid farewell to classrooms and started off for a lengthy visit with some of her "old girls" in the United States.

Miss Marion Mathews, retired headmistress of a girls' boarding school, is heading for San Francisco and the first of a series of reunions with 14 of her former pupils scattered from California to Massachusetts.

She will spend two years reliving old times with the 14, all of them now married. Some were brides of U.S. soldiers.

"I've looked forward to going to America almost all my life," she told a reporter on the eve of departure. " went through all the bombings during the war—I even drove an ambulance—with the thought in mind. Recently I thought to myself if I waited till I was 60 (the usual retirement age) I might be too old. So I decided to get started immediately.

"I've written to all the old girls who've invited me to visit them, telling them I'm on my way."

Miss Mathews, who left her post at Edgborough Road girls' school here at Easter, is in her "middle-fifties." She headed the school since 1927.

The female version of James Hilton's fictional "Mr. Chips", beloved English schoolmaster, sailed from Rotterdam recently on the Dutch steamer Duivendyk for the Panama Canal and California.

"I expect to be met at San Francisco by a man taught as a boy in grammar school," she said. "No, I won't tell you his name because I don't think he would like the publicity. He has a very influential position and has a charming wife and four lovely daughters.

Same First Step

Her first visit with the "old girls" will be at the home of Mrs. Irene Mowles of Fresno, Calif.

"I plan to stay there and look around California for a long time. There are two other former pupils of mine in the film business. They're in Pasadena, but I don't remember their addresses. They're in my trunk which already has been shipped."

Some of the cities she will visit, however, are Seattle, Portland, Ore., Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland, Boston, Washington D.C., and towns in Texas and Alabama she didn't remember.

One very important date is with a friend from her Oxford student days, Mrs. M. Shields of Dayton, Ohio.

"She wrote me that she has just bought a new car and is all set to start travelling as soon as I arrive," said "Miss Chips."

One of her eastern stops will be a visit to Mrs. Vivian Maloof of Hyde Park, Mass.

Miss Mathews, a Quaker, also plans to look over some of the Friends' schools throughout the United States.

"But no lectures," she said. "I've given up all that—I'm really retired.

Woman Knows Way Around In Political Arena

Hamilton, May 17 (CP) — The House of Commons an exclusively male stronghold, since last February, will have to submit to another woman member, the sixth in its history.

Having survived the presence of such contrasting personalities as ebullient Agnes Macphail, motherly Mrs. George Black and sharp tongued Mrs. Gladys Strum, the honorable members will be confronted with a chic, grey-haired, 45-year-old accountant who knows her way around the political arena.

When Mrs. Ellen Fairclough carried Hamilton West constituency for the Progressive Conservatives in Monday's by-election, it was the climax of a political career that carried her through city council to the head of the poll in Hamilton's elections for board of control last January.

She has pushed issues ranging from better control of Hamilton's dog population to a campaign against allowing minors in beverage rooms.

Succeeds on Second Try

In the federal field, Mrs. Fairclough succeeded on her second try, after giving Hon. Colin Gibson a tough battle in the same constituency in the 1949 general election. Monday, in the by-election brought about by Mr. Gibson's appointment to the Ontario Supreme Court, she won with a plurality of almost 4,000 votes over Liberal and C.C.F. opponents.

Her victory makes Mrs. Fairclough the first woman M.P. since Mrs. Strum lost out in 1949 in her bid for re-election as C.C.F. member for Qu'Appelle, Sask.

Others to precede here were Miss Macphail, who won Grey South East as a Progressive in 1921, Mrs. Black, who held Yukon for the Progressive Conservatives from 1935 to 1940; Mrs. Dorise Nielsen, who served a term as unity candidate in Battleford North in 1940, and Mrs. Cora Casselman, who won Edmonton East for the Liberals in a by-election but was defeated in 1945.

Mrs. Fairclough hasn't confined herself to politics. She keeps house for her husband and 18-year-old son, carries on her practice as an accountant and is active in local women's clubs.

BOY ESCAPES DEATH UNDER TRACTOR WHEELS

Guelph, May 17 (CP) — Five-year-old John Clark of Detroit, is in hospital today suffering from injuries received when he fell from a tractor operated by his grandfather, J. A. McKenzie, at nearby Terra Cotta. Joited from the tractor as it was travelling over rough ground, the boy narrowly escaped death under the wheels of the heavy vehicle. His condition is not serious.

SUCCESSFUL OPERATIONS

Toronto, May 17 (CP) — Doctors at the Hospital for Sick Children here recently performed successful operations on three tiny babies whose gullets didn't lead to the stomach.

Hospital officials declined to identify the babies, but said one came from suburban Weston, one from Renfrew, and the other from Outlook, Sask. All are progressing satisfactorily and one has left hospital.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Groom and his parents insist on paying wedding expenses

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I know that most of the writers about weddings and etiquette subjects are women, but I also have something to ask you . . . after all, the men should have something to say. I am getting married in June. I am an only child, and for twenty-two years my parents have dreamed of my finding a nice girl and getting married. Now I have found the right girl. But her family is very poor, she has four younger brothers and sisters, and her father makes less than an average income. Now my family is a little on the well-to-do side, and so we are paying for most of the wedding expenses. Both families are terribly excited . . . yet I'm sure you'll say "Oh, no, that shouldn't be done; it's the bride's family who pays." Well that point of view, in my estimation, is passe. I feel that must be the case, no girl from a poor family should get married blue with just the right way, with a big wedding, reception, and so forth. So I don't agree with you . . . I'm sorry!

Miss Ingreedable" Jim

Now come, sir. . . you're not a bit "sorry" you don't agree with me; you're glad you don't, or at least you're glad to say you don't "true or false"!

The tradition, the rule, the custom accepted by all those who have proper respect for procedure that is in good form and good taste, is that the bride's parents are ones who give the wedding. . . that, no matter how modest the financial means of the bride's family or how wealthy the groom's family. It is the prerogative of the bride's family to give their daughter the kind of wedding they can afford.

The bride's family who value their dignity and independence are unwilling to put themselves into the false position of having their daughter have a wedding that is obviously out of proportion to their usual way of life. But sometimes it's mighty difficult to persuade insistent in-laws-to-be that their would-be-financee-wedding are more generous then right! You and your guests aren't "insistent" about giving the wedding are you? . . . are you!)

It's heart-warming to think of two, the loving and proud Prince Charming to your "right" little Cinderella. It would be right and beautiful and appealing to have the very, very simple wedding her parents could afford . . . and then, after the wedding, for you and your guests to plan the charming reception or other parties that will with perfect taste welcome her into your family and circle of relatives and friends, will proudly surround her with loving thought and grace.

Maid of honor and bride's mother together

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Although my wedding is to be formal, I am having only a maid of honor, no bridesmaids. Therefore would my maid of honor drive to the church with my father and me?

2. When do I give my maid of honor her gift? And should it be wrapped?

V. R.

1. In this case the best plan would be for your maid of honor to drive to the church with your mother. For a wedding of formality, the plan is for the bride and her father to drive together to the church, their car to arrive last.

2. Give your maid of honor her gift at any time convenient before the wedding. And yes, it should be attractively gift-wrapped.

SILENT THIEF

Halifax — (CP) — Two tons of coal made a lot of noise when it went into the cellar of Miss S. W. A. Almon's house—but it went out much more quietly. Miss Almon told police the coal was carried out one night while she slept. No one in the vicinity heard the thieves.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

When using artifice be careful. Don't use too much mascara.

You can paint the lily and the rose. But Lilly and Rosie can! Look at them! Cheeks like red apples, lips of fire-engine hue, lashes heavy with mascara! It is a good-looks crime. The more they try to look beautiful, the less beautiful they look. They haven't learned that make-up has gone subtle, that the bedizened effect is strictly old stuff.

Until World War I, make-up was not considered respectable. "Nice girls" didn't paint. Yes, my little chickadees, that is what they called it, "paint". It sounded terrible. "She puts rouge on her cheeks". A scathing arraignment.

The lipstick came into action. Mothers protested when daughters used it; fathers raised the roof. A lot of good it did them. It wasn't long before the mamas joined up with the girls and everything was O.K. The majority of women went the limit, overstepped the mark. Now the reaction has come. Artifice is subtle. It is slick. It beautifies in a big way. Every woman knows that. She has but to compare the before-breakfast face with the one she displays as soon as she can grab ten minutes of communion with the make-up kit.

Too much complexion batik does not create an appearance of freshness and youthfulness, and that is what we all are after. It makes a woman appear brittle, her face losing softness and charm. The purpose of make-up is lost.

Don't be lavish with powder. All you need is a light film to provide the magnolia finish. Put the powder on your nose first, your nose last. If you wham the heavily-laden pad on your nose, it will look like a marshmallow.

Get one of the new lipsticks of faint, natural tone. You'll find it more edifying than the vivid reds or even raspberry tints. The eyes are the most attractive feature. When the lips are startling in color they detract from the eyes, take attention away from them.

If you prefer a compact rouge, use it after powder, then blend with powder, forming a make-up sandwich. Should you use a cream rouge—it certainly sticks by one longer—put it on in little dots, then unite them with a light touch. A bit of pink coloring on the eyelids gives one an interesting and mysterious look.

So much mascara on the eyelashes, and no more! Sometimes even a little is too much. Be careful with the crayon if you are in the habit of extending your eyebrows at the far terminals.

STEPPING INTO SPRING is

Alaska sealskin, after a big Winter season. A beauty of a jacket, hiplength, is in brown or black Alaska sealskin. A plunge collar turns back into a shallow tuxedo, elbow-length sleeves are full, with slashed cuffs, and the back of topper is flared.

A PEEK at the color card for Autumn woollens and coatings, shows a trend towards deep purple tones. Navy with a deep purple overcast is beautiful for dresses, while Royal blue with a purple cast is also cited.

A NEW HANDLING of filmy fabrics lends interest to a group of highly individual afternoon dresses. Black nylon net over pale pink is smartly tailored. A narrow black piping edges the high, round neckline, the short sleeves and the double pocket flaps high on the bodice near the smooth shoulder. The skirt spreads to the hem from a slim waist marked by a tailored self belt.

A NICE COMPANION to accompany Summer silks, especially for resort or country wear, is the scoop-necked, short-sleeved cardigan.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

The baby of the family thinks she doesn't get a break

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a girl of 15 and a sophomore in high school. My parents will not allow me to have dates, even though they had them when they were as young as I am. They never stop to think that I would like to have good times, too, just as they did when they were young. I have six brothers and sisters older than I, and they started going out when they were 15, some of them even younger, and they have all turned out all right.

I am the baby of the family, and I am certainly treated like one, too. My parents say that I am to wait until I am at least 19 before having any dates, and then I should be sure to pick only the nicest men. To them, "nicest men" mean men with lots of money. If I have to marry for money instead of love, I'll never marry.

Do you think that I should be allowed to go out on dates, such as to high school baseball games, movies, amusement parks, etc.? I am practically the only girl in my class who isn't allowed to have dates, and when I hear them talking about theirs, it makes me cry, thinking of the good times they have and the way I have to sit at home.

What you say will have much influence with my parents, because they think your advice is good.

V. U.

Dear V. U.:

Yes, I certainly do think you should be allowed to have a reasonable number of dates just like other girls of your age. I do not understand your parents' attitude about this, particularly if your older sisters were allowed to go out when they were your age.

You say your parents will be influenced by my advice, so my suggestion to them would be that the three of you get together, talk the whole thing over in friendly fashion and come to some compromise. My own idea is that girls of your age should go out only on nights when there is no school the next day; that they should go only to places where it is quite proper for them to be, and that their parents should know at all times where they are going, with whom they are going and what time they will be home.

I might add that I think your parents must be gently teasing you a little in what they say about choosing only men with money for your friends. I'm sure they have better sense than this. Dressing for a four o'clock wedding

Dear Miss Fairfax:

We have been invited to a 4 o'clock church wedding and a reception at 6. Would we be expected to dress formally, or is this optional?

H. S.

Dear H. S.:

For a 4 o'clock wedding and reception at 6, informal dress is proper. No one is expected to wear formal clothes to any affair which takes place so early in the day.

AIKENS' W.M.S.

Aikens—The May meeting of Aikens' Woman's Missionary Society was held on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Everett Hubble with a fair attendance.

Mrs. L. McMullen, president, gave the call to worship and led in responsive reading. Mrs. S. Marshall read the scripture passage which was explained by Mrs. McMullen.

During the business period, plans were made for the June meeting to be held at the home of Mrs. H. Hamilton with Mrs. E. Hubble as convener. Mrs. Spafford read an invitation from Hollowell St. Church W.M.S. inviting the members of the society to their church on Tuesday afternoon June 6th when they are holding a special missionary gettogether with Mrs. Harris as guest speaker. The invitation was accepted.

Rev. C. W. Neelands was present and discussed with the ladies plans for the circuit celebration of the 25th anniversary of church union on Sunday, June 11th.

Mrs. McMullen voiced her appreciation to the hostess and program committee and also welcomed Mrs. Wilber Jones, a former resident, back to the community.

Mrs. S. Marshall, Christian Stewardship convener, was in charge of the program which consisted of several readings on "Stewardship" by the following ladies, Mrs. F. Scrimshaw, Mrs. E. Hubble, Mrs. N. Hall and Mrs. S. Spafford.

Mrs. W. Bush gave an interesting temperance poem entitled "A Woman's Story"; Mrs. Lee Grills favored with a piano solo and a reading, "The Stranger in Our Midst", was given by Mrs. Ken Jones. Mr. Neelands closed the meeting after which refreshments were served by Mrs. Hubble and assistants.

HOUSE SETS UP

The committee also will study legislation which simplifies and consolidates army pension regulations and legislation providing for the distribution of $2,500,000 of prize money, granted for the capture of enemy vessels in wartime.

No Defence Costs Considered

Defence Minister Claxton said widest possible scope for study would be given in committee. But the question of defence costs could not be dealt with.

In the big debate of the day, George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, criticized "the power the Postmaster General recently invoked against a number of brokerage firms in Toronto, shutting off their mail.

Mr. Drew said suspicion of fraud should be dealt with by law and not left to the "whim of a government official. There should be an amendment to the criminal code if necessary."

M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader agreed the law should be strengthened if necessary. He was against putting more arbitrary power in the hands of officials.

Justice Minister Garson defended the power conferred on the postmaster general under the Post Office Act. That power would be retained, he said, but the government was considering an amendment to the act to provide a "quick" appeal to the courts in such cases.

At the opening of the House, Prime Minister St. Laurent said any federal assistance to flood-ravaged Manitoba will apply to rural as well as the city of Winnipeg.

In the senate Senator T. A. Crerar (L—Manitoba) urged support for the idea of a single unified government for all Freedom-loving nations. He was supporting a motion of Senator W. D. Euler (L-Ontario) calling for a conference of Atlantic pact nations to develop the theme of single government.

Might Restrict Crimes

He said the bill showed a tendency to increase the disciplinary power of the commanding officer. With this he did not agree and suggested that it might be desirable to restrict the number of military crimes to be tried by courts martial (and have others sent to military courts.

O. L. Jones (CCF—Yale) said a school might be set up to train courts martial officers in "the humanities."

John Blackmore (SC—Lethbridge) saw the approach of another war—"an instantaneous war, a total war and a global war." He said the state of the armed forces ought to be considered in thath light and Canada should have adequate civilian defence forces as well as military.

Opposed in Principle

Al, L. Smith (PC — Calgary West) was opposed to courts martial in principle. Courts martial should not deal with cases that could go before civil courts.

Julian Ferguson (PC — Simcoe North) said very few men in the First World War received sentences that they didn't deserve.

It was suggested that the military regulations be made so simple that all servicemen would read them.

If they were half as thick as they were, "they wouldn't read them."

Many men came out of penitentiaries to fight in the war and had benefitted from the "fair sentences" they had received overseas.

It had, to be administered in foreign countries where there was no civil courts.

He assured members that the suggestions they had put forward would be considered.

Many Organizations Suffer

In the postal debate Mr. Drew said not only brokerage firms had been affected by arbitrary orders of the Postmaster General denying use of the mails. There were 1,100 such orders and they affected some branches of the Canadian Legion, some service clubs, athletic clubs, teachers and religious organizations.

These orders were "contrary" to Canada's system of justice under which a person was considered innocent until proven guilty.

Mr. Coldwell said he had no sympathy with persons who attempted to use the mails to defraud and people should be protected from victimization. In recent years considerable power had been put in the hands of officials dealing with individuals and he agreed the law should be strengthened if it was not already strong enough to deal such with such cases as fraud by mail.

Justice Minister Garson said the actions of the Postmaster General were carried out "squarely" under the law. It was wrong to say this provision of the Act should be eliminated.

If the Postmaster General had acted without reasonable proof that the mails were being used to defraud or to communicate obscene matter, he would have been going beyond the powers conferred by Parliament and could have been subject to court action.

U.S. PROPOSES

When a comparatively weak country attempts to provide itself with all the components of modern war—fighters, bombers, armor, infantry and sea power—its defences are spread so thin that no branch is effective.

By contrast the American idea is to set up a super-command under the Atlantic Pact to weld together the armed forces of the 12 members while at the same time looking out for their economic strength and possibly for closer political ties.

The continental countries, for instance, would be expected to go in more heavily for ground forces. Defence experts are reported to have recommended a minimum of 30 divisions—about 450,000 men—as a standing force pegged strongly on France's troops.

Over-All Command

The total, however, probably would include British, Canadian, American troops stationed in Germany.

Britain, some informants say, might be asked to concentrate on jet fighter forces and a strong anti-submarine naval force.

That would leave costly heavy naval vessels and big, high-speed bombers to be provided by the United States.

An over-all command is envisioned. It would consist of deputies appointed by the foreign ministers to meet frequently, even continuously if necessary.

To head the deputies, the United States urges the appointment of a super-diplomat.

There is considerable insistence that he should be a civilian. This stand, reported taken in high places, means that British newspaper speculation concerning Alexander will be ended.

Alexander, it is felt, would give more necessary weight to economic and political matters than would a military man. One civilian under consideration for the job is reported to be W. Averill Harriman, now roving U.S. Ambassador for the Marshall Plan.

Churchill Heights Residents Want New Playground

Residents of Churchill Heights held a meeting last night "to arrive at some means of organizing a playground" for the area.

W. A. Bowley who was in charge of the meeting reports that of the 104 families living in the district were represented. The meeting decided to ask the Parks Board or Recreation Commission for an appropriation to their level the ground or provide equipment. Mr. Bowley told The Intelligencer, that the residents were more interested in having the site graded than in obtaining equipment as "the site is in very poor condition."

The proposed location of the Churchill Heights Playground is bounded by Pine Street, Pine Gardens, Golfdale Avenue and Maplewood Drive.

Mayor Matthews represented the Parks Board at the meeting and explained that "equipment would be provided."

After the meeting Alderman R. J. Potter told the delegation that members of the Parks Board would meet residents on Wednesday afternoon at 3.30 p. m. to decide on a suitable site. Dr. Potter promised to see "what can be done about levelling off" the proposed site if it is decided upon as most suitable.

A total of 50 cases, one of the largest court dockets in months, were listed for hearing in Yorke magistrate's court before magistrate T. Y. Wills. Bowling League Ends Season With Banquet

Frankford—Frankford Bowling League wound up a most successful season of bowling and fellowship in the form of a banquet and dance in the Frankford Community Memorial Hall Friday evening. In all, over 100 bowlers and invited guests sat down to a repast, prepared and served by the W.A. of the United Church.

Immediately after the banquet Chairman Adrian Babcock called on the Greenhorns, league champions to come forward and accept their trophies. These were presented by President Wayne Arbuckle and Secretary Arnold Westlake, Bill McKee, captain of the Greenhorns team thanked the league for the trophies.

The Top Hatters who finished first in the league were presented with trophies on behalf of the Bowl-O-Drome and satin crests on behalf of the league. Mr. Hugh Squires and Gus Scaletta presented the trophies and the president and secretary presented the crests. Captain Ed Tomecek of the Top Hatters thanked the management of the bowling alleys for their presentations, and assistant captain, Mrs. Babcock thanked the league for the crests.

Maude Rankin presented the trophy for the ladies' high average, to Mrs. Walker of the Aristocrats, and Ray Scott presented the men's trophy for high average to Bob Morgan of the Happy Gang.

Won Special Award

It was announced that Maisie Rankin had won the Bradings award for the ladies' high single for the current season in the Bowl-O-Drome. Mr. Hugh Squires explained the award which is made annually by the Brading Company.

Gifts were presented to the president, the secretary on behalf of the league, and to Geo. Lehnes for efforts in organizing the league. The Aristocrats presented gifts to the president and secretary in appreciation of their untiring efforts to maintain harmony and organization within the league throughout the season.

The Top Hatters presented gifts to their captain, Ed Tomecek, and assistant captain, Mrs. Babcock. To add a bit of humor to the presentations, the Aristocrats presented a special trophy to one of the girls of their team for establishing league low single. She graciously accepted the presentation with the same spirit of sportsmanship she had shown all season in the league.

President Gets Bouquet

As a final gift, Mrs. Walker presented the president with a large bouquet. As roses were in short supply at the time, the bouquet consisted of weiners, buns, doughnuts and lollypops on balloon sticks, with celery greens, all tied with a wide red ribbon.

Between presentations, chairman Babcock told a number of humorous yarns, most of which concerned members of the league. A short sing song was also enjoyed, with Marion Free at the piano.

A vote of thanks was moved to the W.A. for a splendid repast. A similar vote of thanks was made to the decoration committee who did a fine job of decorating the hall and banquet room.

Dancing was begun about 9.30 in the main auditorium. For those who did not care to dance, cards and croquinole were enjoyed in the lounge room.

Bank 'Staff Honors Doug Spencer With Fine Remembrance

Tweed — Bill Beatty of the Bank of Montreal staff, Fenelon Falls, spent the weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A.

Bill has been transferred to Peterborough and Doug Spencer, who has been on the staff of the local branch of the Bank of Montreal, here, is replacing him at Fenelon Falls. "Doug" was given a surprise party at his home on North Victoria Street last week, when 31 friends gathered to say farewell. The B. of M. staff presented their departing co-worker with a Parker "21" fountain pen and pencil set, and the local manager, John A. Thompson, made a brief address.

The young people enjoyed the evening playing cards and other games.

Refreshments were served by his mother, assisted by some of the other guests.

K. R. Wilde, of Kingston, replaces Mr. Spencer here this week.

Develop New Devices To Aid in Diagnoses

Edmonton, (CP)—What is your eye doing to your heart? How is your stomach for voltage? Can the oxygen in your blood be measured by color?

Devices in the University of Alberta's physiology department may come up with these answers.

Dr. H. V. Rice, department head, is working on a unique theory that relates heart disease to a flickering light, on the chance that circulation through the eye is related to circulation through the heart, and vice versa.

He also has a device to measure the electricity in the stomach with the idea of diagnosing cancer of the stomach in its early stages.

Dr. Rice also is working on a new colormetric technique for measuring the oxygen in the blood. This, he hopes, will enable doctors to diagnose the condition of "blue babies" in two or three minutes.

Another gadget in the department determines the freshness and fertility of an egg by its fluorescence and reaction to a balanced electro-magnetic field.

THOMASBURG

Thomasburg — Thomasburg United Church was beautified for the annual Mother's Day service on Sunday evening with many beautiful hydrangeas, ferns and cut flowers.

During the service the Rev. Morley Clarke dedicated a lovely new wine-colored breadloom rug which covers the chancel, a gift from Mr and Mrs. Ross Wilson, in loving memory of Mr. Harry Lee, Mrs. Elizabeth Lee, Mr. George Thrasher and Mrs. Nellie Thrasher; the parents, brother, in-law and sister of Mrs. Wilson.

Two babies were also baptized: Neil Henry, little son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Morton and Stella Eilane, the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Carleton.

This special service was largely attended and Mr. Clarke delivered an inspiring message, choosing as his theme "The Home".

The attendance at Thomasburg Sunday School has risen to 91 and on Sunday morning an interesting Mother's Day program was carried out.

The auction sale of farm stock and implements at the farm of Mrs. Mabel Kellar on Wednesday afternoon drew a large crowd and prices were high.

Mr. Ervine Bateman had a boy on Friday, raising a pair of the born which he is having rebuilt.

The senior room public school pupils had holidays for a part of last week owing to the illness of their teacher, Mrs. H. Harris, son.

Mrs. Ella Paget, of Belleville, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. McCann, of Eldorado, were week-end guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Wilson and attended the dedication and Mother's Day service in Thomasburg United Church.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Vance, Sharon and Linda were guests on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Willie Vance and family at Lake Simcoe.

Mrs. Herb Kimmerley of Napanee was a guest over the week-end at the home of her sister, Mrs. Allan Jones and Mr. Jones.

Mrs. Scott has returned to her home in the village after spending some time at Campbellford, and also with Mrs. Archie Jones, previous to her moving to Tweed.

Mrs. Thomas Slush of Tweed has been spending a few days with her daughter, Mrs. Ervine Bateman.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Elliott have returned to their home, after an extended motor trip in the United States.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Jeffrey and family of Napanee were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Adams and boys.

Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Mouck, of Belleville, spent Mother's Day with Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Mouck and Mrs. Prentice.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sills and Mr. Donald Sills of Roslin and Miss Phyllis Sills, of Belleville, also Miss Dorothy Bolton, of Belleville, and Mr. and Mrs. Roy McLaren and Judy of Melrose, were visitors on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Coulter.

Mr. Alfred Davis of Tweed, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Melburne Adams.

Mr. and Mrs. Paddy Herman of Trenton, spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. George Walker.

It was with much surprise and regret that the people of Thomasburg and vicinity learned of the sudden death of Mr. Edward Good on Saturday morning at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Angus Mumby, with whom he had been residing at Moira for the past three and a half years.

Previous to that time, the late Mr. Good was a successful farmer on Highway 37, north of the village. He was a faithful worshipper at Bethel United Church and his kind and genial disposition made him many friends among both young and old.

Many relatives and friends attended the funeral at Moira United Church on Monday afternoon, with interment in Thomasburg cemetery. Sincere sympathy is extended to the bereaved daughters.

WHITE'S DISTRICT

White's District — Mr. and Mrs. B. Westover were Sunday evening callers of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Nicholson.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Jeffery attended Holloway Street United Church service last Sunday evening, and also called on Mr. and Mrs. George Youker, of Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Sibyll were Monday evening callers of Mr. and Mrs. B. Westover.

Mr. and Mrs. Clare Millar, David and Stephen of Belleville, were Tuesday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. Rush.

Conservative Fears About Land Nationalization Rekindled by Socialist View

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, May 16 — (CP)—Reaffirmation of the Socialist view that "the land belongs to the people" has kindled fresh Conservative fears about land nationalization.

Public ownership of the land, once an avowed part of Socialist policy, long has been a major issue dividing Britain's main political parties. Now a statement by George Lindgren, parliamentary secretary to the Ministry of town and country planning, has brought the question up again.

"It may be a great cleavage between you (Conservatives) and the Socialist side," Lindgren told the House of Commons, "but I quite definitely hold the view, and the government holds the view, that the land belongs to the people and is for the collective ownership and use of the people."

Lindgren spoke during an adjournment debate Monday on the proposed new state town of Basildon, Essex. Conservative speakers complained that many of the town's 25,000 persons might lose their property through compulsory purchase.

Lindgren replied that Basildon was an example of "Tory landlordism" at its worst, and asked:

"Who would hold the freeholds in town, individuals or the community as a whole? It will be impossible to create a new town and allow the freeholds to remain."

On Its Way

Conservatives said Lindgren's statement indicated the government favored nationalization of the land. Brig. H. Clarke, who represents Portsmouth west, said nationalization is on its way "in small driblets."

In reply, Lindgren, said the Tories were putting words in his mouth, he said his meaning was that a single community ownership was necessary in creating a new town.

In the 1946 election manifesto, the Labor party stated its belief in nationalization of land and promised to "work towards" it.

This policy subsequently was changed. Land nationalization is not mentioned in Labor's 1950 election program.

Bishop Refers Good-Naturedly To Untrue Report

Washington May 17 — (AP)—Approximately 1,000 church workers bowed in deeply expressed grief for a time Tuesday night after being told—erroneously—of the death of Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam.

The incident was apparently the work of a morbid practical joker.

Rev. Dr. Frederick Reisig, executive director of the Washington Federation of Churches, announced at a meeting of the Federation that he had just been informed of the death of Bishop Oxnam, resident Methodist Bishop in the New York area.

The nearly 1,000 persons present rose in silent prayer, and then sang the "Doxology". The meeting adjourned before they learned of the apparent hoax.

Dr. Reisig explained to reporters later that the "message" had been brought to him by a telephone call from what appeared to be a telegraph blank. He said it was addressed to him and was unsigned.

He could give no explanation of where it might have come from.

Flood Briefs

Winnipeg, May 17. (CP)—The flooding Red River Tuesday gathered another Southern Manitoba town into its expanding web.

It spread to La Salle, 30 miles southwest of Winnipeg, between two arms of a huge river-made lake covering hundreds of square miles of farm land between here and the international border.

Its residents were evacuated to nearby Banford as the flood cut telephone lines and washed out a bridge over the tiny La Salle river. The washout also cut off the only route to Ste. Agathe, 12 miles south.

Petty Officer Harold Bingham of Winnipeg, was in charge of evacuation over the Flooded River Drive district in North Kildonan. The clear-out job went smoothly and a boat patrol was started.

TRC. Bingham's terse final report: "Everything under control —and under water."

H. W. Manning, general chairman of the Manitoba Flood Relief Fund, said Tuesday night that unless a minimum of $10,000,000 is contributed, more than 55,000 victims of the Red River Valley face the most tragic ruination in Canadian history.

Mr. Manning, vice president and general manager of the Great-West Life Assurance Company announced the day's receipts to be $113,457.

"Ten million dollars is the absolute minimum on which the bare essentials for the resumption of home-life when the waters subside.

"Anything less will mean that hundreds of Manitoba families will face a long period—perhaps a lifetime—of misery and squalor.

"We are confident that Canadians will not permit this to happen to fellow-citizens."

Among today's donations were: Imperial Oil—one car for $1,000 from Singer Gracie Fields who said she will return in a month to see what more she can do; From Toronto, $6 from Shirley M. Dyke, 83-year-old widow of the Riel Rebellion; he said the city gave him spending money when he passed there in 1885.

Vatican to Open Secret Archives for World Study

Vatican City, May 17—(Reuters)—The secret archives of the Vatican rich treasure-house of church history, are being completely modernized as a centre of research for the scholars of the world.

After nearly 10 year's work, Vatican authorities report that the labor of overhauling and cataloguing the vast store of ancient documents is now nearing completion. They hope to finish it within the year.

Founded by Pope Paul V in 1611, the archives have been opened to students for the past 60 years.

Only now, however, has the full work of indexing them by modern methods been realized.

The buildings which house the archives in the heart of the Vatican are also being transformed. The "attic" reading-rooms on the third floor of the Belvedere Courtyard have been opened up into large and spacious studies.

Steel linings have been provided to the bookcases and cupboards where the most precious of the documents and books are stored following a double scare from termites during the last two years. An invasion of these pernicious ants was found lodged in the thick Vatican walls within striking distance of the archives.

Modernization of the archives will meet the growing needs of scholars from all over the world who come to Rome to consult the Vatican documents.

Last year, it was estimated that 253 scholars, of various nations and creeds, came to study among the Vatican archives. More than 25,000 documents were consulted and about 13,000 photocopies made.

The archives were designed by Pope Paul to preserve the records of his predecessors and to take important documents from sacred congretions. From the end of the 17th century, they have also contained the correspondence of the Vatican secretariat of state.

The archives provide an inexhaustible mine of information concerning the part played by the church in medieval and modern times in the ecclesiastical and political affairs of nations.

Among the most important are the 8,000 documents of the Castel Sant'-Angelo collection, which was housed in the grim papel fortress at the banks of the Tiber until 1758.

"They provide what is probably the largest collection of ancient church documents in the world.

During the war, the Vatican archivists helped to collect and preserve from destruction precious writing from convents, monasteries and churches throughout Italy. These have now been restored to their original homes.

There remain on the shelves of the Vatican archives several hundred thousand documents and books, placed there over the last 300 years, providing one of the richest sources of historical research material in the world.

FEELING QUITE DIFFERENT

Edmonton, May 17 (CP)—Premier Joseph Smallwood of Newfoundland said Tuesday night in an interview that "if a vote were taken now on whether Newfoundland should get out or stay in Canada, there would be but more than 500 or 600 resident in favor of getting out." The province joined 23 per cent for confederation but the feeling toward union now is "quite different."

FLORAL DISPLAY

Niagara Falls Ont. (CP)— The colorful floral display at Niagara Parks Commission greenhouse is attracting thousands of visitors to Queen Victoria Park. Even during the winter visitors numbered about 3,000 weekly.

GOULAIS RIVER LOWERS

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., May 17—(CP)—Though the muddy flood waters of the Goulais River were subsiding early today, there was still six inches of water at Nicholy's Corner, the district engineer's office of the Department of Highways announced this morning.

At the Glendale Flats, water had subsided below the road level today but the softened, damaged roadbed will support nothing but light traffic while work crews rush repair work.

Light traffic is being allowed through the Kirby's Corner flood and crews are attempting minor repairs.

Wolf Pack Chases Youth Who Flees On Tractor

Owen Sound, May 17—(CP)—A wolf pack chased 17-year-old Robert Eagles Tuesday evening, but he escaped on a tractor. He then returned with his brother, Lorne, aged 15, and a neighbor, Elmer Hutchinson and shot one of his tormentors.

Eagles was harrowing on a farm at Irish Lake, 30 miles south of here Tuesday evening. Two wolves came out of the bush and set aside a clone. Eagles paid little attention. Two more wolves joined them. The pack advanced towards the tractor. Eagles started for home at top speed. Snarling, the pack followed. The harrows caught in a gate and were lost, but Eagles arrived home safely. Then his brother and Hutchinson joined him on the tractor and they returned the half mile to the back of the farm, hoping the wolves would return. One did. Eagles and Hutchinson bagged it.

Flying Schoolroom To Take 55 Pupils On Two-Way Tour

Orono, Me, May 17—(AP)—A flying schoolroom will take 55 Orono high school pupils on a two-day tour of the northeastern United States and Canada next week.

They will leave here Thursday, May 25. Many of the boys and girls earned their own fares by such jobs as snow shovelling and baby sitting.

The first day's itinerary includes a visit to Boston.

Friday, after landing at New York to clear customs, the students will fly to Ottawa via Niagara Falls and will visit the parliament buildings.

Commonwealth Conference Announces Progress in Talks To Check Spread of Redism

Sydney, Australia, May 17 — (Reuters) — The Commonwealth conference today announced "considerable progress" in talks on the plan for economic aid to check the spread of communism in south and southeast Asia.

An official communique issued at the end of today's session disclosed progress on proposals for technical assistance and economic development and for the further activities of the Commonwealth consultative committee.

This committee — the body now meeting here — was set up earlier in the year after the Colombo Conference of Commonwealth Foreign Ministers had adopted the idea of the aid plan.

Tomorrow, experts will discuss the points of agreement reached to day by the committee, and the committee will probably resume its meeting Friday.

Earlier authoritative sources said the conference was near agreement on the Australian proposal that a Commonwealth fund of £3,000,000 ($24,800,000) be set up to provide immediate technical aid for Asiatic countries.

Work Out Plan

The conference committees now are expected to discuss details and work out an operative plan.

Australia proposed that this Commonwealth money pool be devoted mainly to training technicians and scientists from Asiatic countries in Commonwealth countries where advanced training facilities are available.

It was authoritatively reported that since Britain has given way to the Australian proposal to establish the pool, Australia would agree to the British plan for its implementation.

Original opposition to the pool arose because Commonwealth contributions, particularly from Australia, would necessarily have to come out of frozen sterling credits in London.

Australia's credit balance is the highest in history and India also has a substantial sterling balance.

Call off Search For Plane Thought To Have Crashed

London, Ont., May 17—(CP)—Two R.C.A.F. aircraft from Centralia and provincial police searched last night for an aircraft reported to have crashed in Lake Huron at St. Joseph near Grand Bend.

Both said today they had called the hunt off.

George Branchflower of West Lorne said that a plane had been seen flying over fishing nets. Branchflower said he turned away from the plane and on looking back saw there had been a splash out in the lake and the aircraft was no longer in sight.

Aircraft was sent out from Centralia and provincial police along the lake front were warned but no sign of a plane was found.

Must Exercise Care

Australia, it was stated, realized all along that care must be exercised not to upset Britain's financial equilibrium by pressure drawing from these frozen sterling funds.

Aid under the compromise plan was not expected to be confined to Commonwealth countries in southeast Asia.

It was learned that today's talks, contrasting with Tuesday's differences of opinion, were harmonious and cordial.

Some Australian officials on British press up to Tuesday had British press upto Tuesday had shown little interest in the conference.

"It is a pity we had to have gift before we could make headlines," one commented.

JUST A BUG NOW

Thanks to our dog, we are eating the bear today instead of the bear eating us," say Roger Dutrisac, left, and Gerald Houle, who have the pelt, background, of the 400-pound black bear to prove their story. Dutrisac, 18, pressed the trigger of his antique Swiss army rifle when he sighted the bear near Kirkland Lake, Ont. The rifle missed fire. He shot again and the rifle missed fire. The bear, only a few feet away but worried by the dog at his heels, took off with Dutrisac after him, then turned and was shot between the eyes. Houle ran up, the bear tried to rise, and Houle broke the stock of the rifle over the bear's head. — Central Press Canadian.

Question of Aid To Asia Causes Partial Stalemate

Sydney, Australia, May 17 (AP) — The British Commonwealth conference was reported, Tuesday partially stalemated on the question of aid to Asia.

Pakistan and, to a lesser degree, Ceylon, were said to be the only countries sympathetic to an Australian proposal for immediate aid by Commonwealth countries to Asian areas threatens by communism.

Australia was reported as regarding Indonesia and Indochina as chief danger spots. Percy Spender, Australian Minister of External Affairs, was quoted by informed sources as saying only immediate aid would help meet the Red threat.

Britain and most other powers represented at the conference were said to be urging a "go slow" attitude toward immediate help to Asia.

Australia's proposal for immediate aid was reported to have drawn solid support from the leader of Pakistan's delegation, Chaudhry Nazir Ahmad Khan, Minister of Industry.

The leader of the British delegation, Lord MacDonald, denied that his country was following a "go-slow" policy on the aid proposals.

Circles close to the conference said Britain and the countries supporting her were urging that individual commonwealth countries reach bilateral aid arrangements with the Individual Asian States.

Australia, however, was reported sponsoring a plan that all economic and other aid be on a commonwealth basis, financed by a commonwealth pool to which all the conference powers would subscribe.

Judith Coplon to Wed

New York, May 17 — (CP) — Judith Coplon, facing up to 25 years in prison for espionage, said Monday she will be married soon.

It was her troubles, she said, that brought her and her husband-to-be together. The 28-year-old former justice department employee, free on bail while appealing her spy convictions, said the man she will wed "within the next few weeks" is Albert H. Socolow, 29, a New York lawyer and war veteran.

Turkey Loyal To Alliances With West World

Istanbul, Turkey, May 17 (AP) —Turkey's new strong man, Celal Bayar, said Tuesday his country's newly-elected government stands loyal to its alliances and friendships with the western world.

He gave his pledge in an interview after disclosing his five-year-old democrat party had already taken 375 of the 487 grand national assembly seats in Sunday's general election.

With returns still awaited from some provinces, some observers said Inonu's group might have no more than 80 seats when the assembly meets next Monday to elect a new president.

Turkey receives American military aid under the Truman doctrine and economic assistance under the Marshall Plan. Though not a signer of the Atlantic Pact, Turkey also has been frequently mentioned unofficially as seeking membership in the alliance.

The democrats' sweeping victory was attributed to widespread dissatisfaction with high living costs, which have threatened Turkey with economic collapse.

The defeat of Inonu's party included the loss of assembly seats by 12 cabinet ministers.

Not in Marrying Mood

Tosso Del Mar, Spain, May 17 —(AP)—Movie actress Ava Gardner said Monday she has no intention of marrying anyone because "I am not in love with anybody." In what she said was the first interview with anybody since arriving in Spain more than a month ago, Ava said she is not in love with Mario Cabre, Spanish bull fighter, and that "any supposed romantic relations with Frank Sinatra are purely imaginary."

Montreal — (CP) — The beauty of this year's Easter eggs was too great for an unknown thief to resist. A big plate glass window in a Montreal store was broken one night recently and one Easter egg disappeared from the showcase.

Proposes Law To End Exile of Count of Paris

Paris, May 17 — (Reuters) — Deputy Paul Hutin of the National Assembly has proposed a law which would end the exile of the Count of Paris, head of the former French Royal house. Hutin is a member of the Mouvement Republicain Populaire.

The bill, if passed by the Assembly, would suppress a law of 1886 stating that "heads of former reigning families and their principal heirs cannot reside in France."

Henri D'Orleans, 42-year-old Count of Paris, father of nine children, and Foreign Legionnaire for four months under the name Henri Dorlian, now spends his time between Portugal and Morocco. He has been in France only twice in the last 25 years.

In 1926, he will succeeded his uncle, the Duke of Orleans, as head of the Royal House he had in 1926, the French government turned down his offer to join the French Army in 1939 but accepted him in the Foreign Legion in May, 1940.

Squadron Leader Hill Graduated M.D.

Halifax, May 17 (CP)— George U. Hill, one of Canada's greatest air aces in the Second World War, walked down the steps of Dalhousie University Tuesday with a degree in medicine under his arm.

Dr. Hill, formerly a Squadron Leader in the RCAF, already is a specialist in doing things the hard way. He won the Distinguished Flying Cross three times in the course of knocking down 16 enemy aircraft over Britain, France, North Africa, Malta, Sicily and Germany.

He survived nearly six years of combat and 12 months as a prisoner during which he lost 70 pounds and picked up a head of grey hair at the age of 25.

Married with three children, he turned down a permanent career in the air force after the war and went back to college. Now he will go to Fredericton Junction, N.B., and hang out his shingle as a family doctor.

Memorial Dedicated To Cavalry Leader

Mottistone, Isle of Wight, May 17 (CP)—The Bishop of Portsmouth Tue. dedicated a memorial to the late Lord Mottistone, leader of the Canadian Cavalry Brigade in the First World War.

"An intrepid horseman, valiant in war, he led the Canadian cavalry to final triumph in a momentous battle."

Lord Mottistone died in November, 1947. He took command of the cavalry brigade early in the First World War and led the Canadians at Festubert, Equancourt, Bayencourt and the celebrated battle of Moreuil Wood in 1918.

DISASTROUS WIND

Universal Plan Old-Age Benefits Is Proposed

Montebello, Que., May 17 — (CP)—A universal plan of old-age benefits payable in the same amount to all Canadians, to be financed in full on a "pay-as-you-go" basis by contributions imposed on as broad a scale as possible, is advocated by the Canadian Life Insurance Officers Association.

Harry L. Guy, in his presidential address to the Association's annual meeting today, said such a plan has already been recommended to the special parliamentary committee on old age security. "Because of the heavy added burden such a plan will place on the country," he added, "it is suggested that the benefits should probably commence at age 70 and should be fixed at a modest level, which will not impose an undue financial strain on the Canadian economy, or dull the personal incentive to work and save."

DOG 'NOT GUILTY' COURT FINDING

Halifax, May 17 — (CP) — Magistrate R. E. Inglis looked into the pleading brown eyes and said "Not guilty."

A white collie dog, whose owner was charged with failing to chain a fierce animal, had jumped onto the witness chair and, tail thumping, gazed wistfully at the Magistrate.

It was alleged the collie killed a cat, but the magistrate ruled that chasing cats is a dog's business.

Border-Crossing Permits for Cars Valid for Year

Ottawa, May 17 (CP) — Government officials confirmed Tuesday that border-crossing permits for automobiles of Canadian travellers to the United States will be valid for a one-year period starting May 31, 1951.

The change, second to be made since the Revenue Department introduced the controversial form E-60 about two months ago, was announced Monday by Edgar Wackett, collector of customs at Windsor.

One official in Ottawa said form E-60 was being retained but was being issued on a yearly instead of twice-yearly basis. No reason was given for the change.

When first introduced to go into effect March 22, the permits were to have been made out each time a traveller drobe into the U.S. Special arrangements were made for commuters.

Following opposition to the ruling at border points, the permits made valid for a six-month period. Now they have been extended to a yearly basis.

Opposition to the permits in their original form was based on the claim that they could cause congestion at border-crossing points. Because of the time taken to fill them out. The permits show the licence number of the vehicle, its serial number and lists all accessories. One copy is retained by the customs department.

Warns Jokesters Not to be Funny With Guards

Portland, Me., May 17 —(AP) — The Portland manager of Brink's Incorporated, money transportation firm, warned jokesters today not to fool with his armored truck guards.

Manager Linwood D. Mann said "People have been coming up behind my men in banks and other places and sticking their fingers into their backs, just for a laugh."

"I ordered my men today to turn around and let them have it," Mann added. "Not with guns, but in any other way they see fit."

The local official of the armored truck service which has been held up at Thompsonville, Conn., and Boston, where $1,000,000 in cash was taken, said "Things are too tense" for the guards to take any chances with their lives."

Pooches in Pound Slumber on While Thieves Get $100

Twp months ago burglars broke into the pound and got $100 out of a desk. The pound bought a safe.

Last weekend burglars again broke in. They smashed the safe and took $150.

Neither time did any of the impounded pooches howl an alarm.

Soviet Says Iran Uses US Experts To Get Surveys

Moscow, May 17 — (AP) — The Soviet Union has accused Iran of using American experts to make aerial surveys of "military significance" along the Russian-Iranian border.

The use of such foreign experts, said a Russian note delivered to the Tehran government, "can create a danger to the frontiers of the U. S. S. R." Such action, Russia added, is "incompatible with good neighborly relations" between Iran and Russia.

The note, made public Monday night, called on Iran's government to "eliminate the abnormal position that has been created."

The Russian communication said the Soviets did not object to Iranians developing the northern border areas, but that they did not want Americans doing it. The note made clear that the Russians believe military intelligence operations are included in the work done by these Americans.

BANS SEGREGATION

Washington, May 17 —(AP) — The C.I.O. Monday banned all Negro-white segregation in the southern United States or elsewhere on properties in the U.S. owned or leased by the union. The order applies to offices drinking fountains, washrooms, meeting places and other facilities.

Warm weather of the last few days has brought on blooms apace and the fruit district is expected to be at the height of its glory by the weekend.

Officials of the Highways Department and Provincial Police anticipate their annual headache as the blossom pilgrimage brings thousands to the Niagara area. Extra officers will be assigned to the area to handle traffic.

Has Fighting Chance

They said the critically burned hydro worker was improving steadily and no longer required blood transfusions and oxygen.

In the seven days from Monday of last week to last night he received the equivalent of 164 pints of blood.

U.S. Senate Will Consider Giving Aid to Manitoba

Washington, May 17 — (CP)— A resolution calling on President Truman to extend immediate aid to flood-harried Manitoba was introduced in the Senate Tuesday by Republican Senator Kenneth Wherry of Nebraska.

But Democratic leader Scott Lucas of Illinois objected to immediate consideration of the resolution on the grounds it was not the proper way to proceed. Lucas said Canada is in no financial distress.

The resolution is likely to be discussed again.

It calls on the president to direct government agencies "to make available immediately the fullest aid consistent with law" to aid Manitoba and especially the city of Winnipeg.

The resolution said the physical, financial and moral support of the U. S. should be extended to the Canadian people, in their hour of need. Such support, the resolution said, would be "a real and fitting expression of the historic friendship and kinship of the peoples of the United States and of Canada."

Support for the resolution also came from Senators Homer Ferguson (Rep. Mich.), Edward Thye (Rep. Minn.) and Alexander Wiley (Rep. Wis.)

Transportation In U.S. Almost Back to Normal

Chicago, May 17 — (AP) — Railroad transportation in the United States was almost back to normal today after the short but costly locomotive firemen's strike against five big carriers.

The six-day walkout — settled Tuesday — took a solid wallop at business and labor. The loss in business and wages was estimated up to $50,000,000.

Only about 18,000 firemen struck but their walkout made idle about 200,000 other workers — mostly rail employees.

All Pennsylvania freight and passenger service was approaching full normal schedules and all but 5,000 furloughed workers were back at their jobs. The P.R.R. estimated its freight and passenger losses at $15,000,000 and the employees lost $6,000,000 in wages.

A second line, the New York Central, estimated its freight and passenger losses at $12,000,000 and employees' wage loss at from $2,000,000 to $3,000,000.

No figures were given on losses by the other affected lines — the Santa Fe, the Southern Railway and parts of the Union Pacific. However, the cost of the walkout, including losses in business and wages, was estimated to hit around $50,000,000.

SISTER

The Egyptian Royal Council decreed, also, the impounding of the wealth of the Queen Mother, who has been in San Francisco several months for medical treatment.

Another sister of Farouk, Princess Faika, who recently returned to San Francisco from a Hawaiian honeymoon, was ordered to return to Egypt. She married a Moslem commoner.

Reaction by Princess Fathia to all of those edicts was prompt and womanly emphatic. She said she had expected to lose her title after she and Ghali were married—with the Queen's approval —in a civil ceremony April 28.

The slender brunette said she prefers to be called Mrs. Riad Ghali, and added:

But, King Farouk already has taken steps to have Ghali returned to Egypt. The United States immigration office has given the Egyptian's secretary until May 25 to prepare to leave the United States.

"That gives me nine days," Ghali commented, optimistically, "and a lot can happen in nine days. They're trying to separate us, of course, but I will never voluntarily leave my bride."

The newlyweds have been living in separate suites in the Fairmont Hotel, hoping for the King's consent to a Moslem wedding.

PICTON

Man Suffers Heart Attack In Car Which Plunges Into Picton Bay Near Yacht Club

Picton—Benson Moore, Wood-ville farmer, and auctioneer's clerk for auctioneer Carson Scott, met a sudden death on Tuesday afternoon shortly after 2 o'clock. Mr. Moore had driven up to the yacht club dock, got out of his car and stood a while looking at the activity on the bay. Getting back in his car he suffered a heart seizure just as he started the car and the car with one door still open, shot forward into the bay, which is 18 feet deep at this point. Mrs. Dave Collier, wife of Mr. Steward at the yacht club was a witness of what happened. The body soon appeared on the surface of the water, where a young fisherman in a boat near the spot seized it. George Pulow in his boat went to the assistance of Mr. Fisherman and the body was brought to the yacht club dock. Here artificial respiration was applied by Dr. S. W. D. Hart and Mrs. George Pulow, Reg. N., but there was no water in Mr. Moore's lungs.

The deceased was in his seventy-eighth year and is survived by his wife and two sons Curran Moore of the Ridge Road and Reginald Moore of Elmbrook. Fraternally he was a member of the I.O.O.F. and a former member of the trustee board. Funeral arrangements are pending.

HARSH NECESSITY

London, May 17 (AP) — Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer, told the House of Commons Tuesday night he could think of good reasons for repealing every tax law on the books. "Nobody likes taxes," he said during a debate on the budget, "they're a harsh necessity of civilization, that's all."

Deputy Fire Marshal Reluctant To Follow Orders

Bronte, May 17 — (CP) — Fire Chief Freeman Bray, who is also Deputy Fire Marshal with jurisdiction in Trafalgar township, is reluctant to follow orders of the township council that fire traps must be cleaned up and evictions forced in cases of extreme hazard.

After the council issued its order Tuesday in this town 10 miles east of Hamilton, Chief Bray said: "I know the situation just as well as anybody, but what can you do? There are places like that in all towns — — — These people are my neighbors."

Council insisted on an inspection and clean-up through the Ontario Fire Marshal's office that a "shack town" existed on the town's outskirts. One tattered frame shack houses two families, totalling four adults and six children. Police Chief Fred Oliver said that there are 24 such "fire traps" in Trafalgar township, converted to living quarters from abandoned barns, chicken coops and berry pickers' huts.

Fire Chief Bray, explaining his reluctance, said "the last time I tried to have the place cleaned up my family was threatened."

Bexhill Parents Form Association

Bexhill, Sussex, England, May 17—(CP) — Mrs. F. M. Barrie, whose daughter lives in Calgary, is organizing an association of Bexhill Parents whose daughters married Canadians.

The Calgary Highlanders were stationed in Bexhill during the war and many of them married local girls.

Mrs. Barrie's plan has been endorsed by the southern executive of the United States and Canadian Brides-Parents Association.

"We aim at keeping the parents together," said Mrs. Barrie. "Then when the dollar question is a bit easier, we might be able to get the steamship companies to take us to visit Canada at a cheap rate."

Her own daughter is Mrs. Allan Allison of 421 23rd Avenue N.E., Calgary, who went to Canada in 1945 when her husband was severely wounded after 2½ years' service with the R.A.F.

Sudbury Council Reverses Decision

Sudbury, May 17—(CP)—City council Tuesday night reversed an earlier decision proclaiming next Monday, May 22, the Victoria Day holiday here. On pleas of merchants they would lose business through the long weekend, the official proclamation was rescinded and a new one issued setting the holiday for May 24, Wednesday.

Councillors of nearby McKim township, unaware of the Sudbury council action, Monday night decided to hold the holiday on Monday. McKim was followed Sudbury's earlier action in this step and reconsideration is likely.

Sudbury and the adjacent townships were among the few communities which shifted the Victoria, Day holiday to a Monday last year. Banks, schools and government offices were the main beneficiaries, as they observed both the municipal and the national dates.

Kingsridge

By Alice Ross Colver

Was he meant to be awed? He was not awed. His confidence rose higher with each moment. This was where he belonged, in a place like this. This was what he had dreamed of and desired and struggled toward over endless years. The past now was forgotten, shaken off like an old cloak.

That it was not entirely forgotten, however, not entirely shaken off, was brought home to him over the dessert. Until then the conversation had been kept to safe generalities, with everyone extremely guarded, extremely-polite. But over the after-dinner coffee Steven leaned forward from his end of the table and introduced a personal note.

"I've been thinking Gerrold," he said, "of a way in which I might help you make some kind of figure for yourself. And if successful to me the best way was to build on what you have to offer. Now you know planes and you know flying and flying hazards. Wouldn't research in that department hold some interest for you?"

Under the table Susan's hand caught his and gave it a mighty squeeze. I told you so. He answered gratefully.

"If by any chance, you mean test pilotage when you say research, no. I'm just learning to live. And I like it, thank you."

The Judge disclaimed the plan with a gesture. "That wasn't what was in my mind at all. I meant laboratory work, of a sort. The study of bodily stresses and strains. Proper clothing for various altitudes. Things like that." He sat back. "Really I can hardly say. It's out of my field. But experiments are going on. Conditions are created on the ground in vast tunnels identical with conditions to be found in the air. I thought you might fit in there somehow."

"I happen to know the top man engaged in such research," the Judge continued, "I'd be glad to give you a letter. A recommendation. In fact, I've already talked with him about you on long distance." He paused. "His work is located, necessarily in Texas."

Gerry was conscious of them all as they waited for his answer. On Susan's shocked stiffening beside him. Of the Judge, calm but alert. Of Elizabeth's looking down at the table, pushing with a teaspoon a little spilled salt into a pile beside her plate. Of Frank Park, his heavy countenance rigid, and of Audrey intent breathless opposite him. Susan had been wrong. This was no help. This was a conspiracy. Well, meet fire with fire, threat with threat. His answer would come, was completely cool, completely comprehending.

He said, his mocking smile dancing on his lips and in his bright brown eyes, "That's very thoughtful. Remarkably thoughtful. But somehow I prefer not to go so far away from the New York area. I have an idea," his glance moved to Susan's, "I'm prone next to him and stayed there, "that the opportunities here are much greater."

A little grunt escaped from Frank. Elizabeth made a sharp move that sent her teaspoon spinning to the floor, while Audrey stared unblinkingly.

The Judge, not a muscle of whose face changed, started to speak but Elizabeth's words came first.

"And do you expect us to continue to have room for you when you flatly refuse . . ."

"Oh Elizabeth!"

Gerry did not hear the Judge's intervention for already his tenser had broken its short leash. He stood up scorching them all with the heat of his hatred.

"I expect nothing! Life has not taught me to expect anything. Especially from you. What it has taught me however is to take. To wrest from it what I want. And that, Judge, Gerrold is the rest of you—is what I intend to do!"

There was a silence. Then Susan, with her eyes dark in the pallor of her face, stood up under to shoulder beside him. Slowly her look went around the table, deliberately repudiating them all one by one.

"I think," she said, her voice clear, "if you'll excuse us, it's time we started for the movies. Donald, are you ready?"

January, Donald outside in the garage at Kings Ridge stowing Susan's and his suitcase in the car, and Susan in the hall saying goodby to her family before Don drove her back to school 60 his own way to college. They were all there. Audrey, with dark circles under her eyes from sleeplessness and tears, smoldering in silence; Elizabeth, tightlipped; and Steven watchful. Only Susan was herself, cool and remote and completely poised as she moved from one to another dutifully presenting her cheek for a farewell kiss.

"Goodby, Frank, Goodby, Nanna. Goodby, Audrey."

"Susan!" The duty broke from her mother's throat. All very well for Elizabeth to say not to worry. But Susan, her child, knew enough that he wouldn't dare, not would Susan, to attempt reckless or ill-advised. She knew Susan would dare anything. So what was it she was planning? Hoping? Planning? Not once had she mention his name since that dreadful dinner, and the time for uneasy speculation had passed. Audrey must know.

"Yes?"

"What about Gerry?"

Susan's violet-blue eyes gazed with perfect calm back into her mother's face. She looked like an an angel and she sounded like one as she answered sweetly. "Lets not discuss him, please. You're not interested."

"I am. Is he. . . . Are you . . ." Her fingers held Susan's wrist. Susan looked down at them, and then with quiet firmness loosened them and stood free.

"This is the thing in a nutshell," she said. "You see him one way. I see him another. And neither of us ever will change. So let's not argue. It can only get us into a broil." She moved to the door, "goodby Judge."

But he did not stoop to kiss her as she had expected. He stood straight and tall, and his voice—his "legal" voice, as she used to call it when she was little—brought her to unexpected attention.

"You don't play fair, Susan."

"I don't play fair!"

"No. I see therefore admiration for Gerry. I feel a blood tie, also. I was earnest in wanting to help him. If he had proved himself out there in Texas . . ."

She interrupted. "But why wasn't out there? Why not here?" She smiled proudly and shook her head, "It couldn't. That's all. To us, it smelled. We'd better skip it." And nodding she went out. A moment later they heard the car roar down the driveway. When the sound had died Frank spoke.

"She has us all by the nose. It's ridiculous."

Elizabeth offering meagre comfort, said, said sharply "There's nothing to worry about, I tell you. They've got to have money. Susan knows that's as well as I do."

"Well, Gerry knows, then. He hasn't had too much."

"He's had so little he's learned to get along without it. And he wouldn't mind making Susan do the same thing." Audrey pressed her hands together and walked away from them, to mother. Elizabeth's eyes followed her, not in satisfaction this time, but in consternation. There was really nothing much worse than the agonies of suspense and mistrust your children could put you through.

Steven said nothing at all. He had hardly heard them. "It smelled. To us it smelled." That really wasn't fair, not wholly. But Susan would never believe it, and he couldn't explain.

In the car Susan said to Donald "I want to stop and speak to Gerry a minute, Don."

"Sure."

He waited outside while Susan ran up to Gerry's room. She came into it eagerly, full of love and high confidence, and wanting to go over once more the plans they had made. He would buy civilian clothes right away, wouldn't he? Good ones. Nice ones. Susan had to pay a lot for them. They would help she was sure. And he would keep on answering ads as he had promised? And going in for interviews And he mustn't forget Jim was going to introduce him to the proper person at I.M.B. and what else? Oh, all of it! He got stuck, perhaps Alicia would have a suggestion. Or Sir Francis.

"And," she concluded, standing with both of her hands in his, "I'll call you at least once a week to find out how things are going. Friday night, probably. Or anyway, Saturday. Because if everything fails here, I want to know. Then I'll ask Dr. Morgan what he can do. I'll tell him about you the minute I get back, of course. But I won't actually ask until . . ." She surveyed him anxiously, "you'd rather it was that way, wouldn't you? You'd rather see what you can do first yourself?"

"Much rather." He spoke a trifle wryly for he did not like the idea of Susan's headmaster getting mixed up in his affairs. In spite of what she had told him, he had no affection for headmasters.

Suddenly her briskness left her. "I don't like leaving you," she said, her eyes darkening. "I don't like leaving you at all. And that's not saying it very well."

"I know."

"Do you?" He felt her hands tighten. Then with a lovely motion of yielding, she came into his arms and stood, her body vibrant against his, her breath warm on his cheek, her whisper broken and childish. "Oh, darling! Oh Gerry, I love you so. I want you so. How can I live! How may I live!"

The tout of Donald's horn outside brought her back to herself. He watched her pull herself together, smile faintly and turn from him. Her dignity, her grace, her high proud spirit, now so zealous on his behalf, but most of all her passion, as tumultuous and as pure as a mountain stream. It did strange things to him, and after she was gone he stood where she had left him, his dark face showing the conflict within himself, the straining both toward and away from the high goal he had set. For, with her, he lost some of his strength and without her he lost some of his purpose.

But he would hold to his resolve. With her by his side, he would crash into the Kings' select circle and force a welcome from them. He straightened, his face clearing. Yes, by heaven! That was what he would do.

Noted Pastor of India Attracts Large Audiences at Grace Chapel

Large congregations attended the special services held in Grace Chapel from Saturday evening to Monday evening, to hear the Rev. John Vasu, noted pastor of Madras, India. Having a fluent command of the English language and an amazing knowledge of the scriptures, Mr. Vasu held his audiences enthralled as he preached the Gospel and told of his conversion to Christianity.

"The greatest thing I have found in Christianity is a living personality, who can respond to the call of the living soul," Mr. Vasu told his hearers on Sunday evening. "I used to cry to my heathen gods, but none could respond to my cry."

Mr. Vasu told how he was brought up in a strict Hindu family and how he, as the first born performed the duties of priest of the home. He learned the Hindu ritual of worship and the special chant to Govinda, his god.

Parents Morally Good

"My parents were morally excellent and I was brought up morally good," said Mr. Vasu. "I used to walk for miles to worship the heathen gods and to look on the faces of the images. Yet all this worship could not satisfy my innermost soul.

"Moreover, morality is not spirituality. In spite of morals there is a craving for something else. I had no peace, no joy, no hope. There was no response to my prayers from my heathen gods."

Mr. Vasu said that he received his early education in a Hindu school and then entered a Christian institution for a higher education. Here he heard of the life of Christ and he had an opportunity to read the Bible.

"When I read of the life of Christ I was irresistibly drawn to Him," said Mr. Vasu. "I could not find anything in any other book that had the words of life. I thank God that I came into contact with the Living Word. The Bible is a wonderful mine of truth. It was a speaking book to me. It was a live wire.

Outstanding Figure

"Christ is the outstanding figure of all other leaders of the world. The more I read about Him the more I loved Him. No one can read about Jesus Christ without being convicted of sin. In May 1924, I asked the Lord Jesus to save me. I said 'Dear Lord, here I am a sinner; please save me.'

"He does not need intellectual and fluent prayers but a broken and contrite heart. I felt that something had captured my mind and the joy of salvation began to flood into my heart. I am a Christian today because of the living experience that day. It is not an intellectual experience or a theological experience, but it is a personal experience.

"The moment my father heard I was a Christian I was turned away and could not depend on any help for education or sustenance. I was, in it were, an orphan. But God graciously provided for me every need and I had the joy some years later to see my father, mother and three sisters become Christians.

Thanked God for Missionaries

"I thank God for every missionary you have sent to India, I have come thousands of miles to thank you for all you have given us. I am standing here as a direct result of the work of missionaries, a living monument to the saving grace of Jesus Christ".

Mr. Vasu said that a real Holy Ghost revival was needed in the world today, not something manufactured by man but a shaking of the power of God. Evangelism is the spiritual cord of the Christian Church, he pointed out.

Rev. Laurie Price was in charge of the services with Rev. Hope Smith directing the music. Special Mother's Day hymns were sung by Mr. and Mrs. C. Frederick and Rev. Hope Smith. Mr. B. Chumbley was the soloist on Monday night. A special feature on each service was the singing of Rev. John Vasu in his native tongue, together with his tambourine accompaniment.

London Letter: Oldest Dutch Church in World To be Rebuilt With Juliana Laying the Foundation Stone

By WILLIAM ROSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, May 17 (CP)— The oldest Dutch church in the world is to be rebuilt, and Queen Juliana of The Netherlands will lay its new foundation stone.

But she has to come to London to do it.

Austin Friars, as it was known, was built during the early 14th century near Threadneedle Street and what now is the Bank of England. It was destroyed during the war.

Only a few shattered gravestones, parts of one of the oldest, prettiest and more remarkable of London's churches, the land-mine that fell near Threadneedle Street during the 1940 blitz pulverized the entire edifice and its notable collection of tombs.

Permission has been granted for reconstruction — but this time sliced from Dutch limes instead of the former structure's late Gothic style. And the cost, as estimated, £100,000 ($310,000) will be borne by the income from surrounding office and office block owned by the church.

Austin Friars' name is the cockney rendition of Augustine Friars," a religious order which had a priority here in the middle ages. The destroyed church was its chapel.

Queen Juliana, making a state visit to Britain late this year, may combine the stone-laying with such occasion. An alternative is to have it July 23 —400 years later to the day that Edward, VI assigned Austin Friars by Royal Charter as a place of worship for Protestant exiles from France and the Low Countries.

Every Church Damaged

In time the church became an exclusively Dutch preserve, antedating by many years the existing religious monuments of Holland.

Austin Friars thus will become the eighth of London's 46 churches to begin reconstruction or renovation.

Every church in the square-mile city was either damaged or destroyed by the blitz, which left lasting scars in that essentially business area.

The quadry of ecclesiastical and lay authorities responsible for authorizing or undertaking reconstruction is that the 46 churches share hardly enough parishioners for half a dozen reasonably-sized parishes.

Rev. Michael M. Hodgins, secretary of the London diocesan fund said:

"Suggestions will soon be made about the future of some of the churches where there is no resident population. They are on very valuable sites, and one of the problems is that there are 46 parishes in the city, with a population barely enough for one."

Hence, while all merit reconstruction on architectural, historical or sentimental grounds, not all do by virtue of their functions as churches.

The Bishop of London has advanced a plan to reduce his diocese's parishes from 46 to 15 — still too many, it is suggested. Only the more badly damaged of the remainder would be demolished, the rest being restored for noon-day services, ministering to the city's daytime population.

First Literature Found Inscribed On Clay Tablets

Philadelphia (CP)—The ancient land of Mesopotamia that is now Iraq has given us new secrets of man's growing pains 4,000 years ago or more.

The evidence rests on inscribed clay tablets brown out while old testament prophets were yet foretelling the coming of a messiah.

It was brought to light after months of digging and the output of more than $50,000, by a joint archaeological expedition from the University of Pennsylvania Museum and the University of Chicago's Oriental Institute. The expedition was in the field from last November to March.

The full story of these rare findings is not yet known, for the task of translating such texts is measured and minute, indeed.

But enough stands revealed, archaeologists say, to establish that these tablets—part of some 750 clay inscriptions in all which were found in the old city of Nippur are the world's oldest known literature.

Nippur, which lies about 100 miles south of Baghdad, was important as the religious and cultural centre of Sumer, non-semitic nation which flourished before the Babylonians and then the Assyrians took over.

It was the Sumerians who founded the first civilization to arise in Mesopotamia in the fourth millenium B.C.

Many of the tablets exhumed at Nippur were from the private "libraries" of the scribes—an early guild of intellectuals working within the temple or under the patronage of affluent merchants. Some of the tablets were used for teaching or for reference. Others recorded exercises in arithmetic, touched upon legal affairs, or recorded the development of vocabulary.

Dr. Donald E. McCown, of the Oriental Institute, field director of the expedition, who has just returned to the United States, said the oldest known invitation to learning we have is embodied in one of these literary tablets. Here the scribe sets forth the advantages of his profession—to others as well as to himself.

"Here, too," Dr. McCown said, "we have the most unusual opportunity of observing the spiritual side of man. Mercy, good-will, fellowship were burgeoning along with ingenuity in the mere mechanics of daily existence."

"We still have much to find out, but already we can tell that the Sumerian had a well developed mortal sense, for his time. The tablets show that he was moving gradually toward a higher concept of society, of the administration of law, of individual responsibility.

"One tablet, for instance, records a hymn to the goddess Nanshe, showing her as the oldest known goddess of justice interested in the social and moral welfare of human beings. Nanshe was a 'divine' symbol of translation—from the old concept that man made for humiliate service to the gods to a newer idea that the gods were interested in the welfare of man."

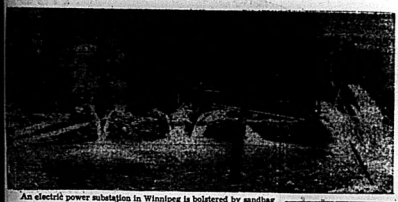
POLITICAL TRUCE



The Nova Scotia Legislature session prorogued with the three party leaders presenting this happy tableau. Premier Angus Macdonald, centre, wears a big grin as he gives his right hand to Robert Stanfield, Progressive Conservative leader, and his left to Russell Cunningham, C.C.F. leader. The genial three-way handshake was in some contrast to spirited debates during the session. — (CP Photo.)

RED RIVER FLOOD

Framed against a cloudy sky, the still figure of a nun is seen beside the earthen dike surrounding St.-Boniface sanatorium. Sister Blais of the Order of Grey Nuns of Montreal was one of those who stayed behind after patients were removed from the hospital as surging waters of the Red River inundated the district. The building now stands on a tiny island. — (CP Photo.)

WINNIPEG FLOOD WATERS TORISE ANOTHER FOOT HIGHER

An electric power substation in Winnipeg is bolstered by sandbag dykes in an effort to keep power flowing in the city. The water supply through the dykes is handled by emergency pumps that must keep going in the unceasing battle against the water. Another foot rise in the floods is expected which would flood 100 more city blocks. — Central Press Canadian.

Games of Chance Criticized by Bishop Lyons

Kingston, May 17 (CP)—Most Rev. John Lyons, Archbishop of the Anglican Diocese of Ontario, said Tuesday that bingo and other games of chance should have no place in raising church finances.

In his charge to the 5th annual diocese meeting, Archbishop Lyons also said the traditional observance of Sunday in Ontario is threatened by commercialized interests.

"The principle of voluntary and systematic giving has the support of Holy scripture. Its experience it has won the approbation of the faithful, and is to be commended to our clergy and congregations as the most excellent way. . ."

Works Around World On One-Pound Bet

Durban, South Africa — (CP) — Jack Murray, Irish-born ex-naval officer, is working his way round the world on a bet. And by working he means working. He's no shirker.

The bet is that he gets around the world in four years and shows a profit of £1,000 ($3,100) at the end of it.

So far he has been in the United has been going 17 months and already has £400 salted away in a London Bank.

The bet—for stakes of only £1 —originated in Wahganui in the North Island of New Zealand.

The countries which Jack Murray must visit under the terms of the bet are: North and South America, Britain, any five countries in Europe, India, China, South Africa, the Rhodesias and Egypt.

So far he has been in the United States (where, he says, you can get a job anywhere). Canada ("they take you at face value and give you a chance to prove yourself), England (the loveliest country in the world and the most peaceful), his native Ireland, including Cork, his birthplace, and France and Italy. South Africa has been the toughest place so far in which to get a job.

Offers Canadians Jobs in Ethiopia

Ottawa — (CP) — A chance to travel, earn $3,600 a year tax-free, and get away from cold winters for three years, is what Frank Patten, Ottawa collegiate board's business administrator, is offering 14 Canadian school teachers.

The jobs are in and around the city of Addis Ababa in Ethiopia and the employer is Emperor Haile Selassie, leader of 15,000,-000 Ethiopian people.

Perhaps it doesn't sound interesting to the majority of Canadians to whom Ethiopia is a mere blot of undeveloped life in Africa, but more than 50 have already applied for the job.

Now it's the task of Mr. Patten, deputy director general of education in Ethiopia to choose his staff. Mr. Patten was selected by the Canadian government a year ago for the Ethiopian post and is on two years' leave-of-absence from his collegiate job.

It's not an exotic life in a strange land of enchantment that Mr. Patten is offering, but a hard teaching job among native children in a climate where the temperature reaches 120 degrees in the sun.

For the most part, Ethiopians are poor—the $3,600 the teachers earn far surpasses the average Ethiopian's earnings — and the standard of living, for natives, by Canadian standard, is low.

It's a land where nobles still are able to exercise their feudal rights, a land of 20 different languages and many religious sects. All this Selassie has tried to unify —and into a democracy.

His first step, says Mr. Patten, is a general education program for youth. Already there are 70 Canadians teaching throughout Ethiopia and Mr. Patten believes the best run school in the country is conducted by a group of Jesuit priests from Montreal, headed by Rev. Dr. Lucien Matte.

Living conditions for the teachers are fine. Mr. Patten and his wife and two children live in a frame house with two bedrooms, running water, electricity, modern kitchen and bathroom.

AND LITTLE SUET

Two of the biggest, hairyest members of the Pachyderm Beef Trust will be on exhibition in Memorial Arena Gems Friday night. Yukon Eric, he of the community chest will do battle with one Ski-Hi Lee, scion of a noble hillbilly family of the Ozarks, and whose idea of a good workout must this side of the Tennessee Mountains, is the tympanic trio of thumps the referee plays on the canvas when Ozark is on top of the heap.

* * *

Yukon Eric who enters the ring plus dungarees and lumberjack boots boasts a torso that Jumbo the Elephant would envy. The massive tank-chested cheechako who used to wrestle all night in his native Yukon, and the nights there are six months long, 'tis said, is said to bear as much love for the towering Lee as a typical southerner does for a damn Yankee. When but six months old, Yukon used to swim the icy waters of the Arctic and bump icebergs off shore with his chest.

Nearly 600 pounds of man-meat will go into action when the pair clashes, in the main ball session. And there'll be hashing in heaven should one or the other go berserk, which is altogether likely considering the tender feelings one holds for his beefiest brother.

* * *

Earl "Moose" McCready is back again and mingles with one Warren Bockwinkle, one of the rugged villainous type who is well-known to the faithful here. Should be a hefty set-to. In the opener, Micky Gold, a newcomer to Belleville entertains roughie toughie Joe Christie in what should be a thriller of a bout. The first fall begins at nine o'clock instead of 8.45 as heretofore.

DOING QUITE WELL, THANK YOU

The Belleville entry in the District Baseball League is beginning to round into some sort of shape and the prospects are brightening as the days wanin, Coach Speedy St. Louis said today. "The boys are turning out in good numbers with over 30 at every practice session," he said. "We should have a fairly good team, if everything works out right, and I'm inclined to think it will. The boys are showing lots of pep, and willingness to give all they've got. And that's the kind of spirit I like to see in any baseball squad."

The Belleville team is holding a practice at Exhibition Grounds this evening starting at six o'clock. All players are requested to be on hand.

WITH THE LEATHER-PUSHERS

The Hinton-Kelly-whatsisname-pardon Perlton, sports combine of the Trenton BCAU Athletic Station report that everything is hunkey-dory insofar as the big boxing show slated for May 22 at the station is concerned. The main bout between Cpl. Vic Ottawa and Don Miller of Picton is attracting a lot of attention for the fans as is the semi-final between Gunner Bobby Smith, Picton, tangles with Jimmy Wise of Brockville in the five-round preliminary, while another bout that is catching the eyes of the back-busting faithful is that between Glen Dafoe, Trenton and Herby Keenleyside of Brockville. Five other bouts round out a highly attractive card.

WITH THE WALTONS—ISAAKS, THAT IS

Ole Johnny Black Bass and his spouse are preparing their "nests" along gravelly shores, according to Inspector R. O. Sheppard of the Tweed branch of the Department of Lands and Forests, and are standing guard over the spawn. They're food parents, these, bass beckon and they hang around until the fish there reach a length of an inch and more, sometimes to mid-July, before cutting the family tie.

Although bass may be legally taken up to the number of six per day beginning July 1st, conservation officers are concerned with the size handling this year, and the extended period of responsibility for the parent fish, according to the Inspector. He offers this tip to anglers: "During the first two weeks of the season, play your fish until he's exhausted, bring him up slowly and if you've caught a parent bass guarding its young, the fry will be observed following in a compact mass. Let go the fish and don't return him carefully to the water, the fry will likely fall prey to sunfish, rock bass, pickerel, and other predators."

MONTREAL SOFTBALL TEAM WOULD LIKE A DATE

The Robitaille Motors Softball team of the Snowdon Softball League, Montreal, is promoting a series of games in this district in the latter party of July and would like to play here against a Belleville team. The Robitailles won the Quebec provincial championship in 1948 and is regarded as one of the best squads in Montreal. Anyone interested in the promotion of such a game should contact Stanley Cree, secretary, 2030 Addington Avenue, Montreal, 28, Que.

DON'T FRY 'EM, TRY 'EM THIS WAY

With the ice moving out of northern lakes now is the time to angle for lake trout or Mackinaw, before summer heat drives the fish from the shallows and shoals into deep water.

Most people know that the big "lakers" can be fried, grilled, boiled or baked but for those who want to "go primitive" in their cooking while on a fishing trip there are other flavorsome ways of doing the fish to a turn.

One method — providing there is clay available, particularly blue clay — is to plaster it around the trout to a thickness of three or four inches then simply bury the fish in the hot sand or ashes of the camp fire. After cooking, the intestines will be found in a hard mass inside the fish and are easily discarded.

Yet another way is to make a pit of stones about a foot deep and build a fire above the stones until they are good and hot. The next step is to wrap the fish in leaves and place it among the stones, then scrape the sand and ashes over the top but first build a stick upright from the fish through the sand.

Having thoroughly buried the fish, carefully pull out the stick and pour about a quart of water down the hole it leaves. The steam generated by the water sizzling the hot stones will steam the trout in a matter of minutes.

Red Sox' Williams Hitting Average of Homer Every Two Games in Drive to Break Mark

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Ted Williams has never said so publicly but what baseball's top slugger wants most on record to see his Boston Red Sox win a pennant—is to break Babe Ruth's record of 60 home runs in one season.

Williams already has reached the magic .400 batting figure. He's won the batting title four times. He's already gained the most valuable player award.

This year he's setting his sights on 61 home runs and he has hit 11 four baggers in Boston's first 28 games.

Ted and his slugging mate, Vern Stephens, each slammed two homers Tuesday to account for all Boston runs as the Red Sox defeated Detroit 6-1. The loss dropped the Tigers out of the first place with New York Yankees taking over the top rung for the first time this season.

The Yankees buried St. Louis Browns, 11-0, behind Allie Reynolds' five-hit pitching. Billy Johnson led the attack on four St. Louis hurlers with a home run and two singles.

Art Houtteman was the victim of all but the second of Williams' homers. Ted drove in four runs and Stephens two.

Washington retained its half-game margin on fourth place over Cleveland by trouncing the White Sox in Chicago 6-5, while the Indians were smothering Philadelphia Athletics 15-4.

Protects Lead

Robin Roberts protecting Philadelphia's first place hold on the National League by beating Ewell Blackwell of Cincinnati in a brilliant hurling duel. Roberts allowed only two hits as the Phils eked out a 1-0 triumph.

Preacher Roe pitched Brooklyn Dodgers into second place with a 3-1 triumph over St. Louis Cardinals. The lefthander allowed only four hits in registering his third shutout.

single in St. Thomas' 11 hit attack.

Homers by Wayne Terwilliger and Andy Pafko, each with a man on in the third inning, gave the Cubs a 4-3 triumph over New York Giants. Bob Rush allowed five hits to gain his fourth victory without a setback.

Larry Doby drove in six runs with a grand slam homer, a triple and single to lead the Indians to their one sided victory over the A's. The Tribe collected 20 hits against four Philadelphia hurlers.

St. Thomas Wins First Victory In Three Starts

(By The Canadian Press)

With five-hit pitching from right-hander Elmer Cook, St. Thomas Legionnaires Tuesday scored their first victory in three starts in the Senior Intercounty Baseball League, trouncing the Maple Leafs 5-1 at Guelph.

Carl Parr, a southpaw, was charged with the loss. Before he was pulled in the eighth he had yielded six bases on balls. Bill Leader finished the game for Guelph.

The first baseman Bill McCarthy paced the Legionnaires with three hits in three times at bat, including a double. Catcher Bill Mahlke had two for five, one a solid triple, and shortstop Jack Randall likewise. Most of the single in St. Thomas' 11-hit attack.

Guelph's only run came in the eighth when Urbani's single drove in Nick Cleri.

Six teams are in action tonight, with undefeated Waterloo entertaining London. Waterloo leads with two wins and no losses. Brantford, winners of their only start so far, entertain Galt, and St. Thomas plays at Guelph.

Armstrong Will Play With Leafs In Winter

Toronto, May 17 — (CP) — George Armstrong, star forward of the junior and senior amateur Toronto Marlboros, Tuesday signed a professional contract with Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League. Armstrong, who helped the senior Marlboros win the Allan Cup this month, played the first of three games with the N.H.L. club while an amateur.

The 19-year-old native of Skead Ont., joined the senior Marlboros midway in the season and were knocked out of the playoffs. He led the junior O.H.A. circuit in scoring with 73 points in 1947-48, and in 1948-49 scored 62 points after a delayed start. Last season he rolled up 64 goals and 51 assists for 115 points. In 19 play-off games he had 19 goals and 19 assists for another 38.

The Leafs have had strings on Armstrong for four years, since he signed a junior B contract playing for Copper Cliff, after which he went to Stratford. He is the only double winner of the Red Tilson Memorial trophy for the outstanding O.H.A. junior player.

Permit Switches During Season Says Rugby Coach

(By The Canadian Press)

Carl Voyles, new American coach of the Hamilton Tiger-Cats senior football team, said Tuesday there should be some relaxation of the rugby imports ruling to permit switches during the season.

Voyles, leaving for his home in Florida after a brief visit to Hamilton, said he thinks the present limit on imports is sufficient.

"But the way things are now, after the first three games an American player, if he wants, can just count because he knows he won't be released," he said.

"Some of the United States players brought up here the last few years haven't shown too well. What players have been here except Frankie Filchock, and perhaps Merle Hapes, who were really first-string players over there? The others have been released from their clubs before coming over here."

Due to flood situation in Winnipeg, western owners may shift their stables to Montreal's Blue Bonnets racetrack, it was announced at Montreal Tuesday.

Racing Secretary Jimmy Hanlon said he received a wire Tuesday from L. K. Dupont of Winnipeg inquiring about accommodations and the possibility of entering his horses in races in Montreal. Dupont is a popular western horse racer.

More than 500 horses already are registered at Blue Bonnets and another 200 are expected to arrive shortly.

Denny Whitaker, vice-president of the Hamilton Tiger-Cats football club of the Interprovincial Rugby Football Union, said Tuesday that the club may play two exhibition games in western Canada before the Big Four season opens in the fall.

Whitaker said an offer had been received from the Blue Bombers to play a game in Winnipeg. The western officials who sent the invitation said that a second game could probably be arranged with the Regina Rough Riders.

At Buffalo, Rocky Graziano of New York knocked out Henry Brisan of Buffalo Tuesday night at 2:14 of the fourth round in a scheduled 10-rounder in Memorial Auditorium.

Montreal Royals Come From Behind To Nip Toronto

(By The Associated Press)

If clutch playing is a criterion, Montreal Royals are a cinch for their sixth International League pennant this season.

Manager Walt Alston's crew seems to have that intangible ability of coming from behind.

The Montrealers staged such a finish Tuesday night. They pushed across three runs in the bottom of the ninth to nip Toronto Maple Leafs, 6-5. It was the Royal's seventh straight victory and gave them a 3½ game lead on second-place Jersey City, which lost to Springfield, 2-1 in 13 innings.

Rochester, powered by Del Wilber and Russ Derry's home runs whipped Buffalo, 10-5. Baltimore and Syracuse were not scheduled.

Rocky Bridges delivered the game-winning hit for Montreal, a single scoring Chuck Conners. Ronnie Lee, who pitched the ninth inning, picked up victory No. 3 slide — wheeling reliever Nick Strincevich was charged with the defeat.

Three straight walks following Jack Wallaesa's double gave Springfield its edge on Jersey City. Raoul Lopez, making his first start for Jersey, held Springfield to four hits, but walked 11 men. Righthander Bob Kelly was the winning pitcher.

Righthander Tom Poholsky went the route for Rochester, spacing eight Buffalo hits. Phil Marchildon of Pennsylvaniaborn, Ont., suffered his fourth straight licking.

Jocko Thompson Sent to Leafs

Cutting of Nicholson and Thompson from the Phils' roster reduced the club to the required 25 men.

Thompson was with the Toronto International League team last year and came up to the Phils to win a key game from St. Louis Cardinals during September. He appeared in only one game, as a relief pitcher, this spring.

Nicholson, power-hitter and veteran right fielder, suffered an injury to his leg during spring training after he had showed promise of returning to the form that made him a star with Chicago Cubs a half-dozen years ago.

CLASH IN INDONESIA

Jakarta, Indonesia, May 16 — (AP)—Indonesian troops under Dutch command and Indonesian soldiers of the federal government clashed Monday morning in Makassar, it was learned today. More than 30 casualties, half of them civilians, were reported. The number of dead was not stated. The Dutch-commanded Indonesians involved in the clash were members of the Dutch army in the Indies who have not been transferred yet to the central Indonesian army command. Considerable bad feeling has existed between these troops and those of the federal government.

Makes World Jaunt After B.E. Games

Victoria, May 17— (CP)— Oh for the life of an athlete when the athletic chores are done!

This remark is prompted by the itinerary of Joan Morgan of Victoria, young Empire Games swimmer, who is virtually travelling around the world to return home.

Her tour following the games in Aukland, N.Z., included such places as Australia, Aden and Colombo, and a trip through Indian Ocean, the Mediterranean into southern France and on England.

And the journey, which began early in the year, is not yet completed. Joan sailed from Southampton aboard the Queen Elizabeth on May 10.

Hollywood, May 17 — (AP) — It took some doing, but they've got Tim Holt in a pair of city shoes.

The actor is walking around in a brand-new pair of oxfords for his role as an immigration officer in "His Kind of Woman." He'd much rather be in cowboy boots.

"Wear 'em all the time," he remarked. "I'd rather take a beating than put on those jivillian shoes."

You can bet your boots that Tim wears his in all of his waking hours. "The only other time I couldn't wear them was when I was in the army," he recalled. "I thought I'd die until I got my boots back on."

This might create the impression that he favors western pictures, which is what he usually makes.

"I don't exactly prefer westerns," he said, "but I think they're more fun. You're outdoors and there's lots of action. Besides, I can make three westerns in the time they make the usual kind of picture."

Tim has been in the movies since 1924, when he was knee-high to his father, Jack Holt. When he isn't making films, he's usually out with his rodeo. He likes to show skeptics that cowboy stars actually can ride a horse.

Ah, Women!

Betty Hutton reportedly turned down the "Keystone Girl" because the part wasn't big enough. She was to play Mabel Normand in the film, which also concerns Canadian-born Mack Sennett. Insiders hope she doesn't expect all her parts to be as big as "Annie Get Your Gun."

Jane Russell was opining that she'd rather pose for photos in an evening gown than in a bathing suit: "The more clothes you have on, the easier it is to pose; there is a lot less to think about in a gown."

Remember the name Marilyn Monroe. She does a scene in "Asphalt Jungle" that is the sexiest since Harlow. Now she's due for a star build-up at 20th-Fox. The gal is blonde, doesn't smoke, dislikes night clubs and wants to be a dramatic actress.

Batawa Defeats Sixardee 5 to 0

Batawa kept up their 100 per cent record in the Bay of Quinte Soccer League last night when they trounced 6 R.D. by a score of five goals to nothing.

Four of the Batawa goals were scored in the first half from Tyrwhitt, Pierowsky, Cox and Hawryliw. One of Planowsky's counters was from the penalty spot. 6 R.D. had one penalty kick awarded to them but failed to score. Hawryliw got the fifth and final tally for the shoemen.

Make Atomic Toys For Kiddies With Harmless Isotopes

The United States Atomic Energy Commission said yesterday it is shipping radioactive isotopes to a U. S. Gilbert Manufacturing Company of New Haven, Conn., for use in making atomic toys.

The ray-emitting isotope is zinc 65, described by atomic scientists as a "harmless" isotope, or element, which will keep radioactivity "charged" for more than eight months.

The A.E.C. says the Gilbert Company proposes to make toys in which kiddies can watch atomic disintegration."

Clock-Winder Cannot Find Young Successor

Salford, Lancashire, England, May 17, (CP)—No one from the younger generation wanted to be a clock-winder.

When 74-year-old Matthew Dear retired for a lighter job after 50 years' service, his firm couldn't find a successor.

Most applicants thought the job entailed sitting at a desk winding their time away. Matthew soon put them straight.

"Can a good head for heights?" he asked. "Do you mind lifting large weights, balancing ladders and clambering about on church belfries?"

Now Dear's firm has told its customers it can't go on winding their clocks any longer.

Milwaukee, May 17 — (AP) — Thousands of letters and cards helped Armand Schultz, 9, win a round against chronic lymphatic leukemia last winter, but Monday the fight ended with his death. The lad's plea last Christmas for mail to "keep me company" drew tremendous response. Armand rallied, though doctors gave him but one day to live. He began failing this month and had to be fed through the veins in his final week.

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle:

Little Benny's Note Book

Me thinking about starting to do my homework, and I said, Aw, jiminines, pop, heck, ma, I'm suppose to write a composition called "An Exciting trip," and it's suppose to be true life and not just something we made up but G wizzickers it's been so long since we went anywheres, I cant even remember any trip.

Why dont you write about the exciting trip you take every nite? pop said. I'm referring to your trip to bed, he said, and I said, What's exciting about that?

Why think of the dangers, pop said, and I said, Aw, what dangers?

I dont know, you've never explained, pop said. But they must be terrific because as the time draws near for you to depart on the fearful trip, cold beeds of perspiration always appear on your clammy brow, and you grow limp all over at the thawt of setting forth on the dread voyage, he said, and ma said, Yes, it's pitiful I meen really pitiful, to hear your moans and groans and lamentations as you beg and pleed for a few minutes of reprieve before the terrible ordeal.

It's enough to make a strong man weep to see your face grow even paige as the clock moves closer to the fatal hour, and you cling to the hour hand as to the Rock of Gibraltar while the minute hand draws closer and closer like the sword of Damocles, pop said, and ma said, My, what an exciting strip it must really be.

Aw, G, I'm going to write about exciting trip around to the doctor's office to see if my ankle is broken or just sprained the time I tripped and twisted it, and the doctor said it wasn't broken or sprained either, it was just bent a little, I said.

Being the end of my subject.

Locusts, Parrots Harry Mennonites In South America

Winkler, Man., (CP) —Tigers, swarms of locusts, cross-eating parrots long treks through rough country to reach market—those are some of the "problems" faced by Mennonites now living in Paraguay.

C. J. Dyck, who returned to his Canadian homeland recently after five years' service with the Mennonite Central Committee in Paraguay, told audiences here that the Mennonite settlers are "learning to cope with their problems and will make better progress from now on."

Mr. Dyck said the rail line ends about 66 miles from the community where the Mennonites are settled. It takes 14 to 18 days to travel the distance by ox-team However, extension of the railway for about half the distance to the community is expected to be started soon.

The Paraguayan government provided the settlers, many of whom came from Canada, with 100 tons of polson to battle locusts and other pests such as the cotton-leaf worm and giant ants. Mr. Dyck said that ripe kaffir (corn) growing near woodlands is often ruined by flocks of parrots.

He also told of two boys, 11 and 13 years of age, who had been sent to market with a load of kaffir. Just as they were on the point of pitching camp for the night, a tiger and his mate sauntered out of the woods towards them.

One of the boys spent the night in prayer while the other shone a flashlight into the beasts' eyes. The animals slunk away at dawn.

On another occasion, said Mr. Dyck, a farmer and his wife were attacked by native Indians on their way to a hospital for treatment.

Council Engages Extra Constable To Handle Meters

Picton.—The Police Commission was given permission at a special meeting of town council to engage an extra constable. The commission started that an extra constable was necessary to enforce by-laws, and would also also be needed when parking meters are installed.

Council passed the necessary by-laws for theinstallation of meters and for angle parking on one side of the street and parallel parking on the other side. These by-laws are subject to approval of the Ontario Department of Highways.

Rallying to Aid

Prince Edward County people are rallying to the fund established to aid victims of the flood in Winnipeg and district and the fire in Rimouski. Three organizations have announced these funds are being set up to prevent overlapping. The Rotary Club will receive cash contributions; the Elks Lodge, food and canned goods and the Canadian Legion, Branch 78, clothing.

Even before the funds were announced many persons called the local newspapers to learn where donations might be sent. Unable to Attend.

Due to the floods in Winnipeg, Mr. and Mrs. George Bennis were unable to fly to Winnipeg for the funeral today of their son, Wallace Bennis, who died suddenly on Sunday. They received word that city before coming to Picton two years ago to make their home with their son, A. A. Bennis, organist of the United Church.

Wallace Bennis was in his 36th year and all his life had been spent in Winnipeg. He had not been in good health since his return from overseas. He is survived by his wife, his parents and brother.

VIGOROUS PROTEST

London, Ont., May 17 (CP) — Vigorous" protest against civil marriage and Sunday sports was directed at the provincial government Tuesday night by the Anglican Synod of Huron meeting here.

Wrecked Plane Finally Righted Towed to Shore

Niagara Falls, N.Y., May 17—(AP)—A 65-yard-wide construction engineer, hauled twice safely, braved the Niagara Rapids Tuesday night for a third time and succeeded in his mission.

A $25,000 helicopter wrecked Monday in a dramatic rescue operation finally was righted and towed to shore.

Jerry Peroue had two close calls earlier in attempts to pull the helicopter from the churning waters near the brink of the Horseshoe Falls, on the Canadian side.

With help Tuesday night, he got the craft to shore and it was dragged out of the river with a crane, in about three hours.

The first time he tried, his boat was swamped and he had to scramble aboard the helicopter.

The second time, several hours later, he fell into the river while reaching for the boat to grab a rope lashed to the craft. He pulled himself aboard the wreckage with the rope.

Both times the engineer was rescued by means of a rowboat guided by two men from the same manner in which two pilots and Mrs. Jeannette Bugby were taken off the overturned helicopter Monday.

The helicopter capsized when its two pilots were trying to haul Mrs. Bugby from the rock to which she had been clinging about 100 yards above the brink of the 160-foot cataract.

All were saved with the help of another helicopter and a boat.

Only Feed Crops May be Grown On Flooded Areas

Ottawa, May 17 — (CP) — Flooded areas in the Red River Valley — estimated at 500,000 acres — may produce no more than feed crops this year.

That is a report on prairie crop conditions, the Bureau of Statistics said little or no seeding has been done in Manitoba's part flood areas running north from Russell to Swan River.

Given favorable drying weather, seeding should get under way by the end of the week except in the Red River Valley where an estimated 500,000 acres of crop land is affected by the flood.

Exceptionally dry weather will be necessary to permit wheat seeding by June 1, the report said, and it is impossible that much of the flooded area will be seeded this year except for feed.

Flood losses of the week were been heavy but other live stock losses have been limited. Market gardeners face a critical situation with flooded land and almost a total loss of bedding plants. Forage is very short in the province and there has been little growth in pastures.

In Saskatchewan, about 5 per cent of the wheat crop is seeded, although considerable variation is noted between areas. Practically no work has been done in the southeast.

In southeastern Alberta most of the crop is in. Less than half of the wheat acreage is seeded from Lethbridge north to Edmonton and only a good start has been made over much of the remainder of the province.

BUSH PILOT MISSING

Fairbanks, Alaska, May 17 — (AP)— A veteran bush pilot from Arkansas and a navy specialist from Washington, D.C., have been missing for a week in the Tundra Country between here and Barrow on the Arctic coast.

Disclosure came Tuesday as 10 Alaska planes and airmen from Ladd AAF Force base searched the desolate area for pilot Bert Galbreath, 39, and the scientist.

The scientist is from the Arctic Research Laboratory of the office of naval research in Washington. His name is withheld pending notification of next-of-kin, the navy said.

TWEED

Large Church Attendance

Tweed — Large congregations attended Sunday School and morning service at St. John's United Church on Mother's Day. The Sunday school followed the order of service issued as part of the observance of Christian Family Week, prepared for the department of Christian education of the Canadian Council of Churches.

Rev. A. L. Sisco and Mr. W. S. Gerow assisted the school scholars and Mrs. B. McCoy told the story of Timothy, in an interesting manner, and four girls read the quotations from Paul's letter to Timothy. The names of six young children were brought into the Sunday School through the Cradle Roll department.

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Hall who have been making their home in Toronto for the past 20 years, have returned to Tweed. They will reside in their own home on the Crookston Road. Mr. and Mrs. Richard Leaver, who have been occupying the hall dwelling have moved to the home recently purchased by LeSage Motor Sales from the Dan Breen estate.

Mr. K. E. Belch druggist has returned home from a business trip to Toronto last week.

Mrs. Gerow, Miss Gerow, Laura and Anna returned home last week from a motor trip to Hamilton and Dundas.

Mrs. M. Rannie returned home after a visit with her sister in Hamilton.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Ostman and children of Kaladar, spent Mother's Day with Mr. and Mrs. F. Foster in town.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Jardine have purchased the residence of the late Mrs. Jennie James on Arthur Street from the estate They will take possession on June 1st and expect to move in shortly after that time.

Phillip H. Morrow son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Morrow, Tweed, is now affiliated with the U.S. air force and has started a special course at Lackland air base, San Antonio, Texas, and situated near San Antonio, is the world's largest air force base. The 13 weeks' course will prepare him in all phases of technical training. Night Shift Added

Hunter Veneers Ltd., have announced that it is necessary to add a night shift starting this week. Twenty-five men will be given employment. When night shift is in operation approximately 60 men will be on the pay roll. Orders for furniture and cheese box veneer far exceeds the present employment capacity of the plant and a night shift to catch up on the orders is the only solution.

Inquiries for Tweed Veneer which is considered to be of exceptional high quality, have recently been received from South Africa and west coast points. Shipments are now being made to many distant points, including various parts of the United States and Western Ontario.

One million feet of elm, maple, birch, basswood and poplar logs have been delivered to the plant during the past winter, and 150 car loads are received some from distant points in northern Quebec.

Mr. Hunter was recently in that section of Canada, contracting for the immediate delivery of special types of logs which are not available in this section of the province.

12 NATIONS SET UP UNITED HIGH COMMAND

Reciprocal Buying Of Arms Approved By U.S., Canada

Called Biggest Defence News in Several Years

Ottawa, May 18 (CP)— Canada's defence headquarters today exulted over what one high official called "the biggest defence news in several years."

It was the announcement in Washington by Defence Secretary Louis Johnson that the United States forces have been directed to develop a program under which the U.S. and Canada would purchase between $15,000,000 and $25,000,000 worth of military equipment annually from each other.

This sort of reciprocal purchase is what Canada has been pressing for since before the late James Forrestal, Mr. Johnson's predecessor, visited Ottawa in August 1948.

The announcement represents only a partial victory for Canada but is hailed here as a victory in principle which could lead to the larger hope—a full-scale defence production pact of the wartime Hyde Park agreement and full integration of military production.

Mr Johnson in this case has taken advantage of a loophole in the Buy-American legislation which virtually forbids the U.S. forces to buy non-American equipment. The loophole is a clause which permits the forces to buy certain foreign equipment if it is certified that it is in the American interest to do so.

Creates Legal Ground

An informed official said the new arrangement does not mean in itself that orders will be placed in Canada but "it creates the legal ground for orders and that is what we have been after."

It was possible that the U.S. would send most, or all, of the equipment purchased in Canada to the Atlantic Pact countries of Europe.

This would open the way for the first shipments of Canadian arms to reach Europe and might eventually be a boom to Canada's hopes of becoming something of an industrial arsenal.

Canada and the United States have exchanged lists and scheduled some military equipment they might exchange. The exact amount is to decide just what the U.S. will buy here. Canada's share is already largely implemented because purchases in the U.S. are running more than $15,000,000 a year.

Passion Play Staged First in 16 Years, Innkeeper Plays Role of Christ

By JAMES DEVLIN

Oberammergau, Germany, May 18 (AP)— The centuries-old Passion Play was staged today for the first time in 16 years, with a schoolgirl playing the Virgin Mary and an innkeeper cast as Christ.

A capacity audience of 5,200 watched as a cast of 1,500 villagers got on the stage to depict the spectacle with all its 300-year-old pageantry.

The attention of the audience was focussed chiefly upon Anton Preisinger, brown-bearded village innkeeper in the role of Christ, and Angela Maier, 15-year-old wood carving student portraying the Virgin Mary.

The voices of the cast rang clearly from the open stage into the huge covered theatre. No microphones or other mechanical aids were used.

The play, which lasts from 8.30 a.m. until 5 p.m., opened with a prologue read by Alois Lang, who played Christ in the last Oberammergau play.

Now grey-haired, Lang wore a golden robe. He was accompanied by a grey-robed choir of 50 men and women lined up across the 60-yard wide stage.

Then they filed from the stage the curtain fell back revealing a street scene in Jerusalem.

The Bible hero and boys in the cast had gone without haircuts for a year to obtain a Biblical appearance. Their hair is parted in their shoulders.

As Christ stepped into the miming scene his first words were: "What do I see here? Is this the House of God? Or is it the market place?"

Preisinger, 37, father of five children, was chosen for the role of Christ last year after a heated village controversy. Many opposed his selection on the grounds he was not a good actor. However, a German denazification court in 1947 judged him a "follower," not the mildest type of Nazi category.

SIX-INCH RISE MENACES SECTION IN FORT GARRY

Flood Situation Still Termed Critical

By NORMAN MICHIE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Winnipeg, May 18 (CP) — A wind-created, six-inch rise in the level of the Red River at one critical point menaced a new section of suburban Fort Gary today as greater Winnipeg fought a flood situation officially termed still critical.

Army flood-control officers announced that an "extremely bad" situation existed along a thin, six-miles sandbag dike immediately southwest of already flooded areas of Fort Garry.

A stiff six-knot current hindered dike-maintainance work at the point of the threatened break. The wind, from the southeast at 24 miles an hour late this morning was pushing flood water toward stricken Winnipeg and its twin city of St. Boniface.

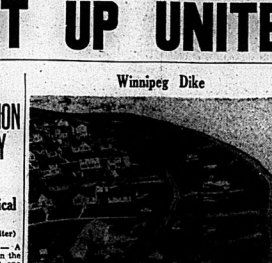
The effect was not noticeable immediately at the James Avenue pumping station, in downtown Winnipeg, where the official water level is recorded. The reading there was 30.2 feet at 11 a.m. CDT, unchanged from 5 p.m. Tuesday.

This was the day the ominous Red River, higher than it has been for 30 years, was supposed to start its dangerously-delayed guerilla action of St. Boniface.

Since Sunday its muddy, wobbly crest had been crowding between the cities of Winnipeg and St. Boniface, straining at miles of dikes guarding vital utilities and homes.

Farther to the south, Fort Gary dike would release pent-up water over a wide, flat area northwest of the swirling fast flow south of the Assiniboine River, at a point some miles southwest of the heart of Winnipeg's residential districts of River Heights and Crescentwood—lowlying land between the Winnipeg junction of the rivers—would be hit.

Wind Cause of Threat



Army officers said at a press conference the wind-created six-quarters that the stiff, southerly wind was the cause of the latest local threat.

Earlier it was stated, there was "very little chance" overnight in the flood situation. About 800 troops were on duty and Manitoba and 17 per cent of central greater Winnipeg have been submerged by the swirling Red.

D. M. Stephens, Manitoba's chief engineer, at the conference said at the press conference that the "precious balance" now exists The situation has not improved; but it was "not getting worse."

Dynamite Blows Up in Face, Hand Blown Off

Mattawa, May 18 — (CP) — Alex Cliche, 55, lies in hospital here today fighting for his life against "severely critical" injuries suffered when a charge of dynamite blew up in his face.

Cliche, father of 10 children, was preparing to blast a pile of logs in the yards of the Gatineau Cask, Veneer and Plywood Company today when a faulty fuse attached to an electric charger touched off a load of dynamite as he held it in his hands.

Sixteen Killed As B-29 Bomber Crashes in Azores

Shreveport, La., May 18 (AP) —A B-29 bomber carrying 10 persons crashed in the Azores with "no survivors," Barksdale air force base announced today.

Capt. Salvador Pelle, Barksdale public information officer, said no high-ranking officers were aboard.

The bomber was en route to Britain on a routine training mission when it crashed Wednesday night while landing at the Lagens air force base, Pelle said.

The plane left here with 11 crew members and five passengers, probably military personnel.

The B-29 left Bermuda for Britain and was diverted to Lagens when engine trouble developed, Pelle said.

The giant freighter, 640 feet long was making her first call here and was being launched last October. She arrived from the head of the lakes late Wednesday.

Senator Lashes Congress for Seaway Policy

Washington, May 18 (AP) — Senator Alexander Wiley (Rep. Wis.) said today failure of the Congress to pass legislation authorizing the St. Lawrence Seaway and power project "is a national disgrace, a disgrace and an insult to the American people."

Wiley in a statement in the Congressional record, added:

"The ability of a sinister combination of blind, selfish, obstructionist interests to sabotage this legislation is a shocking commentary on the Congressional process.

He said refusal of other areas to recognize the legitimate interests of the 50,000,000 people in the Great Lakes region is a "most colossal and unfair attitude."

Section Man Dies As Shack Burns

Webbwood, Ont., May 18 (CP) — Section foreman for the C.P.R. here for many years, William Bellile, 53, was burned to death early Tuesday when his small frame shack was destroyed by fire.

He lived alone in Webbwood in the nearby C.P.R. bunkhouse. He left at about 2:15 a.m and 45 minutes later his cabin was seen in flames by the men in the bunkhouse.

Desperate efforts were made to force the door of the cabin but it resisted all their efforts. It was later discovered that the door had been secured with a padlock on the inside.

The volunteer fire department responded quickly but the building could not be saved.

It is not known how the fire started. There was no fire in the stoves.

4,000 DIE EACH YEAR

Vancouver, May 18—(CP)— One in every six Canadians is N-ryan's problem, Vancouver's but 4,000 die each year, Dr. G. J. Hnatiuk of Ottawa Wednesday told the annual meeting of the Canadian Tuberculosis Association. Dr. Wherrett, executive secretary, added that 18,000 more persons are in sanitariums annually while 30,000 others are partially handicapped by the disease. He forecast that in 25 years the tuberculosis death rate would fall below 15 per 100,000 Canadians.

NAVAL WARTIME 'PRIZE MONEY' CAUSES DEBATE

Bill Given to Naval And Air Force Funds

Ottawa, May 18 — (CP) — A storm blew up in Parliament Wednesday over distribution of $2,500,000 in Canadian naval wartime "prize money."

Outspoken opposition members termed "scandalous" and "a two-and-a-half million dollar steal," a government bill that will divide the money between the naval and air forces benevolent funds. Traditionally it would go to salvors of the fleet but Canada, along with Britain, is discarding this 400-year-old practice.

Defence Minister Claxton said no fair method could be found to divide amongst the navy, air and the navy the money which represents the value of a German and an Italian vessel captured during the war. He had not met no officer would dissent from the government's method was a fair method.

The bill got second reading, but the government probably had not heard the last of it. The legislation now goes to a special house committee which also will study legislation for unemployment legislation in detail. The storm guarded question of the bill:

Canada's tariff policy also came in for criticism. M. J. Coldwell, C. C. F. leader, said Canada was giving too many tariff concessions to the United States without getting at least equal concessions in return. Other members wanted specific "protection" against the dumping of duty-free American potatoes in Canada.

Canada Taking Lead

James Sinclair, parliamentary assistant to Finance Minister Abbott, conceded that perhaps Canada was taking the lead in international tariff-cutting. But she was now in a position to point to not only the last down and also other countries where they stood At the House opening Prime Minister St. Laurent announced the appointment of fact-finding commissioners which will report on

AGAINST SUNDAY SPORTS

London, Ont., May 18 (CP) — The Anglican Synod of Huron, which Tuesday protested to the Ontario Government Legislation allowing Sunday sports and civil marriage today carried the opposition to every municipality in the diocese.

Every mayor and reeve in Huron diocese will be advised the synod "strongly condemns all secularization of the Christian Sunday through the granting of any by-law, commercialized sport, and that we feel most deeply the danger of continuing encroachments upon interests upon the Lord's Day."

Crime Against Children in France Inspires Demand for Heavier Penalties

By SERGE MAURI

Paris, May 18 (AP)— A wave of crimes against children is stirring French public opinion to demand heavier sentences for parents and guardians who illtreat their children, legal charges.

A bill introduced in the Upper House of the French Parliament provides increased penalties for those who are convicted for the guilty.

The crimes which contributed most to stir public opinion was the murder of three-year-old Jacqueline. The child died following a beating with a strap, administered by his father, a 23-year-old factory hand.

Other cries in recent months have included:

A man who kicked his 11-year-old daughter to death and then threw him into a river to drown.

A drunken miner threatened his daughters, age 10 and 11, with a red hot poker to make them admit a fault, beat them and burned their hands.

These incidents of cruelty ranged from the father who beat his wife with a strap against the law for having bad school reports to another who chased his boy with a hatchet "because he was tired of his children."

Newspapers rate alcoholism as a major factor in the present wave of crimes against children. Reno Bromsi, Italian deputy, has considered a mitigating circumstance under French law.

Present child protection laws provide maximum penalties of from one to three years for illtreatment of children under 15 years, but the sentences may be raised to five years in especially grave cases. The death penalty can be imposed however, if it is proved that there was deliberate intent to kill.

Each Nation Will Name Deputy to Main Committee

London, May 18—(AP)— Atlantic Pact foreign ministers set up a permanent high command tonight and ordered it to develop the armed forces necessary for the defence of western Europe.

Each of the 12 member foreign ministers will appoint a deputy to serve on the permanent committee.

The appointments will be made "with the least possible delay" up that the deputies can proceed to appoint a permanent chairman from among their members, the foreign ministers announced in a communique at the close of their four-day session.

This was in line with an agreement to set up a high command to block communism, whether it tries armed attack or "Trojan horse" conquest.

The foreign ministers of the 12 Atlantic-pact countries disclosed Wednesday night anti-red defence measures would be directed, and co-ordinated, by a permanent council of their deputies, probably headed by an American.

European newspapers have been full of speculation about who the council head would be. Those mentioned include W. Averell Harriman, roving ambassador for the Marshall Plan; Robert A. Lovett, former U.S. Under Secretary of State; Gen. Omar A. Bradley, chairman of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, and Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Wartime Supreme Allied Commander in Europe.

The permanent council will have two main jobs.

First, it must work out a time schedule for rearming—for the making and allocation of arms for the drawing up of final military plans—so the west can feel sure of stopping Russian aggression if it comes.

Second, it must bolster the economies of the 12 member countries so that the large communist parties in Italy and France, Britain and Italy will find less discontent to exploit.

The 12 countries which agreed on this plan are the United States, Britain, Canada, France, Italy, Norway, Denmark, The Netherlands, Belgium, Luxembourg, Iceland and Portugal.

In opening the campaign Monday, Mayor Allen said all the interested investors to act promptly. The investors needed no urging. The books were closed a minute after they opened at 8 a.m. EDT.

Necessary Forces Will be Developed For Sound Defence

Ottawa, May 18—(CP)— Finance Minister Abbott today announced that the 745,000,000 record refunding loan launched Monday has been "heavily oversubscribed." The books were closed at 9.01 a.m. EDT today.

He also announced that the issue, biggest of its kind in government history, has been allotted as follows:

$350,000,000 will be in 2¾ per cent 18-year bonds and $395,000,000 in two-per-cent 4½ year bonds.

Mr. Abbott said the government was "gratified" that investors has responded "so eagerly" to the offering. This response was "substantial evidence of confidence in the future of the country."

For Refunding

Orders for the bonds, the revenue of which will be used for retirement of two outstanding issues bearing higher interest, have been taken by investment dealers and banks Monday, May 15 to Central and Eastern Ontario where sales were closest most of the night. A few very early risers in Western Canada's shower were experienced in Southern Ontario but these had disappear by late morning leaving the balance of the day sunny.

Friday will see slightly warmer air moving into the province ahead of the disturbance which is now over Saskatchewan and which will bring rain to northwestern Ontario by evening.

Disaster Relief Fund Opens With Contributions of $129

The opening day for receipt of funds for the Winnipeg Disaster Relief was satisfactory, Treasurer I. G. Hefkey said today.

He announced that the sum of $129 had been donated to the fund through the media of bank employees of the city.

"It is encouraging", he said, "and we of the committee hope that the response amounts by the end of the week."

Issues Personal Appeal

Chairman J. M. Wood issued a personal appeal today to residents of the city and district to do whatever they can in a financial way for the flood victims of the Manitoba capital.

"We in the east," he said, "have no conception of the situation in Winnipeg and we are fortunate to be located in a flood-free part of the country."

"I am sure," he went on "that residents of the city and district will rally to this appeal, and I hope and feel confident that Belleville will take her place at the head of the list for amounts donated by communities of this size.

Small donations, he said are just as welcome as large ones. People should not feel ashamed if they can afford only a trifling amount. They all add up and the committee will receive gratefully any sum of money.

He urged potential contributors to act immediately as the funds are being rushed to Winnipeg at most on receipt here. He again reminded people of the fact that every bank branch in the city will receive funds. Receipts will be issued on the spot.

Cheque Artist Given 10 Years, Accomplice Reformatory Term

Appearing for sentence following conviction on a long series of charges involving the passing of worthless cheques, Kenneth Johnston, 48, of Picton, today was sentenced to 10 years in the Kingston penitentiary by Magistrate T. Y. Wills.

The sentence was given on one charge while Johnston was imposed on some 70 other charges, the sentences to run concurrently.

Frank Greeley, also of Picton, Johnston's accomplice, pleaded guilty to over 20 charges of forgery and was given six months definite and six months indeterminate in the Ontario Reformatory, Guelph. Previously he served three years at Kingston on forgery counts. Greeley had no previous criminal record.

Arrested at Stayner

The two men were arrested during March at Stayner, Ont., and at the time of their arrest had in their possession a cheque writing machine and an amateur printing set. Cheques found in their possession, and also cheques passed by the two men had been written with a cheque writing machine.

Johnston was charged on 79 counts of passing worthless cheques, while Greeley faced 20 charges of forgery.

Passing sentence on Johnston, Magistrate T. Y. Wills noted the accused's previous criminal record and stated he apparently had decided to follow a life of crime He said Johnston should be termed a habitual criminal but noted this was not within his province to do so.

In sentencing Greeley the Magistrate said he believed the accused had come under Johnston's influence but noted he was old enough to know what was right.

Traffic Offenders Pay for Misdeeds In County Court

Indicative that local provincial police are sparing no effort to make the highways safe a total of 28 highway traffic cases, ranging all the way from driving with inadequate brakes to drunken driving were listed for the weekly county magistrate's court.

Three drivers charged with drunk driving pleaded guilty as charged. Two men were given 30 days in jail and the third will spend ten days in jail behind the bars. In each case no evidence was offered on accompanying charges of dangerous driving.

Most numerous offenders were motorists charged with driving with inadequate brakes. Thirteen such drivers pleaded guilty out of court and were assessed $5 each, fine and costs.

Another motorist paid $6 for driving with improper lights; another paid $10 for passing improperly and still another for speeding.

An Indian youth from Deseronto pleaded guilty to retaining stolen goods in his possession and was given one year's suspended sentence. A stolen radio was found in the youth's possession.

Veteran of the league since its inception in 1919 Robert L. Johnson was re-elected to his third term as president of the Canadian National Railways Bowling League last night.

Mr. Johnston was returned to office after several nominees declined at the election of officers held at the annual banquet and general meeting held in the Sons of Veterans' Hall.

W. J. (Bill) Parry, popular secretary for the past few years, was elected vice-president by unanimous vote with Cy Young named to the secretarial post. Gordon Shaw was re-elected treasurer.

Following the banquet served by the members of the CNRAA Ladies Auxiliary, President Johnston presented trophies and prizes.

To the Conductor team, champions of the league for the 1949-50 season, went the Belleville Trophy and first prize money. Jim Young captain of the Loafers accepted the trophy and prizes on behalf of his team-mates.

The Stores team was awarded second money, the Women's Auxiliary third with the remainder finishing in the order of standings: Engine Power, Yard, Office, Despatchers, Engineers, Locos, Boilermakers, Wheel Shop, Sales, and Clerks. Each team was presented with prize money.

George E. Carver, sports editor of the Ontario Intelligencer in a brief address paid tribute to the work of the CNRAA in sponsorship and furtherance of a recreation field.

He also paid tribute to the fine effort of the CNR Ladies Auxiliary in furnishing the splendid dinner.

Says Prisoners Must be Allowed To Communicate

Persons arrested and lodged in the county jail awaiting trial must not be held incommunicado from their relatives, Magistrate T. Y. Wills observed today in county magistrate's court following complaints of a prisoner that he had not been allowed to communicate with his wife.

The prisoner, appearing on a drunk charge, and also on a charge of doing malicious damage to plumbing in the police station cell block, said he had been ready to settle the matter out of court but had not been allowed to contact his wife.

Voices Disapproval

"I do not approve of prisoners being kept incommunicado from their relatives and police should not be the sole messenger between prisoners and relatives," observed Magistrate Wills. "If conditions exist there then they should be reported."

The prisoner in question had been arrested in Thurlow township May 13th on a drunk charge and had been lodged in the city jail. He had proceeded to smash the plumbing and was taken to the county jail.

He was assessed $13 fine and costs on the drunk charge; $20 restitution for damages to plumbing, and $7.50 fine and costs on the charge of doing wilful damage to property.

TO STOCKS

Toronto, May 18 — (CP) — Prices tended higher in comparatively dull dealings on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. A slight advance in base metals pulled the list into new high average price territory. Most changes were held to small amounts. Volume for the first three hours was 1,667,000 shares.

In base metals Consolidated Smelters and Noranda Mines were ahead fractions and Silver Miller and Anacon Lead traded heavily for penny advances. United Keno Hill slumped heavily under pressure of profit-taking sales.

Leading senior and junior gold issues brightened quietly. Many stocks that have highlighted the last two sessions were comparatively quiet. Newlund Mines, a feature Wednesday, dipped sharply at the opening but recovered slowly as the session progressed.

Papers again paced the industrial board. Abitibi Common and Pfd., and Brown Common and Pfd., sold at new highs. Constructions were in moderate demand while steels weakened. Utilities, refining oils and foods were balanced.

Western oils opened higher and eased into minus territory as the session continued.

Winnipeg Hurt But Not Down Feeling of City's Business Man

A Westerner, it is said, is an incurable optimist.

From the Gateway to the West, therefore, today came an explosive:

"Winnipeg is hurt. But Winnipeg is not down."

The worst flood in Winnipeg's history has wrought untold millions of dollars' damage in recent weeks. Business in many lines has been all but crippled. It may take years to recover.

"We'll get back on our feet in a matter of months. Winnipeg will rebound—it always has. It always will."

Perhaps better than most, Allan H. Watson knows what Winnipeg can do when it sets its mind to it. President of the Chamber of Commerce and manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce's main Winnipeg branch, Mr. Watson is the forefront of the drive, already well begun, to put the city back on its financial feet.

Leader of the Manitoba Flood Relief Fund, Mr. Watson does not underestimate the difficulties facing the twin cities of Winnipeg and St. Boniface.

At the finger tips is a mounting pile of reports of loss upon loss.

An "invisible" loss has been almost a cessation of buying in many lines as the two cities fought the greatest threat yet to their existence. For instance, the "season" in women's spring dresses has been wiped out. "Women had other things to think about," he remarks drily.

But the flood losses are not a net loss. Though, for the long pull, the effect of the flood business as a whole no doubt will be adverse, Mr. Watson sees the construction and allied industries booming as owners hasten to make repairs to the thousands upon thousands of water-damaged homes. Flood-prevention projects also will aid business. He said:

"From the construction point of view, what should be done in flood-proofing and in improving the financial world is the effect upon instalment buying. Mr. Watson noted that many persons had lost goods not yet fully paid for and "they've still got to pay for them."

This, too, he thought, would be beneficial. Credit houses of necessity would have to extend further credit. This would mean a steady sale of such things as home furnishings.

$200,000 Fire Loss to 'Peg Plant

Winnipeg, May 18 — (CP) — Fire Tuesday night caused an estimated $200,000 damage to the interior and contents of Dominion Knitting Company plant on downtown Adelaide Street. District Fire Chief S. J. Sellar said damage was confined mainly to the knitting machinery room on the first floor.

TIGRIS IN FLOOD

Officials said 5,000 houses were submerged and hundreds of mud-constructed buildings collapsed. No loss of life was reported.

WILL INSPECT HULL

Kingston, May 18—(CP)—Inspection of the hull of the Swedish timber ship Helga Smith, freed from a mud shoal Tuesday will be conducted in the drydock of the Canadian Shipbuilding and Engineering Ltd. works here today. The vessel, en route from Chicago to Holland, grounded in Brown's Bay near Brophy's Point on Wolfe Island five miles east of Kingston.

The ship was pulled free by two tugs, Capt. Leo Beaupre who directed the work said some of the 3,000 tons of mixed cargo aboard the Helga Smith will be removed before she could be freed.

London, Ont., May 18 — (CP) — Taylor Electric Manufacturing Company Ltd., and its President, A. T. Taylor, today were fined a total of $138,000 for falsifying income and excess profits tax returns.

Taylor also was sentenced to six months.

At a previous hearing he had pleaded guilty for himself and the company.

The fines imposed today are believed among the biggest ever levied in tax-evasion cases.

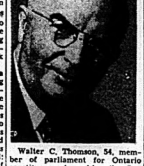
"It will always be a matter of pride to me that I had the honor of commanding Canadians in battle."

Man's Skeleton Found in Shallow Grave in Bush

Cochrane, May 18—(CP)—The skeleton of a man whom police believe was the loser of a bush-land fight was found Wednesday in a shallow grave in a park of this northern Ontario town.

The skull of the skeleton was batted in at the right temple with a hole about two inches in diameter police said. Beside the body lay a .32-calibre revolver containing several shells.

Coroner Dr. P. Bernstein said the remains had been in the ground at least for 2 years. It was discovered by Cecil Fletcher, garage operator, when his dog unearthed a hob-nailed boot.



Fletcher said he thought it was "some old boot stuck in the ground. But when I pulled it up a bone fell out."

Later found nine cartridges, believed to have fallen out of the victim's pockets.

New Traffic Artery Clogged On First Test

Toronto, May 18 (CP)— A new $4,500,000 traffic artery, designed to relieve congestion on north-south routes to downtown Toronto, proved something less than a success in its first test today.

Automobiles stood bumper to bumper for more than 15 minutes on the 1 1-2 mile Mount Pleasant route at the peak of heavy morning traffic. Police however, attributed the congestion to sightseers.

"By tomorrow, they won't go out of their way to use this route" one official said

GUARDING CROPS

British Ministry of Agriculture has arranged with the United Kingdom Meteorological Office for special frost warnings to be issued in code to farmers, fruit growers and market gardeners, it was announced this week. It is one of the many forms of the application of science to agriculture which are being made in various parts of the world. There will be direct contact between out-stations of the Meteorological Office and county branches of the National Farmers' Union which will receive warning by telephone not later than 3 p.m. when an air frost is expected the following night. The service will normally operate from March 1st to May 31st.

The warnings will be given in three ranges of air temperature as a level of four feet and to three types of crop sites. The temperature ranges are (1) minimum temperature 32° to 30°F, (2) minimum air temperature 29° to 25°F, (3) minimum air temperature below 25°F. The crop sites are, (a) above average site for freedom from frost, (b) average site, (c) below average site.

If the frost is expected to be accompanied by a wind exceeding force 3, a light breeze, the direction and force of the wind will be added to the forecast.

Man's obligation is to produce more food for the growing millions of the earth's population. Further conquest of the laws of nature becomes a necessity. Frost warnings are one of the steps to safeguard growing crops.

WEATHER THEME

Several cool spells of weather which have descended upon this part of the world would almost seem to be enough to dampen the spring ardor of many people who would like to get to work on their lawns and gardens. From various parts of the country have come reports of delayed spring work but generally the seasonal outlook is considered good. Two or three recent nights brought chill but it was not too long before the weather, though it seemed a little slow, took on more of its accustomed ways in this month of May.

Already the grass despite the cool earth has made strides which have transformed the landscape into something of the usual appearance of late May.

To add interest to the weather theme, the opinion is being generally disseminated across the globe by scientists that the climate is on the average warmer than it has been since before the days of Columbus and his momentous discovery of the New World. Man in many parts of the earth is taking a more intense interest in the weather because his knowledge has widened more and more. It is pointed out that about the beginning of the decline of the mighty Roman Empire, the temperature of the earth noticeably lowered. Now it is believed by experts that the world has been slowly warming up again for four or five centuries. The ice caps at the poles of the earth are said to be melting more. Some rather thrilling opinions have been expressed about the ultimate result of this reported melting of the ice caps, the suggestion being that it may have a very great effect upon the water levels of lakes and the oceans and therefore change the contours of coastal areas. But no one can be definite about what changes if any will come. Some people may incline to the view of a slow shifting of temperature which will not affect the ordinary span of human life.

However it is not universally warmer. Everyone remembers the murderous storms which swept over some parts of the mid-continent of North America and the Pacific Coast to make last winter more severe than in many years while in the many Eastern areas it was milder than in decades.

Most people have been so accustomed to believing that earth's changes are usually of slow development and unlikely to show radical changes within a brief time and are hard to convince.

Now the weather is getting around to something like normal again. Most people will think it was a mere whim of nature and weather that gave us a late spring and not a greatly protracted change of temperature conditions. They will probably stick to the view that what has been looked upon in the past as nature's whims in the weather is still just that. On the other hand there are men of science have a great mass of information and data about the world situation the significance of which is at the moment difficult to decide. World changes of temperature if they do occur would appear to them to be of slow development.

Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent recently told a delegation of high school students visiting Ottawa that he did not think that there would be another war within the lifetime of the present generation. There will be a general disposition to hope that his prescience is accurate.

You read of but one wise man and all that he knew was—that he knew nothing.—Congreve.

AGING GOLFER

The course grows longer every year,
The greens are not as true,
The traps more trouble-some appear,
My drives are shorter, too.

They've let the rough more tangled grow,
And cut it down they should,
For iron shots not long ago
I'm told to take the wood.

I'm sure the lies are worst today
Than what they used to be—
The eighty-five I once could play
Is now a ninety-three.

I give the course the blame for it,
As all the gray heads do,
Yes, I am fatter — just a bit—
And somewhat older, too.

Turkey Upheaval Another Mark In Modernization

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

The political upheaval in Turkey, resulting in the defeat of the long dominant Peoples party by the comparatively new Democrat party, is another land mark in that ancient country's modernization which began under the late Kemal Ataturk a bare generation ago.

The development may be interpreted more as a natural evolution than as a specific rebuke to the past political control. The time had come for a change from the one-party system, and the voters provided that change.

It was in 1921, at a critical moment in the Greco-Turkish war, that the Turkish National Assembly gave Kemal—famous soldier and commander in chief of the country's forces—the powers of dictator. He already had made a great name for himself, having among other things been responsible for the failure of the allied forces to capture the Gallipoli Peninsula in the First World War.

Having beaten the Greeks and regained Thrace, he turned his attention to consolidating his political position. He persuaded the National Assembly to abolish the Sultanate, declare the country a republic and name him as president.

The Big Boss

Kemal Ataturk then was indisputably the big boss. He convicted and hanged some of his opposition, and exiled others. He abolished the Moslem Caliphate and introduced the secular law. He also abolished the wearing of the fez and ordered that the Turks adopt the sol—which the faithful were required to wear in the Mosques.

Kemal Ataturk's policy was forcing it towards modernization in many leagues ahead. His many reforms included compulsory education and the abolishment of class distinctions.

Despite his toughness and his many faults, Ataturk was greatly loved by the rank and file of his people I was in Istanbul when he died in 1938, and that great metropolis was hushed and in tears.

The People's party naturally continued in power after Ataturk's death. However, it wasn't the cards that a single party which was in effect a dictatorship—should continue indefinitely. And so about four years ago a new party—the "Democratic"—was born.

Brampton Cows Take Three Places In First Ten

Toronto, May 18 — (CP) — A poll conducted by the American Jersey Bulletin has resulted in cows from Ontario emerging with a first, second and fifth place and each winner is located in Brampton, the Department of Agriculture said Wednesday.

Seven other winners in the 'big ten' are owned in the United States. The three Ontario cows are chosen for the honor are: Jester's Royal Maid, Brampton Basilus in first and second place and Brampton Lady Basilus in fifth place.

All three were developed in the world-famous Jersey establishment of R. H. Bull and Son of Brampton.

Jester's Royal Maid has a record of 12,111 pounds of milk and 816 pounds of fat.

Brampton Basilus is the world's champion Jersey producer of butterfat with a yearly record of 19,012 pounds of milk and 1,313 pounds of fat. In six lactations she produced for 86,500 lbs of milk and 6,383 pounds of fat — a world's record for all breeds for fat production in six lactations.

Brampton Lady Basilus, a daughter of Brampton Basilus, produced 16,000 pounds of milk and 9,119 pounds of butter-fat in 10 lactations thereby creating a world's record for butter fat production in 10 lactations.

Dean Escorted To His Car In Timmins

Timmins, May 18—(CP)— The "Red" Dean of Canterbury was hastily escorted to his automobile Wednesday night after an angry mob pelted his vehicle with eggs and tomatoes after he spoke on behalf of the Canadian Peace Congress.

Rev. Hewlett Johnson, an avowed communist sympathizer, was trapped by the angry 800 citizens in the Ukrainian Labor Temple for an hour before police provided that escort to protect him till with one thing or another, 7:30 p.m. Timmins time, he was whisked away.

The reception was similar to that given him earlier this week.

Wednesday night's disturbance by a group of 200 interrupted a speech advocating friendship with Soviet Russia. The Dean repeated that "Russia does not want war" and declared "the people of the world are for peace."

While the crowd milled around in front of the small hall, the 78-year-old Dean asked for police protection in order to leave. About 50 of the 200 persons in the hall had left when the irate crowd started throwing rocks, eggs and fire crackers. The other 150 refused to leave the building and carried out protection.

Two high school students and a man—all of them unidentified—were arrested during a brief skirmish.

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

OLD SUBSCRIBER

As a boy I was intrigued by pieces in the newspapers signed "Old Subscriber". That signature seemed to carry with it a sense of loyalty and appreciation. I felt sure proud those newspapers must have been to receive such letters for they were of current interest and always sincere.

I have encountered me that some day I would be, in a sense, a part of many newspapers, and receive such notes addressed, as well as by the author's own names, with remaining a fact, with assurance friends scattered to all points of the compass. From young and old I have been receiving letters of encouragement from readers of these talks, and it has been a precious asset to have had this privilege.

A few of these unseen friends have stood out as stars forever shining over my days—a shut-in invalid, a former newspaper worker in Ontario, a class of high school girls in Louisiana, a political "boss" in Tennessee, two blind girls in Nova Scotia, and perhaps quite a few others in Ayon, Oklahoma, W. A. Graham, who celebrates his 99th birthday May 18th. Many years ago this reader started his encouraging letters to me, and his inspiring life has been a wonderful uplift to me which I have no words adequate to express my appreciation.

So it is that I express publicly my best birthday wishes to a great old Christian gentleman who is a benefactor in his community, and a blessing to all who know and love him. Mr. Graham is president of his bank, and not only that but he goes to work each day, but for years has made it a habit to take a walk of five miles a day to keep in trim shape. He says that his legs were meant to be used, not to be wasted! Generously has he given to his small town, but his greatest gift has been a affection for his friends, and I am proud to be numbered among them.

It would take more space than this entire newspaper to enumerate, in detail, a host of friends Graham has given to the world in his long years of life. I have but my humble tribute of love and admiration and wish him a Happy Birthday on this, his 99th—and far from his last.

MAGIC MEDICINE FROM NEVER-NEVER LAND

Whatever has happened to the mysterious cure for "high blood pressure" that brought hundreds of inquiries in the mail five or ten years ago? You remember, don't you, suckers? The stuff purported to be derived from garlic or something. I suppose it would not have appealed so strongly to the imagination had it purported to be derived from onion or cabbage. Or course the fact that I receives few inquiries about it now is susceptible of more than one interpretation. The nostrum may have been taken off the market because it failed to sell. The prospective customers may have now learned enough to make them less credulous. Or the first package of pills may have cured every one and so correspondents are no longer concerned about "high blood pressure."

Interesting those queries about the garlic nostrum for "high blood pressure" I always felt frustrated. Somehow I could not arouse any reaction to my unfavorable opinion. On the other hand, the sophisticated persons who became intrigued by mysterious or magic remedies are mistaken if they think are very likely to reject or resent an exapt opinion when it fails to confirm their hope or expectation. As a matter of fact I collected a thick file of puzzled rejoinders from such persons or their near-doctors, which satisfied me at any rate that my teachings made some impression.

Whether the blood pressure is high, low or medium is an incidental detail in any case. I mean to say that blood pressure may be above normal or below the normal in a great many different disease states. It is just as sensible to employ a remedy, diet or method of treatment for high blood pressure as it would be to use a particular nostrum or diet for high pulse rate, high body temperature, high metabolism. The blood pressure becomes too high or too low in consequence of this or that disease. The blood pressure is too high or too low because the patient is ill with one thing or another. The illness, or impairment of health is not due to the high or low blood pressure. The soonest you get this through your head stupid, the better for your well being and longevity.

Of all the maltreatment to which gullible customers are subject themselves for "high blood pressure" the most vicious in the long run is probably the rock-bottom diet. Almost purgative doses of salts of one kind or another, in the childish fancy that excessive catharsis will "thin the blood"—as tho high blood pressure were due to "too rich" or "thick" blood. In most instances persons who have high blood pressure are more or less anemic—their blood is too "thin" or "poor". The constant or habitual use of salts not only damages the kidneys eventually but interferes with normal assimilation of calcium from the food, and calcium deficit is a common factor of—oh, well, let's say steadily failing health.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Corn Remedy

Kindly advise where I can purchase your corn remedy. (Mrs. C. J.)

Answer—Any druggist can supply it—solution or thirty grains of salicylic acid in one-half fluid-ounce of flexible collodion. Paint on corn or callus once a day for a week or days.

Sleeping Partners

What harm is there in a seven-year-old girl sleeping in a large bed with her grandmother. Bedroom window is always kept open all night. (Mrs. K. F.)

Answer—None, generally, however, every one should sleep alone, sleeping partners may disturb one another's rest. If either happens to be coming down with any illness, or a cold, the other is likely to catch it.

Cleanliness Pays Off

For years I suffered with pruritus, which often woke me from sleep at 2 or 3 a.m., scratching sometimes made it bleed. I took heed of what you say about this in your pamphlet, tried careful washing and drying as you direct. That was over a year ago. I have had no trouble since. (C. P. B.)

Answer—On written request any reader with stamped self-addressed envelope I'll send any reader the pamplet on pruritus (itching.)

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE PAST BECOMES THE PRESENT

Ralph Waldo Emerson once watched the experiments made at West Point to test the strength of guns. The officer in charge ordered the pieces of artillery to be fired once, twice, ten times, fifty times, one hundred times, in rapid succession. At last the guns began to explode. Emerson inquired which discharge had burst the gun, and the answer he received was "Every discharge." It was the result of an accumulation of forces. The last shot seemed to break the gun, but the gun had begun to break at the first shot.

You say that sin cannot be seen punished for some crime. Not so. He has been punished for being the kind of man whose conduct at last resulted in the perpetration of that crime. We may have to suffer on a particular count, but his soul has long since sentenced him on many counts.

You say that so-and-so has been converted—he got religion at the revival meetings. Not so. What happened at the revival meetings was the culmination of something that was preparing to happen for many a long day and year. It was not the last shot that broke the gun; it was all the shots combined. It is not one act that takes a man either into disgrace or glory. Disgrace or glory comes as a result of the way we have lived for years.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

Canadians are said to lack the festival spirit. For example, the English point to their own sense of festivity when spring comes to Kew Gardens, or when the chestnuts bloom in Bushy Park, and great throngs swarm the open spaces in a mood pretty close to abandon.

The French, the Germans, Norwegians all protest we are a stodgy lot, with no sense of mass joy. The nearest they say we can come to it is in our habit of swarming to hockey games, baseball, football, horse races; and after all, the largest gathering at any of these occasions is a few paltry thousand. And what is more, can anything be flatter, and less festive in mood, than the end of a baseball game or the last race at the track, when we all charge out of the grounds in a let-down that is positively sodden?

The final game of a great hockey series should surely be the occasion for some sort of a festival. When, at the conclusion of a word championship, the screaming crowd sees the winning goal, you would think a wet sponge had suddenly been flung at each and every member of the audience. Like pricked balloons, they deflate and file numbly out of the arena.

But—it is to be doubted if any country on earth has the country's part of the Canadian festival of spring and summer which is right now commencing, when every highway streams with countless thousands of week-end holiday makers heading for the picturesque country that almost immediately adjoins every populated section of Canada. It begins in May, it mounts to a frenzy in summer, and continues away into the autumn. It is pure festival. The only distinction is that we are not all sweated into one Bois de Boulogne or one Hampstead Heath.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beckman

GOOD MANNER S dutqU UI

Today's good hint for good manners:

Don't call attention to yourself by your rudeness, by your habitual lack of courtesy and consideration for others. There are so many pleasant ways to call attention to yourself . . . ways of charm . . . gentle ways to lift hearts and to make others comfortable and happy.

These two husbands speak together in language unknown to their wives

Dear Mrs. Beckman:

Please settle the following discussion my friend and I are having with our husbands. We are couples go to the theatre together for an evening's entertainment. Our husbands insist on walking together, and that leaves us to walk together. Later we proceed to a restaurant, they still walking together and we walking together. When we arrive in the restaurant they give us seats together and they sit together opposite. Then they talk together the entire time in a language unknown to us. Now our husbands insist that all this is perfectly good manners, and that we are silly—but we feel excluded and hurt. What do you think?

A. and K. (Canadian Wives) .

This is a boorish thing for your husband to do. . absolutely rude, absolutely selfish. But they are so stubborn (as they certainly sound) that they won't listen to reason or to the pleadings of you two ladies who are hurt and confused by their behavior in public, you and your friend will have to build your own heads proudly high and enjoy each other's conversation. (Or you might try a bit of spoofing . . . by "making up" a phony foreign language and gabbling in back) imitation of their gabbling. Probably they won't work . . . but at to them, revealing the unlistening to them, revealin ghe unlistelligibility of their language to you!)

Should they send wedding present?

Dear Mrs. Beckman:

We have just received an announcement of the marriage of our second cousin, but we received no invitation to the wedding.

Should we send a wedding present?

G. S.

The only answer is . . send a wedding present if you wish to. If invitations were sent out to the wedding (as your cousin's name to indicate there were) the fact that you received an announcement rather than an invitation suggests that the bride and her family do not consider their relationship to you a very intimate one. However, if only a few or approximately few guests were invited to the wedding and your contact or friendship with the family is not very close, of course the announcement would be appropriate and you may, if you wish, send a wedding present, perhaps something simple, thoughtfully-planned, but not necessarily at all expensive.

Ceremony . . Reception . . . Family dinner

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Our church ceremony will be in the afternoon, with the reception afterward at my home from about four o'clock to six o'clock. At the reception during these hours would it be proper for us to serve only light refreshments (cake, coffee, punch), and after the reception have a buffet dinner for the members of the families and close relatives?

E. G.

The answer to both these questions is Yes. . . if these plans are convenient with the plans for your departure. Customarily of course the bride and groom leave directly after the reception. But, occasionally, when there is some special reason for getting the families and relatives together on the day of the wedding at some time other than the reception-time, a luncheon, seated or buffet, may be given at an early hour before the ceremony-hour. So which plan you choose depends on which fits best with your other plans.

The Lure of Lace

By ALICE ALDEN

LOVELY lace makes its beauty over fine fashions, both as a dramatic fabric and as trimming. Beresford uses lace for one of the season's most delightful of blouses. A deep yoke of cobweby black Chantilly lace lends drama to a blouse of white silk chiffon. The chiffon middle is repeated in a fan of lace spanning the lower half of the blouse, and pointing up the petite bishop sleeve, caught at wrist. The tiniest of white collars, banded deeply in lace tops the blouse!

Harsh Parents Receive Blame for Prejudice

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

New York, May 17 — (AP) — Dictators in the home breed bigots and the kind of persons who would follow dictators in government, a new study finds.

It especially blames harsh and domineering fathers for creating many Americans who are violently anti-negro or anti-Negro, or who are easy pickings for sponsors of intolerant movements.

The five-year study for the American Jewish Committee has just been completed with publication of five books in a series entitled "Studies in Prejudice" (Harper and Brothers). The authors are 11 psychologists, sociologists, psychiatrists and anthropologists.

The purpose was to learn more about what makes human tick. Specifically, it was to learn why they may have deep religious or racial prejudices, or be swayed by agitators.

Fathers must take a lot of the blame, says Dr. Samuel H. Flowerman, co-editor of the series with Dr. Max Horkheimer, and director of scientific research for the committee. Fathers, and mothers, too, may warp their children's personalities by too strict discipline and lack of love, he said.

"The child grows up with a feeling of a world dominated by inexorable power—as represented by his parents.

"As an adult, he feels the need to submit to power. He sees the world as a war between the powerful and the weak. He wants to ally himself with the powerful. "He doesn't feel secure, and wants to go along with the crowd." He becomes hard-minded. He tends to fear and dislike people outside his own group. He sticks out his hate upon anyone who differs from his own group.

"Having lacked love, he is never really capable of feeling affection. He doesn't have insight or understanding of others."

The type of person often acts mild, even meek, Dr. Flowerman said, but "he tends to demand blind obedience from his own children." Discipline is all-important.

"In politics, he doesn't look for the deeper economic or social forces." He sees everything in terms of the powerful against the weak.

"He appears to defend Americanism, but he really wants to overthrow it inwardly, he fears freedom and wants to escape it."

This type of person is called the "authoritarian personality"—the title of the fifth book in the series. Its findings are based on tests of more than 2,000 persons from a variety of occupations.

The domineering parent is not the only cause of such a personality, Dr. Flowerman said, it was found to be a common cause. But this personality is almost always traced back to some childhood experiences.

One antidote is to rear children in a more democratic family life, and to give them affection. They probably then be far more likely to become independent and to be freer of prejudice. Schools, churches, and labor unions could also help by education.

The other books in the series deal with other phases of prejudice and human emotions.

Childhood Part Started Actress on Stage Career

Toronto, (CP)—How does a 19-year-old Toronto girl find any time for private life when she's a radio and stage actress, professional model, and university student to boot?

Pretty, dark-haired Toby Robins has the answer to this—she just doesn't.

At present, Toby is a first year arts student at the University of Toronto. She is a CBC actress, a member of the New Play Society, and also a fashion and photography model.

The versatile girl arrives at the university campus for her lectures at nine in the morning and usually is finished two hours later. She then skips down to the theatre for stage rehearsals. Toby says that on occasion she has time to get a fast lunch.

When asked what she does with her spare time, she says: I usually hurry myself in a psychology book."

Toby Robins decided to be an actress at the tender age of five. This happened when she was in kindergarten and had the part of "Golden Bear" in the Goldilocks" story.

Toby says that started her off on her career. She's been at it ever since.

When she was 14, Toby started studying dramatics at the Royal Conservatory of Music, where she studied there for five years and during that time took part in productions.

At 16 she won a dramatic scholarship to Northwestern University in Illinois.

Toby has just completed a season with the New Play Society in which she took part in eight productions.

Among them were George Bernard Shaw's "Heartbreak House," and Andrew Allen's "Narrow Passage."

She also has performed on the CBC's "Stage 50" series, the Ford Hour, and is currently in a new show called "Momma's Family."

Last summer, Toby modelled at the Canadian National Exhibition. She has also modelled for illustrations in various Canadian publications.

Her future plans? Toby says she would first like . . to get her university degree. However, she is looking forward to television. This summer she will appear with the Straw Hat Players in Gravenhurst, Ont., and Port Carling, Ont. The Straw Hatters are the group that recently toured Canada with an all-Canadian variety show called "There Goes Yesterday."

All this activity sounds—and is almost strenuous. But, when this is mentioned Toby has but one thing to say . . "There's no business like show business."

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A husband who gambles

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a housewife and the mother of a teen-ager. I have been married 17 years, and now I am at my wit's end.

My husband is a very heavy gambler. I have to give him for groceries, gas, electricity, and I haven't been able to pay anything on the house since January. We live in a very nice neighborhood and my daughter and I want to tell her we will have to move.

I would go to work myself, but I don't want my daughter to roam the streets while I am at work. I have no family of my own, and if I go to work I won't get anything from my husband. I have told him to leave us, but he will not. I told him I would have him arrested, but he pleads, and I forgive him. Then things are to work about a week, and that is all. I was going to take him to court and he said he would let himself. When I came home one day, the house was full of gas. He was unconscious. I revived him, and he behaved for another week, but now we're right back where we started from.

V. H.

Dear V. H.:

Your husband were to leave you, as you say you have asked him to do, you would no doubt be relieved at the moment, but I think you might just as well make plans to do so now.

Obviously, he is not going to be a man on whom you can ever depend, and the best advice I have to go on as you have been doing and pray.

If your daughter feels so badly about leaving the neighborhood in which she has grown up, I would want to do everything she could to help make the new home where you are now. Her part in that would be to help with some of the household duties and also to keep out of mischief, which you say was the reason something was going right at home.

It might be a help if you would discuss your problems with someone on the staff of an organization specializing in family problems. If you would like to write me again, sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope so that I can get directly in touch with you, I will tell you where to go for this kind of help.

Better take some definite step and take it soon. Don't be scared off by your husband's empty threats, either. He's just using them to try and keep you in line so he can go ahead and do as he pleases.

Her "love life" has failed—wants to be a man

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 18 and considered quite good-looking. But it seems that all of my love life has failed. I am therefore writing you this letter to ask you where I can get information on how I can go to school to become a man.

Kitty

Dear Kitty:

You could get the information you want from the pastor of your church or any spiritual adviser. If you are serious about this, get in touch with them.

It seems to me, though, that it would be a little wiser for you to wait until you are somewhat older, and see if you still really want to do with your life before taking such an important step for such a trivial reason.

You are probably feeling downhearted about the unresponsive boy has thrown you ever for another girl, or because you have not been able to attract the boy in whom you were particularly interested. But don't let yourself get too dramatic about it. I can assure you that if you give yourself a little time, you will almost certainly find there are lots of attractive boys around still in whom you can get just as interested. Don't try to decide your whole life in a hurry.

COALS TO CHURCHILL

Melfort, Sask. (CP) — A. R. Cadwell, field representative of the Hudson Bay route, urged farmers to take greater interest in the use of Churchill for grain shipments. He said Scotch anthracite coal may be coming to Churchill, Cadwell said, and chiefly where coal is not mined here. .

NEW DICTIONARY

Stockholm (AP)—A new, revised and modernized Swedish dictionary will be published this year. The work, it was said, will contain about 20,000 words, or twice as many as the 1923 edition. The increase is due to a more liberal acceptance of colloquial terms and compound words.

NOTED BARITONE DIES

Galt, May 18—(CP)— Charles McGregor, popularly known as Galt's Harry Lauder, died Wednesday. A native of Scotland, he was widely known in Ontario as a concert artist with the Massey and Maple Leaf quartets, for his impersonations of Lauder and for his Scotch stories.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

The movements of the hands are revealing

By their hands you shall know them

When women were clinging vines, had to wheedle their husbands when they wanted a new black silk Sunday dress, the ideal hand was a small, insipid, pink-and-white affair. The idea then was for a woman to look as useless as possible —the more useless-looking the more of a lady she was. It is to laugh! Now we know that capable hands possess beauty. Size doesn't mean anything. Hands—and feet, too—should be in proportion to the body.

The delicate, sensitive-looking hand can drive an airplane, swing a golf club or pound a typewriter. Gauzy hands may have figures that create glorious music as they pass over the keys of a piano. It's nice to have beautiful hands, but it is extra nice if they can do things that mean something in one's life.

The movements of the hands are revealing—more so than many of us realize. The fluttery woman who flutters hands, waving them about in futile senseless manner. The stern woman is likely to grip her fingers tightly. The woman with joyous, happy nature is likely to have expressive hands, to move them beautifully. The self-conscious girl has hands that get in all at once. She doesn't know what to do with them, wants to hide them.

It doesn't matter whether your hands are small or large, long or short, as long as they say something definitely about you and are perfectly groomed.

No matter what sort of work you may do, you can keep them in perfect condition. Even the woman who tramps the domestic treadmill all the day long, washes dishes, do the laundry, work, bathe the baby, who never have professional care, can by a few simple hand massage and manicures, yet their paws are soft, smooth and white.

To have them that way requires a little attention each day, with no time off. The hand lotion must be used all the time, remember. Some women fancy that the need for it ceases when the skin of the skin is likely to chap. That is an error. At least once a day a thick, semi-liquid lubricant will be applied.

Because frequent use of soap robs the hands of the natural oil that keeps the skin in good condition, it is necessary to have a creamy massage at least once a week. After anointing your complexion, give your hands the leavings.

Rub the cream into your knuckles; that's where hands start to look old. Friction it into your fingernails and the surrounding cuticle. Let it remain on over night.

Spring Shopping Formal Routine For Parisiennes

By DOROTHY WADDINGTON

Paris, (Reuters)—Opening for the buds on the horse chestnut trees which line the Champs-Elysees is the signal for every Parisienne to think of her spring wardrobe.

And for the traditionally smart Parisienne, this is indeed a carefully planned venture. In all budget groups, the new spring wardrobe consists of one of possibly two dresses and a suit or a coat depending on the last season's purchase.

Parisian women fall roughly into three shopping groups.

The first is "chateau madame", next there is the housewife and finally there is the working girl. Here is how each goes about it:

Chateau madame dresses at one of the top (hauteouture) fashion houses. Although a steady client of one house, she will undoubtedly first do the rounds of all the top collections.

Then, in the setting of luxurious grey carpets and crystal chandeliers she makes her choice of the best which Paris dressmakers have to offer. She generally buys her suits in one house and her evening clothes in another.

The housewife: She starts her shopping with visits to as many collections as she can get invitations for.

For her, to get an invitation becomes something of a problem and it is first a matter of calling upon all her friends who might have an acquaintance in the fashion house.

Once inside, each line she sees at the collection has to be applied to her last year's wardrobe—the black dress which can be brought up to date with white organdy ruffs; last year's hems that must be shortened this year.

"Little Dressmaker"

Combining ideas from the collections and a good fashion magazine, she arrives at roughly the style she wants. The next step is a visit to her "little dressmaker."

By taking the sleeve from one dress seen at Falth's, perhaps the corsage of another at Dior's and still another line from a dress seen at Piquet's a new design is made up. Usually the product is always a personal one, and the cost about 4,000 to 12,000 francs (roughly $12 to $36).

These little dressmakers" who do the work for not-so-rich, are a group by themselves. Working in tiny appartments or with dummies set up in the corner of their salons, they turn out beautiful examples of French workmanship.

The working girl: Hers is a completely different problem. The time factor is important and she spends precious time reading her favorite fashion magazines.

The French magazine carefully and thoroughly analyses all the new lines. These magazines, coupled with the complete reports of the collections in the newspapers, act as her personal fashion service.

Favorite Fashion

Sun dress and jacket

By VERA WINSTON

A favorite fashion for late spring and summer is the strapless sun dress with its own jacket to teamed to make a correct afternoon street outfit. Dark green cotton is used for these twain. The dress is topless for a modish bodice. The snug waist-length jacket is double-breasted and has a detachable white pique collar. The skirt is fully flared and has curved pockets at the hips.

CAR FERRIES SOLD

Montreal, May 18 (CP)— The Ontario car ferries, No. 1 and No. 2, owned by Canadian National Railways, have been sold to A. Newman and Company of St. Catharines, the C.N.R. has made known late Wednesday.

No price was disclosed. Nor did the company know what disposition is planned for the vessels by their new owners.

The car ferries operated between Rochester, N.Y., and Cobourg, Ont., in a service which discontinued April 30.

STARTED IN 1880

The Salvation Army in the United States was established in 1880.

Serve Veal For a Change

Veal, the inexpensive meat that almost doubles for chicken when it is well cooked and nicely seasoned, is not included often enough on the menus planned for spring meals.

Veal requires long slow cooking and should never be served until well cooked. People who prefer rare roast beef should never compare veal with beef. The home economists of the Consumer Section, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, are of the opinion that veal is too often served under-cooked and is therefore tough and unappetizing. Such meat could never be popular with any family.

Because it lacks fat, veal re-quires the addition of a generous amount of fat to give it that grey brown color and juiciness. The roast should be well covered with fat before roasting and basted as it cooks.

The mild flavor of veal allows variety in seasonings. Herbs such as thyme, parsley, rosemary or savory go well with veal but should be used with a light hand. Sometimes a little onion salt or a few grains of nutmeg will add distinction. Salt and pepper are standard seasonings but paprika is better than black pepper with veal.

These recipes come from Canada's Kitchen and are exceptionally good.

Veal Steak

1 1-2 pounds veal steak,
1-2 inch thick
2 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
Dash of paprika
1 1-2 cups sliced onion
3 tablespoons fat
1-2 cup chili sauce
1 1-2 cups boiling water
1-2 cup grated cheese

Cut veal into 6 pieces. Dredge with flour, season with salt and paprika. Brown veal and onions in hot fat. Add chili sauce, boiling water and grated cheese. Bring to boiling point, cover and simmer slowly until meat is tender, about 1 hour Yield: six servings.

Veal Shanks Piquant

6 three-inch pieces of veal shank, about 4 lbs
1-4 cup flour
1-4 teaspoon salt
1-4 cup fat
2 cups tomato juice
2 teaspoons spicy meat sauce
2 teaspoons horseradish
1 teaspoon salt
Few grains pepper

Dredge meat with seasoned flour. Brown in fat using a heavy frying pan or Dutch oven. Combine tomato juice, spicy meat sauce, horseradish, salt and pepper, bring to the boil and pour over meat. Cover and bake in a slow oven, 300 degrees F., for 3 hours or until tender. Thicken gravy with seasoned flour left from dredging. Yield; six servings.

Veal Corn Bake

2 pounds breast or shoulder of veal
2 tablespoons flour
1-2 teaspoon salt
1-4 teaspoon pepper or paprika
3 tablespoons fat
1 1-2 cups cream-style corn
1 1-2 cups milk.

Remove bone and cut meat in half inch slices. Combine flour, salt and pepper and roll meat slices in mixture. Melt fat in frying pan and saute meat until well browned. Arranged pieces in greased casserole. Combine corn and milk and pour over meat. Cover and bake in a moderately slow oven, 325 degrees F., for 1 1-2 hours. Remove cover and continue to bake 1-2 hour longer. More milk may be added during cooking, if necessary. Yield: six servings.

Fashion Flashes

NEW ALLIANCES in the fabric world make for interest in summer costumes. A handsome afternoon costume is made up of a simple black dress in fine Irish linen topped by a matching cape-let bolero. When removed, this discloses the dress top, which is a deep yoke with high, rounded neckline and puffed sleeves of fine black lace.

HAVE YOU noticed how similar half-sizes and dresses for women are of late? Many models are as nice to look at as they are in sweet 16, which is all to the good. One such model is of navy or blue chiffon fashioned on shirt-waist lines tucked in long, flat-tering lines with plain bands at the collar and small, pointed lapels; for the button panel and for the cuffed bands that edge the short sleeves. Button and cuff links of rhinestone-studded jet.

LOOKING AROUND at the furs worn at important Spring evening events reveals the new and clever handling of different furs, other than the usual little ermine or mink piece. A 22-inch jacket is of Chinese carcaud dyed a pale, misty beige, with two full pastel mink skins for each cuff. Collar curves into wide tuxedo fronts, and jacket is fully flared in back. Pockets are concealed in jacket front.

WELCOME THE SAILOR as one of the favorite Spring hats. All-white straw in a rough, shiny weave makes a sailor that is worn level, and tilted slightly forward. Deep crown band of white patent leather, and tight mask veil of coarse black chicken mesh.

AT LEAST one very distinguished suit on classic tailored lines appears in every smart gathering. A beauty is in pale gray worsted made with a long, fitted jacket with double-breasted closing. The collar curves into pointed revers that slim to the waist. White pique folds outline collar and revers and the curved pockets.

Ladies Rule Town, Election Day Joke Backfires on Men

By LEO MARKS

Stella, Mo., (AP)— The rolling pin instead of the gavel rules this Ozark country town of 300 persons in the southwestern corner of Missouri.

Spinster Mayor Norma Westcott and an all-women administration were swept into office in the April 4th elections—all because of a joke that backfired on their menfolk.

"And why not?" asks Mayor Westcott. "Stella is a woman's name, and it's only fitting that women should rule the town."

Bill Prine, whose wife succeeded him to the council, said: "It's going to be hard to live down, but it happened and there's not much we can do about it."

"Oh, yes," he added hastily after a glance at Mrs. Prine, "we'll do everything we can to help the women run the town."

Besides Miss Westcott and Mrs. Prine, the other officials are Miss Cleta Cardwell, Mrs. Cora Edmondson, Mrs. Verna Hinton, Mrs. J. L. Edmondson and Mrs. Oliver Deal.

A "Swell Joke"

Their names were added to the list of candidates all in fun. The men gleefully told each other that it was a "swell joke."

"Let's give 'em a vote or two so they won't feel too badly. They can't win."

Came election day and the joke had switched.

Mayor Westcott called the councils first meeting to order with an old hand-made rolling pin, her grandmother's.

"I intend to see this town run the right way—if I have to use this," she wiggled the rolling pin jokingly.

The first major problem facing Stella's distaff administration is a large dog population. Mayor Westcott said a dog catcher will be appointed.

"You bet your life we'll name a woman to the job," she declared. "But she'll act in an administrative capacity."

We'll pick a man as her assistant—he'll do the actual work."

By the author of "THE FACE IN THE ASPIC"

A recipe with fifty ingredients would hardly be practical in today's kitchens. Yet when you use wine in a cooking recipe, you are using a food which contains over 50 identified flavors, represented by the grapes, the fermenting substances and the yeasts.

This complex flavor analysis was described by Dr. A.-J. Haagen-Smit, California Institute of Technology chemist, in an address at the American Chemical Society meeting in Philadelphia.

Needless to say no wine connoisseur would claim to be able to describe all 50 flavors. But even people with ordinary taste reactions can recognize that wine gives a subtle invigorating savor when cooked with meats, poultry or fish.

The cooking purposes expensive wines are not necessary. But you should have a bottle each of domestic red and white wines as part of your kitchen stock. Be sure the wines have no trace of sweetness; that is, they should be of the "dry" type.

Chicken with Raisin Wine Sauce

Serves 4.

Order a 3 1-2 pound spring chicken cut up as for frying. If two broilers are used, have them split. Remove all pin feathers. Singe chicken, if necessary. Place pieces of chicken in a paper bag with 1-2 cup flour, 1-4 teaspoon paprika, 1 teaspoon salt and 1-8 teaspoon pepper.

Shake bag thoroughly to coat pieces of chicken. Save any excess flour for similar use.

Melt fat to a depth of 1-4 inch in a heavy frying pan. Brown chicken thoroughly on all sides. Remove chicken from pan when browned.

In a saucepan fitted with lid melt 2 tablespoons fat. Add 2 tablespoons finely chopped garlic, things, finely chopped onion and 1-2 teasp. finely chopped garlic, yellow. Remove from flame. Add 1 tablespoon flour, mixing well. Gradually add 1 cup hot chicken broth. Use canned broth or 1 cup hot water with 1 chicken bouillon cube. Add 1-4 cup tomato juice and 1-4 cup dry white wine.

Add chicken to saucepan. Cover with lid and simmer 50-60 minutes or until chicken is very tender.

Remove chicken to serving platter. Skim excess fat from gravy. Add 1-4 cup raisins. Bring to boil. Add salt and pepper to taste. Pour hot raisin sauce over chicken in serving plates or platter.

Guides, Brownies Display Dolls for Eskimo Children At Spring Tea and Sale

Yesterday afternoon a charming spring tea and sale of home cooking, sponsored by the Girl Guides of the city, was held at the home of Dr. J. Forrester, and Mrs. Forrester, 65 Bridge Street East. Mrs. Forrester and her co-hostess, Mrs. A. S. Lewis, received the friends and guests at the door, assisted by Mrs. R. D. Arnott, association secretary, and Mrs. John Watson, District Commissioner, and graciously welcomed them into the restful atmosphere of softly tinted green walls, lovely landscape paintings, and the delicate perfume of sweet peas and daffodils, which lovely picture was again repeated in the great mirrored fireplace.

After being received, the guests wended their way to the fantastically display of dolls, which occupied three rooms & the immaculate effect rooms table. Here were dolls of every description, black haired dolls, curly headed dolls, wool and baby dolls dressed in white knit suits; dolls in pink silk dresses, with matching hats; medium sized dolls, in crocheted ensembles; tiny dolls wrapped in cellophane, still undressed; dolls with golden curls and blue eyes, with dimples in their cheeks; some even wore plaid jackets with collars of fur.

Besides these dainty little playthings, there were cuddly animals; a blue elephant with great flapping pink ears; a sleepy white cat with long whiskers and droll-looking green dog with long, brown ears, a new breed of cocker spaniel and toys of all descriptions, story books, and gingham kittens, whose faces looked like wise old owls.

Made by Brownies

In an adjoining room one found the pink gingham twins, little black dolls dressed in romper suits, wig cute little sun-bonnets to match; red-faced rag dolls, called "Brownie-kins", a doll dressed in white organdy edged with blue satin ribbon, and Peter rabbit eating a carrot. These dolls had been made, and dressed by the Brownie Packs, convened by Miss Jyling, and were to be sent to the Grenville Mission in Labrador for the little Eskimo children who so very seldom see any lovely toys like these.

Last year a pair of twin dolls had been sent for the twin Eskimo little girls, but it seems that all the twins in Labrador are boy babies. Nothing daunted, the Brownies are again exhibiting their faith that some day there may be girl twin babies, so the two little black dolls in pink gingham, are an outstanding exhibit of the Brownies firm faith in the ultimate outcome.

In another room, some especially pretty dolls in crocheted dresses, some in pink and some in white, and all bearing a special name, had been donated to this worth-while work in Labrador, and left in charge of Mrs. Branscombe, through whose efforts this project of doll-dressing had been envisaged. In speaking to Mrs. Branscombe, she related that last year, one little Eskimo girl, who had never seen a doll, was so overcome with happiness when one was given to her, that she cried. For some time, the Eskimo mothers would not let the little girls play with the dolls, for fear of soiling them. But, said Mrs. Branscombe, the edict went forth, "No play, no more dolls." So now, the little girls of cold Labrador may have the same enjoyment as their little white cousins in the warmer Ontario.

Centred by Flowers

In the dining room, the tea table was laid, centred with a silver bowl of pastel pink sweet peas, and asparagus fern, upon a beautiful and exquisite Italian lace cloth of fairy-like fineness with pointed edge. Presiding at the silver tea services were Mrs. H. Branscombe, Mrs. Hall, Mrs. A. E. May and Mrs. W. H. Ponton. Those who served included, Mrs. F. Leach, Mrs. R. Settle, Mrs. H. Samuels, Mrs. H. Amos, Mrs. Johnson, Mrs. Bell, Mrs. Donohue, Mrs. F. Clarke, Mrs. J. Clarke and Mrs. Ron Keel.

Those replenishing the tea plates were Mrs. W. J. Cole, Mrs. Townson and Mrs. J. J. Trudeau, and inviting to the tea room, Mrs. C. Ryan and Mrs. Fuller. Mrs. Inge made the tea, and Mrs. W. Fox arranged the dainty and tempting plates of tiny cakes and sandwiches.

In charge of a most beautiful cake, with fluffy pale pink icing which jutted out in points tipped with silver balls and crowned with a mound of hostess variegated gum drops, were Mrs. T. P. Aman and Mrs. C. T. Penny. This cake, whose donor wished to be anonymous, but whose handiwork revealed her identity, was to go to the holder of the lucky ticket, who was Mrs. E. E. Fulwell.

Delicious Tarts

On the home cooking table where delicious tarts, pies, chocolate eclairs, iced cakes, cup cakes, tiny loaves of home-made bread, and tea buns, cookies, cup cakes covered with cocoanut and chocolate icing; white cakes with tiny little decorations of many colors, and delicious looking, and finding ready purchasers. Convening this table were Mrs. D. Stewart, Mrs. E. Lally and Mrs. T. Fleury.

Directly across from the home cooking table, was that of the handcraft, with many kinds of work, little black scottie dogs book-ends of Indian heads; little groups of three monkies, depicting the good advice, "See no evil, speak no evil, hear no evil." This was in charge of Miss Barbara McLuskie and Miss Ann Briens of Company 2.

The treasurer was Mrs. J. Heath.

Appreciative thanks are due the gracious hostesses, the cooperating Mrs. Lewis and to the founder of the missionary doll movement, for a most delightfully planned and executed Spring tea, home cooking and doll exhibition.

Scripture was read by Mrs. E. Lane followed by prayer by Mrs. J. Sine. "Growing With the Years" was the topic and was taken in parts by Mrs. Hickol, Mrs. Latta, Mrs. Kingston, Mrs. Phillips, Mrs. Harris and Mrs. Fluher.

The treasurer's report was given by Mrs. L. Ketcheson.

A social time was spent and refreshments were served by the lunch committee.

Queen Mary H.&S. Association Holds Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of Queen Mary Home and School Association was held recently in the school auditorium. The president, Mrs. L. F. Hopkins, presided.

During the business period, the question of school dress was discussed for Grade IX students; Mr. Enos David explained plans pertaining to the financing of the play grounds in the city, and the approval of the board members was obtained to make a donation to this fund.

Annual reports were given by the officers of the executive, as well as reports by the retiring committee convenors, all showed a successful year for the association.

Miss Clara Wilson was presented with the sr. school attendance prize for the year, and Miss M. Blue received the jr. school prize for her class.

The slate of officers, presented by Mrs. Daniel Stewart for the nominating committee, was unanimously elected to office for the coming year, as follows: president, L. F. Hopkins; vice presidents, Mrs. Ray Poste and Mr. Willis Jackson; treasurer, Mr. E. M. Lush; recording secretary, Mrs. Jack Grills; corresponding secretary, Mrs. F. Nelson; executive members, Mr. H. Regensburg, Mr. C. Doolittle, Mrs. R. L. Orr, Mrs. J. Harewood and Mrs. Wright.

The new officers were installed by Mrs. W. H. Finkle, district chairman. Mr. C. I. Frederick, principal of the school, extended the association's appreciation to Mrs. H. Croll, who had been the first president of Queen Mary Home and School Association.

Mrs. Croll, who is leaving shortly to take up residence in another city, was on behalf of the association, presented with a gift by Mrs. Hopkins, for which Mrs. Croll graciously thanked the donors both for their gift, and the kindly wishes on her behalf.

RAWDON

Carmel United Church Holds Special Services

Rawdon — On Sunday afternoon, May 14th, Carmel United Church was filled to capacity for the Mother's Day service and dedication of pew Bibles.

The church was resplendent with potted plants, vases of wood-land flowers and two memorial sheets in memory of Mrs. William Carlisle from her family, and in memory of Barbara Stapley from her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Stapley.

The pastor, Rev. A. E. Baker, minister of St. Paul's-Carmel circuit, presided and welcomed the guests.

Baptismal Font Donated

A mother memorial baptismal font was donated to Carmel United Church by Mr. Edward (Ted) Reynolds, in loving memory of his mother, Mrs. Janet Elizabeth Reynolds, who entered her rest at Dover, England, April 22nd, 1945.

Mr. Frank Bailey graciously accepted the gift on behalf of the Carmel trustee board. The minister dedicated the font and Mr. William Reynolds sang "Mother O'Mine."

Ida Mae Bailey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Bailey "Pleasant Meadow's Farm," Rawdon, was the first baby baptized in the new font. She was presented with a silver loving cup and suitably engraved on this historic occasion.

The second baby, Donald Everett Armstrong, son of Jack G. and Mary Pearl Armstrong, was then baptized.

Mother's Day Gift Bibles

Seventeen gift Bibles were dedicated by Rev. A. E. Baker and those included Bibles in memory of Mrs. Claude Sharp, Mrs. William Carlisle, Mrs. A. J. Thompson, Mrs. John Forrester, and others.

The Bibles, in honor and loving tribute to mothers who are living, included one of special interest, when Jimmie Scallan, aged eleven, purchased a Bible out of his pocket money, for the ministry, and inscribed in it to his mother, Mrs. Ray Keating, Carmel, from Jamie, Fred and Douglas Keating and Albert Howard. This came as a complete surprise. Amongst the other Bibles were those in honor of Mrs. Arthur Brown, Peterborough; Mrs. Milton Hagerman; Mrs. Ed. Pyear and Mrs. Minnie Bonnalla, of Carmel community. A full list will be published on the silver jubilee service program.

The Heart of the Home

Major Steel Items In Tight Supply In All Areas

New York, May 18 (AP)— The Iron Age, metalworking trade weekly, reports today "a note of asperity" in the steel market this week, with most major steel items in tight supply in all areas.

"Both steel consumers and producers are convinced that present booming demand is no flash-in-the-pan," the publication says. The outlook is for a very tight market in steel for many weeks.

"To producers this means an extended production battle to recoup production delayed by strikes and satisfy their customers' needs at the earliest possible date.

Steelmaking operations this week touched another record high with production set at 101 per cent of capacity, the trade weekly says.

Chimpanzee Makes Dash for Freedom Soon Recaptured

Brantford, May 18—(CP) —A full-grown chimpanzee made a dash for freedom yesterday from his cage at the Wallace Brothers carnival in Agricultural Park. Before he was recaptured he had terrorized dozens of onlookers and sent dozens more scurrying for cover.

Making his escape when the cage was accidentally left open after he was fed, the chimpanzee weighing about 150 pounds, scampered around the carnival area with several attendants in full pursuit.

Outdistancing his pursuers, the animal made his way to Catharine Avenue where he scared children who were playing.

Someone called police and said that an ape was running loose in West Brantford.

Meanwhile the animal had continued on to Brant Street where he was collared and surrounded by carnival employees.

As they closed in on the animal, which was probably more frightened than those who fled from his path, he turned and reared suddenly, bowling several of the men over.

While police kept the crowds at a safe distance, he was secured by a chain fastened to a long pole and taken back to his cage.

Kingsridge

By Alice Ross Colver

Through her glasses on Country Club Ridge, Alicia saw the red roadster stop in the lane, saw Susan flash in and presently, come slowly out again. Susan was darling and Susan was loved between them.

"Lester."

"Yes?"

His tone was as suave as ever, but her senses warned her that he was prepared. He had been prepared and waiting for weeks. She knew it because not once had he mentioned Gerry's name since he had been a guest here. He was waiting for her to show her hand first.

With careful lightness she said, "Well, I've been thinking. And I was wondering if there was any way we could help—you could help, I mean — young Gerald Barton!"

He put down his fork and looked at her a full moment before replying. Then softly, his answer came.

"And why, if you please, should I help young Gerald Barton?"

"Simply because it would be a decent thing for you to do. That's the chief reason. It's not going to be easy for him, you know, to get a start. He's personable enough. . ."

"You find him so?"

She went on as if she had not heard, "but he lacks experience. And he knows nobody of importance."

"May I remind you that he knows Judge King?"

Alicia shrugged a careless laugh. "You're perfectly well aware how the judge feels about him. He won't lift a finger. He doesn't like him."

Lester picked up his fork again and began pairing his potatoes into a neat pile.

"Nor do I like him. Nor will I lift a finger for him," he said briefly.

"But that's rather ridiculous, isn't it? The judge has a reason, in Susan, perhaps, but you. . ."

The fork stopped its patting and scattered. Lester looked at Alicia saw his eyes, pale and flat as mackerel's eyes, saw the cold narrowness of his face, and heard his voice, still soft and courteous saying quietly, but with cold sting and whipped.

"That is final. Except that I don't quite understand your interest in this young man. And, not understanding, I feel compelled to wonder if I may not have a reason, too? At any rate, if he ever appears on my place again, I will set the dogs on him. That, I repeat is final."

"You don't mean that."

Alicia sat motionless staring at nothing after her husband was gone. She did not believe him. He was using a threat to keep Gerald away because behind Lester's beautiful mask of manners was a consuming jealousy. She had known it, of course. Once, years ago, in their early days together, she had made the mis take at a dance of carrying on a long and unconsequential flirtation with someone whose name she had now forgotten. She and Lester had never gone to a dance again. Instead, they had not stayed through that one, and all the way home in the car he had maintained a grip on her arm that had left it bruised for weeks. She had understood, then, how she must conduct herself henceforth. And so she had. But now. . ."

"Now is different," she said aloud to herself.

Later that night when he came to the door between their rooms he found it locked. And when he spoke her name she made no answer. Twice he called but she remained silent. Only the storm that had broken at last in her heart made any noise and that he could not hear.

The next morning at breakfast he greeted her as usual but after the maid had retreated to the kitchen he put down his paper.

"So," he said "you believe in blackmail?"

"Blackmail?"

"Unless I interest myself in this Gerald Barton, you have no interest in me."

She put down her cup.

"I'm sorry," she said almost gently, "My timing wasn't very good. The truth is that I lost interest in you years ago. Years ago. I've just been slow in letting you know."

"Strange how slow you've been," he remarked.

She did not reply and he was silent for so long that she wondered what he could be thinking. Presently he said, "it would make no difference?"

She hesitated. To make a bargain would be to admit that Gerry meant something to her. And she did not trust Lester. Not that much. After a moment her answer came, low but decisive. "I'm afraid none." She paused. "I hope . . . Well, what I want to say is that I know you've been good to me, Lester. I appreciate it. I don't want to be—to feel—unfriendly. It's just that I can't go on that way any more."

He did not reply. He simply resumed eating his breakfast. Then he rose, still without a word, and left her sitting there numb and cold and utterly indifferent.

The snow that had begun falling on the day that Susan and Donald returned to their schools continued to fall intermittently through the rest of the month. By the end of it, a record depth had been reached for the suburban area around Kingsridge, and all but the main highways were blocked save for foot travel. Train service was disorganized. But service was irregular. The town, possessing only one small plow, was doing its best but it was a poor best. The Kings on their Ridge found themselves marooned once for a week. The Brandts, on theirs for 10 days. The Ferguson, living only a block from the centre of town, were better off; but Gerry trying to get back and forth to the city, spent most of his time on the road. He was late getting to the Simpsonlind and still later getting home. However, that matter of little moment he had no social life to follow, no evening engagements to keep.

Once Jane Baird chanced to meet him outside of the movies and they sat together through the show. But she was ill at ease the whole time and when he invited her to the local drugstore afterward, she refused.

"I'm sorry," she said. "I can't tonight."

"Another night?"

She shook her head, her color coming up. "I—we'll see." She laughed a little, trying to joke. "Don't rush me!"

But he understood. "So," he said with his wry smile, "you're not going to be a friend after all."

She spoke quickly, ashamedly. "I'd like to. Really, I would. Donald said it was all right. But my people—well, you know—they're good friends of the Kings."

He made a short impatient sound. "Enough said. Well, good night, Miss Baird."

He walked back to his room at the inn with bitterness in his heart and a slow, coiling rage. He had no job as yet. And in this town save for the Fergusons who had invited him out for dinner, he had no friends, Timothy Grant had not called. Nor had he heard from Alicia.

Then the very next day he met her.

He had gone into New York on another of those fruitless interviews when he saw her walking along Fifth Avenue, a tall sledder woman in a handsome Persian fur coat and a small gray wool beret and shiny fur topped boots. She was moving with a remembered lithe and lazy grace past the shop windows, and, without conscious volition or clear intent, he caught up with her and touched her on the arm.

"Hello, Alicia."

She turned quickly and the flash he recognized in her eyes confirmed a memory that had remained uncertain and incredible in his mind.

"Gerry." For a moment she seemed to waver between decision came into her face. "You, of all people!" she said, with bright casualness. "When I was just thinking about you. Just wondering how you were getting on. Shall we have a drink somewhere? And you can tell me."

There was a hotel at hand, her favorite, she called it, and they went in. It was between rush hours of the day so there was no difficulty about a table in the cocktail room. They found one in a corner behind palms and, in her chair opposite him, she laid off her gloves and tossed back her coat with an indescribable little air of happiness.

"This is nice," she said, when they had given their order to the waiter.

"Not safe, perhaps, but nice. Or," his dark eyes danced suddenly into hers "maybe it isn't eyes that, I'm not sure we are."

He did not know what prompted this freedom of speech with her. Simply she put him at ease as no one else he knew did. With her he was understood, as she was by him, and their tacit knowledge of each other, together with a mutual trust, made it unnecessary for him to be guard. It was a curious but wholly satisfying feeling.

She sat now considering his words which had abruptly brought them to the edge of intimacy. Then she leaned out her hands in an acceptance of it. But her tone remained casual.

"If we aren't," she said, leaning to the light he held for her cigarette "where do we go from here?"

FLOOD PICTURE

of army-drafted plans for general evacuation of the population if power and water supplies failed.

But Mr. Stephens said the river must fall five feet before the hazard disappeared. That would be at least 10 days.

"The weather and what happened to the Assiniboine, a Red tributary entering the Red alongside Winnipeg's business area, held the key to metropolitan safety in that period."

Volunteers Sharply Cut

But while Mr. Stephens and Brig. Rohald Morton, the army flood commander, expressed concern about continued peril, there was a different attitude in the city. The need for diking volunteers was sharply cut, at least for now. Radio stations no longer blared flood warnings and official notices. The poise of sandbag trucks and bulldozers was waning.

And the politics of repair and rehabilitation began to take attention from the Surly River and its tributaries which have flooded 600 square miles of southern Manitoba and one-sixth of central greater Winnipeg, driving 80,000 persons from their homes.

"What would Ottawa do?"

A preliminary reply came yesterday from Prime Minister St. Laurent in the House of Commons: Fact-finding commissions will report on the extent of financial aid required and how to prevent a similar disaster in future.

He said Manitoba has appointed D. Bruce Sharp, a Winnipeg investment banker, to study the "nature and extent" of the flood, and the cost of flood fighting, emergency relief and emergency precautions against a recurrence. The federal government had named J. R. Carswell, Vancouver engineer to make a similar survey.

Acting as commissions, they would report the facts necessary "to determine the amount of the grant which the federal government should make to the government of Manitoba in order to assist that government in discharging its responsibilities in respect of the flood."

P.M. to Visit Area

The Prime Minister plans to visit the flood area, it was indicated, though a date was not set.

Defence Minister Claxton, acting External Affairs Minister in the absence in London of Hon. L. B. Pearson, said the International Joint Commission has been asked to speed recommendations for control of the Red, which rises in the United States and flows north into Lake Winnipeg. The commission has been studying the problem for two years.

What would the Manitoba government do?

Premier Douglas L. Campbell, head of the Coalition Government comprised mainly of Liberal-Progressives and Progressive Conservatives made no specific commitments.

Mr. Campbell announced yesterday an embryo plan to build a giant, 22-mile-long spillway to carry part of the Red's annual run-off east of the city, away from built-up areas.

But some municipal leaders were boiling mad at what they termed inertia of the Campbell government in dealing with the rehabilitation of the flooded areas.

Mayor Garnet Coulter of Winnipeg said a Tuesday meeting with the Premier got "nowhere." Alderman C. E. Simonite said Mr. Campbell's handling of the flood situation comes "pretty close to criminal neglect of the people the is supposed to represent."

Will Shelve Plan

The weather and the behavior of Red tributaries apparently would decide when Brig. Morton's emergency plans general evacuation of the greater Winnipeg area could be shelved.

A heavy, two-day rain —not unknown in Southern Manitoba during May—could force the Red to rise sharply. There was still the risk bad weather could put it above the 32.5 foot level at which utilities would almost certainly fail and the army's "I" plan be put in effect. Rain would also weaken further the dikes protecting hundreds of Winnipeg homes, from St. Boniface northward to east and west Kildonan.

The forecast was for stiff southerly winds, which could push more water from river-formed "Lake Morris," in Southern Manitoba, toward the city.

In southeastern Manitoba the short, narrow Souris River began to act up. It rose three inches at Melita, 60 miles southwest of Brandon, and spilled over its low banks. Possibly, though not likely, the Souris water would drive into its parent Assiniboine and "pile up" at the Junction in Winnipeg Centre.

However, from Brandon, 150 miles west of here, came word that the Assiniboine dropped an inch late yesterday after a two-inch drop the previous day. The river has remained comparatively low throughout the Red's surging activity.

Intensify Guard

Along the sand-and-earth dikes guarding a branch of Winnipeg and St. Boniface, word was passed to patrol parties to intensify their guard against a sudden break. The army, worried that residents of two cities are becoming too complacent because the Red is not rising, renewed its warnings that danger remains.

From the dark committee room in Manitoba's legislative building where Premier Campbell, daily meets the press, came renewed urging yesterday that Manitoba's persons evacuate the flood zone to give the army and civilian volunteers a free hand in the mounting flood battle. More than 90,000 persons are estimated to have left the area during the last week, but the evacuation pace has slowed sharply.

NAVAL WARTIME

financial assistance for flood victims in Manitoba and five victims in Rimouski and Cabano Que.

Justice Minister Garson said a detachment of Royal Canadian Mounted Police is being sent into British Columbia to help quell Doukhobor disturbances.

In the senate, Senator L. M. Gouin (L—Quebec) veteran student of international affairs, warned that the United States would swallow up Canada if the two countries were to merge economically without inclusion of other countries.

The debate on distribution of prize money brought from Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, V.C., (PC—Nanaimo) the charge that the government's action in discharging the traditional distribution was "high-handed and arbitrary." Naval men, remembering prize money received from the First World War, had a "reasonable expectation" on it from the last war as "an act of grace."

Giving to Navy

David Fulton (PC-Kamloops) said though Britain had decided not to distribute prize money in future, she was going through with it from the last war so far as the Navy was concerned. He would expect Canada to do the same.

Ray Thomas (SC-Wetaskiwin) said it was the right of every sailor in the navy to expect his share of the prize money and J. M. Macdonnell (PC-Toronto Greenwood) said perhaps a good many men had joined the Navy expecting to get prize money.

H. P. Cavers (L—Lincoln) and Mr. Sinclair joined Defence Minister Claxton in refuting the opposition criticism and charges. Mr. Cavers said men of the Navy joined up on a much higher principle than prize money.

Most of them now were rehabilitated and were agreed that the money should be turned over to the funds to be used to help less fortunate fellow servicemen, Mr. Cavers added.

Mr. Sinclair, a wartime squadron leader in the R.C.A.F., said if there was to be prize money, the Army should get it. The Army had captured more prizes than the Navy ever had. As a Canadian and a veteran, he was glad to see this step to put the services on an equal footing. Distribution of prize money belonged to the privateer era and had no place in the modern concept of armed forces.

The Fairest Way

Mr. Claxton said it had been decided that giving the money to the funds would be the fairest way.

There had been no holding out of prize money as a method of inducement in naval recruiting and he did not think there was a principle involved.

Discussion of tariffs arose on consideration of amendments to the Customs Tariff Act, which will implement changes forecast in the budget in March.

In the debate Victor Quelch (SC — Acadia), said the U. S. tariff wall against Canadian goods was still pretty big, and Mr. Coldwell termed a 75-cent-per-100-pound U. S. tariff against Canadian potatoes "pretty well prohibitive." H. R. Hatfield (PC — Victoria-Carleton) asked "protection" against American potato competition.

S. M. Clark (L — Essex South) said Canadian vegetable growers already had received substantial benefits in the form of U. S. tariff cuts effected at the Geneva Trade Conference. It was hoped there would be more, including that on potatoes, at the forthcoming tariff conference at Torquay, England.

Mr. Sinclair said the danger in this was that growers might "get to date so early that there would be a shortage and the consumer would suffer."

Shute Brothers Get Medical Hearing, Ask for 'Unbiased' Study of Vitamin E

Most Dangerous Month for Fires In Woods is May

Montreal, May 18—(CP) — A warning that this is normally the most dangerous month of the year for forest fires was issued today by President D. A. Gillies of the Canadian Forestry Association.

Records kept by fire protection authorities, he said, show that the greatest number of fires in most parts of Canada occur in May, before the season's growth of new vegetation develops, and again in July and August, after considerable periods of hot, dry weather.

He appealed to the general public to use common sense and good judgment with fire and added that "the Canadian Forestry Association which computes fire loss by adding to timber worth the loss in potential wages, estimates our loss last year at about $50,000,000."

UC Congregations Send Sandwiches By Tons to 'Peg

Winnipeg, May 18 — (CP) — United Churches throughout Canada are sending tons of sandwiches daily to flood victims and dike workers, Rev. Dr. W. G. Martin, president of the Manitoba conference of the United Church of Canada, said today.

"Our churches are distributing countless gallons of hot coffee, as well as chocolate bars, donuts and chewing gum," Dr. Martin said. "Winnipeg's United Churches are doing a magnificent job. In addition to looking after the spiritual needs of the people and bringing comfort to the distressed, our ministers are working on the dikes".

$20,000 Loss At Kitchener

Kitchener, May 18 (CP)—Damage was estimated at about $20,000 in a fire which early today gutted William Rendell's Potato Chip Plant in Bridgeport, a Kitchener suburb.

The two-storey cement block structure is a total loss. By the the time firemen were summoned, the blaze of undetermined origin had doomed the building.

Hampered by lack of water, the Bridgeport fire brigade fought to keep the flames from spreading to the nearby home of William Ronfeld, owner of the plant.

The plant, which went into operation about a year ago, also housed two apartments on its second floor. They were vacant at the time of the fire.

Apparent Suicide Found in New York

New York, May 18—(CP)—The body of a man tentatively identified as Saul Stein, 43, of Sudbury, Ont., was found in a park here today with a bullet wound in his head.

Police listed the death as an apparent suicide. A .38-calibre revolver was found beneath the body. The man was identified by papers in his pockets.

There was no money in his wallet and only a five-cent Canadian coin in his pockets.

Papers indicated the dead man had served in the R.C.A.F. and was a member of the Essex Scottish Regiment.

Ottawa, May 18 — (CP) —The men who developed vitamin E treatment of heart disease said today the controversy over its use will some day be looked on as "silly — and yet most amusing."

Drs. E. V. and W. E. Shute of London, Ont., appeared to the Ontario Medical Association a part of volume 3 of "The Summary, Journal of the Shute Foundation for Medical Research.

They pleaded for an unbiased study of their claims and a fair opportunity to reply to their critics. Many doctors, they said are using the very treatment on which so many doctors frown.

They expressed thanks for this first opportunity to tell their story to the Ontario Association. It was a move toward fair "trial by the rank and file of the profession." However, it came four days after announcement of their discovery and after a reprint by the Association's Board of Directors to ban them in fact.

"We have fared less fortunately with the Canadian Medical Association, and only one country physician in Alberta has dared to invite us to talk on an anonymous topic . . ."

Their report, backed with numerous histories of patients they claim obtained relief through vitamin E treatment, is frankly critical of vitamin E's opponents.

The Shute Brothers predicted: "Medical historians of the future will regard the controversy which has been allowed to develop . . . as one of the silliest and yet most interesting episodes in professional annals."

Reply to All Articles

The Shutes said they have replied to nearly every article attacking their method. But only in Time Magazine, a British medical journal, had provided such a reply. Another "courteously permitted us to submit a non-controversial review" following one criticism.

"When we issued a warning on the dangers of unwise vitamin E therapy in a Canadian medical journal, the warning paragraph of a long article which were deleted by the editor, even over our strenuous protest."

They charged that many doctors who have suffered heart conditions, blamed wheat E and returned to work "are ashamed to admit the source of their help, even to their close medical friends."

For example, in a great Ontario city three of the largest cases of coronary thrombosis (heart attack) were about to patients by our dosage schedules, and those cases are not for patients but for the medical staff — and those hospitals bulge with pungent critics of vitamin E therapy!

"Indeed, 120 physicians and their families are now successfully using vitamin E under the direct care of the (Shute) Institute! Sixty of the 120 are Canadians. Only druggists and drug salesmen know what doctors take vitamin E and what doctors give it to their patients and where a great deal is sold. Where medical practitionaries fail to use it, other practitioners do. Does all this situation make sense?"

Says Big Future Awaits Dominion in Film, Stage

By EDWIN S. JOHNSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, (CP)—A rising star on radio, screen and stage, Vancouver-born Bernard Braden, believes Canada has been hiding its talent under a bushel far too long, especially in the field of entertainment. He thinks it is time something was done about it.

Braden, who arrived in London from Toronto a little more than a year ago, and has taken British audiences by storm with his versatility, says Canada's entry into the Big Time of films and stage is long overdue.

"We definitely have the acting talent, efficient directors and first-class writers," Braden said. "Above all we have a country that can supply the right atmosphere and proper setting to meet almost every story demand.

"I am reasonably certain men with the financial means and abiding confidence in Canada could be found to put the idea across. But something should be done before those with the required know-how get too old or by necessity are forced into other fields."

With his wife, Barbara, who also began her career in Vancouver, Braden is currently featured in two radio variety programs, in television, and plays one of the major roles in Tennessee Williams' long-run pro-a small part in seeing it through."duction "A Streetcar Named Desire," at the Aldwych theatre.

A Modest Actor

The 33-year-old star, who looks much younger than his age, modestly attributes his London successes to a "kindly Lady Luck" and a generous share of the "breaks."

Among his many accomplishments Braden has written a series of radio skits, one-act plays and so-called "soap operas." But his great ambition is to find a backer for a serious play he has just completed.

"We definitely have to discuss its theme in detail, he confided that it touched a subject that had the present generation thinking seriously of things atomic.

A leading figure in the British production world already had shown interest in the script and there was a possibility the play might go on the road next fall. If successful it would be brought to London and possibly staged later in Canada as well.

"But all this is only part of a long-range program which I hope will ultimately take me back to my own country," Braden said. "That's where I got my start and while fortune has been kind to me over here, I feel a big job is beckoning in Canada. Nothing would be nicer than having my

Salvage Worker Unhappy About Pay Given Him

Niagara Falls, N.Y., May 18 (AP)— Jerry Penque was piqued Wednesday, he said, because six hours of work and two close calls in the rapids above Niagara Falls netted him only $125.

Penque got wet in two mishaps Tuesday while he fastened salvage lines on a helicopter caught on a rock above the Horseshoe Falls on the Canadian side. The copter ferried Canadian and Erie aid rescue operation Monday. Two pilots and a woman were saved.

"I figured I could make at least a $1,000 so my family and I could put a down payment on a small home, Penque said.

"I ended up with 125 bucks. Peanuts!"

Penque said he let the construction firm he was working for set the price because he was "stunned from the pounding I had taken out in the river." Spokesmen for the firm could not be reached for comment.

Life Insurance Companies Recommend Contributory Old-Age Pension Plan

Ottawa, May 18 — (CP)— The Canadian Life Insurance Officers Association today joined groups advocating establishment of a contributory federal old-age pensions plan in Canada.

In a brief submitted to the Parliamentary Committee on old-age security, the Association said benefits for the plan should:

1. Be payable to all elder Canadians without a means test but subject to a reasonable residence qualification.

2. Start at a specified age which, because the benefits would be payable to all, should probably be age 70.

3. Be fixed at a level which could be financed without placing an undue burden on Canada's present and future productive capacity.

4. Be paid in the same amount to all.

5. Be subject to partial recovery through income tax in the case of recipients having significant incomes from other sources.

6. Be financed in full on a "pay-as-you-go" basis by an old-age benefit contribution payable by residents of Canada on a basis as broad and as equitable as possible.

Canada's present pensions of about $30 to $50 a month are paid to persons of 70 and over who can prove they are in need of a pension and show that they have been in Canada for 20 years. The Federal government pays 75 per cent of the cost of pensions up to $40 a month, the provinces pay the remainder and some of them provide supplementary pensions. Three Examples Given

The Association, a voluntary organization of life insurance companies carrying on business in Canada, said there were various ways in which a contributory pension system could be financed.

It gave these three examples:

1. A contribution, payable as a percentage of personal income disregarding all income in excess of some specified amount.

2. A contribution of a flat amount payable by all adult Canadians below benefit age.

3. A sales tax levied on a broad group of items in more or less universal use.

A pension of $30 a month to persons 70 and over would in 1951 require a contribution of $30 per year from all Canadians between the ages of 20 and 69. A $40 a month pension would require a $40 a year contribution. A $30-a-month pension to all 65 and over would require a contribution of $32 a year from those between the ages of 20 and 64. A $40-a-month pension at 65 would require a contribution of $69.

6,000 Switchmen Threaten Strike Next Tuesday

Chicago, May 18 (AP)— Tomidwestern and western United States railroads were threatened today with a strike Tuesday morning by 6,000 switchmen.

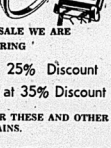
The walkout was called Wednesday night by the Switchmen's Union of North America (AFL) in a wage dispute.

It came less than 48 hours after settlement of the crippling six-day engineers' strike against five carriers. The five were not affected by the threatened new walkout.

Union President Arthur J. Glover said in Washington the strike was set to enforce demands for 48 hours pay for a 40-hour work-week. The union, one of the five operating Brotherhood which was not affected by the 1839 decision by presidential emergency boards giving the 40-hour week to the non-operating workers.

The strike action, Glover said, will be directed against Chicago Great Western; Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific; Davenport, Rock Island and Northwestern; Denver and Rio Grande Western; Great Northern; Minneapolis and St. Louis; Northern Pacific Terminal Company of Oregon; St. Paul Union Depot Company; Sioux City Terminal Railway Company and Western Pacific.

A spokesman for the Association of Western Railways said switch tenders, yard foremen, yard brakemen and helpers would be affected by the strike.



A presidential fact-finding board in a report to President Truman April 19 had recommended the switchmens case would be joined upon after hearing similar cases by two other operating unions, the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and the Order of Railway Conductors.

The board has been holding hearings here. for two months and its report is due June 1. The switchmen contended its case deserved a separate board.

Other Bibles were given in loving tribute to mothers who are living. Among these was one of special tribute when the girls of Mrs. Walter Elliott's Sunday School class were responsible for a Bible honoring their teacher, and this came as a complete surprise to Mrs. Elliott.

After the service the donors placed the Bibles in the pews of their choice and Miss Marlene Carlile placed the balance of the Bibles throughout the church pews.

SPORTSMANSHIP IN CANADA UNLIMITED

Good sportsmanship on vacation is made Canadiane the first to try the tuna as a game fish. And teamwork with sportsmanship helps you, too. Together, they keep water opportunities for work and play in Canada as unlimited.

From a Liverpool, N.S., dock, schoolmaster Thomas Pattile and a friend pulled away . . . determined to test the tuna as a game fish. Near the fishing fleet they dropped an eight-inch homemade hook and 30 fathoms of cordline.

Suddenly a tuna struck . . . their dory shot through the water. Angry fishermen watched them swamp a small boat, then sloshed their line. But Pattile was undaunted. Later in 1871 he tried again . . . and landed a gleaming, 600-pound bluefin. Tuna fishing, for sport, had been born.

The service opened with quiet music, and the president, Mrs. Roy Thrasher, presided, and read a poem, "Holy Spirit, Truth Divine", by Samuel Longfellow, as a prayer.

The treasurer reported about $47 to date for this quarter. Mrs. Frank Smith read the Bible lesson, also a letter from Holloway Street United, Belleville, W.M.S., to visit them on Tuesday June 6, when Mrs. F. W. K. Harris, of Petterborough, president of the Bay of Quinte Conference Branch W.M.S., will be guest speaker.

Mrs. John Holmes gathered the offering of about $11 and this was dedicated by the Stewardship secretary.

The final plans for June 14, at 2 p.m. D.S.T. at the church were made. Invitations are being sent to Wellman's W.M.S. and W.A.; Stirling W.M.S. and W.A.; Hoard's W.M.S.; River Valley W.M.S.; Bethel W.A.; Zion W.A.; Springbrook W.A. and Carmel W.A.

This group will be entertained in honor of the 25 years of union. The recording secretary read full details of the committees meeting held on May 1st. This special service is open to all ladies in the community.

Mission, Baby Bands

Plans were also made for the July meeting when mothers, members of the Baby Band and Mission Bandswill be entertained at the church hall. The meeting will be held one week earlier on July 5. Mrs. W. B. May, Belleville, secretary of Mission Bands for Belleville presbyterial, will be guest speaker. The Mission Band will provide most of the program.

The temperance secretary read part of a letter re "Drinking in Homes".

Study Chapter

Mrs. Percy MacMullen presented another chapter in "Growing With the Years". This was a summary of the great work undertaken by the Board of Evangelism and Social Service.

The United Church believes that all life and all of life is His to save and command. Under its leadership, the church all across Canada is opposed to intolerance, racial bigotry, injustice, exploitation of natural resources, whether materials or men, an open Sunday, more outlets for the sale of alcholic beverages, easy divorce, or anything else that debases human character and separates men from God.

Church's Firm Stand

The Crusade for Christ and His Kingdom has kept the United Church vigilant regarding beer and wine outlets and gambling menace. They have taken a firm stand re collective bargaining, unemployment insurance, evil literature, commercialized amusements, and the U.C. offers the only alternative to communism.

The foreign missionaries have also worked for many reforms in Trinidad, China, India, Angola and Korea.

There are 11 institutions for women and girls across Canada, and almost half the girls cared for come from United Church homes.

These are glorious investments which pay high dividends. There are school homes to provide for children in isolated areas, also mission centres from Sydney to Vancouver.

The missionaries believe in inter-racial harmony and have children of many nationalities take part in the Christmas pageants.

A radio service was sent air express to Holland and mothers and fathers there rejoiced that the Gospel of Jesus Christ was preached in Canada in Dutch. There are schools overseas for the deaf, dumb and blind.

Missionaries have always been concerned about the world's hunger, so the church has agricultural experts in several areas. Farmers are taught farm management, personal and social hygiene and all study the Bible together.

Leper Care

Missionaries have almost a monopoly of the care of lepers in India, and the chapter closes with a true story related by Dr. W. E. Strangway, Across Canada and around the world the institutions "let their lights shine so that men may see their good works and glorify our Father Who is in Heaven."

Mrs. Thrasher in commenting on the chapter, expressed the wish that some day the home church at Mount Pleasant, might have a real missionary of its own.

Mrs. Will McAdam sang "Sweet Hour of Prayer".

Mrs. Will Potts gave a paper on the theme "Prayer is such a privilege", and she spoke of the value of little things.

Mrs. Frank Jeffs read a "Mother's Day" poem by Edgar Guest.

Mrs. K. Weaver read "A Tribute to Mother".

The hostess was thanked for hospitality and the visitors were welcomed.

At the close of the meeting home-made candy was served by the hostess and all enjoyed a social half hour.

Doctors Fear State Control Of Medicine

Ottawa, May 18—(CP)—Dr. E. Kirk Lyon, Leamington, newly-elected president of the Ontario Medical Association, said Wednesday night that the "fear" of state control is "constantly hanging over the heads of the medical profession."

"We find the profession disturbed by events abroad, and uneasy about many tendencies at home", Dr. Lyon told the Association's 71st annual convention here.

"The increased cost of illness has brought government subsidies into the picture until the cost of many preventive treatments has come to be an accepted responsibility of the government," he said.

Under these conditions, it had to be admitted that the medical profession is enjoying a freedom of enterprise and investigation, subsidized in part by the government, that has improved the health of Canada, increasing life expectancy from 34 to 67 years.

"The subsidy of government has inevitably brought with it regulations," Dr. Lyon said, "and these things have temporarily confused some of the members of our profession.

"There have been many changes in the economic as well as the professional side of medicine. It is the ardent desire of all our members to bring the benefits of the profession to all people. . .

"The only thing that is keeping us apart is the method in which that can be accomplished. Surely if the profession and the government can agree in principle, we can work out practical details that will be satisfactory to all concerned."

Four veterans of medicine, with a total of almost two centuries of service, were honored by the association with life-long membership certificates. They were Dr. Clarence H. Brown of Ottawa, Dr. John F. Dunn of Almonte, Dr. F. A. Brewster of Owen Sound and Dr. T. M. Galbraith of Napanee.

PICTON

Retiring Town Clerk Honored By Council

Picton— Honoring F. L. Ward, K.C., who is retiring as town clerk and solicitor, members of council and officials tendered a complimentary banquet and presentation Tuesday night. Mayor William Henley presided. Steve J. C. Cooper presented the gifts, a silver tray and a silver ash tray with desk lighter set.

Tribute Paid

Tribute to Mr. Ward was paid by the various speakers. He has served 29 years as solicitor and 12 as clerk. During that period there were 12 different mayors. During his tenure of office he attended four hundred council meetings, missing only four due to reasons beyond his control. He has drafted 800 by-laws, none of which has been declared illegal or invalid by the courts. He has never lost an assessment appeal before the courts or lost a lawsuit on behalf of the town.

Mr. Ward is retiring due to pressure of other business.

Council Praised

In responding, Mr. Ward praised council members who are willing to give their services in spite of criticism and sacrifice of time. He recalled that there has been a great many changes in these 29 years, with the value of some progress not being appreciated until after years. The office of clerk has become a full-time job, he said in relating the multitude of duties which a clerk now assumes.

Great German Arms Combines Bound Under Allied Law

Bonn, Germany, May 18 (CP) — Great German arms combines like Krupps are banned under a law promulgated Wednesday by Western Allies.

The ultimate form of ownership — private or government — will be determined at a future date by the West German government under provisions of the measure, which deals with the reorganization of the Ruhr coal, iron and steel industries.

The law has been the subject of discussion for weeks among British, French and American occupation authorities. Its objects, already partially carried out, are:

1. To eliminate excessive concentration of economic power to prevent development of war potential.

2. To prevent Nazis recovering ownership of industries they used to aid Hitler's aggression.

3. To reorganize in a way that will promote German industrial recovery.

The law lists 13 concerns which are to be liquidated and reorganized. These include Krupp's steel and armament combine at Essen.

Another schedule lists 10 combines where liquidation already is in progress. A further 45 concerns will be examined to see whether they fall within the scope of the law.

The combines will be reorganized into smaller units by German trustees under plans to be approved by the Allied High Commissioners. The West German government is permitted to decide who the ultimate owners will be, opening the way, perhaps, for nationalization of the industries.

An Allied dispute over the ownership provision held up the law for months. French fears that it would enable the Germans to set up a super-monopoly of heavy industry caused the measure to be referred back to the three allied governments.

Newcombe's Apparent Return To Form Buoys Dodgers' Hope For Another Flag in Flatbush

By RALPH RODEN

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The pennant hopes of Brooklyn's Dodgers are brighter today. Big Don Newcombe is back on the beam.

Newcombe once again looks the pitcher the experts said would win at least 20 games. The husky Negro righthander stirred the hearts of Flatbush Wednesday night as he pitched the Dodgers to a five - hit 6-2 victory over the Cardinals.

Newcombe, who complained of a sore arm as he was batted from pillar to post in his three previous starts, showed no trace of the ailment as he went the distance for the first time this season. He fanned eight and climaxed a game-winning, four-run rally in the eighth inning with a two-run single.

Newcombe's victory was doubly sweet to the Dodgers for the losing pitcher was chunky Max Lanier who owned a string of 8 straight victories over Brooklyn.

The triumph enabled the Dodgers to remain within a game of the league-leading Philadelphia Phillies. The Phils edged Cincinnati Reds, 5-4, in a night game at Philadelphia. Willie Jones singled home Ed Waitkus, who had tripled, with the winning run in the last of the ninth.

Yanks Outlast Browns

New York Yankees outlasted St. Louis Browns, 11-9, but fell into a first-place American League tie with Detroit Tigers. The Tigers, who began the day two percentage points behind the Yankees, knocked off Boston Red Sox, 6-3.

At Detroit, Lefty Ted Gray outpitched the veteran Ellis Kinder. In stopped Boston for the second time, Gray encountered difficulty only with Walt Dropo who drove in all of Boston's runs on his seventh and eighth home runs.

The Tigers clinched the game in the fourth when Dick Kryhoski lashed a two-run, inside-the-park homer.

Philadelphia Athletics scored three runs in the ninth inning to down the Indians 7-5, in a night game in Cleveland.

Dates for 1952 Olympic Games Are Decided

Copenhagen, May 18 (AP) — The International Olympic Committee Wednesday ended a three day meeting devoted more to discussion than decision.

Problems solved appeared to be outweighed by those left unsolved, but committee members said they are satisfied that progress was made.

These are the major concrete developments:

1. Exact dates for the 1952 winter and summer games were agreed upon. The winter games at Oslo will be from Feb. 14 through Feb. 25, the summer games at Helsinki from July 19 through August 3.

2. The program for the summer games was accepted. It will be the same as in 1948 at London except that preliminary competitions in team sports may be necessary in Finland before the games open, and the number of competitors for each country in each event of shooting and weight lifting will be one less.

3. A proposal to change the amateur rule to allow individual sports federations to decide who are amateurs was rejected.

4. It was agreed to try to return ice hockey to the Olympic program.

5. Provisional recognition was extended to the Olympic committee of western Germany.

Major problems left undecided include whether Japan and Germany will be allowed to compete in the 1952 games, a definite program for the winter games a final decision on the status of hockey, a decision on amateur status in skiing and a reduction in the size of the games.

MASK AND PAD BOYS

If you visit their homes you will find them, nogging buried in the pages of a yellow-covered book.

If you sneak up behind them, and catch them unawares you will discover they are perusing the official book of words of the Ontario Baseball Association.

A closer scrutiny will reveal that the page especially attracting their attention is that numbered "9", for within the newly-furbished book still a trifle ancient bulk rule.

The reason for this sudden interest in the rule?

First, Monsieurs Eddie Schreiber, and Don Thomas (Speed) who will officiate at various games of baseball this summer, it is expected, feel that it is necessary, in order to save face persecution and possibly mayhem, to be able to graduate with honors if they are forced to undergo a verbal examination from irate players, coaches and managers, if and when they exercise their powers of authority in the case of a breach, of the said rule.

Secondly, and they are extremely modest about this, they have been invited to act as arbiters in the Second Annual Eastern Ontario Baseball Tournament being staged in Kingston again this year.

An invitation to this effect, has been received from one, Max Johnston, sports impresario of the Limestone City

. . . the tournament will start on Monday, July 31st and continue through Thursday August 3rd. Last year the Napanee Athletics of the Belleville and District Baseball League swept everything aside the district had to offer and romped through the tournament undefeated.

SKIMMING THE BASEBALL FRONT

Along Rumor Row it is reported that Dick Fitzpatrick and Archie Wardhaugh will throw in their lot with the Picton Athletics COBL squad . . . "Mouse" Bush and Art Wright will do their baseballing this semester with the Ottawa Shoemen . . . Al. Kelleher has not yet appeared in the Ottawa National starting lineup . . . The big fella has swung a bat a couple of times in a pinch-hitting role . . . Walter Gerow, Jr., has hung up his spikes and glove and says definitely he will not play this year . . . Ditto Ken Murphy and Art. Scarlett . . . Which weakened the potent Napanee aggregation no end . . . Gerow claims business responsibilities will keep him close to the family hearth this summer . . .

INDIANS USE JEEP

Cleveland, May 18 —(AP) — When one pitcher was driven out of last night's Cleveland-Philadelphia baseball game here, another was driven in—by jeep.

The free ride replaced the long slow walk for relief hurlers from the bullpens beyond the outfield fences because general manager Hank Greenberg of the Tribe wants to speed up games.

Greenberg Gives Speed-up Plan For Ball Games

New York, May 18 (AP)—Presents of the two major leagues ay agreed with Hank Greenberg that baseball games are aking too long but said they ve of no official remedy.

The reason games are so slow that present-day pitchers are ld and throw a lot of balls," d the National League's Ford ick. "We can't legislate against

Will Harridge, head man of the erican League, said in Chi- "The shortening of games mainly up to the pitchers and gers themselves."

Greenberg, general manager of eveland Indians, suggested a 4-point speed up plan this r. In an interview.

The points were:

1. Umpires should urge players hustle to positions between nings.

2. The pitchers should be re- ired to be in the "on deck" cle instead of the dugout for time at bat.

3. Some better method, probly mechanical, should be found speed the relief pitcher's trip m bullpen to mound.

4. The pitcher should go to the ound immediately when his is relirfed.

TOM GARD'S NOTE BOOK

Human nature being what it is, we seem to require an extra stimulus to carry out the annual spring cleanup. A program of concentrated action always gets results and members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce are conducting just such a program this year. What a country we'll have when each one does his bit in this national campaign. Examine the slogan "clean up, paint up, plant up, light up" more closely, and you'll be amazed at the number of jobs you are sure your attention that must be completed before your place is shipshape. What's more important, you'll be amazed at the improved appearance of your property with two or three days of concerted effort.

Why not begin by making a small gadget to ease the burden of washing outside windows. The cleaner illustrated is as effective as it is simple to make.

Discourage Flies

I dropped in unexpectedly on an old friend of mine the other day and found him making his own window screens for the summer cottage. I was so impressed with the ease with which he turned them out I decided to make some myself for the home. The chief handicap, realizing most people is their fear of tackling a new job. In case you have promised to tackle that bedroom window this year, you'll find a handy list of materials and sizes in the booklet "Around the Home".

Flower Pot Covers

The beauty of potted plants can often be strikingly enhanced by enclosing the flower pot in an attractive plywood container. The covers are fashioned with small finishing nails, or laced together with leather thongs or shoe laces. If laced, drill the holes at two-inch intervals, top and bottom holes one inch from the ends.

B.C. fir with an attractive grain or pattern is excellent. The wood then can be left natural—or painted to harmonize with the colour scheme of the room. Further decoration can be provided by using floral transfers on the four sides.

More about these and many other ideas in the booklet "AROUND THE HOME". Write for your copy to Tom Gard, c/o MOLSON'S (Ontario) LIMITED, P.O. Box 490, Adelaide St. Station, Toronto.

Trinkle Shaping Up as the Joe Page Of Int. League

(By The Associated Press)

Ken Trinkle is shaping up as the Joe Page of the International League.

The 30-year-old righthander of Toronto Maple Leafs doesn't command the $35,000 Page draws with New York Yankees but he is working just as hard.

Since he was obtained a short time ago from the parent Philadelphia Phils, Trinkle has seen action in almost every game the Leafs have played.

The former major leaguer made his eighth appearance in the Leafs' last 11 games Wednesday night and saved a 6-4 decision for young Buzz Bowers over the league-leading Montreal Royals.

Toronto jumped on Tony McGlothin for five runs in the fourth inning and enjoyed a 6-2 lead going into the eighth when Bowers weakened and gave way to Trinkle during a two-run rally. Trinkle slammed the door and as a result a six-game Montreal winning streak ended.

Cubs Shade Giants

The up-and-coming Springfield Cubs shaded Jersey City Giants, 3-0 to move with 14 percentage points of the second-place Giants. Springfield scored all its runs in the fifth inning with Red Hollis driving in two with a single. Warren Hacker, who bowed out for a pinch-hitter in the fifth, was the winner.

Syracuse Chiefs scored five runs in the ninth inning to edge Baltimore Orioles, 5-4. Al Rubeling homered to start the rally. Pinch-hitter Frankie Drews tripled home the second run and scored the third on Red Durrett's pinch-hit single. Claude Corbitt walked. Ben Zientara's single to load the bases and Dutch Mele followed with a two-run single to break up the game.

The tail-end Buffalo Bisons thumped Rochester Red Wings, 10-4. The Bisons overcame a 3-0 deficit with a six-run rally in the fourth and then clinched the game with four runs in the eighth.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

(By The Associated Press)

Chicago—Bob Satterfield, 178, Chicago, knocked out Lee Oma, 190½, Detroit (6).

New York — Johnny Saxton, 143¼, Brooklyn, Knocked out Bert Linam, 148, Austin, Tex. (1).

Giants Purchase Johnny Jorgenson From Brooklyn

New York, May 18 (AP)—Major League baseball clubs girded for the long summer run today after stripping down to regular playing weight—the 25-man limit.

Last-hour manoeuvres to beat the midnight deadline saw a number of significant roster changes, none quite as unique as that of New York Giants.

In the biggest move of the day, a three-way shuffle, the Giants bought third baseman Johnny Jorgensen from Brooklyn Dodgers and sold veteran catcher Ray Mueller to Pittsburgh Pirates.

Jorgensen immediately runs into a lot of competition for the hot corner spot, Other Giant third basemen on hand are Jack Lohrke, Bill Rigney and Hank Thompson.

No Price Disclosed

No price was disclosed in the Jorgensen deal. To make room for him, the Giants sold the 36-year-old Mueller to the Pirates for "more than the $10,000 waiver price."

The day's most feverish activity took place in the front office of Cleveland Indians, who first announced that southpaw pitcher Sam. Zoldak was being sent to San Diego and then, a few hours later, changed their mind.

The Indians, figuring they'd better keep their pitching staff intact, decided instead to ship infielder Johnny Berardino to the Pacific Coast League club on 24-hour option. Another infielder, first baseman Herb Conyers, was sent along on the same terms.

Other last changes included: Cincinnati Reds—Sent pitcher Kent Peterson to Syracuse of the International League.

St. Louis Browns—Gave third baseman Frank Gustine his unconditional release.

VALUABLE HERDS

The total value of milch cows in the United States on Jan. 1, 1949, was $4,723,110,000.

Ronny Lacelle, sensational young 140-pounder from Ottawa's HMCA Carleton headlines the fight card of the Trenton Air Station next Monday night. Lacelle meets the smooth Don Wallace of the Diamond A. C. Toronto in a five-round main bout which should be a thriller. Eight other bouts complete an attractive card.

Negro Puncher Scuttles Oma As Contender

Chicago, May 18 (AP)— Bob Satterfield, Chicago's unpredictable light heavyweight, has belted his way to the threshold of two championship matches.

The Negro puncher Wednesday night scuttled Lee Oma as the National Boxing Association's No. 3 heavyweight contender by knocking him out in six rounds in a startling upset in the Chicago Stadium.

Now, at the age of 26, Satterfield moves up as a' challenger for the world's light heavyweight title and possibly a crack at the heavyweight crown.

James D. Norris, president of the International Boxing Club, said he would attempt to match Satterfield first with Joey Maxim world's 175-pound champion, and then if victorious, with Ezzard Charles, provided the N.B.A. heavyweight titleholder is freed from a heart ailment.

Satterfield gave only 6,318 spectators a thrilling reminiscence of Joe Louis' palmy days when he got up off the canvas in the fifth round to knock out Oma in 41 seconds of the sixth round. It was one of the most dramatic fights seen in the Stadium in six years.

Boehmer Says He Has Hung up Pads For Good

(By The Canadian Press)

Pat Boehmer, 24-year-old goalminder for the Allan Cup champion Toronto Marlboros, said Wednesday night at Toronto he has hung up his pads for good. "I've had enough," he told the senior amateur champions' farewell party. "It takes too much time and I can't afford to spend so much time away from the office."

Boehmer said he played this year to help Joe Primeau after Howie Harvey retired from the netminder's position. Boehmer will be married to Miss Carol Krug in Kitchener next September, and will continue to play baseball with the Kitchener Legionaires.

At Fall River, Mass., the touring Manchester United team of the English Football League won a hard-fought 2-0 soccer victory Wednesday night over the New England All Stars before a 3,704 crowd at Fall River Stadium.

Centre forward Jack Rowley scored Manchester's first goal after 10 minutes of the 45-minute first half. John Downie added the other five minutes from the end of the game.

It was the third and closest game of the British First division team's tour. They defeated a Toronto All-Star team 5-0, and a New York all-star group, 9-2.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

New York, May 18 (AP)—Murray Goodman, the International Boxing Club tub-thumper paused long enough in his task of interviewing fighters to report the quickest substitution on record . . .seems that Murray and matchmaker Al Weill were in Stillman's Gym when they got word that Tuzo Portuguez was injured. They needed someone to fight Tiberio Mitri in the Garden tomorrow. . .Seeing a husky looking lad on his way out, Goodman asked: "What's the matter with Dick Wagner?" . . .Weill shouted "nothing" and they signed Dick before he could reach the door. Wagner who just happened to be present, added: "I needed the fight. I just got back from my honeymoon a couple of weeks ago and I want to take my wife out to Washington, The Indians always have a big pow wow out there in July and I never miss it." . . .

". . .You're part Indian, aren't you?" Goodfan asked. "Yes," grunted Dick "Part Sioux." . . . "The only Sioux I know," interposed a boxing writer "is the Bronx Zoo." . . . That broke up the interview.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

You hear tell what is meant by a jump no-trump response. All the rumors thrown together sound as if players were nuts. So, how do you know which and what is right? See for yourself.

What cards are most likely to take tricks at no-trump? The highs (aces, kings, queens) of which there are 12 and only 12 in any pack of bridge cards. No more and no less than 12 of them.

With nine of these high cards in your pair, opponents can have no more than three. Therefore, your pair can make a game at no-trump if you have nine high cards in your two hands.

It is also likely that your pair can make game at no-trump with only eight high cards. Why? Opponents have only four high cards. You still have a chance to take the 13th trick.

When is your pair most likely to take the 12th? When you have control in all four suits. And when does partner jump his bid? When he sees enough for game; nine, or eight with four aces.

Take a look at this deal:

	NORTH
	♥ K 10 9 2
	♦ Q 10 4
	♣ K 7 2
WEST		EAST
♠ Q J 10 3 2		♠ 8 7 5
♥ A 8 7 4		♥ J 6
♦ 6 5 3		♦ 9 8 7 2
♣ 10		♣ Q 8 4 3
	SOUTH
	♠ 6 4
	♥ Q 5 3
	♦ A K J
	♣ A 10 9 6 5

The bidding went like this:

South	North
1 C	2 NT
3 C	4 C
4 NT	5 S
6 C or 6 NT

In Horse Sense, opener shows four high cards with two sure among his other values. In answer to four no-trump, five spades shows one ace and two kings. What high cards has north promised?

The jump no-trump showed five highs; or four highs with two sure. If he has one ace and two kings, he must have at least one queen. It stands to reason. No doubt about it.

C.A.H.A. Thumbs Nose in Direction Of Committee

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, May 18 (CP)—The International Ice Hockey Federation and the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association thumbed its nose in the direction of the International Olympic Committee Wednesday. It's old stuff.

It all sprang from decision of the I.O.C. at its Copenhagen Denmark, meeting that it would give professionals a chance in the 1952 Oslo winter games — with a couple of "ifs" attached. It wanted assurance hockey is "strictly amateur" and also that Dr. Fritz Kraatz of Switzerland European of the IIHF must not attend negotiations.

It didn't take hockey officials long to give the IOC an answer.

At Edmonton, George Dudley Hardy, president of the IIHF, retorted "there will be no negotiations" under these terms. From Boston, Walter Brown, vice-president of the Amateur Hockey Association of the U.S., said he would go by Dr. Hardy's decision.

George Dudley of Midland, Ont. secretary manager of the CAHA and North American secretary of the IIHF, was more outspoken:

"I said in 1948 the IOC was dictatorial, domineering and undemocratic and this latest affront doesn't change my mind," he said in a telephone interview from his home. "We certainly will not repudiate Dr. Kraatz. If he isn't included in negotiations, then we just won't play in the IOC."

Will Discuss Matter

Dudley said the matter "certainly would be discussed" at the CAHA annual meeting at Banff, Alta., starting June 6 and also at the IIHF meeting in Paris, Sept. 15, when the subject of conducting the 1953 world amateur championships will be ironed out. Dudley and Dr. Hardy will attend the Paris sessions.

"We can hold the championships apart from the Olympic Games, just as we were prepared to do in 1948," Dudley said. "The whole thing is that the Olympic Games without hockey would be a financial flop and everybody, including the IOC knows that."

The big squabble between the IIHF and IOC started shortly before the start of the 1948 winter games at St. Moritz, Switzerland, and Dudley was in the thick of it.

Ignored Edict

The IOC cancelled the sport in the Switzerland games over participation of the Allen club, reinstated it when hockey men ignored the edict and then banished it from future Olympics after Canada's RCAF team won the title.

Dr. Hardy summed up the present squabble with this observation:

"At the London Congress in March of this year the International Ice Hockey Federation laid down the terms on which it would permit its world championships of 1952 to become Olympic championships.

Waterloo Tigers Move Into Lead Of Intercounty

(By The Canadian Press)

They moved into the lead last night when they registered their third straight victory with a 7-1 win over London Majors at Waterloo.

In the only other game Galt Terriers edged Stratford Red Sox 7-6 before a crowd of 3,000 fans. It was Terriers' second victory in three starts and left them in second place—two points behind Waterloo.

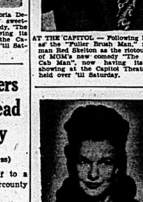
Ragged London hurler John Cabot for 10 solid blows, one a triple in the second by Augie Hernhreiter. They had little trouble as they counted three runs in the second inning two more in the fourth and two in the eighth. London got one run in the seventh.

At Galt starting pitcher Tom Ryan of Roanoke, W. Va., made his debut for the Terriers and went well for six innings. He weakened and big Jim Bagby finished up. Ryan got two hits in four trips at the plate, one a triple that was good for three runs.

Nig Parker started for Brantford and had to be relieved by Harry Fisher in the fifth. Then in the eighth, when Tigers started a parade of pinch hitters, Fisher was replaced by Bill Gibbs.



Johnny Lockington, Brantford centre fielder, got the first home run of the season in Dickson Park. He planned it over the right field fence in the seventh frame.

Terriers went ahead 2-0 in the first inning, counted one in the second and four more in the fifth.

No games are scheduled tonight. Tomorrow night teams go into action. It's London at Brantford, Guelph at Waterloo, Kitchener at Galt and St. Thomas at Stratford.

MORMON MIGRATION

From 1887 to 1905 about 10,000 Mormons settled in southern Alberta.

AT THE McCARTHY — Gale Storm is a real storm centre in Universal-International's melodrama "The Wild From Texas," now at Odeon's McCarthy Theatre. Audie Murphy, America's most decorated hero in World War II, plays Billy the Kid, and Dorothy Hart is also co-starred.

100 Fighters Enter Race for National Honors

Lethbridge, Alta., May 18 — (CP) — At least 14 boats are expected to get the three-day Dominion boxing finals off to a flying start in the Lethbridge arena tonight. Some 100 fighters will be in the race for national honors.

A sell-out crowd of more than 2,500 fans is expected opening night and jammed boxes are practically assured for the remaining two nights.

Tickets have been gobbled up fast by fight fans in Lethbridge and district. Officials of the Lethbridge Amateur Boxing Association, which is promoting the finals, predict it will be one of the biggest sports attractions held here in many years.

The scrappers are scheduled to weigh in this afternoon.

Every province in the Dominion, with the exception of Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island and possibly Manitoba, will be represented. Due to the Manitoba floods, that province's team may not make the trip.

Fans from all over Canada began arriving in the city yesterday with four coming by train from Quebec and 11 by plane from Vancouver. Saskatchewan's 11-man team arrived last night.

Ordinary Seaman Gerald Brucher of Halifax, Maritime flyweight champion, arrived today from Calgary.

Brucher, a hot favorite, was transferred by the navy from his post in Halifax to H. M. C. S. Tecumseh at Calgary to enable him to compete in the finals.

Most of the winners will be decided at Saturday night's wind-up.

Experts Would Take Over River

Winnipeg, Man., May 18—(AP) Flood control experts would get a chance to make over the Red River.

There are lots of ways it could be better when an unusually big burst of water drains into it. Here are some of the things they'd make the Red a poor bet for a spring like this:

Where it is too crooked. It is now nearly 600 miles long. Straighten it and it would be shorter and restricted by vegetation and rocks in places. It is 'in mouth is too gradual. The Red has cut a snake-like course for scores of miles. Lake Traverse in Minnesota to Lake Winnipeg, north of here. The river's channel is about double the straight distance from start to end. The winding path of the river slows down the speed of water which has to drain northward. If the Red flowed to the south instead of north, there wouldn't be the problem of ice jams in the spring, because the ice would melt from south to north. There would be the problem of ice jams near the end. The water is constantly blocked by ice farther to the north in the path of the river.

Channel Too Narrow

The river channel is to narrow to take care of larger-than-normal amounts of water.

Finally, the fall in the river's course each month is so gradual excessive water can't get out in time to stay within the channel.

Now that Nature has come up with a poor job on the Red, many engineers feel it would be too costly to do much about it — at least it would cost too much for a thorough-going makeover.

If the Red's channel were dredged out and straightened to a great extent in one area, it would probably have to be given the same treatment farther upstream, since flood experts say. Otherwise, the water rushing through the madeover stretch would gush, over banks in other places.

Dams could be spotted along the Red's course to hold back a heavy spring rush of water, they say. But the water held back by the dams would flow over many farm lands, farm land, making it useless until the dams could be opened.

Prime Minister Plans to Visit Flooded Areas

Ottawa, May 18 (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent announced Wednesday that two federal-provincial fact-finding commissions have been named to report on the governmental financial aid needed to succor the disaster areas of Manitoba and Quebec and indicated that he plans to visit the districts himself.

In swift succession, the Commons heard those announcements and a third in which Defence Minister Claxton, acting External Affairs Minister, told both the Canadian and American governments have asked the International Joint Commission for immediate recommendations for future control of the rampaging Red Rivers in Manitoba.

Mr. St. Laurent said D. Bruce Shaw, Winnipeg investment banker, and J. B. Carswell, Vancouver engineer, have been named by the provincial and Federal governments, respectively, to study the "nature and extent" of the continuing Red River flood, the cost of fighting it, of emergency relief and of emergency precautions to guard against recurrences.

Want Complete Statement

That would "make available at the earliest possible moment a complete statement of all the essential facts necessary to determine the amount of the grant which the Federal government should make to the province of Manitoba in order to assist that government in discharging its responsibilities in respect of the flood.

Brig. A. (Pete) Theriault of Quebec City and Edouard Lauzon, secretary of the Quebec Treasury Department, will start at once to prepare a report for federal and provincial authorities on the financial aid needed as a result of the devastating fires in Rimouski and Cabano, Que.

Mr. St. Laurent said he has been invited to visit the fire areas.

Gordon Graydon (PC-Peel) and John Diefenbaker (PC-Lake Centre) suggested that the International Joint Commission, given the job of probing the Red River flood problem more than two years ago, had been "leisurely" in their study and questioned why no report had been prepared.

Mr. Claxton offered to obtain the date on which the commission handed the job to the engineers and said it was the crux of the matter.

Sundown; Nerves on Edge; Couldn't Sleep at Night

"I Suffered From Headaches, Indigestion And Dizzy Spells. Say This Hamilton Woman. Tells How Syntona Helped Her.

"Nervousness and sleeplessness are among the most distressing symptoms of a rundown condition of the system. Often accompanied by poor digestion, gas, headaches and dizzy feelings, this condition frequently indicates the use of a stimulating tonic to improve appetite, and assimilation of food in order to build up the system. In many instances it is necessary to continue the treatment for some time to build up the worn-out, tired feeling and other symptoms disappear.

So in the case of Mrs. Olga Unger, 574 Aberdeen Ave., Hamilton, Ont., Syntona can be counted on to bring highly gratifying results.

"For over a year I was rundown and troubled with poor digestion. After my meals I would have gas and indigestion pains. I was also subject to headaches, backache and nervousness. I felt tired and worn-out and could not get to sleep after going to bed at night.

"A friend of mine suggested that I try Syntona and I must say this medicine made a wonderful difference in the way I feel. Even from the first bottle I felt an improvement and now after I've been taking it a few weeks my appetite is splendid, down and I am able to get a wonderful sleep the night through. The digestive troubles are cleared up and I am now free of headaches and dizzy spells and the aching pain has gone out of my back."

Lee Mortimer Columnist, Beaten In Night Club

New York, May 18 (AP)—Lee Mortimer, broadcast columnist for the New York Daily Mirror, was beaten unconscious early Wednesday in a Fort Lee, N.J., night club by a thug. He suffered facial cuts and face and jaw injuries.

Police Chief Hoyt report of the beating at the Riviera night club but the story was told by comedian Jerry Wright and by columnist Sidney Kingsley, who accompanied Mortimer to Fort Lee to see the Riviera show.

Mortimer said he had conferred earlier in New York with Virgil Peterson, executive secretary of the Chicago Crime Commission. He believed he was followed by two men in a "black convertible" across the George Washington Bridge to the Riviera.

After watching the show, Mortimer said he went to the men's room. This, said Kingsley, is what happened:

Mortimer started washing his hands when "two guys came in, one stocky, one obviously thin." One walked to Mortimer, nudged him, and demanded: "Who are you pushing?" Then he swung as the columnist around, struck him three times. He fell to the floor and Mortimer fell. Then the thug dropped to one knee and hit Mortimer two or three times more.

Three years ago Mortimer charged the Frank Costello and friends with jumping on him and beating him without warning in a Hollywood night club. Kingsley later described it as "a one-punch affair" and "no contest."

Few Flood Victims Carried Insurance

Winnipeg, May 18 — (CP) Flood victims, particularly farmers, will receive little compensation for their losses except through government and public assistance, a Winnipeg insurance official said today.

An insurance company survey revealed that few householders had their homes insured against flood loss. About the only company which will accept flood insurance on a house is Lloyds of London.

The insurance man said Lloyds has about $2,000 in premium for every $5,000 insured in the area in two-year period.

Reuther to Probe Apparent Split In Toledo Union

Toledo, O., May 18 (AP) Walter Reuther, president of the Automobile Workers Union (CIO) will send a committee here today "in deal with" a revolt which has split Toledo's huge local in wide open.

At least five of the 125 units of the 30,000-35,000 member local rebelled Wednesday against Richard T. Gosser, an International UAW vice-president, and his control over the local.

The spark which touched off the explosion was the strike Tuesday of 12 women employees of the union's dues collection office. They left their jobs protesting what they said was "domination" by Gosser.

Charles O. Ballard, UAW regional director, and Howard Sercomb, Local 12 president, said the 12 women "quit their jobs." They were replaced.

Richard L. Lazelle, Sr., president of the Toledo Industrial Union Council, offered to replacement of the 12 women said:

"They quit. Other girls are working in the office now, which threatens to make a mockery out of the union."

Statement Issued

Reuther advised Lazelle he would send a committee to Toledo today "to deal with the Toledo situation." The committee, Reuther said, will be headed by Emil Mazey, U.A.W. secretary-treasurer.

Officers of the rebelling units —representing about 5,000 workers—declared in a statement:

". . . John's other people on the jobs of these striking workers is abhorrent to every union knows and agrees with the fundamental principal of trade unionism."

It also took a swing at what it called "the political machine control which engulf the Toledo UAW.

In Detroit, Gosser called the union officers who issued the statement "twisted individuals who have a "shock coming to them." They ". . . have given their support to the communists which are admittedly trying to destroy the union," he added.

Lazette said "this guy Gosser tries to run everything in Toledo —not only the union, but politics too."

Narcotic Activity Among Juveniles Hits Vancouver

Vancouver, May 18 (CP)—Senior police officials Wednesday disclosed narcotic activity among juveniles has "reached serious proportions" in Vancouver.

One 14-year-old Vancouver girl was believed to be "youngest Canadian to face a "possession of narcotics" charge.

Police said an all-out drive has opened to ferret out "adult peddlers" believed to be supplying drugs to youngsters.

A veteran RCMP narcotics investigator said "for the first time in B.C. history it has become necessary to start laying drug charges against children."

"We don't know how the youngsters are getting the drugs," he said.

First arrests were the 14-year-old girl, a 15-year-old boy, a 17-year-old girl and a 22-year-old youth, all from Vancouver.

Believe Only 20 'Extinct' Birds in N.Z. Colony

Wellington, N.Z., (CP)—Careful observation of the colony of ostornis, the "extinct" bird rediscovered after half a century is a remote corner of southwest New Zealand, has led to a revision of the estimated numbers remaining alive.

It is now thought that the total number in the colony is not much more than 20, so a hard fight is still ahead if the species is not to die out.

In an effort to find if any more colonies of the bird exist, Dr. G. B. Orbell, discoverer of the one known colony, has undertaken an aerial survey of a large part of the rugged forest covered region in which the find was made.

He looked for small open areas of snow grass, on which the bird lives, and a number of these areas were marked on maps.

A number of expeditions have been made in these points involving difficult journeys through uninhabited country. In only one of them were distinctive signs of the notornis found, but bad weather prevented the expedition from making a full count of the area and of what were seen. So it is not known for certain if there is a second colony in existence, or even a third.

Numerous scientific expeditions have been made to study the one known colony since its discovery late in 1948. The expeditions have been limited to three persons and extreme precautions have been taken to disturb the birds as little as possible.

Because of the wide interest in the discovery by scientists throughout the world, extensive still and movie records of the life of the birds have been made and a detailed natural history of the species is being prepared by Dr. R. A. Falla, director of the Dominion Museum, who has led several of the expeditions to the site.

One of the major tasks carried out by the preservation of the species has been a campaign to wipe out stoats and deer in the locality. These animals are a danger to the colony and scientists hope the extermination campaign will give it a much better chance of survival.

The birds lay no more than two eggs at a sitting, and in no case has an adult pair reared more than one chick since the birds have been under observation.

There is apparently a low rate of fertility and hatching, which means few chicks are reared. At the most three chicks reputed to have pairs of birds actually known to have nested in the last season.

As a result of the close study of the habits of the birds it is hoped eventually to establish a new colony in safe surroundings with one or two pairs of young birds, but the numbers in the area are so few that until more detailed study is completed it is not considered safe to remove any of the birds.

The sub-alpine lake where the birds are found is known to the Maoris as Hauka Takahea, which means "nests of the notornis", so it appears that the species has existed in this locality for a long time even though Europeans and Maoris did not know that a colony of the birds still survived there.

SWANS STARVING

Nanaimo, B.C., (CP)— British Columbia's harsh winter has taken its toll of the trumpeter swans. Game warden Frank Greenfield reported he has found "a number" of the birds dead in Nanoose Bay. He said frozen waters prevented them from obtaining food.

FOUR NUNS BELIEVED BURNED TO DEATH AT HULL

SOON VISITORS WILL AVOID THE BEACH

Some of the thousands of persons who visited the scene look over the school of whales (bottlenock variety) that were left high and dry on the beach at Thornton Loch, Scotland, after a high tide carried them ashore last Sunday. There were 147 of the sea mammals in the school. Many of them lived for hours in the broiling sun. The incident posed a beach-cleansing problem for the local authorities, since dead whales are, like onions and garlic, noted for influencing people to keep their distance — by miles. — Central Press Canadian.

HOUSE CONSIDERS COMPLEX BILL TO AMEND TAX ACT

Spends Four Hours Wading Thru Clauses

Ottawa, May 19—(CP) — The Commons got buried Thursday in the complexities of a 48-clause bill to amend Canada's income tax act and almost forgot to come up for air.

Though Finance Minister Abbott said the measure merely implemented minor revisions and improvements in the tax structure and involved no important principle, members spent more than four hours wading through the dry and technical clauses.

When it was all over, the busy discussion had produced these points:

1. Charitable foundations after June 1 will have to spend 90 per cent of their current income or previously accumulated surplus to obtain tax exemption.

2. Western opposition members feel strongly that oil exploration and development companies should get a general relaxation of taxation and on some points Mr. Abott promised to make enquiries.

3. Opposition members urged that Canada's tax regulations should be in language that the man on the street will understand.

Late at night the House got around to considering amendments to the war veterans' Allowance Act under which Imperial Veterans and their widows who have resided in Canada for 20 years will become eligible for pensions. The bill was given second reading.

Opposition members appealed for a boost in veterans' allowances. But Veterans Minister Gregg said he was not in a position to recommend any such action.

Says He Slept On Frosty Ground For Three Weeks

Kirkland Lake, May 19 (CP)— A 59-year-old unemployed bushworker was in custody here today on a charge of vagrancy after he had informed police that for the last three weeks he had slept on the frosty ground or in outskirts of the township on fish caught in nearby streams and sleeping on the frosty ground.

Harmon Hansen was picked up on information received from a resident of Swastika, two miles from Kirkland Lake, who said that for weeks he had often seen the man walking on the railway tracks about three miles north of this community. He said Hansen died that a settlement to be reached at present.

Britain Anxious to Aid Manitoba Flood Sufferers, Attlee Confers With Pearson

London, May 19—(CP)—Prime Minister Attlee today invited L. B. Pearson to Downing Street to talk about possible British help in relieving the Manitoba flood distress.

The prime minister conveyed to the Canadian External Affairs Minister Britain's wish to do anything she can to help in the present situation.

Pearson said the offer of assistance will be passed on to Ottawa. L. Dana Wilgress, Canadian High Commissioner to the United Kingdom, accompanied Pearson.

It was understood the government has received many letters from individual Britons asking how they can help. Similar letters also have been received by British newspapers and at Canada House.

It was reported that the mayor of Maidenhead, Berkshire, has already started a relief fund to be sent to Canada.

In the House of Commons today there was cheering when a telegram was read from the Speaker of the Canadian House of Commons, W. Ross Macdonald.

"Your telegram of sympathy with the Canadian people and the citizens of Winnipeg reached me shortly after the opening of our session this afternoon and was read by me immediately to a silent and attentive house which broke into prolonged cheering at its conclusion.

"I am sending you, for your record, a copy of today's Hansard."

The Canadian telegram was in reply to one sent this week by Speaker of the British House, Col. Dought Clifton Brown.

ARMY PREPARES TO BLAST TRACKS IN WINNIPEG

Wind, Rain and River Launch Greatest Drive

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Winnipeg, May 19 (CP)—Wind, rain and the river today launched the greatest offensive of a months-long siege against Canada's fourth city.

It was a lesson in combined operations.

From North Dakota through Southern Manitoba the rain—up to an inch in places—poured now tons of water on the soaked Red River watershed.

Across a temporary, 600-square mile lake covering Green Bay-ing Prairie towns already have succumbed, the wind drove choppy waves against thin sanding barriers guarding greater Winnipeg's southmost approaches.

And through the twin cities of Winnipeg and French-speaking St. Boniface, the torrid, muddy Red twisted like an angry serpent, more powerful than in any previous assault.

Early today the dikes held.

But there were indications the assault might last five days. The Weather Bureau forecast 10 days of stormy weather until May 24 in North Dakota and Minnesota where the river rises. This would be fringe effects through the whole river valley to Lake Winnipeg, the weather office indicated.

Every drop of rain would weaken the inner defences of greater Winnipeg. The central Red is 25 miles already one-sixth under water.

RECOMMEND GAS SERVICE BE DISCONTINUED

Montreal, May 18 — (CP)—A recommendation that gas service be discontinued and a new system installed in a flat where five children were asphyxiated by a gas fumes April 30 was made Wednesday by a coroner's jury which returned a verdict of accidental death on the flat is occupied by Arthur Bernier, his wife and 10-year-old son Jacques, and other Bernier children — Normand, 3, Bernard, 8, Mariette, 7, Gerard, 13, and Guy 14— died within 24 hours after gas fumes filled the flat.

WINDSOR'S PARKS OFFICE ROBBED

Windsor, May 19—(CP) — A safe-box containing $180 in cash and a $6 cheque was taken from a 500-pound safe in the office of the Parks Department at night. Two doors of the building and the safe were forced open before to get the money. The burglars apparently used tools of the Parks Department to force the safe.

Blaze Guts Centre Section of Normal School for Girls

Two Other Nuns Escape, One Jumping Into Net

Hull, Que., May 19. (CP)—Four nuns are believed to have been burned to death Thursday night in a fire that gutted the centre section of the Hull Normal School for girls.

Police said today that they had recovered the unidentified body of a woman from the still smouldering ruins of the school. They said the body was believed to be one of three sisters of the Grey Nuns of the Cross Order unaccounted for since the $250,000 blaze.

Missing and believed dead are: Sister Marie de la Visitation, 36, the former Mance Route of Three Rivers, Que.

Sister Ste. Marguerite de La Charite, 33, the former Marguerite Lafontaine, of Shawinigan Falls, Que.

Two Nuns Escape

Two other nuns escaped from the top floor of the school at the height of the blaze. One jumped into a firemen's net and the other was carried unconscious down a ladder by Hull firemen.

All the 55 girl students and 53 other nuns—most of them asleep when the fire was discovered—escaped without injury to the convent premises.

"Without going into detail," he said, "one particular case was brought to our attention and made me feel that an amendment to the 'act was called for."

Donald Fleming (PC-Toronto Eglinton) asked whether the case was in the Province of Ontario.

Mr. Abbott said it had been in another Province.

He agreed with Mr. Fleming that the underlying purpose of the amendment "is to compel charitable foundations so-called to disperse the income that they receive" if they want to claim exemption from income taxes.

Minister in Accord

"Back of that," said Mr. Fleming, "must be the view that it is unhealthy to permit charitable foundations to be set up and to claim immunity from fiscal statutes, and simply to accumulate and control enormous interests of corporations or businesses.

CHARITIES MUST DISPERSE INCOME TO CLAIM TAX

Ottawa, May 19 (CP)— The Commons Thursday adopted an amendment to the income tax act which provides that charitable foundations must spend 90 per-cent of their current income on "genuinely charitable purposes" to keep that income tax-free.

The change was part of a 48-clause bill clarifying the new income tax act adopted in 1948.

Finance Minister Abbott, asked the amendment which becomes effective June 1, does not apply to "really bona-fide genuine" charitable foundations. It was aimed at plugging a "loophole" by which money could be accumulated in a foundation, not actually paid over to charities and later, when the foundation was wound up, the money transferred back to the owners or proprietors.

"Without going into detail," he said, "one particular case was brought to our attention and made me feel that an amendment to the 'act was called for."

Donald Fleming (PC-Toronto Eglinton) asked whether the case was in the Province of Ontario.

Mr. Abbott said it had been in another Province.

He agreed with Mr. Fleming that the underlying purpose of the amendment "is to compel charitable foundations so-called to disperse the income that they receive" if they want to claim exemption from income taxes.

Big 3 Will Appoint Civilian High Commissioners to Replace Austria Military Commanders

London May 19 (Reuters) — Britain, the United States, and France announced today that they would shortly appoint civilian high commissioners to replace their military commanders in Austria.

They promised that if agreement with Russia on an Austrian treaty were further delayed they would themselves do all possible to "lighten the burden of occupation."

In a Joint statement the three powers declared their readiness "at any time to settle without delay" the issues which have blocked four-power agreement on the treaty for over three years.

If "Soviet unwillingness" continued to prevent conclusion of the treaty, they said, the occupation would have to be maintained, but they would themselves do all possible within the framework of existing four power agreements to strengthen the authority of the Austrian government.

The deputies of the "Big Four" foreign ministers have held hundreds of meetings in the city to reach a solution. Western diplomats have recently charged the Soviet government with deliberately stalling the discussions.

Diplomatic observers here said the three-power declaration represented a policy of making the best of a bad job.

By it the three Western occupation powers again put on record their willingness to restore freedom and independence to Austria and their wish to settle the treaty question with the Soviet government.

But the decision to go ahead with plans for Western High Commissions in Austria is seen here as evidence that the powers do not expect a settlement to be reached at present.

ACHESON LEAVES FOR HOME AFTER PACT CONFERENCE

By SYDNEY MIKKIN

London, May 19 (AP)—State Secretary Dean Acheson leaves for home today after 10 days of conferences which tightened the world's strategy in the cold war against communism.

Acheson was in large measure personally responsible for the approval Thursday by the foreign ministers of the 12 North Atlantic pact countries of new measures to repel both military and economic threats to the west.

He has been the chief proponent of the strategy of linking the western powers into a tighter, more cohesive group, rather than the loosely-organized alliance which has functioned in the past. He left Wasington May 7 with a plan for a permanent council to oversee the military and economic progress of the pact members.

At a meeting ending Thursday the foreign ministers adopted that plan.

To Specialize

The most important was the general approval of a plan to have each of the 12 countries specialize in certain forms of military organization rather than to let each build a separate force equipped for all types of warfare.

Elimination of wasteful duplication should help in keeping new defence efforts from being too great a burden on the economies of western Europe. The western powers do not want their constantly improving economic rehabilitation to be offset from military expenditures.

London newspapers from the far right to the far left today found some fault with the work of the pact ministers but most of them were generally favorable.

The Conservative Daily Mail said the ministers' communique today on the conference really was the "worst kind of jargon, which can mean anything—or nothing."

"The defensive plan now in existence," the Mail said, "is only a paper plan. There is nothing to back it up. Western Europe is virtually wide open to attack from the east."

The ministers have done well," said the Independent London Times, "but they have not solved the crucial problem of how much the western powers can afford to spend on defence."

Young Priest Is Consecrated As Archbishop

Rome, May 19. (AP)—Franz Jachym of Vienna—the earnest, 39-year-old priest whose humility protested he was not worthy of an Archbishop's rank—today was raised to the position in solemn Roman Catholic consecration rites here.

With downcast eyes and a face showing intense emotional stress, the new titular Archbishop of Maronea moved among 2,000 German and Austrian Holy Year pilgrims, moving his right hand in its first episcopal blessing. He is one of the youngest priests to hold such high church office.

Msgr. Jachym caused a stir of comment when he dramatically refused to be consecrated in Vienna April 23 and walked out of the church. Pope Pius later refused to accept Msgr. Jachym's decision.

The priest today gave no indication of the reasons that had prompted him to his action in Vienna. Rome's Quotidiano, official organ of Italian Catholic Action, in a comment upon his earlier action said there had been many instances of prelates who thought themselves unworthy of such honor but who later gave in to higher authority.

Damaged Aorta Replaced With Artery of Corpse

Windsor, May 19 (CP)—Frank Burns 53 now is recovering in his home after a delicate operation that made medical history.

On April 3 he was taken to hospital in Detroit suffering from a disease which distended the aorta—the large artery which carries blood from the heart. The artery was threatening to burst which would have meant death.

In an eight-hour-long operation, a Detroit surgeon removed the damaged artery and replaced it with a seven-inch section of artery taken from a corpse. The operation was pioneered by Dr. Conrad Lam of Detroit.

Mr. Burns returned from the hospital Monday, and now is engaging some of the 40 pounds he had lost. It will be two or three months before he is fully recovered.

Musicians Without Hair May be Well Paid Says Judge

Plymouth, England, May 19— (AP)—The way Judge P. L. E. Rawlins sees it, a musician can be a well-paid long-hair without any hair at all.

Or so he told 46-year-old Theodore Saxbilin, pianist and tenor, who sued hairdresser Ellis for £200 ($620) in damages.

Theo, said his lawyer, had a "magnificent head of shiny black hair. It turned grey at the front. He went to Ellis and had his locks blackened. He also got a skin disease, he charged, as a result of his irrowning glory. He feared a bald dome would cut his fee income.

Long hair, Theo's lawyer asserted, "is accepted in musical circles as the special prerogative of a musician who wants to please the public."

Not so, ruled the judge. There's bald Sir Adrian Boult, retired in the years after long success as conductor of the BBC's symphony, one of the country's best.

Awarding damages of only £60, the jurist remarked:

"There is not a tittle of evidence to support the proposition that musicians with hair are more highly paid than those without."

Wants to Burn Down Own House To Save Wrecking

Circleville, O., May 19 (AP) — It will be perfectly all right for a certain resident to burn down his own house — just as long as he informs the fire department.

Fire Chief Talmer Wide gave that answer to Lee Duncan when asked if he could ignite an ancient, tumble-down, uninsured two-storey dwelling to save normal wrecking costs. Duncan promised a call "and plenty enough" job.

Wide consulted the best legal talent, who told him the fire would be all right "as long as there is no fraud."

The chief made just one request — to call the fire department when the blaze is started.

"We don't want to be called out on a fire which we ourselves have authorized," he said.

Reverse Migration of Birds At Point Pelee Interests Student

On a moonlight night you can find him in nearby Point Pelee National Park, stretched out in a deck chair studying birds in the park's 6,000 powerful field glasses.

By day, he's studying or teaching after some race bird with the park's official bird recorder, catching its song.

But despite the apparent frivolity of these pursuits, Mr. Gunn is working on a serious problem for the University of Toronto, where he is a student. Now working for a degree as doctor of philosophy and a career as naturalist, he's trying to unravel the mystery of reverse migration on the point.

For years naturalists have known that migrating birds arrive in Point Pelee, look around and head back in the direction whence they came.

Mr. Gunn, who gave up a job as public relations man for an advertising agency to become a naturalist, suspects this reverse migration has something to do with barometric pressures and temperatures at the point, which juts into Lake Erie.

Point Pelee is a heaven for bird-watchers. Each spring and fall for Mr. Gunn has observed as many as 100 different species of birds. Many of them are found in the Carolina States of the Atlantic seaboard, and are not seen elsewhere in Canada.

His work is recording machine, which he hopes to power from an auto engine to make it portable, provides entertainment for the birds as well as knowledge for himself.

He recorded the song of a Baltimore oriole, and then played the song back to the bird. It hovered around the loudspeaker, looking for the bird which sang so well.

Substance in Human Milk Destroys Polio Virus but Nature Undetermined

Cincinnati, May 19—(AP)—A substance in human milk, the identity of which still is unknown, has been established as a destroyer of the virus of poliomyelitis.

That report came Thursday from Dr. Albert Sabin, director of infantile paralysis research in Cincinnati's children's hospital.

He said the same success in fighting polio has been achieved with the milk from a few cows in a herd of 20 now being studied at two farms near Lebanon, O.

There again, more work is to be done, he explained, because research has failed so far to enable us to tell why some cows give the substance in containing milk and others do not.

Dr. Sabin said that one thing which led to the discovery of the properties of human milk was the epidemic of polio in Cincinnati last year in a Canadian Eskimo settlement.

There were 275 cases of the disease. Twenty per cent of the victims became paralyzed and 14 per cent died but in no case did a child under three years old, when children normally are being nursed by their mothers, become paralyzed.

He said it first was determined that immunity with which all babies are born was not the contributing factor. Then it was found that human milk, taken by mouth, throat and digestive tract is not a barrier to the polio virus.

That, it was explained, was of particular importance since it is by way of the mouth that the polio virus enters the human system.

Continuing the studies, 30 Cincinnati mothers were asked to give both blood and milk specimens. Blood tests showed some with polio virus and injected into mice.

Mice which received the mixture survived without paralysis while those which were inoculated with only polio virus developed paralysis.

Similar findings have opened up many, many more fields of study," Dr. Sabin said. "There's no hard and fast rule why one problem before we now have many to solve."

Manitoba Relief Fund Adopts Methods to Augment Donations

The Manitoba Relief Fund Committee went into ways and means action at a special meeting held in the City Hall during the day afternoon.

Many suggestions regarding the raising of funds for the flood-stricken people of the western province were aired and a number were adopted.

The name "Manitoba Relief Fund Committee" was unanimously adopted but the suggestion that the committee adopt a slogan was turfed down. It was felt that a slogan was not necessary in a campaign of this nature.

Churches and theatres will be called upon to assist in the campaign. Announcements will be made from city pulpits over the weekend. Theatres will be asked to co-operate in showing slides on their screens in aid of the fund. Further co-operation will be requested of the theatres in the taking of collections from audiences. It is expected the Soroptimist Club of the city will undertake this job.

Boxes in Stores

Mrs. Douglas Chant and a capable committee will be appointed to undertake the preparation and placing of boxes in stores of the city where shoppers can leave small change and other donations. This work will be completed by tomorrow.

Mrs. Georgia Smith is contacting ladies organizations of the various churches, inviting regard to assistance. Already volunteer donations have been made from one or two rural church groups.

The Rev. G. A. Perkins, president of the Ministerial Association told the committee that a communication had been received from the Moderator of the United Church stating that the church has given a donation of $10,000 and all contributions from its members should be made through the church channels.

The Canadian Legion Provincial Command has made a donation of $1,000 and requests its branches to add to this contribution through command office.

The committee adopted the idea of placing Birthday Penny Boxes in all the schools, subject to the permission of the board of Education. Mr. Ken. Griffiths, president of the Belleville Sales and Ad. Club, said he would take the matter of looking after this phase of fund-raising with his club.

Tub In Hydro Window

A tub, or washing machine will be placed in the windows of the Hydro Shop, Front Street, where people may drop their donations.

Mr. Griffiths told the committee he would contact the Chamber of Commerce with regard to contacting city industries. "The Northern" at 4 o'clock today," he said, "already had a collection project under way."

Chairman John M. Wood outlined several advertising projects and in his publicity drive will seek Winnipeg flood evacuees for radio and interviewing over radio station CJBQ.

Donations to the fund are being received at every bank branch in the city. Groups, organizations and individuals are requested to leave their donations at these branches.

IN MEMORIAM

NOBLES — In loving memory of a dear wife, Nancy Ellen Nobles, who passed away one year today.
Many a lonely heartache
Many a lonely hour
Always a beautiful memory
Of one we loved so dear
God gave her courage to fight it
And courage to bear the blow
God took her home because He knew
No one will ever know
A happy home we once enjoyed
How sweet the memory still
But oh how we left a loneliness
That words can never fill.
Sorrowfully missed by husband Maurice.

New United Church at Batawa

Above is an artist's conception of the new Batawa United Church which Thursday evening was officially dedicated by the Rt. Rev. Willard Brewing, D.D., Moderator of the United Church of Canada, on his first visit to the Cobourg Presbytery. The church was reconstructed from material from the former Methodist Church at Myersburg. The church has accommodation for about 130 persons and will have a stone coat exterior finish.

Moderator Dedicates Batawa Church at Impressive Service

In the presence of some 200 members of the congregation and interested visitors, the new Batawa United Church was officially dedicated Thursday evening by the Rt. Rev. Willard Brewing D.D., Moderator of the United Church in Canada.

The dedication ceremony was held out-of-doors in front of the new church with members of the congregation and visitors seated in a semi-circle about a specially constructed platform occupied by officiating clergymen. Special music was provided for the service by members of the Bridge Street United Church in Belleville under the leadership of Miss Leona Riggs and with Alec Gordon at the piano. Rev. Roy MacEachern is minister of the new church.

Although still to receive an exterior finish of stone coating, the new Batawa church is a distinct credit to members of the congregation, who have contributed so generously toward its construction. Seating accommodation of the church is approximately 130 persons

Plans Started in 1943

Plans for the new structure were commenced back in 1943 when Rev. Henry Vaclavik resident minister of the bi-lingual United Church congregation interested its members in the construction of a church. Services up until that time had been held in private houses and then later in the community hall.

"But a community hall is not a proper place to hold church services," said Mr. Vaclavik, now pastor for the Rawdon United Church circuit, who at the dedication service recounted early history of the congregation.

He noted that 11 years ago there was nothing at Batawa but corn or pasture. Then officials of the Bata Shoe Company, driven from their native Czechoslovakia by power hungry Hitler, came to Canada and built a new factory at what is now Batawa.

Conducted in Two Languages

But people could not live by bread alone and soon an international church was organized and he had come to Batawa from Saskatchewan as its first minister. For some time services had been conducted in two languages because always there were a number of Canadian visitors.

With the decision to build a new church subscriptions were received from members of the congregation and from other interested persons. Many of the persons who had contributed to the new church were now living in other countries.

Members of the building committee purchased the former Methodist Church at Myersburg near Campbellford, which was then unused. The building was torn down and transported by truck 25 miles to Batawa. Reconstruction of the building was commenced in 1948 and only recently completed.

Old Building Used

Members of the building committee and engineer who supervised re-construction, Mr. A. Storey said that approximately 60 per cent of the material from the old church had gone into the new building. The original pews were used while circular stained window in the west end of the church is also back in place.

There is a story behind the handsome stained glass window but its history has not been learned from the older members of the original Myersburg Church. The window was brought to Myersburg from another church back in 1892. It was crated up when the church was dismantled and uncrated only yesterday when replaced in the new church. The window is so delicate that it must have an outside protection of plate glass.

Stained Oak Furnishings

Chancel furnishings of the new church are of stained oak contributed by the W.M.S. of the Cobourg Presbytery and made by a local artisan, the late Henry Montgomery of Frankford. The W.M.S. gave the pulpit and the lectern, while Mr. Montgomery donated the baptismal font and the communion table. The church organ was donated by Gordon Ireland, Batawa, treasurer of the building committee.

Walls of the church are of the test siding with wainscoting of natural finish fir trim. The ceiling is of acoustic blocks and the floor is of grey tile. To the right of the chancel is the vestry.

The church is heated by a hot air furnace placed in a corner of the basement. The east end of the basement is fitted as a modern kitchen fully equipped with built-in cupboards and an electric range. The central part of the basement will be used as a Sunday School. Heavy floor beams were used for the main church floor to permit a clear span in the basement without posts.

Many Clergymen Present

Among the clergymen on the platform who took part in the dedication ceremony were The Moderator, present minister of the Batawa Church, Rev. Roy MacEachern; Rev. J. E. Anderson, Brighton; Rev. James A. Reid, Colborne; Rev. William Fletcher, Wooler; Rev. Donald C. Amos, Belleville; Dr. Smith of Campbellford; Rev. H. Lackey; Rev. H. C. Vedick, Rawdon; Felix Skoulajon, elder of Batawa United Church, and Harold C. Martin, Stirling, building committee financial advisor and Rev. T. C. White, chairman Cobourg Presbytery.

Representatives of Other Churches

Representatives of the Anglican, and Presbyterian Churches, and also from the Salvation Army were also in attendance.

The moderator in his sermon following the official dedication of the new church said there was a unique touch in the Batawa setting not found anywhere else.

He paid tribute to the work and effort on part of the church building committee and also to members of the congregation and others for their contributions of money. People of many classes and denominations had assisted and "this is church union at work" he said.

"No one church can claim credit for putting this church here," he went on. "It was a community effort—not only interdenominational but inter-racial as well. This adds a rather delicate touch as the Christian church is the only force able to save a world dangling on precipice of catastrophe."

Church Mother of Progress

The moderator spoke of the factory and church relationship existant at Batawa. He said this was a general fact anywhere in the world. He said it was not by accident that factory workers stood by the church. This was because the church was the mother of progress. The church and the factory stand together in complimentary relationship to each other.

"Christianity had transformed industrial and commercial relations and this transformation must go on," he observed.

Following the dedication service members of the congregation and visitors inspected the new church. Later visiting clergy and members of Bridge Street United Church choir adjourned to the recreation hall where they were served refreshments.

100 Chartered Members

Close to 100 enrolled members will be counted among the charter members of the new church and congregation. Present officers directing the work of the congregation under the leadership of Rev. Roy MacEachern are:

Session committee: F. Skoutajan; Ralph Armstrong; Mrs. F. Hordica and Harry Pearce.

Board of Stewards: Gordon Ireland; A. Storey, J. Moore, H. Pelrick, Mrs. T. Tilley and Mrs. A. Machala.

Building committee: Arthur Duncan, Ralph Armstrong, H. Pearce, Gordon Ireland, Frank Rabel, A. Storey.

Sunday School — Gordon Ireland, superintendent; R. Armstrong, assistant; Rosa Venterik, secretary. There is an active Woman's Association under the direction of Mrs. C. Wallace.

First post dedication service at the new church will be Sunday when the Rev. J. E. Anderson of Brighton, president of the Bay of Quinte Conference, will officiate at communion service and reception of members.

Old-Fashioned Family Prayer Theme of Rosary Crusade Rally in Arena Monday Night

Intensive five week campaigns to revive the practice of old-fashioned family prayer are being conducted all across Canada by Father Patrick Peyton, C.S.C., an Irish born priest from Albany New York.

Under the slogan "the family that prays together, stays together, coined by Father Peyton, the present "Family Rosary Crusade" is being conducted in the Archdioceses of Kingston and Toronto, the dioceses of Hamilton, Pembroke, Peterborough and the Apostolic Exarchate of Eastern Canada.

All Faiths Welcome

During the crusade which began April 30th and ends June 4th, rallies have been held in several centres of this area, and on Monday June 22nd, Father Peyton will hold a rally in Belleville Arena at 8.15 p.m. A children's rally will be held in the Arena on the afternoon of the 22nd at 2 p.m.

While the crusade is sponsored by the Roman Catholic Church, non-Catholics are invited to take part as well. The aim of Father Peyton's crusade is to encourage all faiths to pray with their families for ten minutes every day.

Bishops, priests and people work together during these campaigns. In the final week, church laymen visit every Catholic home to secure a pledge of "daily family prayer."

Native of Ireland

Born in County Mayo, Ireland, Father Peyton came to the United States at the age of 19. As a boy, he wanted to become a priest but on arrival in the United States he went to work in the coal mines near Scranton, Pennsylvania. Later he was a cook in a cathedral. One day as he was painting the church in Scranton, the future Father Peyton put down his brush and decided to enter the priesthood.

Shortly before his ordination, Father Peyton was stricken with tuberculosis. After a speedy recovery, Father Peyton determined to devote his life to telling people about the power of prayer.

Started Eight Years Ago

Eight years ago Fr. Peyton of the Congregation of Holy Cross, was a newly-ordained priest assigned to a chaplaincy in Albany New York. Today, Father Peyton is well known throughout the world and his achievements are described as a "modern day miracle."

Since 1942, when he launched his crusade "to restore the Family Rosary to the homes of the world," Father Peyton has originated a weekly half-hour radio program "The Family Theatre". To supplement his continent-wide family prayer crusade, Father Peyton has enlisted Hollywood stars and movie producers. So far two "Family Theatre Films" have been produced, "The Road to Peace" and "The Triumphant Hour."

Aim Is Universal Prayer

Father Peyton believes that "prayer is the salvation of the world today and the answer to the perplexities of the world." Starting at the family, "the basic social organization" Father Peyton hopes that his "united movement shall help to replace fear by faith will spread up through every stratum of society."

Father Peyton will be assisted at the rally by the Archbishop J. P. O'Sullivan of Kingston. The Belleville Band will be in attendance. Sunday's rally will include the parishes of Belleville, Trenton, Marmora, Madoc, Stirling, Frankford, Tweed, Ameliasburg, Stoco, Erinsville, Enterprise, Read, Marysville, Picton and Camden.

SAVING AND INVESTMENT

When individuals spend more money than they earn, they are liable to find themselves in serious financial difficulties. At the same time, when the citizens of a nation are too thrifty and oversave, they are hampering the progress and development of their countries resources.

In a recent address to the Canadian Life Insurance Officers Association, J. E. Coyne, Deputy Governor of the Bank of Canada, revealed that Canadians have saved three billion dollars during the last four years. Individual Canadian savings are increasing at the rate of four hundred million every year.

While there is a definite need for individuals to save a certain amount-to take care of their current needs and family emergencies, this is a tremendous sum of money to take out of circulation.

Mr. Coyne pointed out that this mountain of money together with the surplus accumulating in corporations necessary to meet current Canadian investment needs. At the present time, there is a wide open field for private investment right across Canada. To date however, foreign investors have shown more interest in investing in Canadian resources such as Labrador and the oil fields of Western Canada than Canadians themselves. Canadians on the whole have favored more conservative investments such as housing and mortgage. While these investment fields are important, this is not enough.

Statistics showing the amount and percentage of foreign capital invested in Canada might be surprising to many Canadians but concrete proof is to be found in the number of branches of American corporations operating in Canada at the present time.

One half of all dividends of Canadian corporations is paid to non-residents. This report of dollars could be ended if banks and insurance companies which hold 60 per cent of Canadian savings turned investment backlog into productive enterprises.

Canada's growth will be determined by the amount and type of capital investment that is undertaken each year. A high level of employment and business activity is necessary for an expanding economy which in turn requires an increasing amount of public and private investment.

PRACTICAL SYMPATHY

The people of this Continent are showing how they can feel with those who have been sufferers in the calamities which have stricken the Red River area and the two communities of Rimouski and Cabano in Quebec.

In time of disaster human sympathy mounts to meet the emergency. It is a natural instinct to feel gratitude at having escaped such a calamity and to voice sympathy and to aid those who have been through such distortion of their daily life as fire and flood can create. The sense of gratitude those who have not had to pass through such trials feel impels them to try to assist in every possible way in the heroic refugees who are forced to face the ravage of flood and conflagration and evacuation.

Millions of Canadians and Americans have asked themselves what they would do if they had to pass through the trials of the people of the stricken areas — to leave their damaged homes with the little they could carry away and seek shelter elsewhere and this sympathy is shown in the opening of homes for them and the raising of a fund for relief of the sufferers by the flood.

In a very real sense the people feel the heartbeat of their brothers and sisters in distress, and are co-operating in whatever way they can to lighten the troubles the disaster sufferers have faced. It is the sign of the highest humanity to help lift that burden.

SEASON OF MIRACLES

Who, on being shown a seed for the first time, would believe that this wizened thing would grow into a tall stalk bearing red, yellow, or brown, or that a bit of matter the size of a tear drop could turn into a pumpkin? Only a childlike faith makes possible belief in a story so incredible.

The gardener knows from experience, of course, that the story really is true. He did, at least, as recently as last year — and he covers up his seeds and busies himself with other chores while he waits for them to come up. He may suspect that it is impossible for something as frail as is the pale green stalk of a newly sprouted seed to move a bulk of earth several times its size, or that it is highly unlikely the bean he plants soon will reappear, held proudly aloft by its own vine having bundled itself upward through the earth's crust. But these tours de force are possible, and each spring more than one gardener may be found on hands and knees inspecting them in undimmed amazement.

There is no unbelief:
Whoever plants a seed beneath the sod
And waits to see it push away the clod,
He trusts in God. —New York Times

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST
(Copyright, 1950, Edgar A. Guest)

FOLLY

With all the wisdom taught in schools
There shouldn't be so many fools.
So many, stupid, blundering men
Who want to go to war again.

By now 'tis strange we haven't learned
That peace from war is never earned;
That all our cannons still
Since wars breeds war and always will.

We must be fools to think that we Must battle when we disagree
And give to fearful weapons new
The problems sense would better do.

Oh, sorry men so much to know
'And yet to learn one truth so low
That reason, if we dared to try,
Would save the boys war still calls to die!

An interesting race was finished yesterday morning when the schooner Grace M. Filer of Belleville with Capt. Fagan in command sailed into the Belleville harbor leading the schooner Merrill commanded by Capt. Peacock. Both schooners laden with coal for the Rathbun Company, left Oswego at the same time and in friendly rivalry used all their canvas in an effort to reach Belleville first. Capt. Fagan is of course jubilant at his first victory in the first race across the lake this season.

Mr. T. D. Ruston is attending a meeting of the Children's Aid Society in Toronto.

In the space where the name of the sender would appear the winner wrote, "Donate to the Hospital." So the hospital will receive the prize of $10. in cash. The winning slogan was "A Bigger and Better Belleville," and the judges, ex-mayor Charles N. Sulman, City Clerk W. C. Mikel and Mr. J. Hess, secretary of the Y.M.C.A. decided it to be the winner. The contest created great interest and hundreds of clever slogans were sent in. The prize of $10. in gold was donated by Mr. C. A. Elliot, manager of the International College of Ophthalmology.

Paper Can Take As Many Pictures As They Want

Ottawa, May 19 — (CP) — The New York Daily News has been given permission to take all the photographs it wants" of the Manitoba flood area, Cmdr. C. P. Edwards, Deputy Minister for Air, said Thursday.

Cmdr. Edwards said that the American newspaper, whose plane was impounded in Winnipeg earlier this week, had been for and received permission to take aerial photographs of the floods.

The plane, flown to Winnipeg by Daily News photographer Charles Hoff and Pilot William Wagner, was seized by order of the Federal government for failure to have a permit to take aerial tographs. They had gone to Winnipeg to photograph the Manitoba flood area for their newspaper.

PITCHING HORSESHOES

By Billy Rose

MAYBE THOREAU WASN'T SO DUMB

Yesterday was very warm for May—and for Eleanor and Billy too—so we rolled-in-hooked it up to Central Park and there got to fraternizing with an old gent named Timothy Jennings who has been around Manhattan since Rector's was a gym.

As we were gabbing about this and that, a lot of automobile horns began honking it up, and looking over toward the 72nd Street entrance we could see the traffic was snarled for a solid block.

"Progress!" snorted Timothy. "You folks happen to see Reader's Digest this month?"

"I did happen to see Reader's Digest this month," I said, "but what's it got to do with progress?"

"Some interesting statistics in it. Back in the horse-and-buggy days, a man could get around this town at the rate of eleven miles an hour. Today, in a hundred horsepower car, he's lucky if he averages six."

"Why don't you take it up with City Hall?" deadpanned Eleanor.

"Starting as far back as 1867," said Timothy, "I've tried to take it up with City Hall, but all he ever got for his yelling was a sore throat."

"Exactly what did your father yell about?" I asked.

"At first, about the new-fangled electrical railway that struck Wisconsin Street. He got up a petition claiming that it shut out the sun, but failed to get enough signatures to stick to their stomachs. Besides the argument that the fact that people in the street slowed down horse traffic and made it tough for Uncle Sam to collect the dollar."

"Why was your father so concerned about the hackies?" asked my wife.

"Best reason in the world—he was one himself. But actually it was to—as we say in Central Park—put a stop to the speeding and used to spend city nights reading those back-to-nature books by Thoreau. I remember describing one to him if toilet didn't stop trying to improve on nature, they'd wind up buried trapped by their own smart-Aleck invention."

"I'll agree with your dad!" I asked.

"Not when I was young," said Timothy. "By the time I was fixing to get married, the electrical systems were beginning to spread out, and hansom cabbies were finding the going pretty rough. So instead of listening to my father I attended classes set up by the transit company, and in no time at all I was a motorman on the Second Avenue El. I stuck right up to the day he passed away, my pop kept insisting that nothing would ever replace the horse, and he warned me to save every cent I could against the time people come down to earth again."

"Did you follow his advice?" asked Eleanor.

"To the letter," said Timothy, "and a mighty good thing it was by the time they tore down the Second Avenue El I had a pretty fair piece of cash in the bank and was able to go into business for myself. Got a start on the street of 59th?"

"The corner's fine," I said.

"Whoa, Alberta!"

We got out of the hansom and Timothy shook hands with us, tipped his plug hat, and as we turned to go he reached down and patted a horse on the rump.

"Maybe Thoreau and Timothy's dad weren't so dumb," said Eleanor.

Mackenzie's Column:
Display of Power Only Way to Win Russian Respect

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Canadian Press News Analyst)

Great hope for the avoidance of another world conflict can be taken from the action of the 12 nations in agreeing on the setting up a permanent council to co-ordinate and direct anti-communist defence measures, both military and economic.

This development represents the strongest concrete expression of determination thus far evidenced by the combined western powers in their search for security against any aggression. It is based on the decision that the sole way of winning Russian respect is by a display of power.

That is the only understanding the Soviet Government has of this atomic age of ours — an unwelcoming thought, I know.

Let's analyze this Atlantic Pact move to see just what it means. We have here the United States, Canada, Britain, France, Italy, Norway, Denmark, Holland, Belgium, Luxembourg, Portugal and Iceland. Moreover a project is afoot to take Western Germany, with its vast Ruhr steel and coal fields, into the fold.

Concentrated in this brotherhood is the bulk of the industrial productivity of the world. Military-wise they can take West's industrial power. The resources of the Atlantic nations are far and away stronger than those of the Russian bloc.

Some Members Fearful

Naturally the agreement was not reached without misgivings and heartburnings. Some of the members, still suffering from the ravages of the last war, have been fearful that their economic positions wouldn't stand the strain of military costs. Some have feared that they would be the first expendable bases in event of war while the United States stayed home.

However, the final judgment was that in unity lies strength. So the Atlantic Pact council has been agreed to establish a permanent high strategy board to co-ordinate the defence, both economic and military, against aggression. The job of this board is to block communism.

The North Atlantic Treaty Foreign Ministers meeting in London set up the permanent high command last night, and nominated its officers. Each of the 12 foreign ministers will appoint a deputy to serve on the permanent committee. It is expected that this group will name its own head and that a general belief is he will be an American.

There has been much speculation as to who will get this important and difficult assignment. Three names have been prominently mentioned — General Dwight Eisenhower, now president of Columbia University; General Omar Bradley, U. S. Chief of Staff, and W. Averell Harriman, Secretary of Commerce for the Marshall Plan.

Whoever gets the assignment will face a tough task. His principal problem will be to keep all the nations keyed up, pepped up and going full steam ahead. That calls for supreme leadership.

SETTLED OUT OF COURT

Toronto, May 19 — (CP) — A libel action brought against the Toronto Star Weekly by Mrs. Edgar Watson, 70, Toronto manufacturer and businessman, was settled out of court Thursday.

Mr. Watson was awarded damages of $1. The Star agreed to pay trial costs. T. N. Phelan, Star counsel, announced the settlement in Mr. Watson.

THE UNSOLVED RHEUMATISM RIDDLE

Tan or twenty years ago physicians who were recognized as specialists or authorities were fond of describing several varieties or kinds of joint trouble of gradual development and long duration (chronic), such as chronic infections (caused by germs) arthritis, atrophic (wasting) arthritis, hypertrophic (thickening, enlargement of joints) arthritis, rheumatic arthritis (resembling rheumatism, whatever that may be), arthritis deformans and osteoarthritis (inflammation of both joints and bones).

To the untutored layman, as the daily mail tells me, this term arthritis seems particularly vicious. Actually it has no special significance. It is merely a 32 medical word for joint inflammation. The layman complains to the doctor of painful, lame or stiff joints. The doctor shakes his head over the situation and informs the patient that it is a touch of arthritis. That seems to satisfy the curiosity of the inquiring layman. Having "tried" whatever the doctor advised or prescribed without any noticeable benefit, the untutored layman takes a whirl at whatever appears in print. The doctor shakes his head over the situation and informs the patient that it is a touch of arthritis. That seems to satisfy the curiosity of the inquiring layman. Having "tried" whatever the doctor advised or prescribed without any noticeable benefit, the untutored layman takes a whirl at whatever appears in print or other remedy or treatment for "arthritis" he happens to come across. Perchance after a year or two of such experimentation he writes to ask me what he would be good for a case of chronic arthritis.

I am hoping that after waiting so long I should have plenty to write about, but the post goes. But I haven't. Aside from simple analgesics or sedatives and various physical measures to combat or prevent various complications, I know of no cure for anything that is likely to do any great good.

As I have been trying to tell you children ever since Tony was a boy, I have never had the confidence in the so-called "internal antiseptics" as the manufacturers of physical degeneration, as near as I can understand their language.

Of course the term rheumatism is a very broad one and covers even though a million gullible geeks squander their money on nerve medicines, diets, baths, queer doctors and trick lamps in the hilarious hope that the treatment will do them good. If any one gets any real benefit from any improvement in what ails him from a course of treatment for rheumatism it is coincidental.

The term arthritis means joint inflammation. It is nothing more nor less. Any joint, simple or complex, subject to a doctor for sore, lame, stiff or painful joint or joints and the doctor pronounces the trouble arthritis and prescribes medicine, diet or other measures by way of treatment, the patient is dumb customer and the doctor knows it. It is as childish to believe "arthritis" is a peculiar malady due to this or that cause as it is to believe rheumatic is due to damp climate, red meat or exposure.

In most instances of chronic or long-lasting joint trouble called "arthritis" there is no inflammation at all. For that reason alone the term arthritis doesn't even convey a hint as to what really has been pained.

That other term, physical degeneration, conveys as much meaning that we had better talk about it another day.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Chocolate Beverage

Dr. Wiley used to warn parents against giving chocolate to children because it contains a drug which excites the nerve centers. Has protestant opinion changed since thirty years ago? (F. C. L.

Answer: In the red book (What to Eat Every Day) 25c and stamped self-addressed envelope) I say: Children, as a rule, eat chocolate are mildly stimulating beverages, here stemmed in the order of their strength. Because of the diuretic action of cocoa or chocolate fluid intake is that, increased kidney function, it is inadvisable to give cocoa or chocolate to young children in the afternoon or evening. In fact, milk is the best beverage for children under sixteen years of age, in my opinion.

Distinction or Difference?

I am an R. N. in ——— Hospital. I and other nurses in the surgical department here have had many teachings about removal of tonsils. When I told pupil nurses the difference between tonsilectomy and tonsillotomy one of the staff surgeons came in, saying there is no difference. (——— R.N.)

Answer—The surgeon is frank in admitting the difference. All clinics deliver a wonderful talk about and every bit of tonsil (tonsillectomy) when they cut off the obstructing portion of tonsil (tonsillotomy). In view of the fact that more or less tonsil tissue remains after the most strenuous tonsillectomy (provided the patient survives) I should say, what's a point, hasn't he?

Blue Sclerotics

Is there cause for alarm if the whites of a baby's eyes are light blue from birth? (Mrs. W. G.)

Answer—It runs directly in families, often associated with fragility of the bones and progressive deafness in middle age (otosclerosis). Aside from seeing to it that the individual always gets an adequate daily ration of calcium and vitamin D nothing can be done about it. It is a family trait, like color blindness.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE DECENCY OF HONEST LABOR

There is a delightful children's story about Li'l Hannibal who wouldn't tote. Everytime he got all fixed to do something he wanted to do, his mother called on him to go on an errand somewhere or do something. At last he decided to flee this tyranny and betook himself to the cellar where he had his friends, the rabbits. When supper time came he was all ready for a big meal and went about looking for his place at the table. He found, to his consternation, that there was no place for Li'l Hannibal. The rabbits ate with the greatest cheer and with hearty appetites, but nary a vegetable for a human did they leave. Thereason, as it turned out, was because there was no place at the table for folks that shirked their duty. No tote, no food.

The Bible version of this principle is that if any will not work, neither shall he eat. Modern decency requires every strong and self-respecting person to take up his end in the project of life. There are many now who do not work because they have hired help, and such should have the sympathy and support they deserve. But even in the best of times there are those who wobble live by something other than their own efforts.

Every living soul should be compelled to submit to the principle that if one partake of any of life's good things, he must be willing to tote something in return.

THE BLESSINGS OF TREES

The leafing of the trees at Springtime is one of the miracles of the year. No other season is so beautiful. It is a time of blooms and beginnings. But few there are who pause to think of the deep significance, and all that they have bequeathed in blessings to mankind.

Our libraries and our homes are the product of trees. Nothing in nature we learn of one of our first inventors—the wasps, who were the first paper manufacturers.

They began their work in the Garden of Eden, and were the first to use wood for their paper homes. And so far back as 3500 B.C. in the valley of the Nile, papyrus on which they inscribed their crude language. Later the Chinese found a way to have made paper from a process of wood pulp.

Today we owe to the trees our great libraries, our endless parade of books, magazines and newspapers. It was not until 1803, however, that any paper was made by machinery in England. From then on inventive mind of man has perfected processes by which millions of tons of wood pulp, day and night, pour out their product in endless flow of publications.

There is poetry in a tree, and many a poet has proved it. How many a child delights in the trees of homes, parks, and towns, without realizing in these trees a living asset, and we cannot conserve them too much. To wantonly destroy them is the noblest vandalism in the world—many that were in their prime in the forests of Canada.

Our song birds love the trees, and hide their homes among their branches. They add to the joy of life and their many varieties, is a fascinating study. Every variety with a perfect bark and leaf of its own design. Silent though they stand, they are the most eloquent of all those of us who love them most, and who are most observant, although they talked silently to us.

It was while lying under a tree side of books, magazines and newspapers. It was not until 1803, however, that any paper was made by machinery in England. From then on inventive mind of man has perfected processes by which mil-

SETS NEW RECORD

Port Arthur, May 18 (CP) — The Canada Steamship Lines steamer Hochelaga set a new grain-carrying record for a Canadian ship up the Great Lakes when it left here Tuesday night for Kingston with 802,000 bushels of wheat. The previous record was set a few days ago by the Hochelaga's sister ship, the Coverdale, which had 800,372 bushels.

HOUSE CONSIDERS

Pwt in Barracks

At the House opening Justice Minister Garson said arrested Doukhobor terrorists in British Columbia will be imprisoned in an empty naval barracks at Comox, BC.

Prime Minister St. Laurent announced that Canada will be glad to accept an informal working agreement with the Organization for European Economic Co-operation.

In the Senate two western gas pipe-line bills, blocked for several months by a filibuster in the Commons, were given second reading without debate.

The income tax act amendments took all afternoon and half the night to go through a clause-by-clause study in committee. A. L. Smith, (PC—Calgary West) and Douglas Harkness (PC—Calgary East) joined in an appeal for relaxation in taxation on oil companies exploring and developing in the west.

Gives Promise

Mr. Abbott promised to investigate the possibility of allowing surface rental costs to oil developmental companies as a deductible expense for income tax purposes. But he did not feel that deduction of drilling and exploration costs, now allowed on a three-year basis, should be extended to a permanent basis at present.

Mr. Smith pointed out the importance of western oil to Canada's future economy and declared Alberta oil had done more than anything else to "straighten out" Canada's dollar situation.

Oil companies objected to being taxes on a "pinprick" basis during the exploration and development period. When they had the developments going was the time the government could "go after" them for taxes and they wouldn't mind it then.

Rodney Adamson (PC—York West) said the quickest way to "kill the mining industry" was to restrict speculation. To restrict the flow of speculative capital into mining in its early stages was to "do the greatest disservice to the development of this country."

He was glad to have the assurance of the minister that mining stockbrokers were to be included in the exemptions applying to profits made on sale of mining claims.

COST OF WAR

The total military cost of the Second World War was estimated by official sources in Washington, at $1,116,001,463,084 and property damage at $230,960,000,000.

ARMY PREPARES

Experts Baffled

The experts were as baffled as the laymen in their efforts to predict the Red's future course.

Since Sunday, when it began to level off, it has dropped an inch, gained it back, and finally—last night—went up another inch to 30.3 feet. That was the highest point in its 1950 run-off. 12.3 feet above the flood-risk level here; and only about two feet below disaster point.

At 32.5 feet, general evacuation of the twin cities would be virtually certain. Water would spread across all of St. Boniface on the Red's east bank, and swirl through Winnipeg's business district which so far has escaped except for basement flooding.

Brig. Ronald Morton, the army flood commander, has said that heavy rain over a long period in Winnipeg's greatest enemy now.

All R.C.A.F. transport planes are on 12-hour stand-by orders to help in possible evacuation. Hundreds of railway cars are nearby to move out in a matter of hours more than two-thirds of the metropolis' 350,000 normal population. The other third has left already under Brig. Morton's urging.

Urges More to Evacuate

Because the situation is so critical, he has repeatedly urged more to quit the city.

Worst flooding has been in lowlying southern suburbs and at the river's 10 distinct bends in its 14-miles course through the built-up area. Yesterday a new threat developed.

Wind-driven water piled against a six-mile dike along McGillivray Boulevard, protecting a large but thinly-populated part of south Fort Garry, several miles due south of downtown Winnipeg.

Confined between two high railway embankments, this choppy water rose higher than the Red itself, only a few hundreds yards away. Army engineers planned to blow up the Canadian National Railways Line to let the flood run eastward to the Red, relieving pressure on the dike.

The blast was scheduled for today. A first attempt last night was postponed when a C.N.R. official objected that the first army plan would cause permanent damage to the roadbed.

Believe Dike Will Stand

McGillivray dike was the urgent trouble spot but at Greater Winnipeg's 20 miles of dikes were threatened.

At Lyndale Drive a formidable, curving reef of sandbags and earth protected St. Boniface and its Norwood Suburb from inundation. The army said the pile—wide and strong enough to hold up huge bulldozers and tractors—would stand. But the incessant swirling of the river current could undermine its outer base and topple it into the Red. Some undermining was already feared.

Most of Greater Winnipeg's electricity supply was in real danger only a mile or so downstream. Main sub-stations stood in small diked islands, almost surrounded by the muddy river. Their insulation would paralyze an already-crippled city, stopping all street cars and trolley buses, shutting down bakeries which use electric ovens, halting or at best interfering with all normal communication systems including telephone and telegraph.

Basements of most downtown offices and stores would soon be full of water. It has been kept in check so far by constant operation of pumps, most of them run by electricity.

Main Bridge Closed

Greater Winnipeg was almost split in a half-dozen sections by closing of main bridges. Only two of four across the Red between the twin cities were still open. Some bridges on the tributarys Assiniboine and Seine were also out of action.

If the river should rise a little higher, many of the usable spans would go out of action.

But the river was not expected to rise. D. M. Stephens, Deputy Resources Minister for Manitoba and the army commander's top adviser on water levels and behavior, has said the Red is at its "wobbly crest."

He had expected that noon yesterday would see the beginning of a gradual drop toward normal river levels — a process which would take several weeks. The easterly wind which started yesterday threw that forecast into the discard. There was a fractional rise instead.

Following Old Course

The 1950 flood seemed to be following more and more, the course of the great floods of 1826 and 1852 which forced the early settlers away from what now is the Winnipeg business area to high ground several miles away.

In 1826, the greatest Red River flood in history, water stood five feet deep at Portage and Main, modern Winnipeg's busiest intersection. The water rose until May 21. Not until the middle of June was it back within its banks.

In 1852 the flood was not quite as high. But again the peak came May 21 and flooding continued in some districts for a month part of a month.

Mr. Stephens told The Canadian Press earlier this week that the Red must drop to 25 feet before the disaster risk is ended—

"We are not interfering with any practices that may have been followed in the past, but in future they must qualify, and in future it will not be possible for any charitable foundation to acquire control by purchase of shares of a business."

Mr. Abbott said he did not want it understood "for a moment that I think there has been any widespread abuse of the possibilities . . ." He merely felt that certain safeguards were needed.

Donations to these foundations could only be made out of income "to the extent of 10 percent or five percent limits" while gifts to them would be exempt from gift tax.

Don't Like Principle

He recalled that Columbia Uni-

WEDDINGS

CHAMBERS—MUNRO

A pretty twilight wedding of local interest was recently solemnized in Oak United Church, Toronto, when Isabella Westland Munro, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas S. Munro, was united in marriage to Donald Brown Chambers, second son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth B. Chambers, Toronto, formerly of Eldorado, Ont.

Rev. H. D. Ranns officiated before a background arrangement of yellow daffodils and baskets of white calla lilies.

The wedding music was provided by Rae Heard and the soloist, Mr. A. S. Hatcher sang before the ceremony "The Lord's Prayer" and during the signing of the register, "I'll Walk Beside You".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in the bridal gown of white slipper satin, fashioned on long lines with an Elizabethan collar and long train. A Juliet cap of lace held her veil in place and she carried an all-white bouquet of white hyacinths, white gardenias and sweetpeas.

Mrs. James McGrath, the bride's sister, was matron of honor, and Miss Nancy Scott was bridesmaid. Both were gowned alike in floor length period gowns of Easter gold corded taffeta with matching Dutch caps and bouquets of yellow daffodils and golden iris.

Little Miss Andreena Aitkin was flower girl, demure in her floor length frock of pale green corded taffeta with green taffeta bonnet to match and basket of flowers.

Mr. Joseph H. Chambers, of Hamilton, was groomsman, for his brother, and the ushers were Mr. W. Munro, the bride's brother, and Mr. G. Mathews.

The wedding reception was held at the Malloney Art Gallery, where the bride's mother, wearing a gown of Queen's blue faille crepe, with a corsage of blue iris, received the many guests. She was assisted by the groom's mother in a gown of French grey triple faille with hat and accessories in wine, and a corsage of blended carnations and sweetpeas.

During the wedding dinner, which was served to over 100 guests, Mr. Al. Stagg's Orchestra rendered music and played for the dancing which followed the dinner. Many Scottish numbers were interspersed during the evening.

Later, the happy couple left for a honeymoon in Buffalo, the bride wearing a becoming suit of Easter gold shade with matching hat and brown accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Chambers will live in Toronto, where Mr. Chambers is engaged in the teaching profession.

BEATON—REID

Madoc.—On Friday, May 5, a pretty wedding took place in the Church of the Messiah, Avenue Road, Toronto, when Jacqueline Mary, daughter of Mrs. Reid of Ompah, and the late Mr. Vernon Reid, was married to Charles Beaton of Toronto. Rev. Gordon W. Porter officiated.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Lorne McConnell, of Weston, the bride wore a beige suit and hat with matching accessories and corsage of orchids.

She was attended by her cousin, Miss Frances Kinch.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the groom's cousin.

Mr. and Mrs. Beaton will reside in Brampton.

The bride is a niece of Mrs. Gordon Munro, and has many friends in Madoc who wish her "bon voyage".

ATHLETIC STRAGGLERS

Mrs. Betty Hamilton, left, of Montreal, Canadian women's fencing champion, and Joan Morgan, swimmer from Victoria, were the last of Canada's team to the British Empire Games to return home. They spent four months touring Australasia, Ceylon, the Middle East, Britain and the Continent competing in various tournaments and visiting friends. — (CP Photo.)

MARIO ... in his distinctive feature about Food... What's Cooking?

By the author of "THE FACE IN THE ASPIC"

When the Roman Emperor Augustus used the phrase "as quick as you can cook asparagus" he was referring to the thin wild asparagus found all through Mediterranean countries and not to the thick spears we cultivate today.

Young asparagus 1-4 inch thick, taken directly from the garden patch to the kitchen pot, may be cooked in five minutes or less. But the large boxed asparagus contains about 8 cents stalks to the bunch will take from 15 to 20 minutes cooking time. In buying asparagus it is important to select stalks of uniform thickness.

You can cook asparagus in 1 inch of water, or covered with water, or in a steamer with the asparagus resting on a rack above the water or in a pressure cooker. The latter is the fastest requiring only 4 minutes at 15 pounds pressure.

Asparagus has the kind of mild and fine flavor that combines with almost any meat, poultry, seafood or fish. Use it with baked halibut and a smooth sauce of pimiento cheese.

Hallbut with Asparagus, Cheese Sauce, Serves 4.

Order 1 1-2 pounds of halibut cut into slices 1-2 inch thick. Cut halibut into 4 equal portions. Place in a mixing bowl with 1 cup water in which 2 tablespoons salt have been dissolved. Let fish soak 5 minutes. Drain.

Preheat over at 500 degrees for 20 minutes.

Place fish on a greased baking sheet. Brush fish with salad oil. Bake 10-12 minutes or until tender when pierced with fork.

Prepare cheese sauce as follows: Melt 2 tablespoons butter or margarine in a saucepan. Remove from fire. Add 2 tablespoons flour, mixing well. Gradually add 1 cup hot milk stirring until smooth. Return saucepan to flame. Simmer 5 minutes. Add 1-2 cup grated process style pimiento cheese. Keep sauce over heat until cheese melts. Add 1-2 teaspoon salt or more to taste and pepper to taste.

Arrange asparagus over halibut on serving dishes. Pour cheese sauce over asparagus. Sprinkle with chopped parsley or chopped chives.

Any other boneless fish may be substituted for halibut.

Lipsons Stage Fashion Show For Teen-Agers

Thursday afternoon, under the supervision of Mrs. L. Minns, of the Lipson's Department Stores, Front Street, a magic wand was waved, and, immediately from the pages of the "Seventeen" fashion magazine, there stepped forth a galaxy of lovely mannequins, displaying the "Teena Paige" dresses in all their summer 'chic' and charming simplicity, to the throng of teen-agers, and some not so 'teen-age.

At the rear of the store, before a background of artistic green trellis work, with creeping pink flowers, the various dresses were shown to advantage upon a stage arranged for the purpose All the fashions displayed in the magazine were shown for the first time anywhere in Ontario. These included lovely cotton chambrays, with white drawn work on the bodice, tiny pleated frills edging the short sleeves, in colors of wine, aqua, pink and apple green; sun dresses with separate short jackets, June fashions in wealthy chambray, richly embroidered on shoulders and pockets; all in delightful shades of turquoise and navy blues. The skirts were full and gracefully rippling

Outstanding Numbers

One outstanding number was known as the "Sally Anne"; this was made of fine chambray featuring a bodice fashioned from eyelet embroidery, side pockets, in the delightful shades of yellow and apple green, with narrow rolled tie belt Other styles were the "Life Saver, from the life saver decoration on the silky smooth broadcloth, sanforized and washable; "Party favorite," which featured a tucked yoke and pockets edged with lace and Peter Pan collar. This was obtainable in pink, raspberry, daffodil yellow and aqua; the "First Liner," made from silky, smooth broadcloth with inserts of lace in the tucked bodice, featured a flat winged collar

A lovely little dress was a pink tricolet with scalloped neckline and pockets, and widely full skirt, with belt of the same material. This was washable, and sanforized Other dresses were of spun cotton, with round closefitting neckline, edged with dainty lace, and the navy blue "Beverley Anne," made from tangalene with shirred skirt, full sleeves in puff effect edged with narrow white lace; a dress suitable for any occasion.

Those who modelled were — Misses Gladys Beatty, Lois Ross, Emma Butcher, Frances Thompson, Barbara Bristol, Joyce Hartleib, Phyllis Walmsley, Marcia Blatherwick, Shirley Boulton, Joan Gerow, Kay Bush and Dorothy Sophia. Miss Jean Doig was commentator.

Following the fashion show, the teen agers were treated to coca-cola, with the compliments of the store.

V.O.N. NEWS

The regular meeting of the Belleville Branch of V.O.N. was held at the Y.M.C.A. Owing to the absence of the president, Mr. F. Burton, who is holidaying in England, with friends and relatives, the vice president, Mr. D. Burr, was in the chair.

Mrs. Bulger gave a gratifying report of the Tag day held recently when $523.80 was realized.

Mr. Burr introduced Miss Marshall, a graduate of Wellesley Hospital, and post graduate student of University of Toronto, who is getting field experience with the V.O.N. of Belleville.

Miss McGeary, charge nurse, gave a fine report of the activities carried on during April. A total of 395 visits were made during the month. The two well-baby clinics and the dental clinic were well attended. The next Baby Conference is on June 2nd and every two weeks thereafter.

A comment was made on the lengthening life span which was resulting in a larger population over the age of 50, and in view of the fact, since there is going to be more older people in the population, it becomes increasingly important to nurture physical and mental health from the earliest days. This would result in happier and healthier people over 50 years of age.

It was also stated that it was important for the middle-age group to have developed outside interests other than their work, so that after retirement, they would not be bored with life.

Sunday School Lesson of the Week

An Ancient Bill of Rights

By ROY L. SMITH

One of the most thrilling books of the Old Testament was written by a nobody! At least, by one who had no social standing. He was saved from oblivion by the majesty of his message.

A Countryman

The prophet Micah was one of the landless and inarticulate countrymen who inhabited the hill district southeast of Jerusalem adjacent to the great trade route that ran from the East down into Egypt. The little village of Morasheth which he claimed as his home town was no more than a little cluster of mud and stone huts which clung to the side of a hill, up out of reach of the caravant.

Yet this country preacher became so much of an influence in the life of the Hebrews that one hundred and fifty years later he was quoted at the trial of Jeremiah, one of the greatest of the prophets, and on the basis of that quotation the great one was freed. Not a bad record for a country preacher, that!

A Spokesman for the Farmers

In the humble prophet of Morasheth the downtrodden farmers of the region of Gath—of all the kingdom for that matter—found a voice. He had watched them lose their land to the landgrabbers of Jerusalem; he had seen families of substance reduced to wretchedness by the terrible tax burdens; he had seen girls from the country driven to the pagan houses of prostitution in search of food he had watched from a safe vantage point while raiding bands of soldiers had sacked defenceless villages without the government found raising a finger in their defence.

And out of such an experience he spoke!

The Sunday School lesson for May 21: "Micah's Plea for Human Rights." Micah (1:1; 2:1-2; 3:5-12; 6:6-8.)

There is material for a thrilling motion picture in the story of the prophet who rose from the ranks of the submerged, and by his preaching in Jerusalem, the capi-

There were priests aplenty in Israel and the shrines were popular. No one can say that the forces of religion were helpless. They were not. They were only insensible and blind.

The hard pressed farmers, staggering under the burden of Taxes and militarism, were easily enmeshed in the devious schemes of the money lenders in Jerusalem who plotted to seize their tiny estates. They were no match for the police who came along with the mortgage holder. They might be outraged, and they might present with all the bitterness of which their souls were capable, but never did the voice of religion cry out in their defence. Because religion did not care.

That was Micah's grievance. That was why he hated Jerusalem and all its fanfare and fashion. That was the reason he believed it would be utterly destroyed. He believed in a God of justice, and because he did so believe he could not convince himself that God would eventually destroy the tax, compelled the whole nation to listen to his recital of wrongs and his demands for justice.

We Have Come a Long Way

However far we have yet to go, it must be admitted that we have come a long way from the time when religion was hinged on responsibility for the fact that the poor were oppressed.

conscienceless and uncaring city.

It is because of Micah and Amos and Hosea, and a long list of Heroic Hebrews that we believe today that it is a part of the function of organized religion to stand up and defend the oppressed, whether they be rich or poor. God is just as much interested in justice as he is in sacraments.

False Prophets

It is not uncommon in these days to hear one preacher calling another a false prophet. It is humiliating to one who loves religion, and the Church, but it is one of the sins that must be considered.

It is, however, an extremely interesting fact concerning the preaching of Micah that the country prophet called those false prophets who invested themselves in the ceremonies of the Temple until they had no time for strength with which to defend the people against their oppressors. Unlike may a modern who hurls the epithet of "false prophet" at his brother because he cries out against social, economic, or political wrongs, Micah called those who were absorbed in their theologies "false."

Religion to Micah was a very simple affair. It consisted of justice, kindness, integrity, humility, and sensitiveness. These, he believed, were the sacrifices every man must offer God if he were to win the favor of God. It was because he believed so profoundly in God that he believed so profoundly in these things.

STIRLING

St. Paul's Holds Fine Mother's Day Services

Stirling—Last Sunday morning, St. Paul's United Church, in Stirling, was filled with a capacity audience, when pews, gallery and choir loft were overflowing with members and guests for this outstanding service. Many sons sat with their mothers and Dr. Ralph Vandervoort placed a large basket of cut flowers in the church to honor his mother, Mrs. Arthur S. Vandervoort on her birthday

The church edifice was resplendent with potted plants and woodland flowers gathered by the children and arranged by Mrs. Walter Elliott, president of the W.A. Two yellow canaries in their cages chirped and sang throughout the service.

To Honor Mothers

The pastor, Rev. A. E. Baker, opened the service, following the organ prelude "Berceuse", with these words: "We honor our mothers and motherhood today. We hallow the memory of those who 'rest from their labors'. We give a glad and grateful tribute to those who are still with us".

Several reserved pews at the left front of the church were reserved for mothers, fathers and children and godparents, who were having a part in the baptismal service and just preceding the service, this large group ascended from the Sunday school rooms and were seated.

Both choirs joined in the processional hymn "When Mothers of Salem". The junior choir took their places in the front right pews, while the senior choir were seated in the choir loft. The junior choir sang effectively "Mother", and Mrs. A. E. Baker, A.T.C.M., rendered "Brahm's Lullaby", as a voluntary.

19 Children Baptized

The junior choir sang "A Little Child", and the pastor, Rev. A. E. Baker, baptized 19 children, two of them were from Toronto. The pastor presented James Reginald Cordy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Cordy, Toronto, with a silver loving cup, gift lined and suitably engraved at this baby was born on his birthday, January 2, and was the first baby he had ever baptized who claimed Mr. Baker's natal day.

The other Toronto baby was Robert William Thomas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Thomas.

Two babies from Belleville, Patricia Ann and Susan Mary, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Ormel MacMullen, and 15 children from the Stirling district were baptized. Mr. George Carlisle, clerk of Session, presented a certificate to each mother.

St. Paul's choir rendered "Lord for Thy Tender Mercy's Sake".

Timely Message

The pastor gave a brief message on the theme "Time Marches On" —birth, marriage and death, and gave a few words of advice to the special parents at the front of the church.

Prayer was offered "In Memory of Mothers", after which Mrs. F. Bronson, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Brown and Mr. Ted Reynolds sang effectively "She is Waiting For Me".

This beautiful service long to be remembered, closed with "Faith of Our Mothers" and an organ postlude "Mother's Favorite".

Many guests signed the register before going with their relatives and friends to visit.

One remark made on the church lawn was overheard "Of all the Mother's Day services I ever attended, the one today was by far the best."

A loud speaker system was set up in the church by Mr. Maurice Bell so that a valued member, Mrs. Fred Wescott, who lives across the road could hear the two services on Mother's Day. Mrs. Wescott has been ill for some time, but previous to her illness she was a valued worker in church activities and choir and she is greatly missed.

The congregation of St. Paul's are deeply grateful to Rev. A. E. Baker and Mrs. Baker for their guidance and direction in making this Mother's Day one long to be remembered.

London, May 19—(CP)—Hang onto your pants, men. Pant-pilfering might spread to Canada any day.

Things have reached such a pretty pass in the state-Dominion of South Africa that even the prime minister isn't safe any more; and sober London journals are crying havoc.

Both the Times and the Daily Telegraph reporter from Capetown a speech by Justice Minister Swart, in which he said a pair of Prime Minister Malan's trousers had been neatly filched from a hotel bedroom by a chief wielding a long pole with a hook on the end.

Such thefts were becoming commonplace in South Africa; the police warned male citizens to shut their garments in a dresser drawer at night, if they left the window open. Hang 'em over the back of a chair and you've had 'em.

By Alice Ross Colver

"That's what I'm wondering." e looked at her, the rush of his ast emotion spent, and added with blunt frankness. "I don't want to go anywhere."

"Still?"

"Still."

There was a short silence. In t he waiter brought their drinks nd departed again. When he had one, she said:

"I cant say the same thing ith such positiveness. All I now certainly is that I want you to tell me if you ever change our mind. Will you?"

"What would you do?"

"Anything you wanted."

"Really?"

"Really."

He could not doubt her. Despite r seeming nonchalance, there ere overtones and undertones n the passion he stirred in life her. It was astounding but ess astounding was his ready cceptance of it as an uncompliing factor in his plans, perhaps in fate's help. Only the uture could tell.

She waited, not looking at im, looking down at the full ips which her fingers were oining slowly on the plate.

"I played life cautiously when was young. I had no choice. y mother died desperately ill, nding an operation. I couldn't ve cared it, or her, Lester did." She shrugged, "I don ow how long," she continued, voice very low "one must pay a mistake in judgement. But ave recently decided that in ten, nearly 20 years, is long ough." And now she lifted her and looked full at him. "Your mother?" he asked.

"She didn't live, anyway," she ied her head and slipped little. "The point I am ing to make is that I am not urally cautious life drove me it. As it has driven you. And to now there has been no ession to be anything else." stopped, her eyes meeting over the rim of the glass in sudden look. For a second, his d back in answering her, only for a second.

"You have no money of your n," he said flatly, harshly. Haven't you?"

Not enough."

Money!" she exclaimed, and poned. "Do you want it so ch?"

I want what it can do for me.' t is that the real reason?"

e hesitated and while he ened she remembered someg. Donald's car stopping beore the Inn and Susan running to say goodby and coming up ly, reluctantly.

She said, "I see. It's Susan, d it?"

You're very quick."

Viola shrugged. Then she her two hands down flat on table and looked at them for ong moment. Gerry was conus of the way the light caught her diamonds and made them kle, and the transparent thinss of her nail polish. And, of a slight awkwardness for the first time had risen een them. At last she spoke n, her tone quiet.

I dont blame you. It was, I pose, to be expected. Susan is arling. And young." She put hands in her lap and smiled him. "But what chance have very chance with Susan. It's people."

f I could just get a job."

e picked up her glass again. ats what we came in here to about—wasn't it? What luck are you having?"

The tension of a moment ago was gone. The air was clear once more. He had hurt her badly but she was a good trouper. He found himself, for a second, with almost a feeling of regret that Susan loved him between them. Then he shook that off and said, "No luck at all."

"You sound pretty grim. Tell me."

So he told her. His new clothes hadn't helped. His discharge button hadn't helped. His own difidence in pursuing openings had not helped. To date all he had received were brushoffs.

"What do they say to you?"

Briefly he told her that there seemed to be a conspiracy in the business world against anyone who hadn't a college education. "And I can't even show a high school diploma," he said.

"That's bad." She hesitated. "Wouldn't the judge help you at all?"

Gerrys face hardened. He'll help me all right—in Texas."

"I see."

"Thornhill Grant was to give me a lead but I haven't heard from him."

"Call him up then, Gerry. You should have spoken longer. And what about the Fergusons?"

"The Reverend has already given me a job here but there was nothing stirring with them, either."

A little silence fell. She repeated "Get in touch with Tim. That's all I can think of at the moment. I wish there were more I could do but—I'll go to work on it."

"It's been a relief talking to you, anyway."

"I'm glad of that."

"Can't we do this again?"

"I'll see."

"Or shall I come up to your place out there?"

"No," quickly. "Don't do that." "Because of Lester?"

not like you," she said, and con-

She nodded. "It seems he does sidered that understatement sufficient for the moment.

February. The snow that had begun falling in January had continued and was falling again now. The drifting grey curtain outside. Gerry's window was thick and impenetrable, it shut off the town And it shut him in so that his box of a room had become a prison and he a prisoner in it. It was, frankly, driving him mad.

He stood staring at the dim whirling chaos, wishing he could see through it and at the same time thankful that he couldn't. For what was there outside save a town frozen into the immobility and emptiness of a winter night? Only a few muffled figures plodding along the open centre of the roads or the narrow paths shovelled on the sidewalks. Only high drab snowbanks littered with broken branches from the last devastating ice storm. Only the bleak bare station, the stores with their staring black windows the quivering red gleam of the motion picture arcade.

He jerked his shoulders restlessly. What could he do to pass the time tonight? He could go to the movies again, but he'd already seen the show twice this week. He could go to the Fergusons, but the placid atmosphere of their home and their shining goodness and gentle concern now him did not suit his present mood. Jean Baird was out of the question. Alicia had told him not to go up there. Timothy Grant, Tim, was in Montreal, on Susan's friend. Tim had telephoned fiancially, explained that he had been out of town during most of January on company business. Had Gerry succeeded in getting anything yet? No? Well, how about meeting him in New York tomorrow lunch and afterward going back to the office for an introduction to the Personnel Director?

Gerry had accepted. He was curious about Tim. And there was a growing feeling of desperation in his heart. It would take drag, he knew now beyond a doubt, to get the kind of thing he wanted. Handicapped as he was, the best he could hope for was work in the Grand Central hauling baggage around. Or selling shoes in some department store. Or driving a taxicab. Or washing dishes. At a few years ago a job like that would have, been a bonanza to him. A few years ago he would have grabbed at any of those and thought himself lucky. But time had changed him. Time and Susan. Now, because of her, he must get just something that had a solid future. Something that was worthy of the Kings.

So he had met Gerry and had unwillingly liked him while at the same time resenting him. He resented his purposefulness and direction. He resented the steady strength that lay in those eyes, his easy good manners, his quiet assurance. Without effort, he possessed all that Gerry wanted.

They had had lunch and Tim had been neither patronizing nor hostile. A trifle aloof perhaps, a trifle like a man who was discharging a duty required of him —and in that discovery Gerry had known that if Susan thought of Tim as a brother, Tim had thought of Susan other than as his sister. But her name had not been mentioned. They talked of the war and the part each had played in it, and then of the changes in America since the war years. And finally over dessert of Gerry's immediate problem, his need for work.

"I.M.S. is a big company with a lot of departments." Tim had said. "What do you think would interest you the most?"

"I don't know." Gerry gave a short laugh. "Somehow I can't see myself in any of them."

Tim looked at him, "well don't say that to Mr. Perkins," he had advised.

Gerry hadn't of course. But he had felt, as he always felt, inadequate before the smooth searching of the interview. The whole business of trying to qualify, of feeling himself scrutinized taken apart, laid out in little pieces and then politely relegated to the rubbish heap, was beginning to tell on him. Gerry either charmed with his bold brightness and his quick warmth or he chilled with his wariness, his suspicious truculence. That day he had known, as Perkins had known, that the cloak of his engaging personality was wearing thin. It It could no longer conceal his deficiencies.

So when Perkins mentioned training courses for which Gerry might be eligible and then went on to say that none was open at present since they had already begun, Gerry knew neither surprise nor disappointment. He did not really believe, either, in the Personnel Director's next words assurance. Without effort, he possessed all that Gerry wanted.

"However, when another course does start in a department for which we feel you may be qualified, we will notify you."

The faint distant tinkle of the telephone bell came to his ears now and he went down to answer it since Herman, as usual, was not around. At the desk he took down the receiver said "Hello?" and again "hello?" But there was no sound from the other end. He jiggled the hook, trying to get central, yet the soft silence persisted. At last he gave up.

Charges Gambler Has Finger in Gambling Pie

New York, May 19 — (AP) — Alfred H. Scotti, assistant district attorney, charges that big-time gambler Frank Erickson has a financial finger in a $685,000 gambling pie dished up in a fancy Florida resort.

Scotti said Sunday in court that Erickson gets a cut from a gaming room operated at the swank Colonial Inn, located near Hallandale, Fla., between Miami and Hollywood. Hallandale is a train stop for the Gulfstream race track.

The Florida establishment netted a profit of $685,538 in one year for Erickson and its Florida and Detroit, Mich., owners, Scotti said.

He declared Erickson's cut of five per cent netted him $34,276 for the period.

The assistant district attorney said the information was revealed in records seized May 2 in Erickson's Park Avenue offices.

Released U.S. Fliers Say Chinese Communist Captors Treated Them in Fine Style

Pearl Harbor, May 19 (AP)— Two United States airmen indicated Thursday they had admitted a Red charge of spying in order to escape from 18 months of captivity in Communist North China.

Marine Sgt. Elmer C. Bender, 27, Cincinnati, and Navy Chief Electrician's Mate William S. Smith, 32, Long Beach, Calif., said they were treated better than we could possibly have expected."

But they wouldn't say yes or no at a press conference when asked if they had signed confessions that they were American spies. The communists in announcing their release May 2 said they confessed.

"As far as statements we made while we were up there," said Bender, "we were cut off entirely and the only way to get out was through our own efforts."

Asked what was meant by that Smith said it was a long story and "I will explain it all later." When a reporter looked at him, however, what means were used were not inclined to communism but they were satisfied they had created an open impression in our minds."

CHIEF SIR BASIL

Discovery of a smoke bomb in front of Toronto city hall and believed to be directed at Sir Basil Brooke, visiting prime minister of Northern Ireland, has not deterred Sir Basil from enjoying himself. Here he wears a war bonnet of the Six Nations Indians presented to him during his tour of the city. — Central Press Canadian.

anything about communist theory.

Asked if the communists believed they had been indoctrinated before their release, Bender replied:

"I believe they thought we were not inclined to communism

Not Accused Directly

Reporters wanted to know if they were accused of spying. Bender said the Communists didn't want to accuse them directly so they worded the question "in such a way you can answer it almost any way."

Several times during their long captivity they were moved from one village to another. "We were very depressed all through last summer," Bender said.

Not that they were treated badly. "We ate as well as the Chinese did," Smith observed. He added that their captors "went out of their way to give us as much as they could of all that they had."

Bender said the Chinese people he saw "are getting a better deal under the communists than they were under the Nationalist Government."

Throughout their activity they said they remained on friendly relations with their captors.

"They wouldn't ask us questions we might refuse to answer," Smith said.

"We left them last month the best of friends," Bender added.

Smith added that everyone they saw seemed sold on communism although only a few educated Chinese among them knew

Formosa Faces Critical 100 Days Says Chiang's Son

Taipei, Formosa, May 19 (AP) — Gen. Chiang Ching-Kuo, elder son of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, said today Formosa faces a critical 100 days.

His statement came as the Nationalist government officially announced its troops still held Quemoy Island off the mainland port of Amoy.

Young Chiang, chief of the defence ministry's political section, said there were indications the Chinese communists might have skipped the recently abandoned Chushan Islands and struck Formosa direct.

This, he explained, was one of the reasons for the Nationalist withdrawal, which Chiang claimed would not only bolster the defence of Formosa but would pave the way for a Nationalist invasion of the red mainland.

If the Nationalists weather the next 100 days on Formosa, young Chiang confinued, they should still be here next year.

"In that period both the internal and international situation might be changed drastically," he said.

There was no doubt what Chiang meant — that a third world war might break out and the Nationalists could find themselves on the side of and supported by western powers.

(In Hong Kong the Standard, an independent newspaper, said so far as to predict Chiang might even declare war on Russia and thus precipitate the war.)

Two Napanee Safes Cracked, $550 Stolen

Prying open safes in two Napanee business establishments with bars stolen from a Canadian National Railways toolhouse, safe-crackers Thursday night escaped with approximately $550 in cash, it was reported today by police at Napanee.

Offices entered were those of the Canada Packers where approximately $450 was taken, and at the Napanee Iron Works where about $100 was stolen. Both of the business places entered are in the outskirts of Napanee near the railway tracks.

Police stated that in each instance the intruders made entrance by smashing a window. It is believed that the two break-ins were the result of professionals. The open safes were discovered by workers when they reported for work this morning.

WINNIPEG STREET SCENE

BOMBS AWAY

Bombing with hay from a Manitoba government plane is keeping alive herds of livestock isolated on mounds of high ground between the Manitoba - United States boundary town of Emerson and Winnipeg. In this air photo, about six horses and 18 cows are shown stranded on a road just below Morris. The bale of hay, circled, landed on the mark, burst open and was eaten quickly by the animals. — (CP Photo.)

RED RIVER RISE

Here is a profile of the destructive rise of the Red River in Greater Winnipeg. A rapid rise brought the river to its first flood stage in four days. The level then dropped 1/10 of a foot before rain in the Red River Valley sent it soaring. If the river had reached the 32.5-foot disaster level, general evacuation would have been necessary. Experts predict the river drop will follow roughly the pattern of the rise. — (CP Photo.)

May Build Electronic Fence Across Streams Emptying Into Great Lakes to Kill Lamprey

Washington, May 19—(AP)— A death-dealing electronic fence may be installed this summer across streams emptying into the Great Lakes.

Its purpose would be to kill off the sea lamprey, a parasite which in the last 15 years has almost ruined commercial and game fishing in Lake Huron and Michigan. Lampreys are eel-like creatures with sucker mouths rimmed with sharp teeth.

The United States Fish and Wildlife Service said today it is negotiating with three organizations for construction of such an electric device.

First Installations

Paul Thompson, assistant chief of fishery biology for the service, told a reporter the service hopes to have the operation by October, in order to kill the young lamprey on their fall migration downstream into the lakes.

The second phase of the experiment, he said, would come next spring. The fence then is supposed to kill adult lamprey as they try to go upstream to spawn.

All three organizations, Thompson said, promise to kill the lamprey without harming the fish upon which the lamprey prey. Each is guaranteeing success of its plans.

Thompson said none of the proposals is so simple as a hot-fin, the hydro-electric equivalent of a hot-foot.

Instead, he said, they involve pulsations timed with the heartbeat of the lamprey, and then changing a setting of the wavelength.

This change, Thompson said, is supposed to kill the lamprey. Its proponents say it will not harm fish because they operate on a different frequency.

Thompson said the principle is the same as in experiments in which human beings have been lulled to sleep by impulses tied to the brain-wave — and kept awake by impulses that are "out of phase" to do with it, he said.

The three organizations involved in trying to produce the best method are the Institute of Engineering Research at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor; the Cook Research Laboratories, Chicago, and the American Institute of Radiation, Belmont, Calif.

Dr. J. Stewart Lott, London, Ontario, who has been awarded the first fellowship granted by the Ontario Division of the Canadian Fisheries Society. Dr. Lott will continue cancer research studies in England and Europe.

The Fish and Wildlife Service has a $256,000 appropriation for lamprey control projects this year, and has budgeted $216,000 for the purpose next year.

In addition, Wisconsin is spending about $25,000 on lamprey control efforts, the work has completed installing wire or fibre nets across the mouth of the Oconee River, the Carp Lake River and other streams in Wisconsin and Michigan.

Thompson said this is part of an international agreement whereby Ontario is to block off every stream having sea lamprey runs in its Lake Huron shore, and the United States is to block off every run on the Michigan side.

Prevention Will Be Increased To 90 Per Cent

Toronto, May 19 — (CP) — Prevention of sea-sickness and air-sickness by use of medication, now about 60 per cent effective, will be raised to better than 90 per cent before long.

This was the opinion expressed by Dr. G. R. Wendt of the psychology department of University of Rochester, N. Y., addressing a meeting of the Canadian Psychological Association here Thursday night.

Dr. Wendt said that drugs developed to prevent motion sickness are all about 60 per cent effective. "Within a reasonable time we will be able to prevent between 90 and 95 per cent of motion sickness," he said.

To some degree all people are and there is very little evidence that psychological factors have anything to do with it, he said.

Canadian Market For British Cloth Fickle Says Pres.

Huddersfield, England, May 19 — (CP) — The Canadian market for British cloth is "fickle," President John R. Shires told the Huddersfield Chamber of Commerce.

Shires replied to criticisms of the quality of British cloth exports made in the Toronto - published Financial Post.

"There is only one market in the world more fickle than Canada," Shires told the Chamber. He didn't say which one.

If a new idea struck the Canadian textile trade, Shires said, old colors and patterns were not wanted and cancellations and rejections were resorted to by some unscrupulous firms.

Referring to complaints about delivery dates, Shires said Yorkshire manufacturers had enough orders to last for between six and nine months.

"Has Canada to have such extraordinary preference over the rest of the world that we should make their orders in half that time?" he asked. "Other markets of the world demand a share of our excellent worsteds and woollens."

Shires said the average percentage of returns was nothing like 15 per cent, the figure quoted in Canadian dispatches.

"Many articles were totally unfair," Shires said.

A different view was voiced by Maurice Barber, who said he had seen a number of pieces of imperfect cloth.

"Quite a lot of bad pieces have been sent out," Barber told the Chamber.

Shires commented that worsted yarn was far below pre - war standard, but agreed that Canadian buyers could not be expected to be sympathetic on that account.

Strike Threat Called Reckless Drive for Prestige

Chicago, May 19 (AP) —The threatened strike Tuesday of AFL switchmen against 10 railroads, the Western Association of Railways said today, "is wholly unjustified."

"This strike threat," the association said in a statement, "is a reckless drive for prestige — an attempt by one small union to outsmart and outdo a big rival union."

Only government intervention could avert the scheduled walkout—set for 6 a.m. local time against the Midwestern and Western lines.

The walkout would delay service on the affected lines, a rail spokesman said.

The switchmen's union of North America (AFL) said the strike would involve 6,000 members. A rail spokesman said 4,000 would be affected. The union's principal demand is for a 40-hour work-week at the pay now received for 48 hours.

Daniel P. Loomis the Association's chairman, said the union's demands also include a 44-percent increase in the basic daily wage rate and other items which are equivalent to a wage boost of about 50 percent.

Loomis said the switchmen's union represents less than five percent of the ground men (not yard engineers and firemen) in switchyards throughout the country. The other 95 percent, he added, are represented by another operating union, the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen. A few are members of the order of railway conductors.

A presidential fact-finding board currently is hearing similar 40-hour work-week demands by the trainmen and conductors for the 10 lines, as well as all other major carriers. However, the switchmen refused to combine their cases with the two unions, holding out for a separate board.

or a 48-hour work week, switchmen now receive this annual pay: yard brakeman, $3,944; switch tenders, $4,010, and yard conductors $4,976.

Entertainment Expenditure Is Questioned

Ottawa, May 19. (CP)—A $30,000 expenditure for entertainment of workers at Canada's Atomic plant in Chalk River, Ont., was questioned Thursday at a meeting of the Senate's Finance Committee.

Senator Thomas Reid (Liberal-British Columbia), whose tagpipe playing is a nightly feature on Parliament Hill said he wanted to know why the federal government should have to pay out such money "just to entertain a bunch of men."

D. B. Mannur, president of the crown-owned Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, said there was "quite an argument" going on as to just what the federal government should provide in the way of entertainment.

During the war when houses were built to accommodate a large number of war workers, the government also established community centres. To a large extent these community centres now had been turned over to municipalities. He could not give the committee details of the type of entertainment provided by the $30,000 expenditure at Chalk River.

SITUATION IMPROVES

Ottawa, May 19 — (CP)—The situation with regard to Canadians' permanent entry into the United States "has improved and is improving," A. D. P. Heeney, undersecretary of external Affairs told a Commons committee Thursday night.

He was replying to Gordon Graydon (PC — Peel) who said Canadians still encounter long delays running into months in their application for visas to enter the U. S. He believed a lot of the trouble was due to sheer number of applications.

Mr. Heeney said he wouldn't say the situation is yet perfect "but I'm confident the American officials are interested as we are to prevent delay."

SCHOOLBOY SAVES MAN FROM BURNING TO DEATH IN CAR

Jack Yarrow, 14, of Trenton, Ont., pulls man to safety after smashing window of blazing auto

1. Jack Yarrow had never acted so quickly. Leaping from his bicycle, he ran to the car. The back seat was a mass of smoke and flames — and in the midst of it was a man — trapped and almost unconscious! The victim had fallen asleep while smoking... and his clothes, saturated with tar from his work, had caught fire.

2. For some reason, young Jack could not get the 200-pound man through the door. Desperately he tried to rouse him to action — to get him to cooperate. Finally the boy was forced to smash the window with his foot . . . and, after several anxious moments, managed to drag the heavy victim out and onto the ground.

3. Jack quickly began to beat out the flames with his jacket. At the same time he called for help . . . and soon men arrived with an extinguisher to complete the job. The man was severely burned but still alive — thanks to the heroic efforts of Jack Yarrow, a deserving winner of THE DOW AWARD.

Readings Taken From Black Stick Stuck in Mud

Winnipeg, May 19 — (CP) — The engineer lean forward intently - - - The needle in the delicately-poised instrument case never so greatly - - - The has risen another one-tenth foot - - -

In contrast to this popular misconception, here's what really happens at the point where the official Red River level is read:

Operator Charlie Melnick, just a bit annoyed at being disturbed at his lunch; pulled a shrilling telephone toward him and said under his breath:

He gave the latest reading — gleaned from a calibrated black-and-white stick sunk deep in the mud of James street in downtown Winnipeg, 100 yards from the normal river bed.

There's nothing scentific about the operation of the James Street gaging station. The man who keeps his finger on the pulse of this sprawling, feverish patient spries himself loose from his chair and fiddles out to the stick every hour on the hour. Instead of a scientist's white smock he wears overalls and a flop-brimmed hat.

The S.P.C.A. got the animal Wednesday from the home of Adrien Colette where it had been kept chained to a post since Monday after it was caught killing Colette's rabbits.

Discuss Possible Change SS Classes To Saturday AM

Toronto, May 19—(CP)—Sunday school classes may be held Saturday mornings instead of Sunday afternoon "in certain areas where Sunday by-laws are being changed," a church spokesman said.

Dr. A. Harding Priest, acting general secretary of the Board of Religious Education of the Church of England in Canada, said unofficial discussion of the possibility of such a change is going on here.

"Anglican leaders are casting about, looking for a solution to the increasing secularization of Sunday," he said. "The church has to meet this situation and this is one of the ideas being discussed."

Dr. Priest said he expects the proposed plan will be tried next year. It would be applied particularly in Toronto districts where children "run the streets Saturday morning and then go to ball games Sunday afternoon."

WAGES REACH NEW HIGH

Ottawa, May 18 (CP)—Wages of persons employed in Canada's major non-agricultural industries rose to an all-time high during February, the bureau of statistics reported Wednesday. But the number of persons employed dropped slightly in the same period. The bureau said that a survey of more than 21,000 leading firms showed that the average weekly wage at March 1 was $44.69, about 1.8 per cent higher than the average wage at Feb. 1.

Dieselization Of O.N. Railway Now Assured

Toronto, May 19 — (CP) — Start on the modernization of the Ontario Northland Railway was announced by the Ontario government Thursday when Premier Frost said that the government had entered into a $1,830,000 program which will provide for the dieselization of the road.

Contracts have been let by the government for four diesel 1,500 horsepower units at a cost of $1,000,000 in addition to a 1,000 horsepower unit at a cost of $130,000. Construction and equipment of a diesel repair shop at North Bay was also authorized at a cost of $800,000.

"The government's plans call for the ultimate dieselization of the railway," said Premier Frost in announcing the program. He thought that the project would take five years to complete.

The engines will be built by the General Motors plant in London, Ont., and the Montreal Locomotive plant in Montreal.

The premier emphasized that most of the material used by the Montreal plant was fabricated in Canada and only assembled in Montreal.

Skeleton Indicates Trapper Murdered

Cochrane, May 19—(CP)—Police today uncovered a clue in the search for the killer who buried his victim in the middle of a Cochrane park 10 to 12 years ago.

Residents of this northern Ontario town, 50 miles northeast of Timmins, told investigators a trapper named Carl McLean vanished about 10 years ago after a quarrel with other trappers over game rights.

Their description of McLean's build tallied with that of the skeleton that Cecil Fletcher, a bookkeeper, found Tuesday night when his dog dug up a boot in the centre of the park.

Beside the skeleton was a .32-calibre pistol containing several live shells. The skull had been bashed in and provincial police Sgt. Lee Walker said the man was definitely murdered.

Counsel Argues Bridge Approach Not a Highway

Toronto, May 19 (CP)—The Ontario Court of Appeals Thursday reserved judgment in a case which, if decided in favor of the plaintiff, would give him virtual control of one end of the Rainbow Bridge which links Ontario with the United States at Niagara Falls.

D. G. Bawtinheimer, a Niagara Falls, Ont., businessman, former owner of much of the land now occupied by the approach to the Rainbow Bridge, contends his land was illegally expropriated by the Ontario government.

His counsel argued that the land was expropriated for a highway and that a bridge approach is not a highway.

Counsel for the Niagara Parks Commission held the attorney general for Ontario contended that the bridge-approach or plaza on which is located, among other things, the clover-leaf, customs offices and one end of the bridge, is a highway.

Mr. Bawtinheimer has asked for a declaration that he owns the land, and an injunction which would prevent the Parks Commission from using it. In addition he seeks mandatory order removing buildings, one end of the bridge and other obstructions from the land, and $124,000 in damages.

Chief Justice McRuer of the High Court of Ontario dismissed the original action in a decision handed down last fall.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

GREATEST OF ALL

The greatest baseball player of all time is a man who didn't know if he wanted to play at all.

A five dollar bill changed his mind.

The greatest of them all, writes "Ed" Barrow in Collier's this week, was christened Jim Peter Wagner.

He was known to friends and fans. To Barrow, the man who built the Yankee empire, he was Hans. The opposition knew him as the Flying Dutchman.

"There is no question that Wagner was the greatest all-around ballplayer who ever lived."

It was just 55 years ago when Barrow, then manager and part owner of the Paterson, N. J., club of the Atlantic League, strolled into railroad yards outside of Pittsburgh and met Wagner.

Barrow looked at a young man, 22, with long arms, bowlegs, an awkward gait, a derby hat and a chicken feather stuck in the band.

Barrow offered the man with the derby $100 a month to play for Patterson.

Wagner picked up some lumps of coal and heaved them up the tracks. The motion was effortless. But Wagner was indifferent to the $100 . . . didn't think he wanted to play at all.

Barrow countered with $135 a month. Then the two headed for a poolroom and signed an agreement.

The signing set off this chain of events:

"At his peak with the Pittsburgh Pirates he was without an equal," writes Barrow.

"He was the most formidable batsman of his league in unofficial and most instances base runner, hitting his high mark of 61 stolen bases when he was 34;

"He set records by the dozens, many of which still are unurpassed today;

"He led his league in hitting more times than any other: for 17 consecutive years he hit .300 or better — in fact, he never had a batting average under .338 until he was 40 years old;

"He made more hits than anyone who has ever played in both leagues — more two base hits and more three-base hits than anyone, else;

"And he was virtually indestructible and still holds the record for having played the largest number of games in the National League."

"YER TAKES YER CHERCE"

It will be a battle of giants when Yukon Eric, the 280-pound Alaska lumberjack, collides with Sky-Hi Lee, the Grand Ouark hillbilly, in the wrestling ring at the Memorial Arena tonight. While both of these opponents are giants even among the big, heavyweight maimers, that's about as far as their similarity goes, as they are otherwise about as far apart as the two poles.

* * *

For the larruping Hi Lee is one of the roughest and rowdiest of the grapplers to step in the ring this side of Yukon Eric is among the cleanest and most popular athletes. On account of his ruthless tactics and punishing style, Lee often has things too much his own way for the fans' liking. However, on Friday night when the hammering hillbilly is in against Yukon Eric, Lee will be faced by a power-house who won't and who doesn't have to stand for any knocking around. Yukon, with that 54-inch chest and cedar-post arms, is somewhat of an irresistible force himself.

* * *

The semi-final will see a topnotch test between Earl McCready and Warren Bockwinkle. In the opening match, Mickey Gold, the young Jewish star, will go against Joe Christie.

HOW ABOUT IT, FELLAS?

A vacation mag, picture depicts those two wily hunters Bill Holway and Bill Gilbert holding a pair of ruffed grouse shot during a fifteen minute stand Fernleigh Lodge way. Caption of the picture says the pair of Bills got their quota of five birds each. Tsk, tsk. Now the twelve-grouse buckos will have plenty to explain as to what became of the other eight birds.

* * *

TOPPLING THE MAPLES

Those cocky young cusses, the pin-boys of the Bowl-O-Drome who decided to take a hand in the Eastern Ontario Bowling Tournament showed up like the veterans of the alleys, and at the moment hold the highest score record for the tourney with a count of 3294 pins. Bill Bateman, boss-man of the 'Drome aided and abetted his young rascals and right now even the pins won't look at the perky youngsters.

* * *

Brighton has entered a team in the tourney and will make a bid for part of the $180 prize money. Several other teams have entered but there is plenty of room for more.

Oscar Noel, Walter Moore and Joe Legault have entered the singles phase of the tourney and at the moment Joe is lagging with a score of 719, Noel has 638 and Moore a 635. These scores will likely go by the wayside within the next few days.

Legault and Noel racked up a neat count in the doubles, topping the former high score of Vinc Segriff and Lyle Hyatt, 750. Joe and Oscar rolled a 1533 to take over top slot. Cec Hardwick and Walter Moore are in third place with a 1422.

Bucky Harris, Who Still Hasn't Finished Last, Doing All Right With Once-Lowly Senators

By RALPH RODEN
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Bucky Harris, the Yankee castoff who somehow has finished last, has his Washington Senators stirring up a rumpus in the American League pennant chase.

Harris, back at the Washington helm for the third time, has guided the Nats to nine victories in their last 12 starts and within a game and a half of the league-leading Yanks.

During Spring training the experts didn't rate the Senators to improve their position a great deal, but Bucky said: "Give me some pitchers to go with (Eddy) Scarborough and we will surprise a lot of people."

Well, Bucky is getting the help he wanted, with emphasis on Sid Hudson. The 32-year-old right-hander turned in his fourth 1950 victory Thursday as Washington downed Chicago White Sox 7-3.

Meanwhile, Boston Red Sox knocked Detroit out of first place tie with the Yanks by outslugging the Tigers 12-11. The Yanks and St. Louis Browns were idle.

Indians Shade A's

The Red Sox piled up an 11-1 lead thanks to a seven-run barrage in the fourth inning, but the Tigers came back with six in their share of the fourth.

Cleveland Indians shaded Philadelphia Athletics, 4-3, winning out in the ninth when Lou Brissie walked Bob Kennedy with the bases loaded to break a 3-3 tie.

In the National League, Brooklyn overcame an eight-run deficit in the last two innings to down St. Louis Cardinals 9-8 and move to within half a game of the league's pace-setting Philadelphia Phils.

The Cards piled up an 8-0 lead in the first six innings but the Dodgers came to life in the 8th with a four-run rally that was featured by Carl Furillo's three-run homer to drive Howie Pollett from the box.

Jim Russell and Jackie Robinson doubled in the ninth Furillo popped out but Gil Hodges beat out a hit and Duke Snider walked to fill the bases. Giavlano then made his three miscues and the game went down the drain.

New York Giants trounced the Chicago Cubs 10-4 in a game called after six innings because of rain. Rookie Monte Irvin drove in five runs with a grand-slam homer and a double. Al Walker homered with the bases loaded to account for all of Chicago's runs.

Possibly Seven Colts Will Start In Preakness

Baltimore, May 19 — (AP) — The names of five and possibly seven horses will be dropped into the entry box today for the 75th Preakness stakes, but trainer Syl Veitch says all of the contenders excepting Mr. Trouble will be just wasting their time.

"I think we'll win the race, and middleground will be second" the congenial trainer of C. V. Whitney's famous racing stable said.

That was a pretty good statement, seeing as how Mr. Trouble was third in Middleground in the Kentucky derby two weeks ago.

What about Hill Prince, the No. 2 horse in the derby?

"Well, he'll have to be third," Veitch added preciously.

The $50,000-added, mile and three-sixteenths classic comes off tomorrow at Pimlico.

Sylvester has claimed ever since the derby" that Mr. Trouble should have come home with the bacon.

He thought Mr. Trouble made his move on the pace-setting Your Host too early. Dour Dodson rode Mr. Trouble. Hill Prince was injured and Steve Brooks will be borrowed from Calumet Farm to handle the Whitney challenger tomorrow.

Along with the big three of Middleground, Hill Prince and Mr. Trouble, the other two certain starters are Mrs. William H. Labrot's Maryland-bred Balkan, and Mrs. James Carson's Kinsman.

Listed as possibilities were Dooly, a stablemate of Mr. Trouble who ran 11th in the derby, and Sylvester W. Labrot's Arcave.

New Argonaut Coach Meets Team Members

(By The Canadian Press)

Hope that Canadians on the squad wouldn't be prejudiced against Americans was expressed Thursday night by Frank Clair of Buffalo University, new coach of the Toronto Argos of the Eastern Big Four Rugby League.

Clair, who takes over as the Argo coach on July 17, told a gathering after an informal meeting that there would be no favoritism. "We can go a long way and I'm confident I can give Argos the best team they've had and one of the best teams the Big Four has ever seen."

Clair leaves in a few days for Indiana on a scouting trip. "That's my territory," he said. "I think I can find a few in Indiana."

Manager Ted Morris said it had been his experience" that Canadian players were as good as the Americans. "The backbone of our winning teams was boys from junior teams and colleges like yourself," he said.

At Lansing Mich., a bill designed to strengthen the hand of game wardens in enforcing fishing and hunting laws was passed in the State House of Representatives Thursday. The Michigan Senate has only to approve a few amendments before it is finally passed.

The bill authorizes conservation officers to carry guns and search cars, automobiles and even deep-freeze lockers for contraband fish and game.

A previous bill for the same purpose was declared unconstitutional, on the grounds that it gave wardens too much power to search private property without a warrant.

More than 500,000 people attended the regular schedule and playoff games of the Western Canada Senior Hockey League last season.

In a release on final statistics of the W.C.S.H.L.'s 1949-50 season, President D. P. McDonald reported Thursday at Calgary that Edmonton Flyers played to 174,037 fans in 25 home games to top paid attendance records of the four clubs.

Harness racing will return to Guelph after a lapse of 25 years. Officials announced Thursday that they were granted 11 racing days by the Canadian Trotting Association. The first meet is scheduled for June 24, with a new half-mile track will be officially opened.

Intercounty Loop Suspends Player Until June 1st

Kitchener, May 19 — (CP) — Harry Sollenberger, known also as Don Perkins, southpaw pitcher who posed as a United States College student to joint Galt Terriers midway through last season, Wednesday night was suspended until June 1 by an Inter-County Senior Baseball League sub-committee.

Sollenberger, whose certificate was approved June 29, 1949, under the name of Don Perkins, a Penn State College student, was in reality a former professional with Manchester, N. H. He did not qualify to play for Galt as the deadline on U. S. imports, other than students, had already passed.

Manager Gus Murray of the Terriers revealed Perkins true identity early this week when he submitted his 1950 playing certificate for approval.

The sub-committee, taking the view that last year's records could not be altered and also taking into consideration the fact that the Galt club came forward and admitted their error this year, decided not to suspend or fine the club.

However a stern warning was issued that in future any club found guilty of such practices will be liable to the full penalty and suspension.

The case of Connie Waite, first baseman for the Terriers, was also disposed of. Waite, who played previously in the Buffalo, N. Y., Municipal League, also performed at Galt under an assumed name.

The sub-committee felt that because Waite, whose real name is Waykovick is not to their knowledge a former professional, no penalty should be imposed. League officials said it is an established practice for players with tongue - twisting names to play under an abbreviated name.

This is permissible in the Inter-county League, they said providing the player signs his proper name to the playing certificate.

Wings Expected To Start Moving Up the Ladder

(By The Associated Press)

The Rochester Red Wings are expected to start moving up the ladder in the International league any day now that their destruction tie of Ross Derry, 1Steve Bilko and Ed Mierkowicz are back.

All three drove home a total of 235 runs last year, belted 91 homers and earned promotion to the parent St. Louis Cardinals.

Derry, who led the International League in homers with 42, was the first to return, with Mierkowicz and Bilko following a little after the season began.

Derry already has socked six homers while Bilko has one and Mierkowicz none.

The Wings currently are in fifth place, only four games behind the pace-setting Montreal Royals. Pitching has carried the Red Wings thus far, and the deadly trio is expected to make things easier for their mound mates in the future.

All four scheduled games were postponed Thursday because of rain. Games washed out were Toronto at Montreal, Buffalo at Rochester, Jersey City at Springfield and Baltimore at Syracuse.

Sawyer Plans To Use Only Two Regulars

Philadelphia, May 19 (AP) — Manager Eddie Sawyer of the Philadelphia Phillies has decided to become a juggler — with his pitchers, that is.

The juggling, Sawyer said today in discussing his immediate plans for his well-stocked mound staff, means this:

Only two pitchers will be used at regular intervals — his two young aces, Robin Roberts and Curt Simmons. The rest of the Phils' hurlers get the nod when the situation calls for their particular talents.

In the case of Roberts and Simmons, Sawyer has plenty of reason for wanting to employ the youngsters often. Roberts has one of the best records in the National League this season with five wins and one loss. Simmons — who is celebrating his 21st birthday today — has won four while dropping one decision.

The Phils' manager said that he feels if he used four or five starting pitchers and let the rest of his 11-man mound staff sit around, the boys would go stale.

Under his new system, however, none of the Phillies' hurlers will know when he might be called on to take over.

"I have 11 pitchers now who I consider good starters," said Sawyer. "It isn't good baseball to allow them to go stale on the bench. That's why I am going to juggle my hurlers, pick the spots for them.

"I feel like Joe McCarthy does. I'd rather have eight or nine 12-game winners than one or two 20-game winners."

Ray Keenan, of Montreal, light weight champion of Quebec, put Earl McDonald down for a nine-count in the second to take a three-round decision over the Belgian.'A short, jolting left hook to the heart sent McDonald to the canvas.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Bid careful with Partner O. Figg. On tough hands his playing is brittle. While looking for things that are big he keeps overlooking the little.

Many a little card in bridge has proven to be an important cog in running a contract to safety. What makes it important, of course, is its relation to the cards opposite or those already played.

How does an expert player determine the importance of which small cards? By counting his possible losers first. Then planning how the small cards can combine to help save the losers.

Take the plays in this deal:

NORTH
♠A K 9
♥K 10 9 2
♦Q 10 4
♣9 7 2

WEST
♠Q J 10 3 2
♥A 9 7 4
♦6 5 3
♣10

EAST
♠8 7 5
♥7 6
♦9 8 7 2
♣8 4 3

SOUTH
♠6 4
♥Q 5 3
♦A K J
♣A K J 6 5

Suppose south is the declarer at six clubs or north is declarer at six no-trump. With the opening lead of a spade, how should the taking of 12 tricks be planned?

A trick must surely be lost to the opponent heart ace. So, see that there is no club loser. To plan this the most important problem to operate is how the clubs should be played.

If south has queen with two more clubs, no play will pick it up. If west has queen alone, a top will knock it off. If east has queenie with or without other clubs, finesse have it trapped.

So, the indicated method is to take one top club and finesse the rest through east. Because the only feature of this to fear is a west holding of queen with exactly one more club.

North takes trick one with a top spade and south wins the first club with king. North is entered with diamond queen overtake of the diamond jack lead. Clubs are finessed thereafter.

Success with this assumes the loss of no more than one trick in hearts. A pusher to slam must be able to overcome such dangers. Some need shoushing too much pushing.

WOULD HELP BRING PEACE

Pittsburgh, May 19 — (AP) — Birth control would help bring peace to the world, the leader of the Planned Parenthood Movement said Thursday. Speaking to the Pittsburgh Planned Parenthood Clinic, Mrs. Margaret Sanger declared: "Everytime a nation cries for battle it begets war . . . to prevent birth does no more to interfere with life than removing single or living in celibacy."

ORDERED DEPORTED

New York, May 19 — (AP) — Immigration officials announced Thursday that an alleged lieutenant of the Sicilian bandit chief, Giuliano, had been seized here and ordered deported. The man was identified as Giuseppe Gichino Missale, 42. Edward J. Shaughnessy, district director of the immigration service, said Missale was wanted by the Italian government on charges of murder, attempted kidnapping and extortion.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, May 19 — (AP) — This may come as a shock to you, but it was just 25 years ago that Gary Cooper sauntered onto the screen.

Fresh out of Grinnel College, the loping Montanan migrated to Hollywood in 1925. But not to crash the movies.

"I was interested in the advertising business," he recalled. "But to pick up some pocket money I did some extra work, riding and stunting in some pictures. I had run into some Montana cowboy friends of mine who were doing the same thing.

"Well, I got into a Tom Mix picture at Fox and learned he was getting $15,000 a week. That started me to thinking. I had hoped to achieve $10,000 a year in the advertising business, but it looked pretty small after that.

Self-Expression

"So you see I didn't get in the movies from any inward desire to express myself."

There is never any pretence about Cooper, especially concerning acting. Said he "I didn't know anything about acting. I guess I just picked up things here and there from the directors and actors I worked with." A stickler for realism, he just likes to act naturally.

Cooper has never been noted as a chatterbox; in fact he is considered the leading "yes". and "nope" man in town. He disclosed that his faculty came about because he often didn't quite understand what the interviewer was saying or wanted to hear. So he played safe and answered "yes" or "nope."

Sometimes he does become outspoken. Then, he complained, he has sometimes been misquoted. "So I figured," he drawled, "that I might as well not talk too much.

Doors open at 12.30.

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle:

Little Benny's Note Book

I was looking the 2nd half of a ferst cigar, saying to ma, By the way, the insurance men's ball is next Saturday, and I've been given to understand that I get an urgent telefone call from sumbody requesting me to substitute for one of the visiting speakers who may be unable to attend. What are you going to say? pa said pop said, I'm going to say no, in no uncertain terms. I've outlined opinions on the subject of public speaking. The only way I listen to other men making speeches is from stem to stern, unmixed with plezzure, so why should I put myself in the position of seeing other men stiffle their yawns at my expense? No thanks, if the chairman of the speekers committee calls up, you better answer the fone for me and save me the wear and tear of making a personal refusal, he said.

Now William, dont be hasty, ma said. Why dont you give them the thrill for once in their life of seeing a man get up and nail their attention to the mast from the very ferst word? My, I can see them now that big roomfull of men sitting there spellbound like rats charmed by a snake, she said, and pop said, Well of course there's something to that. Now how the dooce did you know I wanted you to remind me I'm different from other men? he said.

Oh, I guess I haven't lived with you all these years without picking up a few pointers, ma said, and pop said, My dear, you inspire me with new confidence, and I know it's the genuine article, because it's exactly like the old confidence.

And prilty soon the telefone rang, and it was the man to ask pop about making the speech, and pop sounded doubtful a while and then said he would think it over.

MOTHER FOX FORGOT HER FOXINESS

Mother fox was pretty smart when she made her lair under a barn near Thistletown, Ont. She even had her family of 12 half-reared but then she made her big mistake. She trotted her cubs out in plain view of Farmer Peace and now the pups are in a chicken coop without the chickens. John Peace, 10, holds three of the surviving eight young foxes. — Central Press Canadian.

NORTHPORT

Northport — A good congregation attended the Sunday evening service. The church was beautifully decorated in honor of Mother's Day. The choir rendered special music and the trio gave a lovely number. Mr. Duquette delivered an appropriate address for 'Mother's Day."

Glad to report Mrs. Sanderson is slightly improved from her recent illness.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Mallett, Misses Helene and Elaine, visited their parents at Sharbot Lake, and Perth, on Sunday.

Mr. Howard Mills had the misfortune to cut his shoulder while repairing fence. His axe caught on a wire and came down cutting his shoulder quite badly, requiring medical attention.

Wright Brothers Lose Drive House And Barn by Fire

Picton — A large barn and a drive house owned by the Wright Bros. at Waupoos, were destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon. A quantity of feed and some machinery were lost. Livestock was in the fields or in another barn on the farm.

The big, well-kept barn was aflame inside when the outbreak was discovered by Colin Wright, the cause is unknown.

The drive house, close by, also fell prey to the flames.

A tenant house caught fire several times but was saved through the use of orchard sprayers and a bucket brigade.

The big house is not far distant but was not threatened as the wind was blowing away from it. The loss is partly covered by insurance.

Several Mount Pleasant folks the Green Trees Rest Home, have visited Mrs. Allan Bailey, at Trent Road.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy MacMullen, "Sunrise Lodge", attended the special Mother's Day service at St. Paul's United Church, Stirling. During the service nineteen children were baptized and these included their two granddaughters, Patricia Ann and Susan Mary, children of Mr. and Mrs. Ormel B. MacMullen, 112 Golfdale Road, Churchill Heights, Belleville. The mother, the former Nancy Jean Snell, of Sunbury-on-Thames, England, was born in Australia. The group were entertained to dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sid Demorest.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Searles, Holloway, attended the morning service at Mount Pleasant and were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest White.

Mrs. Frank Emerson, Moira, visited her sister, Mrs. Sid. Williams, on Friday.

On Sunday morning at Mount Pleasant, a special Mother's Day Service was held with a large attendance of members and visitors. The pastor gave a short message on the theme "God Works Through Our Homes". The superintendent presided over the service and the junior choir occupied the choir loft and contributed a number with Miss Betty McConnell as pianist.

A bouquet of tulips was placed in the church by Mrs. John Holmes, a gift to her for Mother's Day from her son, Mr. Kotheith Holmes, of Madoc.

Wm. Lockyer, C.A.S. Superintendent, Addresses Club

The Prince Edward-Belleville Club held their May meeting at the home of Mrs. J. S. Wardner, 125 Victoria Avenue. The gracious welcome of the hostess, coupled to the poem in honor of Mother's Day, by Mrs. Lent, in harmony with the theme, and the tribute paid to the Club by Mr. William Lockyer, superintendent of the Children's Aid Society, preceded an interesting program, consisting of a reading by Mrs. Osborne, entitled "Friends", "Mother's Dad", and "Motherhood," by Edgar Guest, read by Mrs. Baird, was followed by, "Mothers to Share", Mrs. B. Davidson, and "Challenge to Mothers" by Mrs. L. Wannamaker.

Miss Clara Anderson contributed piano selections and led in community singing.

In keeping with the thought of a mother's love for her children, Mr. Lockyer gave an informative address, on the work, local conditions, and need of the local C.A.S. Although the speaker definitely assured the Club that his visit was not to solicit funds, the members, nevertheless, voted $25 to be spent at the discretion of the C.A. Society.

During the afternoon, messages of thanks for cards and letters were read by Mrs. Earle, as well as personal thanks being extended by Mr. and Mrs. Joe Short for the remembrance received on the occasion of their golden wedding anniversary.

All were glad to welcome Mrs. Weatherill, of Edmonton, who is here to spend the summer months with her sister, Mrs. Woodman Thomas.

Following the close of the meeting, refreshments were served, and a hearty vote of thanks extended to Mrs. Wardner and to those who assisted, Mrs. Fanning, Mrs. Baird, Mrs. Wannamaker, and Mrs. Shortt.

An invitation was accepted to hold the June meeting at the home of Mrs. Morley Roraback, in Rednersville.

The parents were Mr. and Mrs. Burton Sharp, Mr. and Mrs. Ross Jaffa, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Jaffa, Mr. and Mrs. Harry McAdam, of Mount Pleasant and Dr. and Mrs. Linstrum, Batawa.

Mrs. W. B. Totten and James, of Toronto, were recent guests at Wellman's, where they visited the Rainie family.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Linn and Ruth, attended the funeral of their cousin, Mr. Bert Hay, at Burnbrae Presbyterian Church on Saturday afternoon.

$5,000 SET ASIDE

St. Catharines, May 19 (CP)—The St. Catharines Lions Club—home club of International Lions President Walter Fisher—Thursday night set aside $5,000 for Manitoba Flood victims.

Club Chief Syd Symondson said the money has been set aside "until the air clears," pending the possible organization of a National Lions Club fund project to deal with a special phase of the Red River disaster.

AID TO MANITOBA IS POURING IN FROM ALL PARTS

Winnipeg, May 20 (CP)—Aid for flood-stricken Manitobans is continuing to pour in from all parts of Canada — and the question is being discussed in Washington and London.

Friday night the Manitoba Flood Relief Fund stood at more than $500,000. Ad objective is at least $10,000,000.

Employees of the T. Eaton Company of Canada had raised $153,-317 — an amount matched by the company.

Other major contributions, helping to bring the official total to $544,000, included:

Imperial Tobacco Company $15,000. . General Motors of Canada $15,000; Canadian Breweries Ltd. $10,000; Federal Grain Company $15,000; Manufacturers Life Insurance $10,000 . . Westeel Products Ltd. $10,000; Tip Top Tailors, Toronto $5,000; Robert Simpson Company $1,500; Lake Shipowners Clearing Association $1,000. The Toronto Star has contributed $10,000 and collected another $29,-763.35.

In Toronto City Treasurer Arthur Laseelles said $22,500 had been received at city hall. Additional funds are expected from a tag day planned in Toronto for May 27 by the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire. The Presbyterian Church in Canada announced it will send $5,000 and the Women's Missionary Society of the church said it will add to that next Tuesday.

In Washington, meanwhile, a resolution proposing American aid to Manitoba was blocked in the Senate when Senator Capehart (Kenneth Wherry (Rep. Neb.) said it had endorsement of the State Department.

Election in U.K. Expected Between June, November

Dorking, Surrey, England, May 20 (Reuters)—Hopes rose in top Government and Labor party leaders gathered here today to spend the week-end secretly thrashing out the program with which they aim to regain power as well as office at the next general election.

It is widely expected that the Labor government will spring the next election between next month and November.

The Government has a majority of nine in the present parliament.

The conference is likely to become historic as it marks the first time the three wings of the Labor party—political, trade union and co-operative—have staged a joint get-together of leaders to shape policy.

It is likely also to involve sharp clashes between the left and right wings of the movement over the best psychological approach to the electorate.

More than 50 key figures of the Socialist movement, headed by Prime Minister Attlee, were expected to attend the talks.

"Before the five years plan", on which they just scraped back into office last February, is still regarded by many party supporters as lacking in the imaginative qualities necessary for a resounding Labor victory "next time".

But a dynamic election program cannot be staged until Labor has reconciled some of its major internal differences.

London, May 20 (AP)—A new "dynamic" French foreign policy —launched with the Schuman plan and strongly supported through the Big Three and Atlantic Council talks here — is challenging Britain's political leadership in Western Europe.

France's new line is shaped to rally West Europe — with or without Britain — into a powerful "third force" of countries turning away from the cold war to concentrate attention on the economic, social and financial rebuilding of Europe.

An informed source termed the policy "emphatically not anti-American"—stressing that the French reorientation in viewpoint in no sense means that France should be less ready to fight in defence of western democracy.

Premier Jeithaus U. S. Polley

Its main lines are these:

1. The United States' tendency to view global problems primarily on the assumption that a new war is inevitable and inevitable should be jettisoned.

2. Rebuilding of Europe on the assumption that peace is possible should be pushed forward as a first consideration.

3. The countries of West Europe should stop just talking about surrendering parts of their sovereignty for closer unity and take firm steps toward the goal of a unified closely-knit west.

Informed sources in London said those lines were pushed strongly in the big three and the Atlantic Pact talks last concluded.

The Schuman plan is a keystone of the new policy because it dramatizes the necessity for surrender of sovereignty by anyone who wants to join. It calls for a pooling of German and French coal and steel resources but excludes Britain from the door ajar for British entry.

Likewise the plan clearly means that both France and Germany would surrender a big chunk of sovereignty if the arrangement were to work effectively, the open invitation to Britain to get aboard the cart edges her deftly toward a decision she has long disliked.

'I Thought My Time Had Come', Scene 'Like Picture of A-Bomb Burst'

South Amboy, N.J., May 20. — (AP) — Shoppers crowded the downtown area Friday night.

Families sat down to dinner.

Workers headed for home.

Rain fell from dismal grey clouds. It was 7:24 p.m. E.D.T.

A minute later this town of 10,000 was "blown to hell".

Panic whipped Broadway—the Main Street. Men, women and children were showered with slivers of glass and splintered wood and brick from buildings.

Automobiles in their tracks clutching bloodied arms and legs unbelievingly—some fear-whitened faces etched against the fiery red glow from the waterfront blast. Some ammunition barges had disappeared into space in a thundering roar.

Men gathered their families around them and rushed into the streets—some only partly clothed, napkins. Motorists fled their cars where they stopped.

Cries of "atom bomb" and "this is war" filled the night air.

Dock Foreman Joseph Lucky enough to be alive—gazed at the mushroom cloud that rose where new loading once floated.

A railroad policeman, Luke Lyons, was about 100 feet away when the barges let go.

"I thought it was a bomb," said the explosion I looked out and couldn't see any."

Debris filled the air, adding a whistling crescendo to the dull roar of the blast.

Bodies and parts of bodies—some burned beyond recognition, grimy, wreck-filled water. Cries of "help me" filled the gloomy dock section—the blast had cut off power and electricity.

Those killed and hurt in this explosion-belt city escaped without a least some damage.

"People were cut by flying glass and they stood as if hypnotized as blood poured from their wounds," said Mrs. Andrew Kudzma, wife of a Perth Amboy, who was working in a dress shop on Broadway.

Automobiles forced packages and ran. Children whimpered and clung to their parents.

Glass—expensive stained and ordinary window—filled the streets and gutters. Walls caved in. Roofs hung crazily from their moorings. Cars stood damaged, some with motors still running.

Live fuses and detonators were scattered everywhere. Mud from the river bottom dripped off the walls and tops of buildings in the unceasing rain.

Men in a motor boat, hastily pressed into service, snatched a man, his wife and their child off another burning coal barge.

Priests were on the docks administering to the injured. One dock worker received last rites of his church—and died.

Mayor Walter C. Ferrell said today, 10-miles to the north, said he heard a low rumble and "finally it erupted into a terrific blast".

"It looked like a picture of an atom bomb exploding," was the way Ed Heinz described it.

"I felt a terrific explosion then saw white and grey smoke mushrooming into the sky a mile in the air," he said.

COMMONS HAILS DEVELOPMENTS AS MAJOR ADVANCES

Canada Will Name Deputy to Council

Ottawa May 20—(CP)—Twin developments directly affecting Canada in the international sphere captured the attention of parliament Friday and were unanimously hailed as major advances toward the goal of world peace.

Defence Minister Claxton told the Commons:

1. The meeting of the 12-member Atlantic Pact Council in London has decided to appoint a deputy council, to which Canada will name a representative, and to urge members to concentrate on creation of balanced collective forces in a way consistent with role of the defence of the North Atlantic area.

2. The United States has agreed to buy between $15,000,000 and $20,000,000 worth of Canadian military equipment annually which the minister said would contribute to the defence potential of both countries" and to overall defence arrangements.

Mr. Claxton, speaking for External Affairs Minister Pearson, then reported the council meetings in London late this month to give a "full report," said the council decisions were "a long step forward" in building up a united and co-operative North Atlantic community."

Duke of Edinburgh Is Given First Naval Command

London, May 20—(AP)—Prince Elizabeth's husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, has earned his first command in the Royal Navy.

The Admiralty announced today that Lt. Philip Mountbatten will take command of the anti-aircraft frigate Magpie in August.

The Admiralty also pointed out that about the same time he would be promoted in rank from Lieutenant to Lieutenant-Commander.

Prince Philip, 29, next month, now commands the destroyer Chequers, based at Malta.

Johnson Urges U.S. Defence 'Of Such Formidability' To Impress Any Aggressor

Washington, May 20. (AP)—A call for mobilization of strength and resources abounding in major cities across the United States where key defence officials spoke today in observance of the first U.S. Armed Forces day.

President Truman and Defence Secretary Louis Johnson led those who urged unremitting self-help Friday night for extension of the draft law.

Speaking at dinner here, Truman advocated a universal training program for the welfare and defence of the country.

He said there never would have been a cold war if Congress had voted a draft law in 1945 when he asked for it, instead of waiting three years.

Appearing with the President, Johnson said the defence department is working to build up a defence "of such formidability as to convince a possible aggressor that we cannot be beaten quickly on a hit-and-run basis."

Gen. Omar Bradley, the country's top military man, warned in a San Francisco speech that a Russian atomic attack is possible "in a few years", and called for "a long pull" program to build up defences against the "two-headed monster" of Soviet Communism.

Other top figures in planning the U.S. defence declared that the cold war is steadily getting hotter. They warned of the possibility of global conflict and urged preparedness.

Britain Ends Points Rationing But Cut in Tea Coming in July

London, May 20—(CP)—Britain's food rationing controls were eased Friday, but there was bad news along with the good—less tea will be available after next month.

Food Minister Maurice Webb announced there will be no more points rationing, which means a free sale or certain foods like canned meat and canned fish.

But he said that in July the tea ration will be cut back to two ounces a week for each consumer. It has been 2½ ounces a week since last June.

Other staple foods like sugar, butter, bacon and meat will continue to be rationed by price or quantity. There may, however, be an increase in the meat ration next month.

The points system was one of the more complicated forms of British rationing. Each ration book contained a number of points valid for a monthly period which had to be used when buying specified products. The number of points required varied according to the availability of the products.

Webb said that the number of foods so controlled had been steadily reduced in recent months, and only canned meat was added.

Abolition of the system, he said, would eliminate the use of about 25,000,000 ration books a year, apart from the time-consuming task of cutting out and counting 8,000,000,000 coupons which fell upon merchants and civil servants.

The food minister said ministry will be able to cut the staff by more than 1,000, and that the saving in labor would amount to £600,000 ($630,000) a year.

Webb said he hoped to increase the weekly meat ration by two-pence (about two cents) a week in July. Government stocks are also allowed to spend 1s 6d. a week on meat. The increase will be in the form of canned corned meats.

The reduction in the tea ration reflects higher prices which Britain is paying to India and Ceylon this year. A recent agreement added twopence a pound to last year's average price.

Webb said he thought that growers could be relied on to see that their customers got a fair share of the extra tea that will be taken off points rationing.

Magistrate Rules For Toronto By-Law In Ultra Vires

Toronto, May 20. (CP)—The city's Sunday-closing by-law for gasoline stations brushed against a fine legal point Friday. It was a pretty fair explosion.

Magistrate Walter W. McGowan, sympathetic with a test case by an oil company which considers the by-law illegal, decided because of the wording of the law, council had overstepped the line, by at least some degree.

The by-law prohibited stations from selling gasoline on Sunday. But, under an arrangement sponsored by Imperial Gas and Automotive Service Association, each operator had done business one Sunday in each month—supposedly for the benefit of motorists.

Joy Oil Company questioned the by-law's validity. Its seven stations remained open last Sunday. All were charged and it was agreed that charges against two should constitute a test case.

Magistrate McKeown referred to the case in which city council, whose authority is received from the Ontario legislature, delegated to the board of control "discretionary the right to issue—or refuse to issue—certain permits to certain stations to remain open.

"In power, he said, cannot legally be delegated by city council.

London, May 20—(CP)—Trade Minister C. D. Howe today confirmed a Montreal report that the British government has placed a 25,000-ton newsprint order with Canadian pulp and paper mills following talks here.

Howe said "it was too early yet" to discuss details of terms in the discussions on Anglo-Canadian trade which he is conducting with other top British officials.

Gets $125 in All For Salvaging Of Helicopter

Niagara Falls, N.Y., May 20 — (AP)— Jerry Penque was miffed Wednesday when he got $125 for helping to salvage a helicopter which crashed on rapids above Niagara Falls. But today he changed his mind.

The Bell Aircraft Corporation gave him another $1,000.

"I'm awfully sorry there was a misunderstanding between me and the Bell Aircraft Corporation about my pay. I was merely trying to receive in salvaging the helicopter," the 40-year-old construction engineer said in a statement. "I am very pleased with the way the payment I have been given."

The helicopter fell into the rapids Monday during the rescue of a woman clinging to a rock in the rapids. The woman and two pilots were rescued with the help of another helicopter.

Penque ventured into the river and attached salvage lines to the aircraft, but it pulled the original $125 "peanuts."

It will move across the Great Lakes region today and tomorrow leaving Sunday morning sunny with temperatures little changed from Saturday.

HOPES RAISED 1950 FLOOD CREST IS ABOUT DONE

Army Juggles Rivers To Relieve Pressure

By NORMAN MICHIE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Winnipeg, May 20 — (CP) — The devastating Red dropped another inch in Greater Winnipeg today. Bright sunshine raised Winnipeggers' hopes that the flood crest was about done.

But sun alone was not enough to be significant. The wobbly crest has strained between the twin cities of Winnipeg and St. Boniface, Man., since last Sunday.

The danger was still present. The army gingerly jugged two rivers and a Saskatchewan lake to prevent further damage to the metropolitan area.

But there were these favorable signs in the 75-mile-long flood zone:

1. At 8 a. m. EDT the river level at James Avenue pumping station was 30.2 feet. Since 5 p.m. Friday it had held steady at 30.25. The 1950 peak Thursday night and Friday was 30.3.

2. The weather bureau forecast a rainless day through the Red River Valley, with some clouds but much bright, drying sunshine.

3. The water level at Emerson, where the Red enters Manitoba from the United States, was 1¼ inches in 24 hours; and a few miles farther north, at Letellier, it dropped four inches in a day and a half.

4. All Greater Winnipeg's dikes apparently were holding.

The main unfavorable factors were:

1. Dikes weakened by continuous pressure of the Red still had to hold for many days. There was no chance of relief from the city of the river's Winnipeg level. A 600-square-mile, river-born lake in southern Manitoba will take several weeks to drain.

2. The long-term weather forecast was not favorable. A storm was brewing in the Dakotas, and there was heavy rain in parts during the next few days.

3. All southern Manitoba is waterlogged. The ground would not absorb heavy precipitation. Army engineers have said a couple of day's heavy rain would send the river level soaring — perhaps even to the 32.5 feet at which general evacuation of the greater Winnipeg area would be necessary.

The army's lake-and-river juggling task was to relieve flood pressure caused by one huge body of water — Lake Manitoba — and a precarious balance between two others and the dikes resisting them.

Main danger was from an artificial lake pointed like a broad flat arrow at the heart of Winnipeg. Known as the Assiniboine, a six-mile dike along McGillivray Blvd. and Fort Garry, it was some inches higher than the level of the Red and Seine Rivers not far to the east.

Wind Tunnel Capable of Simulating Speeds up to 3,000 Miles Per Hour

Ottawa, May 20 — (CP)—The National Research Council is building a wind tunnel capable of simulating speeds up to 3,000 miles an hour, it was learned in supersonic tests of aircraft parts and probably eventually full guided missiles, scientists say may some day fly that fast.

The tremendous rush of air in the tunnel won't actually be going that fast, but under past stationary parts fastened inside, a scientist said. But the test can be made as valid as if the object was the same as though those parts actually were flying that fast, it was explained in the great unexplored realm beyond the speed of sound.

The unfinished tunnel is being billed as a feature attraction for three days in which a guarded, fence-enclosed wonderland known as the N. R. C. does military research and nothing of a secret character will be demonstrated this time.

Powder-Laden Barges Explode At S. Amboy, N.J.

300 in Critical Condition From Blast in Hospital

By LEONARD LEDDINGTON

South Amboy, N.J., May 20. (AP) — A series of ferocious explosions ripped through a string of ammunition-laden barges Friday night, killing a possible 29 persons and battering this waterfront city into a tangle of wreckage.

Three hundred persons, some in critical condition, were taken to hospital. An estimated 300 others were treated by first aid squads and doctors who roamed the stricken area.

There were four known dead and 25 missing.

Officials reported the damage would run into the millions of dollars. The Pennsylvania railroad said its dock area, where the blast occurred, had suffered $5,000,000 damage.

A state of emergency was declared in this city of 10,000 population. State police ringed the outskirts to limit the curious.

The explosion sent 600 tons of munitions into the air over lower New York harbor. Rumors of an atomic attack spread through the community as the blast and the spout of black smoke towering above the town.

Troops with bayonets drawn, patrolled the area throughout the night. Officers said there was no looting.

Extra guards were posted outside two banks which had been blown open by the blast.

After the initial explosion, there was nothing more than a citywide shower of glass and a sprinkling of fires concentrated in the wharf area. An estimated 3,000 of South Amboy's 4,000 homes were damaged.

By morning only two of the dead had been identified. They were Frank Cinelli, about 50, of Jersey City, and Syverd Hagen of Brooklyn.

Mayor James J. Flynn of Perth Amboy, a city of 48,000 three miles across the Raritan River from South Amboy, estimated that 75 per cent of the homes in his city were damaged.

About 300 residents of Perth Amboy were cut by flying glass and treated on the streets by roving first-aid squads, the mayor said.

"I thought it was an atomic explosion," he said. Mrs. Leonard said: "It was the first thought that hit me."

Charles Bersin, a coal barge worker who was an eyewitness to the blast, said he had the same feeling: "I thought Stalin was over here."

CHILD FELL 20 FEET

FATHER AND FOUR CHILDREN SUFFER SEVERE BURNS

Sudbury, May 20 — (CP) — A man and his four children were taken to hospital today with burns suffered in a $250,000 fire which gutted a store and its upstairs apartments and Sudbury's Durham Street.

Every available firefighter in the city was called to fight the blaze which raced through Martin's Men's Wear, Dominion Store, Levin's Ladies Wear and Fairmont Shoe Store.

In hospital in critical condition is John Lahaie, 48, who lived in the burned apartment block. He and his four children, ranging from 5 to 17, were helped from the building by police and firefighters.

Hospital authorities described the conditions of the children as favorable. They have varying degrees of burns. Their mother was away from home at the time of the fire, which started between 4 a.m. and 5 a.m.

The spectacular blaze sent flames and smoke shooting through the roof of the burning buildings, but spared no.

An explosion of unknown origin caused part of the brick wall facing Durham Street to sag dangerously, but it did not fall.

At first it was known at 5 a.m. there were no casualties beyond the family of five now in hospital.

"We couldn't have done much to save this place with two men," Fire Chief William Andrew said while the fire burned. Flames leaped through the roof and by the time the firemen reached the scene.

Part of the same burned block, containing one of the same stores, Levin's Men's Wear, was destroyed by fire 16 years ago. Three years later the New American Hotel, which stood on the site next door, was occupied by the Hotel Coulhon, was razed.

Heavy Cattle Sales Deplete Number in County

Heavy sales of cattle to the United States along with other factors have resulted in less cattle in Hastings County at this time, according to the weekly crop report issued by the Ontario Department of Agriculture, General reports from farmers indicate less cattle at this time of the year, and for some time.

Heavy winds of the past weekend have caused severe wind erosion, blowing the seed out of the soil on light land. Many farmers are tearing up old and new meadows and preparing to special crops to provide sufficient roughage.

In Northumberland County many dairy herds have lost flesh during the past few weeks with feed supplies dwindling and grass growth still poor. Fall crops have seldom looked better, but meadows are in doubtful condition and again farmers are patching up with oats, sweet clover, perennial rye or other hay crops.

Many farmers have completed seeding of cereal grains but in Hastings low land still remains unsown.

Lend a Helping Hand - - With Your Cash

In April, 1915, a handful of Canadian troops, green in the art of warfare, "held the line" for civilization at the Battle of St. Julien. Their indomitable spirit and fighting qualities enabled them to turn back the gray-clad German hordes and save the channel ports for the Allies.

That spirit has never died. It has been handed down from generation to generation and today it flames anew in the breasts of the gallant residents of flood-ravaged Winnipeg.

Their battle against the devastating waters of the Red River which has ridden rampant over rich farmlands, prosperous villages and today threatens the very existence of Manitoba's capital city, has evoked the admiration of the world.

"We're weary and we're wet — but we'll win," is the slogan that reflects the unquenchable spirit of these fellow Canadians.

Damage to homes and property will run into millions. Canada is rallying to the appeal of the "Feg to help in the work of rehabilitation. Communities large and small from the smallest sea-bordered village of Nova Scotia and Newfoundland to the shores of Vancouver Island.

Brigadier R. E. A. Morton, army flood-control commander, said yesterday, "There has never been a disaster comparable to this, involving the people of such a large city, in the history of this continent."

"Everything that can be done is being done to control the flow of the waters and avoid danger to life and loss of property," he added.

Belleville is not altogether unfamiliar with flood devastation. In 1918 and 1936 the Moira River overflowed its banks and caused heavy damage to downtown property and homes.

Residents of this city, therefore, have some idea of what flood waters can do, and can appreciate to an extent the need of assistance which the Manitoba people require.

Sentiment, however, will not restore houses and property. Admiration of a fighting job well done will not bring back that which has been swept away by flood-waters. Something of a more tangible nature is necessary if flood victims are to be helped toward rehabilitation.

Belleville has joined the ranks of Canadian communities which are stretching a helping hand to their fellows in Manitoba. A Relief Fund Committee has been formed here, and is gradually getting its forces into action.

Everybody can help with a cash donation. Finances, it appears, is the primary need. Send or bring your contributions to the nearest bank branch in the city. And please do so as soon as possible.

Education Board is Against Buying Hastings County Home For Use as a Public School

Purchase of the Hastings County Old People's Home by the local Board of Education for use as a public school to serve the west end has not the support of the advisable it was decided Friday evening by members of the board at their regular monthly meeting held in the board rooms.

Mayor H. J. Allin at a committee meeting of the board held last week had offered the old people owned Old People's home to the Board to be used for school purposes. Following the advice of their architects, Drever and Semple, of Toronto, the Board decided the building would be impractical for school use.

Purchase of the property from the city would cost $100,000—the amount of the grant received by the city for its purchase as a convalescent hospital—while it was estimated that the architects fee alternational costs would be $149,- 000, or a total of $240,000.

Go-To Committee

This would provide only ten classrooms and there would be no staff room, play room, or auditorium.

In contrast to this tenders for the proposed new school with staff room, playroom and auditorium, showed the building could be constructed for less money. Lowest tender for the new school was $219,000, while the second tender which the Board approved was $242,000. Cost of equipment in all cases would be extra.

Records from the county offices had showed the Hastings County Home to have been constructed 45 years ago. The committee was expressed that although the Department of Education would give consideration to purchase of the building if requested to do so, it cost end of the city would be the department to supply grants for the purchase of old buildings to be used as schools.

Not Likely to Approve

"The public would not approve of the Board spending money on an old building. It would be too costly and there would not be the same consideration as to a new school which would cost less money," stated H. C. Seldon, board member.

After brief discussion on the matter members passed a motion expressing thanks to Mayor Allin for the offer of the Old People's Home but noted on the advice of their architect it would not be advisable to purchase the building for school purposes.

The Board added to the motion a request asking city council to limit the electricity asked by the Board for the construction of a new school.

The tender of the Conger Lehigh Coal Company was accepted for the supply of coal to the various city schools with delivery at the direction of the Board.

Awarded Contract

Ivan May was awarded the contract for the levelling of school grounds at the new Prince Charles School on Ridley Avenue, the cost of $3,800 to include fill, levelling, gravel walks, top soil and sodding. No action was taken on the matter of planting shrubbery.

Public school principals were given permission to co-operate in raising funds for the Hungarian Relief Fund, they to work out a system of voluntary contributions from the pupils.

The matter of construction of a new fence at Queen Victoria School grounds was deferred, as was the matter of awarding contract for the construction of asphalt platforms in front of the various public schools. Work of re-wiring of public schools will be carried out with coal costs of the project are assessed.

Will Forward Request

The Board of Education will forward a request to the council that the Belleville High School District be dissolved and that a public school district be created to have the city placed in the county of Quinte High School District.

Board members expressed the feeling that the present joint meeting held at the Collegiate to discuss the formation of the proposed high school district had broken up without an investigation. Chairman Allin pointed out, it was pointed out that the proposed district would work to the advantage of both the city and the county.

A committee of the chairman of the board, chairman of the collegiate management committee, the board chairman and Mayor Allin was named to act in conjunction with city council and any other committee to investigate full details of the proposed high school district.

Rescind Notice

Due to expected crowded accommodation at the Belleville Collegiate, the local Board of Education had notified rural municipalities Quit as of September 1st the school would be closed to rural students. Members voted to rescind this notice and replace it with a notice closing the school to rural students two years from now.

To a question by A. C. Campbell whether in two years time the Collegiate could accommodate all urban and rural students, principal Dr. Currie said that he could not be done without staggered classes or extra accommodation.

Every effort will be made to organize the public schools into a school operating in September with all classes accommodated in the present buildings. For this purpose Grade 8 pupils in the Queen Alexandra and Queen Victoria Schools will be moved in to the King George and Queen Mary Schools and possible organization to be effected among schools in the west end of the city.

Install P.A. System

Installation of a public address system for the use of the Prince Charles School was approved by members of the board. The system is to be secured through the Northern Electric Company and Dominion Sound.

Present at the meeting were Chairman Enos David, and members Mrs. Josephine Pickett, Wilkin, Symons, Geen, Seldon, and Campbell. Board secretary George Wishart has been granted three months leave of absence to permit him to enter the ministry in connection with his duties with the entomological department.

Little Child Gives Parents A Big Scare

Three-year-old Jenny Sprague, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alan Sprague, 259 George Street, gave her parents a real scare Friday afternoon, when she disappeared from her home and search for the little girl was started before she was found.

The little girl in company with a Dalmatian dog had strayed away from her home during the noon hour, but was not missed for some time. Then police were notified and efforts centered in the district without success. Neighbors in the area were canvassed and still the search was without avail.

Finally one of the searchers noticed the dog in the rear of an automobile parked in a backyard on Dufferin Avenue, near the Sprague home. There was the little girl sound asleep on the seat.

It is believed the small child in company with the dog had wandered into the backyard and had managed to open the door and get into the vehicle with her yet. Then the door was pulled shut and the little girl was unable to open it. The little girl became frightened and finally cried herself to sleep.

Odd Names Entertain U.K. Visitor

Visitors to Britain are always delighted and sometimes mystified at the strang names and signboards which adorn the wayside inns, and which they should be, writes Dick Sanburn in the Ottawa Citizen.

Into them has gone a rich mixture of history, art, literature, religion, patriotism, fleeting enthusiams and in some cases just rankish good humor.

Names like The Angel, the Coach and Horses, the Rose and Crown, the White Hearts, King's Head and the Queen's head are to be found by the thousand. All have a particular history behind them. Then there are the strange ones like the Bag o' Nails, the Bull and Mouth, the Frightened Horse and the Spyglass and Kettle. Even the natives are hard put to explain these.

Guides to Old Courts

In most cases, the names sprang long ago from some particular association with the guilds and crafts, from the armorial bearings of noble families in whose armies the landlord served, from ancient religious orders, from wars and political events. In many cases, there just is no explanation because the origin has disappeared into the mists of ancient history.

In an earlier age, the windows of taverns were open and covered only with a red lattice. They have disappeared and the name and color have been corrupted by time, for today you will find inns called the Green Lattice.

A man would choose from arms of his feudal lord, or a soldier back from the wars the arms of the knight under whom he served. Thus were born the inns named the Bear and Ragged Staff, (arms of the Earls of Warwick), and the Talbot (the dog figuring in the arms of the Earl of Shrewsbury.)

Loyalty to the Crown was expressed in the inns named the Crown, the Sceptre, or the King's or Queen's Head. The White Heart or Queen's Head. The White Hart was the badge of Richard II, and the Red Lion came from the shield of John of Gaunt. A landlord wishing to pay his respects to the French Dauphin, but carefree medieval spelling made it come out the Dolphin.

Back to Henry VIII

The Cross Keys is taken from St. Peter's keys on the papal arms. The Salutation, not uncommon even today, goes back through history to the hostels belonging to religious orders dedicated to the Virgin Mary and the sign bears the scene of the Annunciation. The original name was the Salutation of the Angel and Our Lady.

Political urgency sometimes moved a landlord to change the name of his inn with much speed. It is hard to imagine one bearing the name The Cross Keys and putting up the King Head when Henry VIII had his famous quarrel with the Vatican.

History and the rather casual spelling used by semi-illiterate sign painters have corrupted some of the names beyond recognition. The Cachannals has become the Bag of Nails, The Rhincompoop Arms, an ancient one which bedeviled the students of its glorious, has wound up as the Goat and Compasses.

Odd Combinations

Amalgamation of two inns often led to strange new names and symbols on the signs. The Lord Nelson and The Steam Engine merged into one, and there was born the new name The Spyglass and Kettle. The picture showed an eighteenth century admiral standing at the controls of one of the earliest steam engines.

The Bull and Mouth is believed to be a corruption of the inn's original name, The Boulogne Mouth, a sign put up to commemorate the taking of Boulogne Harbor by Henry VIII. The Freighted Horse, a sign depicting a pack horse, has lost the "e" somewhere along the line, and is now The Frighted Horse.

The Lyre and Swan, once situated near St. Paul's Cathedral, was favorite rendevous for musicians, in raffish spirit, they twisted it to the Goose and Gridiron, and that is how it stayed. The original sign is still preserved in a museum.

With modern sign painters, paying up an outstanding bill, contributed to some weird contortions of the original names and pictures.

Carry Portraits

At Farnham, there is The Black Prince, named after the victor of the Battle of Crecy, the eldest son of King Edward III. Lately the sign carried his portrait, but the landlord exhibited it in time. One of these wandering sign painters, ignorant of history, painted in the portrait of a Negro chief.

In the Bird in Hand derives from crests of many ancient families which show a falcon with a gloved hand. It is probably only legend which says it also came from the keepers of the set, there are lots of inns called The Bush (symbol of Bacchus), and there is a very old quip about A Bird in the Hand

The successful garden requires foresight in planning to obtain interesting design and composition. The nature of rose bushes makes an extent of bare earth necessary, but this may be overcome by interplanting the beds lightly with various annuals such as Sweet Alyssum, Snapdragons, Asters, Portulaca and Gladiolus. Roses, on account of their deep roots, are not affected by shallow rooted annuals. Roses require a cool, moist soil and should be mulched to prevent evaporation.

To obtain a complete succession of bloom from early Spring the rose beds may have a surrounding perennial border separated by paths. The width of the paths of beds depends on the design of the garden and personal preference.

Roses do best in a semi-sheltered spot which can be created by a mixed shrubbery border. Rose beds should not be over 3 feet in width if bordered on one side by a path, and not over 5 feet if bordered on two sides.

Christian Science Marks The 75th Anniversary Of Textbook Publication

Boston, May 20 — (AP)—From small beginnings to a world-girdling religion is the story of Christian Science, which this year marks the 75th anniversary of the publication of its textbook.

The denomination, whose followers feel that prayer can heal the sick, has 3,014 recognized churches and societies. There also are 107 organizations at colleges, and a large number of small scattered groups holding informal services.

Christian Science first attracted attention in 1875 with publication of the first edition of its textbook, "Science and Health With Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy. About the turn of the century the movement grew from a handful small group to a well-known church. Its growth has been steady.

In accordance with its by-laws, the churches publish no membership figures. Outsiders working from figures supplied by the census bureau in 1936, place the total well in the hundreds of thousands. Size alone is not considered important by Christian Scientists.

Have Publishing House

One function of the mother church, the first church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass., is operating a large publishing house. It produces annually an estimated 75,000,000 pieces of literature about Christian Science.

The Christian Science publishing society is widely known for its daily newspaper, the Christian Science Monitor, read by many who are not members of the denomination.

The discoverer and founder of Christian Science was a New England woman, Mary Baker Eddy (1821-1910). Its doctrines teach that God, the loving Father of man, is infinite, good, eternal spirit, unchanging principle; that the true man is His image and likeness; that matter is a "mental concept" and actually unreal, the true universe being spiritual; that the cure is for men to become Christ-like.

Healing Through Prayer

Christian Science places great emphasis upon healing the sick through prayer that embodies absolute faith and spiritual understanding.

Adherents include 10,753 officially-listed Christian Science practitioners, who devote themselves to healing the sick. Christian Scientists in general rely entirely on prayer rather than medicine in their religion for healing.

The faith has spread to remote parts of the earth. There are boxes at practically all-the-way places as Nairobi in central Africa; Kuala Lumpur, Malaya; and Hobart, Tasmania.

The growth of Christian Science has been an eventful and sometimes turbulent story.

It was discovered in 1866 when Mrs. Eddy, for years a deep Bible student, was healed of the effects of a critical accident, she said, simply by reading her Bible.

Nine years later — on Oct. 30 1875 — she published Science and Health in a first edition of 1,000 copies.

Rebel Aide of 1937 is Recalled

Old Fort Henry, the Citadel of Upper Canada, is the title of a fine article by Ronald L. Way in the current issue of the Canadian Geographical Journal, and it has some equally fine illustrations, Percy Gheel writes in The Toronto Telegram. Kingston's historic fort has never been attacked by an enemy, but its story has more than one exciting chapter. We were especially attracted by the account of the escape of John Montgomery and sundry other rebels of Mackenzie's band who had been imprisoned in Fort Henry after they lively little scrap on Yonge Street at Montgomery's tavern. They had been taken from Toronto to Kingston on the steamship Sir Robert Peel, guarded by a company of Negroes.

Deferred Pardon

Montgomery interested us a-bout other reasons because we once possessed a letter written to him by the Duke of Newcastle, in which the latter assured Queen Victoria had not seen fit to pardon his rebellious offence—a decision to be reversed in due course. Originally sentenced to be hanged for treason, his sentence was commuted to transportation for life. In a romantic manner, Fort Henry, Montgomery and others mixed their long exile in Van Diemen's Land intended for them.

In Toronto on an April day of 1838, Alfred Rowe Robinson and a jury had condemned him to the gallows. He declared the trial had been unfair, and gazing at the judge, delivered stinging words. "When you sir, and all others who have taken part in my sentence shall have died and perished in hell's flames, John Montgomery will yet be living on Yonge Street."

About the ultimate destiny of judge and jury John was not only uncharitable, but entirely mistaken, we trust. But he did live on Yonge street again for many years and when he passed away peacefully into eternity it was at the venerable age of 96.

Near Eglinton

Montgomery's Tavern stood near to the Eglinton avenue of today, but in 1837 that location was way out in the country to the folk in little Toronto, crowded about the Bay. The "battle" fought there on a September day seemed a grim enough affair at the time, no doubt, but was an important rebel battle.

Toronto expected to be invaded by the rebels and church bells clanged to warn the citizens. When the day did not arrive as promptly as promised, the defenders grew petulant and sneered forth to find out what all the delay was about. A small but gallant force it was, with two bands, two guns of the Volunteer Artillery company and an elegant standard, Petulant and indignant, too, was the mob that swarmed forth from the taverns and buildings of the agitating Montgomery farm, riotously indignant, because all the rebel plans specified that they were to do the attacking and not the Toronto Tories, by heck!

So, in a pardonable huff they hit and ran, some of them, and some of them just ran. A few shots were fired, a rebel was killed, four or five others wounded; a cannon-ball crashed through the tavern wall and the Battle of Montgomery's Farm was over.

Not quite over. Up rode Sir Francis Bond Head, the Wellington of our local Waterloo. His bright eyes beneath a broad brow and curly locks, gazed upon the tavern with its long platform and its central door with a great lamp swinging above it. Hotbed of sedition and iniquity! Scene of "act of vengeance" must mark the victory over the enemys of the young Queen. He ordered the tavern looke destroyed by fire. And, as everyone enjoys a good fire, the torch was applied with enthusiasm.

Gazing north across woodland and farmland on that evening of Thursday, the 7th of December, 1837, anxious watchers in Toronto saw rolling clouds of black smoke Toronto was saved! Mackenzie had escaped during the excitement, they learned later, but many rebels, including John Montgomery, had been or were being rounded up.

30 YEARS AGO

May 20th., 1920

FIRST BELLEVILLE SET-TLERS. Away back in 1789 one first white settlers in this section, Capt. John Singleton, a United Empire Loyalist, obtained a grant of 400 acres of land which now forms part of Belleville and erected a log house near the bay. He and partly filled well marked the spot up to a few years ago, but every trace of the house of the first settler has disappeared. The river was for a time called Singleton's river after the first settler. There is nothing left now, not even the name of a street to bring to mind or mark the scene of the first settlement of Belleville. At that time there was a thick, heavy wooded swamp on both sides of the river near the bay. Lot four consisting of 200 acres lying east of and adjoining the river was an Indian burial ground. The clear cut part was occupied by Indians. Capt. John Singleton might have felt rewarded for all his privations if he could have seen the beautiful city of Belleville rise up from the wilderness where he built his first house. These facts are of particular interest now owing to the approaching Old Boys' Reunion in July next.

40 YEARS AGO

May 20th., 1910

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

From Cornell University you can now obtain, for about the same price as you would pay for a Brahms symphony, a collection of records of songs of frogs and birds entitled "Voices of the Night." Cornell has long been famous among most universities for its ornithologists, and now you might add its realist scientists. A father and son team have spent countless hours at one of Cornell who are entomologists. And some time ago, they published a book on the songs and insects on which trout flies should be modelled.

Also, some years ago, as soon as radio microphones were developed, Cornell teams of bird lovers went out into field and wood with six foot metal diaphragms in the centre of which mikes were set, and thus caught and recorded the songs of wild birds.

Now the Cornell men have taken their microphones all over the country, from Texas to the Canadian north, and, snooping around swamps and ponds and puddles in the night, have assiduously recorded the trills of toads, the whoops of bullfrogs the lovely bell-like music of the tree frog, as well as a few passages of sheer symphony of the whole songs of bird and frog and toad made at the last half hour before sunrise which is the most musical of the hours of the day in wild nature.

The records include many more of the sounds in nature which are barely noted by the human ear are the songs of frogs and toads; literally songs in the same sense as the song of the birds or of men and women. Queer little banjo notes we hear in the summer evening, faint trills as delicate as those of Lily Pons, nyalical tremolos, bird-like peeps, are traced to critters we know by day as mere bass holt. On the record, the bullfrog performance is almost on a par with Pinza singing "Some Enchanted Evening."

Riding a Comet London to Rome At 500 MPH

(By a Correspondent in the Manchester Guardian)

No one who has ever experienced a long-distance flight in the Comet jet airliner can doubt that it heralds a new era in air travel and forces airline operators to revise all previously held views as to the speed at which they travel. It soars to seven miles above the earth and there cruises continentally at 500 miles an hour true air speed.

I flew in the Comet when it set the new speed record from London to Rome and back. We went from Hatfield to Rome in a little over two hours two minutes, and, after landing in Rome for an hour, we flew back in about the same time, beating the previous official record—held by a single-seat fighter aircraft—by 20 minutes. The time from city centre to city centre was just under two hours.

Group Captain John "Cats Eyes") Cunningham who has done at least fifty hours at command, and there were 11 passengers and a crew of four. The flight was in a Royal Navy Comet. The only commercial Comets will be the two and back at about 33,000. Outside our little, round windows, just above the clouds, it was minus 45 degrees Centigrade (or the equivalent of 49 below zero, Fahrenheit.)

The absence of spinning airscrews and of any vibration gives flow at the jet nozzles made it seem that we were motionless in space. Only the cockpit instruments and the speed of the Comet's progress at 515 miles an hour. There was no vibration, though there was a low, dull rumbling sound from the engines and the air stream.

• • •

Cunningham started his descent a long way from Rome and we came tearing down through a thick strip of runway at Ciampino Airport. The cabin being pressurized, we had no discomfort from changes in the heights at which we had been flying or from the high speed even although we had some bumps on the way down.

Then, abruptly, at these very high speeds, jerk the aircraft sharply, as if there had been a sudden gust and swung that one experiences in a fast car when going round a sharp corner. The only thing to throughout the whole journey. The sequence is that these ultra-high speed jet aircraft should go far to abolish air sickness.

On our return journey we flew at 33,000 feet. I went up to the cockpit and there read on the anemometer that our true flying at a mach number of 0.75 —that is 75 per cent of the speed of sound at the height of 75 per cent of the speed of sound. The motion of the aircraft seemed quite unlike that of other machines in which I had experienced it. One had the uncanny impression that it was not moving at all, while such noise "third" wave, rushing like some fantastic surrider.

It was when we were flying over Frankfurt that I had the extraordinary experience of flying through some heavy turbulence. This kind of air condition can only recently been discovered. It is the result of a certain amount of bumping about while flying through clouds charged with no clouds near. The bumps was very severe and on the occasion only recorded one quarter of G, that is one quarter of the value of gravity. In high performance the values may go up to three or four G.

• • •

What are the defects of this remarkable new air-liner To the passenger there is only one: The noise is rather loud. It is not severer than in the piston-engined airliners, but it is different in its specialty and it is not an unpleasant noise. It is a very powerful noise but it makes it necessary to raise the voice a great deal in order to converse.

As for the advantages of this new kind of airliner, they are not only partly appreciated. There are the greater simplicity which, assuming equal design merit, means give greater safety. There are no complex constant speed airscrews to go wrong and things like cabin heating and de-icing and de-icing can be done from the engines, so that there are fewer installations in the fuselage, being avation kerosene or paraffin. The engines are not liable to catch fire that has been a feature of the piston-engined aircraft throughout the history of flying.

As for fuel consumption, this is high when reckoned against time; but it is greatly reduced against distance covered in a given time. The Comet operating company have claimed that the data they have now accumulated show that the Comet will be lower than for a piston-engined airliner.

American opinion has tended to be adverse up to the present. My experience of travelling about 2,000 miles in this aircraft, however, to the conclusion that, when it attains the size of a commercial vice, the Americans simply will not take the passengers to ride in the old-fashioned, slower, and more dangerous piston-engined machines.

U.S. Shows Great Interest In Royal Rug

(By Patricia Hardie, who is travelling with the Royal Carpet.)

We have had the most wonderful reception in each city we have visited. The Carpet has been displayed in different ways, each to suit the particular setting, and in every case, a new "facet" seems to show. In Kansas City, no artificial lighting was required, the main hall has a huge glass roof, and this was the first occasion on which the true colors could be seen in their full beauty.

In New Orleans a special dias was built and the room chosen for the exhibition was the most commanding the last battle between the British and Americans in 1812. This museum holds many pictures and records of England that the association of the old and the Royal rug of 1950 was very moving. The exhibition is situated in a lovely park, and the inside walls of the building are plain red brick, over these was hung a deep blue curtain which made the background for the Carpet and the more noticeably than before the many lovely shades of blue in the flowers.

In Houston the rug was shown in a lovely drawingroom with panelled walls and parquet floor, at each end of the room were placed two large palms and the Carpet was covered dais had been specially arranged.

• • •

Among the thousands of people who have been to see the rug, I have naturally been a great many women amongst the full regalia and all have been deeply appreciative of Queen Mary's example and of the perseverance and self-sacrifice which the rug represents. But we have been extremely moved by the number of American women who have come to tell us how much they admire Queen Mary and the rug and have added that I think Queen Mary is a fine example of service to us American women. In Kansas City, Houston, Kansas, came 400 students to see the rug. Each student had to write a descriptive of Queen Mary's example which was then presented any specific evidence to indicate just how long.

Personal Health Talks

Address: Dr. William Brady, care of this newspaper.)

THE OLDEST READER SEEMS A BIT DOTTY

It must be a decade ago or more that some trick healer launched the canard about the non-existence of Dr. William Brady. No such person, the charlatan assured his customers. Dr. Wm. Brady is just a pen name used by the medical trust, the American Association or a "syndicate" of allopaths to get their propaganda to the gullible public.

Some of the customers believed the yarn. After all, the company or firm that distributes my column manufactures my soap, or is a wholesale merchant distributing shoes or soap to retail dealers, is technically known as a "syndicate" in the newspaper world. Moreover, prior to the advent of the late Bob-Bob of the American Medical Association, the Association and I go along happily together, although recently an event years we have had practically no use or love for each other.

Alive or dead, real or fictional, I have been carrying on this feud more years than some readers have lived. Every year it creates to me that there might be someone somewhere who remembers when this column first appeared in the newspaper. So I invited the oldest reader to have survived, to tell me how long they have been reading these vagaries of mine—and I offered an autographed $5 set of the complete works—Little Essays in the Ways of Health—by way of my compliments to the oldest reader.

Some readers went all out to win the prize— declaring they had been reading me "since time began" or "since the Flood" or "since Adam and Eve were expelled from Eden." Others were more restrained and said they had been reading me "since the days of the old Roman Empire" or "since the days of the Crusades."

I was disappointed with the response to the invitation— most readers who responded merely said they had been reading my stuff "for years" but a few of them presented any specific evidence to indicate just how long.

"Wizard" Rainmaker Ends in High Court

Salisbury, Southern Rhodesia, (CP)—The conviction of a native rainmaker who brought about the reincarnation of a famous rainmaker who lived more than 100 years ago, is now the subject quoted in the annual report of the native commissioner for South Africa Police.

The rainmaker's conviction for a while, says the report, and due respect was paid to him. He installed a system of fines for alleged offences against his "dignity" and local natives submitted because of their fear that he would cause the rain not to fall.

His failure to produce rain on demand proved his undoing, and eventually he found himself in high court, where he was sentenced to five years' imprisonment for fraud, extortion and rape.

$18,000 FIRE LOSS

Sarnia, May 18—(CP)— Fire broke out in the Imperial Oil Company warehouse here Wednesday and caused $18,000 damage. The blaze, which is said to have started in the basement of the building, where transients usually turned up only last week, neither of them as contestants, but just casually.

One of them didn't write to me at all. He wrote to an old friend who had mentioned in a letter meeting me on the bowling green. "I came here" (small mid-western) "about thirty years ago and started reading his daily column not long after that time. I have found his writings highly entertaining and beneficial to me a number of ways, and to members of my family. We have never gone in for patent medicine to — give Dr. Brady credit for this — good grammar, good English — " My bowling green crony handed me the letter with the remark that it was evidently my Pandemonium his friend referred to. Grandpa probably never heard of a syndicate!

The other letter was not written to me—incidentally, why don't people write me these days?— but to a relative of mine in regard to a school. The correspondent wrote:

"I have taken great interest in your c/ my many letters in relation of the term the correspondent with "Essays" during the past 25 years and my mother did the same before me up until her death a few years ago at the age of 90 years — "

I'm glad the interest is fairly credible but even I can't guarantee that I can keep the grandman's report if he intends to imply that his mother followed my writings for 25 years before he took over.

The correspondent added a postscript:

P.S. Your father presented us with a set of Little Lessons in the Ways of Health a few years ago which we have found very useful. (This probably refers to the same lot that the correspondent is connected).

A few years ago I thought it might be interesting to the health education if I gave teachers and students a free distribution chance, but I soon found it was a futile idea—practically nobody ever reported making any particular use of the booklets after I had sent them—although I do know a few instances in which the correspondent, for example. "We hoping that the entries would be all in by the time I got back home.

Well, they're all in. So am I.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

WRITERS OF ENCOURAGEMENT

I recently read of a school teacher who carried around in his pocket a wonderfully encouraging letter from one of his pupils, a letter that came unexpectedly to him as appreciation of his life's teaching. Here was a packet of encouragement that he could carry around with him that meant more to him than money in his pocket.

Many letters from readers reach my desk, apologizing for taking up my time with the reading of them. Little do they know the encouragement that such letters are to me. It is rare that one of these letters cannot be found in my pocket, even in the midst of public reading. Everyone hungers for appreciation. The letters of encouragement that we send to others lift us as well, for there is satisfaction at both ends.

When in college, I got very much discouraged about my reading. I knew of an inspiring publication, but I would wrote for advice. Back came his reply: "Don't be a quitter. Finish something. I am now up against it. And with ragged edges, lining life's pathways." I carried that letter with me until it almost wore to shreds. Never again was I tempted to quit a job at the half-way mark!

I have the original letter that Nathaniel Hawthorne wrote to a young boy who wrote to him for advice, and it occupies an entire page to giving that boy encouragement. That young man of mature person has done the same thing. Most of them are carried about, through appreciation, a time when a letter of encouragement is very much needed.

It is so easy to give encouragement, but so few people do. Only one who gives and the one who receives. Kindly interest and encouragement is broadcast by word of mouth or personal letter, has a way of coming back in the hour of decision. I once took a book that I highly prized to the author to have him inscribe it for me. He looked up, smiled, and said that he would be glad to do it if I was a mark of appreciation on my part.

A letter of encouragement, at the right time, has been the salvation of many a young man. And it only takes the effort to write it!

LIFE AFTER DEATH

"But some will say, How are the dead raised up, and with what manner of body do they come?"

Not only do some say this, but many. The question as to what happens to the human body after death has been a perennial and very intriguing one. The Bible does not say a great deal in detail about it, but it does have a few things to say. Paul says something of great importance which we should always bear in mind. He says that there is both a spiritual and a natural body. The natural body is the one we now have; the spiritual body is the one with which we shall be raised from the dead. It has always baffled people as to how a body could be buried in the grave and on the last day be raised up in manner of body do they come?" Not only do some say this, but many. Conveners Appointed

Mr. Jerry Dafoe was appointed as convener of the dance committee; and Mr. Walter Brant, convener of the sports committee, to draw up the program and choose judges. It was decided to ask the visiting teachers to assist in running off the events.

The treasurer was given authority to purchase the smaller trophy cups, a donation having been promised by the school board.

Permission to be obtained to use the fair grounds again this year. The booth to be erected the previous evening.

Mrs. Margaret Hill kindly offered to bring an article to the next meeting to be sold in aid of the fund. A letter was read from the Junior room teacher, Mrs. Florence Garrison, expressing thanks on behalf of Mrs. Riley, and herself for those who helped with the music festival costumes.

Doctors Will Further Discuss Cortisone, Acth

Ottawa, May 20 (CP)—Cortisone and Acth, the two new wonder drugs used in the treatment of arthritis, will be further discussed today at the annual convention of the Canadian Medical Association.

Only time delegates will hear from Dr. Hans Selye of Montreal, speaking on "Cortisone and Acth in the Treatment of the General adaptation."

A day-long symposium on heart disease highlighted Thursday's session of the week-long convention, which has drawn registrations and specialists from all parts of the province.

One phase of heart treatment —surgery— which was regarded as an impossibility only a few years ago, was discussed freely and openly by leading medical authorities.

One authority in this field, Dr. W. T. Mustard, of Toronto, delivered a paper on surgical treatment of congenital heart disease in which he declared that operations performed within the heart itself will be accomplished in the near future and will greatly enlarge the field of surgery.

Rheumatic fever, a heart ailment which is peculiar among younger people, can be treated by closely-supervised injections of Acth or Cortisone, said Dr. Lewis of London, told the doctors.

"Observations to date," he said, "suggest that both Cortisone and Acth influence the fundamental processes of the rheumatic fever in a favorable way as has no other drug yet put up to the present time."

He said the mechanism by which this effect is brought about is not understood by the medical profession but research is continuing.

Discussing heart failure, Dr. W. G. Greenwood, of Toronto, said that best treatment consists of four main therapeutics. They are rest, a low sodium diet, digitalis—a medicine used as a remedy for heart diseases—and diuretics.

Smokestack Might Be Safest Place In A-Bomb Attack

Mobile, Ala., May 20 (AP)—Where's the safest place to hide, if you are caught in an atomic bomb attack?

It might be inside a smokestack, says a United States atomic energy commission consultant, who studied effects of the Hiroshima and Nagasaki explosions.

Col. Elbert DeCoursey said he based the conclusion on the fact that few smokestacks were knocked down in the two Japanese cities.

Faithful members who once worked and worshipped in St. Andrew's and who now rest from the labors.

Early in the service three children received the sacrament of baptism. Linda Janet daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Ellacott, Barry Edward, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Thompson and Samuel John, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Donnan.

Mrs. John Wallace adult Bible class teacher gave a interesting short address with "The Home" as her theme. Mrs. Wallace pointed out, the home was a divine institution, and mentioned the first home in the Garden of Eden and the godly home of Timothy and the influence it had on his life.

Mr. Walker spoke briefly on the appointed theme "God Works Through Homes," stressing the duties of parents to their children and of children to their parents. While there was no record of Paul's early boyhood home the preacher pointed out any man who wrote Ephesians realized the value of a good home, for he reiterated, Honor thy Father and thy Mother, that it may be well with thee, and thou mayest live longer on earth. The family is still the unit of our civilization.

This memorial service was largely attended by friends and relatives from Belleville, Stirling, Harold, Mount Pleasant, Foxboro and Crookston.

Babe Born in Taxi, News Broadcast to Entire Cab Fleet

Toronto, May 20 (CP)—There's a young lady out at Western hospital who had a 110-man audience when she wailed her first wail early today.

It was broadcast to every driver in the cab fleet which employs 26-year-old Harry Smith, a bachelor who isn't quite back to normal yet.

Smith picked up Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Elliott and got them to the hospital in record time. Elliott went inside to get a doctor.

"So there was a woman alone in the back seat," said Smith. "Next thing I knew a baby was crying."

Before long—"it seemed like years"—the doctor came to the rescue. Meanwhile, 110 startled drivers listened.

Elliott gravely informed Smith it was their second child.

"The first," he said, "was nothing like that."

Harry Smith said he knows just what Lawrence Elliott means.

Girl Guide Activities

Commissioner's Notes

Our Annual Girl Guide Association tea at Mrs. J. H. Forrester's home last Wednesday was a decided success and we express our appreciation to Mrs. Forrester for the use of her lovely home, to all the mothers, who contributed to our tea, to all the guests and lastly to the Gulders and Association Executive who gave so freely of their time. The Girl Guides and Brownies are not a money-making organization and we merely want sufficient funds to defray our necessary expenses — insurance, our assessment and money for the running expenses of each Pack and Company. With the splendid results from our tea we know that our 1950-51 program will be taken care of.

The Protestant and Jewish girls and boys will attend service at the Tabernacle Church. Come in full uniform, if possible, and after the church service we will march back to the campus for dismissal. Company 3 — Girl Guides

Company 3 commenced their outdoor activities recently with a hike. The Company met at a bus stop — yes, they took the bus out as far as the Captain's cottage and hiked from there. Supper was cooked along the bay shore and after a ball game, the Guides returned home — via the bus. Incidentally all the Trenton bus driver still wants to join the Girl Guides we will be pleased to have him as an honorary member. ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

At 21, one of my readers finds herself with a little girl three years old and a husband who doesn't want either his child or his wife. As a matter of fact, when the baby was only six months old, he told the two of them to get out, and they went to live with her parents.

"But I am in their way," she writes, "and I'm told that over and over again, day in and day out. I'm doing all I can for my mother and father, but still I expect more. I get a very little support from my husband, and I give them half of what he sends me. I would like very much to get another place to live, for I'm at the end of my rope. I'm going with a man of 22 who isn't working. Can you give me some advice."

The first advice I would like to give this very young wife is that she stop going out with any other man while she is still married to her husband.

Undoubtedly she is far too inexperienced to know it, but she is pushing herself in a very hazardous position by doing so. If her husband were to find this out, he could not help but create a very unpleasant trouble for her, which would make her situation even worse than it is now. Even if he did not start anything himself, he could block any action she might eventually decide to bring against him by citing her friendship with this man.

From a legal point of view, she is already in a disadvantageous position because even though he told her to go, she was the one to leave her home, and so she is technically in the wrong. She would be by-vies, therefore, to watch her step carefully in order to avoid complete matters further. I might add that even when her status may eventually be to adjusted she can safely go out with other men, she had better choose her friends with extreme care. The one to whom she refers in her letter isn't now working, she says. Perhaps this is merely due to unfortunate circumstances, but does she know that normally he is a responsible hard-working person? Unless she is wholly indifferent to her own future, and doesn't care whether she goes through another bad marriage or not, she should let her first experience teach her caution, if nothing else.

As for her present economic difficulties, is there anything to prevent her from going to work and earning some money herself? Since her parents are not satisfied with what she is able to give them, perhaps she could make some arrangement with them under which her mother could care for the child during the day while she went to work.

A change of this kind is certainly not going to improve by sitting around doing nothing about it. A able-bodied girl of 21 should be able to find some sort of work through which she could become more independent. If she had been widowed, she would have had to do this. Why can't she do it when she has been left to shift for herself through other circumstances?

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Consider the ensemble

Too much costume jewelry detracts from appearance

Clothes alone never made a lady of fashion. The right kind, the kind that suits the face, the type and the figure are important, but they are not the whole story. Not by a long shot. One can be a millionaire, but if one hasn't taste, doesn't understand line, color or fitness, one can easily be a sartorial dud, never stand in the good-looks chorus.

Ultra-smart appearance includes a clear-cut, clean look. You know what we mean. As if one had just stepped out of a bath and got into one's clothes with the utmost care. The foundation garment is so perfectly fitted that there is not even a lisp crease in the gown. Hair-do is right up to the moment. Fresh make-up has been laid on with restraint. Splendid stance, as if the wearer has pride in appearance. Savvy how to carry her draperies beautifully. There you are!

The perfect coiffure will call for homework, no matter how clever a hair stylist you are now you. A single strand out of place will spoil the ensemble that is YOU. The hair must have lustre, look well-brushed, and the only way you can attain that state of perfection is to groom your tresses every night of your life. Brush and brush and brush.

A neatly outlined silhouette can only be attained by fine lines here of the frock. These lines can be lost by the use of unnecessary details—such as over-ornamentation—that have no meaning. Overdressing is a common curse among women. Piling on too much costume jewelry forms a display that detracts from the wearer. After all, the woman is more important than the clothes she wears. Personality should not be overshadowed by fussy frocks, over-elaborate millinery and goofy shoes.

The colors one wears can make one look smart or duddy. Colors should be rich and lovely, never drab, dull or uninteresting. Black is always fashionable, though it is not becoming to all women. On the blonde, or the redhead, it is a perfect background for the delicate rose-and-white skin and distinctive hair.

White is the most difficult of all colors. It is merciless on the complexion. It shows up every anatomical defect, making large hips look larger, waists more bulging.

For street wear, clothes should be conservative and conventional, even the shoes. To smarten them up one can carry a gayly-colored handbag, wear a lapel ornament, or a fragile, lovely blouse. The tailored, suit, of course, is ideal. It often does not qualify because the fit is not what it should be. A bulging jacket will distort the lovelliest figure. The jacket length must be precisely right.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Menu for Spring—Put color in your words

They "come in all colors", the words and phrases you use every day—"How do you do," "Thank you", "Please", "I beg your pardon," "Good morning", "Hello", "Good-by", "How very kind" of you", and even "Good Lord", and the high-hearted "Hi!" It's your way of saying them, their everyday words, your tone of voice, your smile, that give them "the extra added attraction" of bright color, radiance.

Introductions in receiving-line in church vestibule

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. After the ceremony in church we are planning to form a receiving-line in the vestibule of the church. At the ceremony there will be several of my relatives and friends of my parents who are not acquainted with my husband-to-be. Should I introduce them as they go down the receiving line?

2. Should the names be written on the inside envelopes of the wedding invitations, as well as on the outside envelopes?

3. The announcement on which the thank-you notes are to be sent. Should the name engraved on it, should it be my maiden name, my married name, or both my names? And should these thank-you notes be signed by both of us if one of us does not know the sender-of-the-present?—L. H.

1. No, you introduce the groom to every guest he hasn't yet met.

2. On the outside envelopes write the full name and complete address:

Mr. and Mrs. John Graham
122 Fourth Street
Haven 2
New York

On the inner envelopes write only the name:

Mr. and Mrs. Graham

3. For your thank-you notes, to be written before the wedding, use your personal paper, engraved with either the monogram of your maiden name or with your street-address, or both. Or you may correctly use plain white double-sheeted note-paper. But don't use the monogram of your married name—don't use both the names.

4. It is you, the bride-to-be, who writes all the thank-you notes, even the notes of thanks to the groom's relatives and friends whom you do not know. And these notes should be signed with your name only, although, of course, in the body of the letter, you include your fiance's appreciation. The flowers the groom pays for

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

What flowers does the groom pay for? Bride's bouquet? The corsages for both mothers? Boutonnieres for himself and his best man? What others if any?—C.H.

These are the flowers the groom pays for: Bride's bouquet and bride's going-away corsage; corsages for both mothers; boutonnieres for himself, best man, ushers, and for both fathers.

From escort

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

For the past two months I have been corresponding with a young man. I have never met him. My name and address were given to him by a very good mutual friend of ours. In a month or so he is coming here to my home town to see me, and he will be visiting here in town for three weeks. Would it be permissible for me to invite him to my Senior Prom?—Mary.

It is quite permissible—and a pleasant plan if you find, when you meet him and get to know him, that you like him well enough to invite him to your Prom. (Better find out, too, what his dancing ability is!)

Egg Dishes That Are Economical

By KAY REX

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, — (CP) — If you have plenty of eggs on hand there's no need to worry about what to have for breakfast or lunch—or even for dinner at night.

This all-purpose food can be served in a variety of ways.

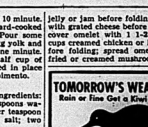
As a luncheon-dish try egg and potato casserole.

Ingredients: four tablespoons of butter; four tablespoons flour; two cups milk; salt, pepper and paprika; four cups cooked potatoes (cubed); six hard-cooked eggs (sliced).

Melt butter and blend in flour. Add milk gradually and stir until sauce thickens. Season to taste. Put alternate layers of potatoes, eggs and sauce in buttered baking dish. Sprinkle top with buttered cracker crumbs or grated cheese. Bake in a hot oven about 15 minutes. Serves six to eight.

Eggs a la King — Ingredients: three tablespoons butter (or margarine); two tablespoons minced onion; one-half cup mushrooms (sliced); one tablespoon chopped green pepper; 1 1-2 cups milk; two tablespoons chopped pimento; six hard-cooked eggs; one egg yolk; salt; 2 tablespoons flour; salt and pepper.

Cook onion in butter for five minutes. Add mushrooms and green pepper and cook until mushrooms are delicately browned. Blend in flour. Add milk and cook, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens. Cook 10 minute. Add pimento and hard-cooked eggs cut in quarters. Pour some of sauce over beaten egg yolk and stir into sauce. Cook one minute. Serve on toast. One-half cup of green peas may be used in place of green pepper and pimento.



Fluffy Omelet — Ingredients: eight eggs; eight tablespoons water or milk; one-quarter teaspoon pepper; one teaspoon salt; two tablespoons butter.

Separate eggs from whites of eggs. Beat whites until stiff, but not dry. Add salt, milk and pepper to egg yolks. Beat well. Fold yolks into whites. Melt butter in frying pan. Pour mixture into pan. Cook mixture slowly until it is browned underneath, well-puffed and beginning to shrink from sides of pan. Finish cooking omelet in oven until top is dried and brown. Crease omelet through centre with spatula, fold in over and turn it on a hot platter.

Variation: spread omelet with jelly or jam before folding; cover with grated cheese before folding; cover omelet with 1 1-2 to two cups creamed chicken or ham before folding; spread omelet with fried or creamed mushrooms.

Lays Two-Yolked, Double-Shelled Eggs on Same Day

Richmond, Vt. May 20—(AP)—Barred Rock cross—she's a chicken—has been laying double yolk eggs almost every day.

But Friday, she really outdid herself. She laid not only a double yolked egg but one with a double shell.

Farmer Joseph T. Roy got out a tape measure and announced these dimensions for the outsized product: 7½ inches long and 4½ inches wide.

Roy opened the outer shell, found a complete yolk and white, plus the inner egg, also complete with another shell.

Road to Survival Subject of Talk To Y's Men's Club

Members of the Y's Men's Club at their regular weekly meeting at the Y.M.C.A. last night voted unanimously to donate $100 to the Manitoba Flood Relief Fund. This action represented a sympathy and deep concern by the club for those who are undergoing trial at the present time. Den Baxter, M.L.A. of Bloomfield addressed the club on the subject "The Road to Survival". Members of the Y's Men's Club of the Central Y.M.C.A. Toronto were guests of the Belleville Club for the occasion.

The speaker expressed the opinion that in these days of uncertainties, fears and concerns for cold wars, Christian principles and the democrative way of life were the greatest defence against the threat of communism.

Stating that the United Nations had accomplished great things and the Atlantic Charter had given to the free people encouragement and support, Mr. Baxter reminded the club that we would legislate everything. There must be other agencies and attitudes arise, including the will for peace if the present dangers are to be surmounted.

Three Essentials

There were three essentials to survival the speaker emphasized. The people of the world must be fed. He deplored the fact that we in America amidst plenty have burned food while people in other parts of the world starved. Already he reminded the club that a starved China has been lost to communism. India with its millions has agricultural acreage of one acre per capita whereas in Canada, the acreage was 100 acres per capita.

In addition backward agricultural methods outside of America made the crop yield but a fraction of the American potential. If the starved nations cannot produce or buy from America surplus, the United States and Canada must find ways of getting the surplus to them. The alternative to supplying goods is to open our doors to an immigration of 25,000,000 people. Canada cannot long hope to retain vast territories to the envy of the crowded nations.

The second need, the speaker continued was co-operation between capital, industry and agriculture. To compete in world markets production costs must drop, he added.

Must Be Made To Work

Finally he stated, democracy must be made to work. In communism the state was supreme but Christian democracy held to a nobler purpose, the sanctity of the individual. In the democratic way of life the people enjoy the greatest freedom but must accept the responsibilities of free citizens. He felt that Y'sdom and the Y.M.C.A. were among the strongest forces he knew in the world for the promotion of Christian democracy. The ideals for which the Y.M.C.A. and the Y's Men's Clubs stood were characteristics of the way in which democracy could be made work. He expressed the hope that the Club and Association working so successfully in all parts of the world would be able to hasten the better day of understanding between people, which would usher a time of confidence for mankind.

The speaker was introduced by Don. Williams and thanked by Archie Boyd. President Gerald B. Hyde was chairman of the meeting.

Members of the club reported a successful visit to the Cornwall Y.M.C.A. where it is hoped another Y's Men's Club may be organized.

Exceeding Expectations

The collection of men's neckties for the mammoth Front street sale on May 27th is exceeding all expectations. The variety and quality of the ties indicates that excellent bargains will be offered to the public. The proceeds will be devoted to the service work of the club and the Community Swimming Pool campaign, being sponsored by the Rotarian Club.

It was reported that nearly every member of the Y's Men's Club will be tagging for the support of the Moira Lake Camp on May 27th. In addition the members have added to the numbers of taggers by securing other members of their families and friends.

Announcement was also made of a donation of $100 by the club to the World Service Fund of the Y.M.C.A. for relief of the work of the Y.M.C.A. in countries throughout the world.

The program and projects of the club in the next four weeks indicates a busy month before the entertainment of the County Council on the closing meeting for the season.

Ontario Doctors Argue Compulsory Health Insurance

Ottawa, May 20 (CP) —Arguments against government compulsory health insurance were heard at the final general session of the Ontario Medical Association's convention Friday.

Dr. J. E. C. Anderson of Saskatoon, president of the Canadian Medical Association, said government health insurance would bring "demands for service beyond reasonable need."

He also warned of increased taxation and sacrafice by the patient "of many of his present freedoms and privacies."

Instead of ensuring a better medical service, "we believe it would lead to a deterioration in medical services," Dr. Anderson said.

Health insurance, in his opinion would not solve the problem of providing medical facilities for rural areas. He urged that this problem should be approached by partial subsidy in some areas, with air ambulance services and improved rural living conditions.

The C.M.A. president predicted that some kind of over-all scheme of health insurance "is almost certain to be introduced on a provincially determined basis, assisted by federal funds."

"If this comes about, are we prepared to answer the government and people," Dr. Anderson asked.

"As enthusiastic as we may be in the promotion of health insurance through the voluntary prepaid medical care plans, we must be realistic.

"We must be prepared with our answers, with our standards, and our reasons in the event that we are confronted with some definite government plan from any province—or from the federal government."

SHIP HELD FIVE DAYS

Stockholm, May 20 — (Reuters) — Captain Erick Svensson, of the Swedish motorship Amora, said yesterday that armed Russian guards held his ship five days in the Estonian port of Libau until he agreed to pay the local shipping agents in dollars. He stated on his return to Malmoe, southern Sweden: "They also made me pay a fine of 108 rubles (about $25) because I went into Libau without a pilot."

Drew Wants Pact For Pacific

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, hailed the London announcement as "the most momentous decision since 1945" which offered more hope for peace than "we have had since the war".

He reiterated the necessity of a similar pact for the Pacific area where he said communism was making its greatest effort.

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, said a new era of co-operation and integration was dawning in the west. He pledged the support of his party in "anything we can do to advance the ideals of co-operation, first among the Atlantic community and then among the members, we hope, of the great world community."

Mr. Claxton said the U.S. agreement to buy millions of dollars worth of Canadian military equipment was a "major step" in integration of military production between the two countries. It was something Canada had been seeking for some time, but it was still too early to indicate what it might mean in specific items.

Everything from western irrigation to maritime potatoes was discussed during the consideration of Agricultural Department estimates. Not a single item of the $30,000,000 estimates went through but the House learned from Agriculture Minister Gardiner that he hopes to sign today an agreement with the Alberta government for an irrigation dam across the St.

Britain Offers Help

At the House opening Defence Minister Claxton said the government had sent to Premier Campbell of Manitoba an offer from the British government to assist flood-stricken Manitoba.

During discussion of agricultural estimates, W. D. Wylie (SC-Medicine Hat) appealed for federal action to speed western prairie irrigation developments. Natural gas could be used to supply power to pump water for irrigation in Southern Alberta.

W. J. Browne (PC — St. John's West) appealed for more federal attention to Newfoundland's agricultural which, he said, had great potentialities. The minister should go to the island province and see for himself.

Mr. Gardiner told the House that, if Canada gave potatoes the same support as did the United States, she would face similar over-supply difficulties. He told H. H. Hatfield (PC — Victoria-Carleton) that he set a price which could encourage potato growing would result in big surpluses such as had occurred south of the border.

Mr. Hatfield had appealed for prices support for maritime potato crops.

RED R. POUNDS

Terms Risk Remote

But another senior source termed remote the risk to the two residential areas.

He said as far as anyone could see the railway embankments seemed firm. Besides, water followed the contour of the land; and its tendency would be to swing off eastward to rejoin the Red through the Canadian National Railways' Fort Rouge yards.

That would put the lake water into the Riverview District east of the yards. Riverview has already been seriously inundated.

Already part of the water from what the army calls "McGillivray Lake" was being bled eastward to the Red and Seine. A northsouth branch of the C.N.R. was breached to relieve pressure on its west side.

The Red itself was almost stationary. Late yesterday it dropped a half-inch to 30.25 feet from the 1950 peak reached late Tuesday. It held through the night at the new level. For several days the river's change, as the wobbly flood crest passed through the city, was minor fractions of an inch either way.

Would Increase Pressure

Too much water from the west would increase the river pressure against the strained Lyndale dike still protecting St. Boniface and its Norwood suburb. A swift rise might crack the dike or crash into the tributary Seine river and caused it to overflow St. Boniface from the rear.

The army would loose one outpost at the expense of another.

The force behind the arrow-like McGillivray Lake comes from a 600-square-mile reservoir which covers a dozen Southern Manitoba towns. Part of the lake, ringed by every windstorm, presses northward on the Red; part feeds the lake, which was no outlet except the cut in the railway roadbed.

Drops at Emerson

Best news overnight came from far-south Manitoba. At flooded Emerson, on the International boundary where the Red pours in from North Dakota, the water dropped 1-2 inches in 24 hours. At Letellier, a few miles north, the drop was four inches in 36 hours.

In recent days, according to official sources, 90,000 cubic feet of water has been crossing the boundary each second. The Red at Greater Winnipeg has been carrying 100,000 cubic feet a second.

The fact that Emerson and Letellier levels eased was taken as an indication that there now is some slight progress in the lengthy run-off of the Red and southern Manitoba's 600-square-mile river-lake system is gradually being drained.

The effect had not yet shown at Morris, 41 miles south of here in the centre of the flood-created lake. There was a tiny rise there overnight.

Rain Dumps New Water

Farther north there was no change.

Yesterday rain dumped new water into the Red River system, but clear skies were forecast for most of today. Showers would follow in the late afternoon, but there was no prospect of rain. The Dominion Weather office said early today.

Winds that had churned the lake also dropped, easing the pressure on the McGillivray and Lyndale main dikes.

Yesterday, Manitoba's Deputy Minister of Resources, D. M. Stephens, said the long-term weather outlook for "none too optimistic." More rain "in all likelihood would cause an inching upward."

Words of warning also came from Brig. Ronald Morton, the flood-control commander: In the summation of the situation he said:

"The whole area now is a succession of lakes. It has lost the conception of a river. It is a lake subject to very high currents and winds. . .we no longer regard it as a river."

Damage Inestimable

Even if the river began to show a drop this weekend—as it should —it will probably be mid-June before it is within its normal banks from Emerson to greater Winnipeg.

And it will be weeks longer before the last of 80,000 homeless can return to their flooded properties.

Damage is inestimable. Unofficial but responsible sources have set the figure at anywhere from $100,000,000 to $200,000,000.

Loss of agriculturat production alone may be $20,000,000 this year, aside from damage to a dozen Red River valley settlements and their surrounding farms.

Mayor Garnet Coulter of Winnipeg estimated yesterday that at least 10,500 homes in greater Winnipeg have been flooded, and that thousands more have suffered basement damage.

Hardest-hit areas were the northeastern part of Fort Garry, St. Vital municipality on the east bank of the Red, the Riverview residential area south of Winnipeg and river-bordering parts of the east and west Kildonan to the north.

A narrow strip on both sides of the Red through the city proper and St. Boniface are inundated, and some streets along the Assiniboine are under water. Generally however, the business and commercial district of Winnipeg and St. Boniface have escaped, except for basement flooding

STRIKE POSTPONED

Washington, May 20. (AP)—A switchmen's strike scheduled for next Tuesday on 10 midwestern railroads in the United States was postponed Friday until June first.

The National (Railway) Mediation Board obtained the postponement and will try to settle the dispute before the next strike deadline.

Francis A. O'Neill, Jr., chairman of the Board, said the Union is asking a reduction of the work week from 48 to 40 hours without loss of pay; also time and a half for Saturday work and double time for Sundays.

O'Neill announced that mediation would start next Tuesday in Washington.

MUNITIONS

Workers Toil Through Night

An army of rescue workers, recruited from the New York Metropolitan area, toiled through the night.

Shells and anti-personnel mines from the exploded barges were bombarded on to the area. Authorities warned that some of them still might be alive.

Searchlights played over the area as rescue workers moved through a light drizzle to the accompaniment of the wailing sirens of scores of ambulances.

The big blast came at 7:25 p.m. EDT with a long, low rumble that rocked the earth in three states—up into New York' City some 30 miles away to the north and across the state line into Pennsylvania 50 miles to the west.

Witnesses said it was a perfect picture of what an atom bomb explosion must be like. A mushroom of smoke shot up over the waterfront and there were a series of sputtering explosions pouring white flames on the fringe of the blast area.

The blast tore windows from every building in the mile-square town and showered the 10,000 residents under a spray of glass splinters that appeared to account for most of the injuries.

The big munitions cargo in EQW freight cars had come here by rail and was being transferred to four barges. It was to be taken out into Raritan Bay to be loaded on to an Isbrandtsen Line ship bound for the far east.

Crews Bear Brunt

The loading crews at work on the munitions barges apparently bear the brunt of the casualties. The Pennsylvania Railroad announced that 20 to 25 men were working on the dock and "all are presumed missing".

Authorities said they had no idea what set off the blast. The Middlesex county prosecutor's office said it was starting an immediate investigation.

One of the four barges involved in the blast sank quickly into the harbor. The three others burned for four hours and five minutes.

The job of loading the barges with the munitions cargo was almost completed when the explosion occurred. Dock workers said the job had started at 10 a.m. and there was only about 20 minutes more work to be done at the time of the blast.

One Awaiting Cargo

In New York City, Hans J. Isbrandtsen, president of the line whose ship was standing off South Amboy, said one of his vessels was awaiting a cargo of munitions before starting for India.

Isbrandtsen declined to say whether it was a private or government shipment his vessel was awaiting.

This was the second munitions blast in the South Amboy area. On Oct. 4, 1918, a series of TNT explosions rocked nearby Morgan, destroying a munitions plant 2½ miles from the site of last night's disaster. Sixty-three were killed in that Morgan explosion.

Just 10 days ago, the coast guard had ordered extra precautions on the loading of explosives at South Amboy because the docks there are "too close to thickly-populated sections."

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

ONE OF THE BEST!

The handsome bloke stood by the sports desk. "I want you to meet a friend of mine," he said. We did. We looked up and blinked.

It was Bill Durnan, ex-goalkeeper of the Montreal Canadiens. Bill, who has associated himself with a brewery company, dropped in to say hello and to remind us and Belleville of the fine reception given him and Les Canadiens on the occasion of their visit here.

* * *

The gals from the business office downstairs found a lot of unfinished business up here in the editorial rooms and advertising department after they had learned that the 'Clark Gable' of the National Hockey League was more or less on display.

That didn't bother Bill a bit.

Bill was on his way back to his favorite Montreal after a business session with the John Labatt Brewery Company, London, Ont. and with whom he is associated with as from Monday last.

The big fella looked a bit tired. He was. After all it's a long hike from London, Ont., to Montreal.

* * *

"So you've hung 'em up for good, Bill?" we queried, meaning of course the pads and skates.

Durnan was serious.

"Yes," he said. "I m eant that when I announced it some time ago."

The inevitable question: "Why?"

Bill settled down in his seat.

"George", he said, and he was sincere. "After I received those two 'knocks' last winter, I felt I had had it."

* * *

Durnan explained why he wanted to drop out of National Hockey League playoffs with the Canadiens, and asked Coach Dick Irvin for a replacement.

"I felt," he told us, "that the two head injuries I received would affect my ability. I suffered head hemorrhages and I felt I had had it. I asked Coach Irvin to replace me because, due to the effects of these head bumps I could not do justice to the team."

Durnan said he would not consider offers to go back to the National Hockey League. He had, he went on, offers of coaching jobs and intimated that Tommy Gorman had offered him the coaching spot with the Ottawa Senators next year.

Would he accept?

Bill shook his head. He didn't know.

* * *

Durnan, still a young man, has learned more than hockey during his sojourn with the Montreal Canadiens. He feels, he told us, that he gained all the playing glory, and in view of the fact he is still a young man, can retire from playing while he still has abilities physically and otherwise to take care of his future

And he is doing that.

We kidded him.

"Is there any truth in the rumor that you are slated to coach the Boston Bruins next year?" we asked, tongue in cheek. And we added, "Would you accept the job if offered?"

Bill smiled and shook his head.

"No," he said, "I think I have had a wonderful hockey life with the NHL and especially with the Canadiens. I don't think I want to do anything right now. After all, there is a private future, you know."

* * *

"Dick is a friend of all the players on the Canadian team. But he's tough."

A coach in the NHL or in any other hockey league, Durnan said, cannot afford to be anything else but "tough".

"Irvin was that way, and it got him places", he said. "There were no halfway measures with Dick. You either produced, or you were out. There is no sentiment insofar as Irvin is concerned. He demanded his rights as a coach from the players — and he usually got them. He is tops in my estimation."

His successor? Gerry McNeill, Bill felt.

We asked about Plante. Bill shook his head. "Irvin likes 'em big, and McNeill's got the beef," he said. "I think next year will see this promising youngster in the nets for Canadiens".

* * *

Durnan will work out of and in Montreal for his new employers.

He's a handsome brute with plenty of personality and we predict that Bill will go a long way in his new private-life job.

But when the ice-lanes start to sing with the music of flying skates; when the roar of the crowd, a familiar melody to a chap like Bill Durnan, starts to rock the Forum in Montreal when the tang of winter brings back hockey, the best, or one of the best goalkeepers Canada has produced, may lack a coat or less willing ear, and who knows where he will pop up in a hockey role. Bill doesn't, he says. We'll take his word for it. wanna bet?"

International Contest Assured For Gold Cup

(By The Canadian Press)

An international contest for speedboat racing's coveted Gold Cup was assured Friday when Achille Castoldi of Milan, Italy, entered his Sant' Ambroglio in the July 22 classic on the Detroit River.

Castoldi's challenge was received by the Gold Cup committee, which announced the Italian sportsman would race under the colors of the Yachtsmen's Association of America.

Horace Dodge won the 1949 Gold Cup with his My Sweetie.

Gold Cup officials said Castoldi's boat is the same one that he brought to Detroit for the 1948 Gold Cup race but ran into trouble in tests and never got into the actual cup competition. A new German-built Alfa-Romeo engine will power the Sant' Ambroglio in this year's race, they said.

Toronto's hockey Leafs are eager to take on Montreal Canadiens in a baseball game in Montreal.

Conn Smythe, Manager of the Leafs, said Friday he is trying to lineup a team for a game in Montreal May 28. He expects to know today whether he can find the players.

Canadiens announced Friday that they have recognized their softball club and will play during July and August for charity. They can use Montreal Royals' baseball park May 28 on the application the game be baseball, not softball.

The United States government Friday filed a $53,938 income tax liens against Joe Louis, former heavyweight boxing champion.

Internal revenue collector John T. Jarecki said at Chicago the lien filed with the county recorder represented $53,083 in unpaid income tax for 1947, and $3,855 interest and penalty.

At London jockey Gordon Richards' decision to ride Nasrullen Bonaparte, a 100-1 outsider in the Epsom Derby, tonight erased bookmakers' slash the odds against that horse by 80 points at a call-over on the race.

The odds on Richards' mount tumbled to 20 to 1

Richards, rider of more than 4,000 winners, has never won the 1½-mile classic scheduled for Epsom Downs May 27.

Michigan State's two-mile relay team bettered the world record in the Los Angeles collesiate relays Friday night, setting a time of 7 minutes, 31.8 seconds in defeating the University of Southern California four-man team in a close finish.

The old mark was set in 1941 by a University of California team at 7:34.3.

Galt Terriers Beat Kitchener With Home Run

(By The Canadian Press)

Andy Garbas gets his hits when they count most.

The big Galt Terrier shortstop emphasized that last night as he connected for a solid home-run hit in the ninth inning that gave Terriers a 5-3 victory over Kitchener Legionnaires in the Intercounty Baseball League.

In the only other game last night Brantford Red Sox walloped London Majors 11-4 at Brantford. The two other games —Guelph at Waterloo and St. Thomas at St. Stratford — were postponed because of cold weather.

At Galt, the Terriers scored two runs in the first inning and then added a other in the eighth before Garbas' home run. Legionnaires managed to get a run in the third and two in the eighth.

Big Jim Bagby went the route and was credited for the victory. Tredgett was the losing hurler.

At Brantford, Alf Gladney and Stan Lipka both slammed homers in the winning role, Red Sox had little trouble and counted three runs in the first, one in the second, four in the fourth, another single in the fifth and two in the eighth frames.

Stan Slack started off on the mound for the losers and was replaced in the fifth by Jim Alexander. He held the Red Sox hitless for two frames and then gave up several in the ninth. Lipka got his homer off Alexander in the ninth.

Four games are scheduled today. In an afternoon game it's Galt at St. Thomas, Brantford at Kitchener and Waterloo at Guelph. In the only night game, Galt meets St. Thomas.

Seventeen Colts Going to Post In Plate Trial

Toronto, May 20 (CP)— Seventeen Canadian-foaled three-year-olds today go to the post into two divisions of the Plate trials at Woodbine Park. From all indications it's going to be muddy.

The race, feature event of opening day at east-end track, is a preview of Canada's racing classic, the King's Plate, to be run off May 27.

None of the 17 was withdrawn at scratch time Friday night for the seventh running of the trial. Because of the number of entries, the Plate is run in two divisions, each six furlongs and each worth $2,500.

The second division, carded as the fifth race, drew three of the shortest priced entrants among its eight horses—Parkwood Stable's Nephisto, Carr Hatch's Unionville and Vince Sheridan's McGill.

The Plate Trial is the testing ground where trainers decided whether to start their three-year-olds in the May 27 classic with its coveted award of 20 guineas worth $105.

If previous years are any indication, the Plate trial winner will continue on to take the King's Plate. Last year Epic captured both events as did Gingervie in 1946 and uttermost in 1945.

Gnup Issues Writ Against Hamilton Club

Hamilton, May 20 — (CP) — Frank Gnup, former playing-coach of Hamilton Wildcats of the International Rugby Football Union announced Friday that he has issued a writ suing the Hamilton Football club for $21,000.

He said the amount is made up from $3,000 owing him from last season and a contract which was signed Jan. 2, 1948, for five years at $3,000 a year.

The writ names ex-president Charles Lawson and 13 other directors of the now-disbanded Wildcats. Wildcats and Hamilton Tigers of the Ontario Rugby Football Union have since amalgamated into the I.R.F.U. as the Tiger-Cats.

Gnup lost the coaching job when the teams amalgamated.

McQueen's Boat Favored to Win Tugboat Race

Windsor, Ont., May 20 — (CP) — Today is the day of the big boat race on the Detroit River.

It's not the gold cup, nor even the Harsworth Trophy power boat race, but the First International Tugboat Race.

Ten or 11 of the chunky little sailers from ports between Lake Erie and Lake Huron are expected to strain their rivets down three miles of water between Detroit and Windsor. Post time is mid-afternoon.

It will be a no-holds-barred race. Each skipper will be squeezing the last horsepower of effort from his craft. A race official has stipulated only: "No depth charges, no mines, no sabotage."

All but two of the vessels are American, but the odds favor an 86-foot vessel from Amherstburg, Ont., near the mouth of the Detroit River.

The 600-horsepower Atomic, with Capt. J. Earl McQueen at the helm, carries Canadian hopes —and a good share of American money—in the race. A sister ship, the Patricia McQueen, is also entered.

Their chief threat is a doubtful starter, Detroit's Roen III, a heavier boat, powered with 1,200

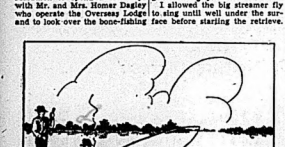
Solunar Tables in Florida Keys

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT

(Noted sportsman, author and creator of Solunar Tables)

A great many people who decide to give the Solunar Tables a try-out do so, I'm sorry to say, rather half-heartedly. This is true particularly of guides.



These fellows live mostly outdoors. They know a great deal about wildlife and its habits and behaviour. Lacking explicit information from outside sources, they set up their own list of rules.

After all, these men depend upon their knowledge of the outdoor for their livelihood. The more they know, the better they are equipped to find good sport for their clients.

When something new like the Solunar Tables comes along, naturally they look it over rather carefully. At least they think they do. As often as not they fail to acquaint themselves with the basic necessary information concerning the use of the Solunar Tables. After a short time they discard the idea as useless.

Two Instances

Last March I ran across two such instances down among the Florida Keys. I had gone down on Marathon to spend a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Homer Dagley who operate the Overseas Lodge and to look over the bone-fishing fin that area.

The Marathon guides reported a scarcity of bonefish on the flats in the vicinity of Marathon so I drove fifteen miles north to Conch Key where I spent two days in Mac McCarthy's bonefish skiff.

Mac is the only bonefish guide on Conch Key. He knows the sand flats and the habits of the fish on which feed on them. If there is a better fish guide in the Florida Keys, I'd like to meet him.

As I say, I spent two days with Mac. Our fishing was spotty, sometimes good and sometimes very bad. I kept close track of what went on and consulted my watch frequently.

In all of our two days together Mac didn't mention the Solunar Tables. I'm sure he knew of them so, finally, I asked him about them.

"Sure," he replied. "I've kept track of them but they work out only part time. I'd rather go by the tides."

"Tides are O.K.," I replied. "Fishermen have been guided by them since the year one. But let's take a look at what has happened during the past two days."

Right on Schedule

Then I gave him a detailed recap of our fishing from the Solunar viewpoint. I showed him that all of our good fishing, without a exception, had been during Solunar Periods. Those were the only times when we had been able to find fish in quantity and the bonefish we had hooked were taken right on schedule.

There is one flat in his area where he had never been able to take a single bonefish. That, too, was easy to explain. It was at a interval on that flat is such that water levels are not suitable for fishing during Solunar Periods. Water levels that are right for good fishing occur during the 'off' periods when the fish are not feeding. Thus, the fish which cruise that flat are shy and hard to hook. Mac modified his hard and decided to forget about that particular area.

When I left him he was making a mental survey of his area, charting flats on which favorable water levels coincide with Solunar Periods. My guess for some excellent bonefishing from now on.

Another case in point is that of the Hollenbeck boys on Plantation Key. On the last March they could take their Solunar Tables or leave them alone.

Lies Example

One day when I was out with Holly Hollenbeck we had an excellent example of how the Solunar Tables can help him in his work as a fishing guide.

The day had been windy and the disturbed water over the sand flats made hunting bonefish virtually impossible. Only a few scattered tarpon were in the area and the milky water rendered fishing for them a fruitless chore. About all that was left for us was to fish the channels for what we could find. Accordingly I made sure that Holly had our boat tanked down beside one of the good channels somewhat in advance of the major Solunar Period for that day.

Channel fishing in the Keys is a fascinating piece of business. These are the natural thoroughfares through the shallow flats, leading from vast beds of deeper water to another. They made ideal feeding places for game fish.

The major Solunar Period for that day was scheduled for ten minutes past two. We sat there beside the channel, not fishing but merely watching and waiting for signs of increased activity.

Shortly after two o'clock a school of big jack crevalle put in its appearance, slashing through Lands Nice Reefs.

a school of mullet just off the edge of the sand flat, about a hundred yards from our boat. I arose and unlimbered my fly rod.

On the first cast a big redfish followed the fly half way back to the boat. He didn't offer to take the fly, but he was interested. On the next cast the lure was taken solidly by an eight-pound smack. Mrs. Knight and I enjoyed delicious fillets from his sides that evening at dinner.

Where there is one smack there is usually more. They like to hang around in schools. Accordingly, I cast my fly back into the same general locality.

I allowed the big streamer fly to sing until well under the surface before starting the retrieve. It had not progressed ten feet before it stopped. Automatically I struck. How large that fish was I'll never know. My best efforts with rod and line made not the slightest impression upon his behavior.

He soon tired of his journeys up and down the channel and he made a determined rush for the open waters of the gulf. Better than three hundred yards of line melted from my reel as the big fellow sped through the shallows.

That is a long distance for a fish to run against the drag of a good reel, but this did it without much effort. Then the line went slack. I reeled in and found that the lower end had been severed neatly, probably by a coral "fan" on the far side of the flat.

About that time Holly's brother Rollie Hollenbeck, put in his appearance with two fishermen in his boat. For two hours the three of us had a field day. Jack crevalle, redfish, and snook, all outsize models, came to our lures. Rarely was there a time when one of us was not fighting a large fish, and frequently all of us fought big fellows at the same time.

Then about three forty-five the activity began to subside and strikes became less numerous. Feeding birds stopped circling above us and the mullet schools no longer "showered" at the surface.

After several casts which netted me nothing I called to the other boat. "Might as well take down and start for home. The party is over."

"Not yet it isn't," replied Rollie, pointing across the channel. "Look what's coming." Moving directly toward us across the flat came a school of whopping big jack crevalle, My heart sank, as my tackle was almost unmanageable, preparatory to the twelve-mile trip across Upper Matecumbe Key.

Feeding Time Over

"Can you get your rod back together in time?" asked Holly. I shook my head and we sat there and watched while the other two fishermen cast their lures into the school.

An hour earlier those two lures would have been taken with armwrecking strikes. This time, however, the big fish simply swam around the lures, showing no signs of interest, and disappeared into the deep water of the channel. They had had their feed, the activity period was over, and artificial lures appealed to them not at all.

Now Holly and Rollie consult the Solunar Tables every morning. Then they plan their trips accordingly. They, like Mac Mcarthy and a great many others, have learned that it pays to keep track of the daily Solunar Periods.

Gossip From The Courts of The District

BY "DIG"

The big item of tennis news for the weekend is the grand opening tournament which is to be sponsored by the Quinte Tennis Club on Wednesday May 24th at their courts at Queen and Dufferin Streets. This tournament is to be bigger and better than ever, according to Bruce McGregor, chairman of the committee and he tells us that his committee is working hard to ensure that results come up to expectations. Invitations have been sent to all tennis clubs in the district and all the racquet wielders who are unaffiliated will be assured of a welcome. The draw is slated to be made at 10 a.m. on the day of the tournament and all competitors should be at that time or have notified their intention of competing. It is intended to run Men's Doubles, Mixed Doubles and Ladies Doubles with prizes for the winners.

Besides the activities on the courts a full social program is being arranged including bridge and euchre on the afternoon, and dancing in the evening. Jean Vickery is in charge of the refreshments so no one need go hungry during the day. The entry fee for competing in the Men's events and a small admission will be charged to spectators. Spectators will be allowed the privileges of the clubrooms.

Sixarder have still not made up their minds as to whether they can enter a team in the Bay of Quinte League but the track is in position looks hopeful at the moment. Campbellford Tennis Club has shown great interest again and it is hoped they will be able to muster the necessary enthusiasm so as to bring added interest to the loop. The schedule will definitely open May 28th, though, in view of the possibility of additional clubs entering, it may not be possible for the league to have the complete schedule available by that date.

Old Sol has been present in his glory the last few days and there has been lots of activity on local courts. Players of the clubs in the league have been training strenuously to get into tip-top condition for the opening of the schedule. Three courts are in play at the Quinte club and the fourth one is expected to be available this weekend.

Thorold Norwood, reporting for Point Anne says his squad is definitely out to hold the league trophy again this year, and Jerry Ireland's Trenton wielders think they are going to be the team to beat this season. Maybe the local club will have something to say on the matter, they are not making any predictions at the present.

Seven Probable Starters in The Preakness

By GEORGE BOWEN

Baltimore, May 20 — (AP)— They've always said around Baltimore that the Kentucky Derby is a Preakness prep, and there's something to it in this 74th running today.

Of the seven probable starters in the Pimlico race thereisn't an honest soul that will give any except the first three in the derby a chance.

Among this trio of C. T. Chenery's Hill Prince, King Ranch's Middleground and C. V. Whitney's Mr. Trouble, it's a case of "pay Your money and take Your choice."

Just to show how the thinking is going, Middleground won the derby with Hill Prince second and Mr. Trouble next Yet a week later Hill Prince was made the favorite over Middleground and won the Withers mile.

Today, Hill Prince again bids fair to be the betting favorite and Mr. Trouble next. Yet a week later Middleground third choice even though he won the derby.

The four colts other than the first three in the derby haven't won a race worth mentioning.

There are Mr. Labrot, Jr.'s Arcave, Mrs. W. H. Labrot's Balkan and Mrs. James Corson's Kinsman, are by Bahram and Blenheim.

The fourth, Mr. Trouble's stablemate Doubly, is viewed as Whitney's insurance for a muddy track. And the track is expected to be something on that order. The track doesn't figure to be better than slow for the Preakness at 5:17 p.m. EDT. And showers are predicted for this afternoon.

A Weekly Peek At The Soccer Picture

Trenton Flyers still lead the field in the Bay of Quinte Soccer League, and they and the Batawa team are the only squads to maintain 100 per cent record. According to the league table issued by the Bay of Quinte F.A. on Thursday, neither of these teams has been scored on in league football this season.

The Standing

Team	P.	W.	L.	Pts.
Trenton Flyers	3	3	0	8
6 R.D.	4	2	2	6
Batawa	3	2	0	4
Belleville U.	2	1	1	4
Trenton Merchants	3	1	2	2
ANAF Veterans	4	1	3	2

On Monday evening the Flyers take on the Batawa team at the Air Force field and this should really be a ding-dong battle and will probably see the unbeaten record of one team go by the board.

Last weekend saw the two local sides in the Eastern Ontario League beaten. Peterborough U.E. put it across the Belleville United by a 2-0 score while at Kingston the United of that city turned the tables against the Bellevillians without a return. In the other scheduled E.O.L. game, Cobourg defeated Brockville by a 3-0 score in the capital city. Ottawa Hunt and Stars were idle and should do well this season.

On Wednesday evening the Bay of Quinte League ran their trial matches at Bain Memorial Park, Trenton. After this match the executive picked the following to represent the Quinte District against the Toronto Senior League All-Stars on Saturday, May 27th: Blaker (Belleville U.); F. Jones, Carter (Navy); Whyte, Hughes, Angus (Flyers); Mueller, Pianowski, Hawrylaw (Batawa); Reid (Vets); Woodside (6 R.D.); Helyer, Salisbury (Trenton).

This should be the game of the season as the Toronto executive are bringing down as strong a team as possible in order to uphold the soccer prestige of the Queen City. The match is being played on behalf of the Trenton Recreation Week program and it is understood that other attractions such as a delayed parachute jump by Charles Murphy of Navy will be shown.

This weekend Belleville United play an Eastern Ontario League fixture in Kingston where they take on the Vimy Signals. Peterborough play Brockville while the scheduled game between Belleville Navy and Ottawa Combines has been postponed.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, May 20 (AP) — Waterbury, Conn., enthusiasts are constructing a $75,000 ball park for Little League Baseball . . . that's organized baseball for boys eight to 12 years old, played on a layout one-fourth the size of a regulation diamond. . . . It has to be seen to be appreciated, and it will be seen this year in 30 states, including Texas and California, where they ordinarily shudder at anything that isn't big. . . . Ted Collins, the football Yankees owner, says Eugene Martin from Stanford "may be the pass-catching sleeper of the year." . . . Trouble with Ted's football team has been too many guys who played like sleepers.

Inside Story

Southern California didn't do any loud beefing when Bill Sharman signed with Pueblo, Colo., in the Dodgers' chain instead of finishing out the college baseball season. Maybe that explains it. It seems that football coach Jeff Cravath and freshman baseball coach Forrest Twogood were attending a prep coaches meeting. . . . They were having a spot of lunch with a couple of strangers when the conversation turned to a comparison of Sharman and U.C.LA.'s Jackie Robinson. . . . "I'll take Sharman for my money," said Cravath. "He can come through under pressure. I predict he'll be a great baseball player because he doesn't drink or smoke." . . . Fred Saigh probably hopes they'll be better than Fair.

Weak-End Note

The Cardinals' chain is ready for any kind of weather with Bob Cloud at Fresno, Calif., Elwood Clear at Omaha, Wendell Freeze at Willows, Calif., and Paul Bewey at Geneva, Ala. . . . Fred Saigh probably hopes they'll be better than Fair.

Two Actresses Well-Known Among Can. Theatre-Goers Do Have Leading Parts in Play

By PAT USSHER
Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, May 20—(CP)—Two resses whose names are well-own among Canadian theatre-ers are to have leading parts in forthcoming revival of George rshwin and Dorothy and Du-ose Heyward's play, "Getting arried".

ndith Evelyn, who was edu-ed in western Canada and did first acting (as an amateur) Winnipeg, will play the role of obia in the comedy. Margaret nerman, who was born in oronto and has been on the stage Britain, the United States and nada, has been assigned to ap-ar as Mrs. Carrefour.

Getting Married," sponsored R. L. Stevens for the benefit the American National Theatre Academy, is due to play one ek at the Auditorium, Allen-wn, Pa., during its pre-New rk engagement.

Miss Evelyn, who calls Winni-peg her home, has been playing the d role since last summer in nhouse Williams' "A Streetcar med Desire" on tour in North erica. Miss Bannerman was in cast of Maxwell Anderson's very Mary," during its New York n in 1947.

Other big names in cast include Cedric Hardwicke, who also i stage the production; Percy rsfield; Dennis King; John Buckmaster and Arthur Treacher.

John Yorke, general manager for producer Cheryl Crawford, has another production plan up his sleeve. The Toronto-born theatre man has acquired the rights to a melodrama called "Hurry the Dawn" which is due for fall show-ing. Leon Michel will direct the play, by Kurt Unkelbach, a press agent for a New York hotel.

"Madwoman" Returning

"The Madwoman of Chaillot," a hit of the 1948-49 season on Broad-way, will play a return engage-ment here next month. The fan-tasy, by French author Jean Gir-audoux, is due for a two-week stand at the City Center starting June 13. Martita Hunt and other principals of the original produc-tion, which ran in Manhattan for a year, will appear in the revi-val. The play finishes a week's run in Toronto tonight.

Curtain Calls

The Theatre Guild at a recep-tion this week presented com-poser Richard Rodgers with a sterling silver platter. The occa-sion was the 25th anniversary of the opening of the first "Garrick Gaities," the first Broadway hit for which Rodgers composed the music. Since then he has become celebrity in the dramatic world—as witness the music of "Okla-homa," "Carousel" and "South Pacific," to name only a few of his top-notch productions for which he has written the music.

BETTERED FUNGO MARK

Berkley, Calif., May 20—(AP)—The University of California's Robert (Wimpy) Jones bettered the world's Fungo hitting mark with a 511-foot, ninety-inch swat yesterday.

He drove another ball 510 feet, 11 inches. Both efforts were better than Babe Ruth's 421-foot, eight-inch mark set in 1921 and the amateur record of 503 feet, three inches set by Walter Driver of Melbourne, Australia in 1945.

Barrel-Chested Yukon Eric Subdues Ozarkian Hi-Lee While 1400 Howl Approval

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

Yukon Eric, the seal-eating, walrus-gobbling scion of the Arctic Circle's contribution to wrestle-dom, proved here last night that, after all, sheer brute strength has a definite call over southern cuteness insofar as Ski-Hi Lee of the Ozark Mountains is concerned.

—For the Yukon, a massive mass-tro of the ring, "took on" the Ozark Hillbilly and in a perpetual demonstration of what might be called a Wall Disney production of weight-lifting, he subdued the towering Lee in two of three falls. If you can call the by such a name, and emerged victor while the 1400 howled its approval.

It was not, definitely, a wrestling match for the youthful Yukon Eric, he has yet to see his 27th birthday, used his massive chest (some 58 inches) as a buffer against the attacks of the Hi-Lee from the Ozarks.

Defence Lacking

Try as he might, the scowling Lee had no defence against the what might be called the abys-mal strength of Yukon Eric from the Arctic Circle who, when he whist-les eighteen hockey dogs come whimpering and crouching at his feet.

But to get back to the facts. The main bout was not in the sense of the word, an ordinary wrestling affair. Yukon Eric, by his sheer strength beat off the attacks of 279-pounder Hi-Lee and his shtics via the weight lifting route had the faithful howling for him.

It was a good show. The scion of the frozen north gave their best out his brains against the quiet but effective tactics of the guy from the Arctic. Try as he might, and he often did, Hi-Lee always took the wrong end of the score with the exception of the second fall, when the Arctic brain of Yukon Eric failed to click and he enclosed the pachydermic Ozark like in a wrestling death-grip while he (Yukon) was out-side the ropes. Hi Lee flipped to the canvas—out. But the Yu-kon and rightly so, who had in-dulged in a squeeze play while he was outside the ring was counted out.

But listen, Meadames and Mes-sieurrs, the third fall was dif-ferent.

Not infuriated, but calmly go-ing to work, the Yukon ended the matter in the third fall in about three minutes.

He took over the situation and before most of the faithful had regained their seats Eric who en-tered the ring garbed in lumber-jack boots, dungarees and shirt, promptly set to work on the hefeman from down south.

He up-ended the big Ozarkian and in a display of sheer strength bolstad the howling hillbilly at arms length above his head and in a typical "back-breaking-crunch" subdued the foe—just like that.

Good Preliminaries

The rest of the card was good. Earl McCready and Warren Bock-winkle staged the one of the best semi-final draws seen here in many a moon. Both the "Moose" and Bockwinkle adhered to the rules and their clean display brought the deserved ovation of the fans.

Fat was the referee for the first two bouts.

In the preliminary Micky Gold, a newcomer was introduced to the fans in an aggressive display against Sandy Joe Christie. Gold, who refused to be brow-beaten by the ring-wise Christie, staged a fine fight and he will be wel-comed here any time.

Bunny Dunlop popular bad man of wrestling" and who has a fine following here, officiated at main bout.

TINY TORNADO HITS

Dallas, Tex., May 20 — (AP)— A tiny tornado slapped the south-east edge of Dallas Friday night, damaging some buildings. High winds broke windows in down-town Dallas. Hail and rain storms struck small towns north and east of Dallas.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood May 20—(AP) — Why are middle-aged people ca-vorting about dance floors in a revival of the loose-kneed dance craze, the Charleston?

And why are their sons and daughters joining in with equal fervor?

For an academic answer to these questions I asked Dr. Floyd Ruch, professor of psychology at the University of Southern Cali-fornia. Dr. Ruch is the author of "Psychology and Life," which is used as a text in 700 colleges.

It might be explained that the Charleston began to stage a come-back at various university cam-puses two or three years ago. The collegiate influence has spread and now dance schools have the ballroom fad of the '20s in their curricula.

"There are two elements," ex-plained Dr. Ruch. "First of all, there are the people of my gen-eration—those about 45. We yearn for the good old days.

Reminiscing

"The best part of our lives seems to have been in the early 1920s when we were in our early 20s. That was when we were first achieving our independence and that's when we were doing the Charleston.

"The second element concerns those who are now in their 20s. They have never seen the Charles-ton and they take it up because it looks fresh and exciting. Then it's just as new as canasta."

Whatever the reasons for the revival, it would be a shock for a modern Rip Van Winkle to re-turn after a 30-year snooze. He would see Gloria Swanson as one of the biggest acting sensations in Hollywood and Mae Murray dancing at a leading night club.

He would see Charlie Chaplin's "City Lights," a silent, hailed as the picture of the year. He would see "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," the hit of Broadway of many years ago now a musical, and "Birth of a Nation" appearing in three Los Angeles theatres. He would see youngsters going wild over Mah Jong, ukuleles, bobbed haircuts and Dixieland music.

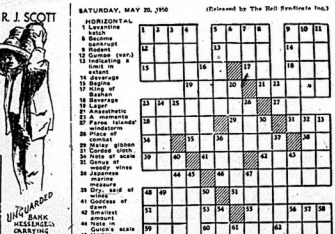
Pop was smoking to himself in his favorite chair, and I said, Aw ..... scientists, goth shang the luck, darn it all.

That's a rather general statement, but I gather from it that all is not going well, pop said, and I said, It's this darn pencil that's suppose to rite blue with one end and red with the other, but every time I try to sharpen the red end, the red lead brakes off, and all it does is make the whole pencil shorter, darn it.



Then you'd better make a virtue of necessity and quit trying to sharpen the red end, and the pencil will last twice as long, pop said, and I said, Sure, G. but what's the use of a red end on a pencil if I dont use it?

Well, you'll still have the satisfaction of knowing it's still there, pop said. You have 2 ends yourself, an upper end to think with and a lower end to walk with, but whenever you walk with me you keep treddling on my shoes, especially when they've been freshly shined, which proves you dont use your upper end at all. But still, isn't it rather a consolation to know that the upper end is still up there, even if you dont seem able to use it? he said.

Aw well, maybe I can get the red lead to stick on long enough to give me time to swap the pencil with somebody for something I said, and pop said, If you do, I'face, it would serve you rite, he hope they swap you a defective water pistol for it, and it squerts the water backwards out of the wrong end rite into your own face.

Which it probably would, but just a some it rite be fun to have, just to lend to fellows and invite them to shoot me with it.

Kingston Degree Team Confers Third Degree

Madoc—The third degree team of Cataraqui Lodge I.O.O.F. Kingston, visited Madoc Lodge No. 179 and conferred the third degree on 17 candidates of which 11 were from Madoc Lodge, 5 from Stirling Lodge, 9 from Campbellford and one from Thomasburg.

Bro. Bonnar captain and his degree team exemplified the principals of the degree in a most impressive manner. The dignity and reverence that characterized the work made a deep impression on the large gathering of I.O.O.F members about 250 in number.

Prior to the degree work the lodge met for usual business in the lodgeroom and then marched to the auditorium of the high school where the degree was conferred.

Bro. Ernest Lough, Noble Grand of Madoc Lodge welcomed the visitors. At the conclusion of the work a hearty resolution of appreciation was moved by Bro. A. Poulter seconded by Bro. Alex Park of Stirling Lodge. Bro. Bonnar of Kingston and the Noble Grand of Cataraqui Lodge, replied stating that it had been a most pleasing event to visit Madoc Lodge and an honor to confer the degree.

A banquet was served in the lodgeroom followed by the degree work. Many visiting brethren from nearby lodges were in attendance also. They hoked D.D.G.M. of district No. 45 was present.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

BY WINIFRED E. WILSON

AMERICAN BRANT

High in the sky a large, irregular flock of noisy birds was coming toward us. They looked like Canada Geese, but seemed to be too small. There was not the customary V formation, their wingbeats were not sufficiently slow and labored. Yet they had the long, slender black necks of Canada Geese. But listen! As they came closer and lower we realized that they were not honking "honk"; they seemed to be calling "cr-r-r-ruk" or "krrr-onk". And look! The black "stocking" extended too far down, right to the chest, and there was no big, white mark under the chin.

Now the binoculars showed up a faint, white mark on the side of the neck as the birds came down, down, and finally landed on the water. They were below eye level, moving past us, and a while on the back could be seen over the tail. Brant, of course, those small, grey-brown geese, arriving from their winter resort along the Atlantic coast from Massachusetts to North Carolina. As their favorite food is eel-grass, scarcer when the tide is low, they keep pretty much to the salt water. Therefore some fly up the St. Lawrence River as far as Montreal every spring. The majority continue straight north from the Gulf until they reach their breeding grounds on the west coast of Greenland and the islands of the Arctic Archipelago.

Too inquisitive and easily deceived, Brant are good targets for hunters. Because of their fatest season, far away from human beings. The bone and flesh are simply a depression in the ground of a bundra, marsh, or sandy beach. It is made of grass, moss, and feathers, and lined with down. From four to six greyish-white eggs are laid, usually in June.

Those of us living somewhat inland have a better chance of seeing Brant in autumn than in the spring. Then, when these birds migrate "cross-country". Leaving their breeding grounds in the Arctic, they fly south along the western shores of Hudson Bay, then southeastward, over land, to the Atlantic coast once more. Although a few species come north by one route and return by another, this is an unusual occurrence. Besides, there are only a small number of flyways, each one commonly used by different kinds of birds. But the flyways of the Brant is very "private"—and is in the shape of a great ellipse, probably 200 miles long by 1,000 miles wide.

Frankford — The bi-monthly meeting of Branch 357, Canadian Legion was held in the Club Room on Wednesday evening last with a fair attendance. Comrade President Madill, called the meeting to order and a period of silence was observed in tribute to the fallen comrades of the two wars. Comrade Madill then introduced the guests for the evening, Comrade Everett Liddle, Deputy Zone Commander, and Comrade Jeffs, secretary of the Belleville branch.

The business was cut short to allow the visitors to address a message from Comrade Liddle. Comrade Liddle explained that he was just then hitting for Comrade James Rollings, of Cobourg, Zone Commander, since Comrade Gallagher had been injured badly in a fall. He spoke on various functions of the Legion, and made recommendations for further advancement of Legion activities. Comrade Jeffs added a bit of humor which was greatly enjoyed by all.

Frankly, the church is missionary and must go into the world and preach the gospel to all nations." Readings, "The Indian Road"; by Mrs. Ken Jones; "Christian Family Week", by Mrs. F. WEST END MOTORS LTD.

Kingsridge

By Alice Ross Colver

It was Susan, he was sure, calling from school. This was Friday the night she usually phoned. Moreover, she would have his letter by now telling her of the futility of Timothy's efforts and adding that he—Gerry—had exhausted all possibilities open to him. Yet, it must have been Susan. And somewhere between her and him there was trouble on the line, humming the snowstorm! Damn everything!

He stood irresolute for a moment then voices from the kitchen drew him out there. Hermione had just come in with someone. He heard them stamping the snow off their feet. Pushing through the swing door, he saw the big hulk of the German-American and beside him, a small slight man—a stranger. He had thrown off his sheepskin coat and stood in a checkered red and black shirt, black wool pants tucked into western booted boots and a broad-brimmed western hat that sat oddly on his slick black hair. In fact, the whole costume looked incongruous on his meagre frame. He stared at Gerry a moment out of little quick eyes in a face badly marred by a scar that drew his thin mouth upward at one corner. Then he said, "Hello, Bacon. Didn't expect you here. Don't remember me, do you?"

Suddenly Gerry recognized him. This was Sam Strunsky, son of the saloon keeper on the corner. He knew he had lived as a child, and one of the gang of urchins with whom he had ranged about town. He had forgotten most of them and had made no effort to remember since that part of his life was done. He had never even been down to the street where his home had been still stood. He had wanted no contact with the past and his feeling now, as Sam put out his hand was one of irritated disinterest.

"Sure," he said. "Sure. I remember you. You're Sam. Sam Strunsky."

Sam nodded, his grin flaring up into one cheek. "Wondered if you could tell. We pulled off a few tricks together, him and me," he said to Herman, "A few? Plenty!" He elbowed Gerry out to the rung of a chair, took out a cigar from his shirt pocket, bit off the end, lit it hand put it in his mouth where it looked ridiculously big for his face. "Turned in some fire alarms, I remember. Never got caught, didn't we, Gerry?"

Gerry's sense of irritation, forgotten in the interest of Sam's story, returned. "Not that I can recall."

"Thanks" he said shortly. "But I'm staying here." He put out his hand, wished Sam continued good luck and went back to his room.

When he pushed the door open, Sam was sitting in the brown armchair waiting for him was Alicia Brandt.

He did not know whether to be glad or sorry to see her, and in his uncertainly he first closed the door quickly and then as quickly opened it again.

She gave her low, throaty chuckle. "Am I compromising you?"

"I was thinking of you."

"No you weren't." Her smile faded and he saw her eyes keen and hurt for a moment. "You were thinking of yourself. As you always will be," she added.

He laughed. "Well if I don't who's going to?"

"Right. And I didn't mean it for censure anyway. It was merely an observation."

He sat down on his bed next to her. She had on a green ski suit with a bright plaid wool scarf wound about her head. Her matching mittens were drying on the radiator and little puddles of melted snow from her heavy boots were forming on the rug at her feet. He looked down at them and then up at her in surprise.

"Did you walk down?"

"Certainly. The road isn't open for cars yet. The plow hasn't been by."

"Well I'm honored!" His glance was curious, unbelieving as he wondered if the reason she was here could possibly be the one Sam's presence would really take that much risk."

"No," she said, reading his mind. "I've been engaged in the legitimate business of running a store as his father had before him.

"I just came East for the old man's funeral. Mother and my old man? Well, he's gone. He drew on his cigar and let his lively little eyes travel over Gerry speculatively—the English tweed suit, the fine white shirt, the high-priced shoes. "Been playin' in luck yourself, eh?"

"I'm doing all right."

"Well," Sam's grin flared again "any time you ain't head west, young man, head west. That's an old saw. But it's a good one. Plenty of room out there. Plenty of angles to play. Town of Las Vegas is wide open. We might even. . ." Again his glance went flicking over Gerry. "We might even be work together on somethin' the way we used to. You never have tell."

Gerry's sense of irritation, forgotten in the interest of Sam's story, returned. "I'm afraid not."

"Thanks" he said shortly. "But I'm staying here." He put out his hand, wished Sam continued good luck and went back to his room.

MANITOBA FLOOD RELIEF FUND NEARS $1,000,000 MARK

By The Canadian Press

A boiling rip-tide of generosity and goodwill, the Manitoba flood relief fund surged towards its $10,000,000 objective today. A flood of cash and donations swept it further along.

Already, little more than a week after Premier D. L. Campbell broadcast an appeal for aid for the victims of the Red River disaster, the fund totaled an official $747,000. Officials predict it may pass the $1,000,000 mark by tonight.

Newspapers, radio stations, service clubs, religious agencies, provincial and municipal governments, hundreds of firms and individuals have joined the gigantic co-operative effort to ease the flood victims' plight.

The donations reported daily in newspapers across the country range from thousands of dollars from commercial firms down to the last-won $1 and 82 from delivery boys and charwomen.

In addition, Canadians are rallying with offers of services. One farm machinery firm (Massey-Harris) plans to send a group of technicians to repair damaged agricultural machines in the Red River area free of charge.

Of the total reported officially so far at Winnipeg, contributions originating in Manitoba came to $436,917. But the full extent of relief has not yet been reached. Tag days, benefit performances, newspaper campaigns and other fund-raising methods are still in full blast.

Hamilton, May 22. (CP)—A vote to determine whether some 4,000 employees of the Steel Company of Canada will accept the agreement reached between the company and the negotiating committee of local 1005, United Steelworkers of America (C.I.C.O. C.C.L.) will be held within a week.

Agreement in principle on the new two-year contract was reached May 2 after 11 weeks of negotiations. Since that time both parties have been meeting to work out details of the agreement and Saturday's particulars were announced.

A full report on the final details of the contract will be given to the membership at a special meeting tonight.

The proposed contract provides for a wage increase of eight cents an hour retroactive to April 1 and an additional five cents an hour effective April 1, 1951. It also provides that will boost the basic rate to $1.13 this year and $1.17 next year.

RED'S RESERVOIR FROM MORRIS TO BORDER DROPPING

Slight Fall Noted Across Winnipeg

By NORMAN MICHIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Winnipeg, May 22 (CP) — The swollen Red River started to drop in earnest today. The indication was its fall will be faster in the next few days—unless there is heavy rain.

At 10 a.m. CDT it dropped one-half inch to 30.05 feet, its lowest point since early May 13 when it was still surging up to record-high record.

It was the third half-inch fall in 19 hours.

The water at this stage is dropping at a rate of 1 1-2 to two inches a day," said D. W. Stephens, Winnipeg district engineer for R. E. A. Morton's flood-control headquarters.

"The rate of fall will increase gradually—barring heavy rainfall.

Huge Lakes Shrinking

"The three huge lakes formed by the Red in southern Manitoba — Lake Manitoba, Lake Dauphin — are being drained and shrinking in size. The drain is almost uniform all the Red's whole course."

Mr. Stephens confirms a Canadian Press figure that 180,000 cubic feet of water a second—10,000,000 tons an hour—of muddy Red River water has been scuzzing between the twin cities of Winnipeg and St. Boniface, Man.

And he said 4,000 cubic feet a second of the Winnipeg run-off is drainage from the hundreds of square miles of submerged land south of the city.

Even before Mr. Stephens made those remarks in an interview, it was obvious the Red's wobbly, extended crest had passed beyond the metropolitan area toward Lake Winnipeg, that the release from the river's death grip would come with agonizing slowness.

The army, directing all flood-control operations in the river valley, was there for a long way to go before all danger ends.

As if to back it up, the river knocked out one of the last two bridges connecting the twin cities—the one-half inch to 30.15. At 4 a.m. it dropped to 30.1 — the lowest it has been since May 16.

Stephens, of the Canada Water Resources, D. M. Stephens, said the river can be expected to continue to inch its way downward if good weather stays with us."

Peptic Ulcers Have Personality, Patient is Tense, Driving Type

By HOWARD BLAKESLEE
(Associated Press Science Editor)

New York May 22 (AP)—There is personality in stomach ulcers. Persons with ulcers have the highest marriage rates, and the lowest divorce rates.

Among executives, the man with an ulcer is likely to be on the upward path of success. Most ulcer victims have an unsatisfied craving to be superior persons.

Nearly one man in 10 has an ulcer. Women fewer.

These and a happy marriage is apt to put an end to ulcer troubles.

These findings are from "personality in peptic ulcer," a new book by doctors A. J. Sullivan and T. E. McKell, of the Ochsner Clinic, New Orleans, and Tulane University. (Published by Charles C. Thomas, Springfield, Ill.)

Peptic includes all the ulcers, whether in the stomach or in the organs immediately below, like the duodenum, all these ulcers have the same causes and same effects.

"The ulcer patient," these doctors write, "is the tense, anxious, driving, active, mildly - agitated individual frequently seen as the go-getter, the promoter, the organizer, the manager, the executive, the business man who cannot seem to slow up, who will not admit defeat, who cannot relax. He drives himself to the limit and right upstream against the current which would deposit him in the eddies and backwaters of life.

"It has long been known there was excessive secretion of peptic ulcers in bus drivers, taxi drivers, railroad engineers and others who have to maintain constant tremendous drive . . .

"Ulcer personality," the doctors continued, "is usually a striking example of early emancipation from parental dependence. It is not at all unusual to learn that as a child of 9 or 10 the patient with peptic ulcers assumed responsibility on the head of the household. These patients frequently exercise significant leadership in the family treasury at an early age."

U.S. Would Have to Fight At Least Year With Available Air Power Says Air Chief

By JAMES J. STREET

Washington, May 22—(AP)— If war came suddenly the United States would have to fight for at least a year and a half with the air power it now has.

What it now has is good—but there just isn't enough of it. So says Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, Air Chief of Staff.

Getting enough demanda four-alarm electronic and production; men, machines, material and time.

Time — the one that can't be bought, borrowed, made or improvised—has been stressed in all major reports recommending higher levels of peacetime production for military airplanes.

None of the proposed minimum levels has yet been approached.

The number of aircraft available to the United States Air Force and Navy has been declining. Proposed purchase plans now pending in Congress will not maintain present levels.

The air force now has about 17,000 planes, of which 3,100 are combat types in active service. The navy has 13,500 planes, with 2,200 of such types in service.

The aircraft industry in the United States, with 170,000 employees, is now on a peacetime wartime peak. The largest wartime industry, it has dropped to below 15th place.

Size of the industry is important as an emergency expansion. Experience has shown that aircraft production can be tripled in one year and tripled again in a second year—if men, machines and material are available.

Rate Could be Boosted

That means today's production rate of 150 combat planes a month could be boosted to 450 a month by May 1951 and to 1,350 a month approximately the Pearl Harbor level—by May 1952. Numbers-wise, the United States would be two years behind Pearl Harbor if war began tomorrow.

The real problem in expanding current production lies in the scarce materials upon which jet engines depend, upon the mass of engineering—a modern jet bomber requires 85 acres of blueprints —and the intricate assembly of electronic and other delicate equipment used for gun-laying, bombing, navigating and meeting the problems of great speed and altitude.

Top United States officials have said that in case of unanticipated war, it would take 18 months or more to push production high enough to overcome combat losers and show a profit. In over-all strength, industry officials say no new bombs come out of a plant the first year.

16 Months to Deliver Jet

The "flow-time"—date of orders to delivery—for a jet engine alone is 16 months, they say. For bombing computors it is two years, for navigation equipment 18 months. Bomber must wait for all those items for combat.

The bomber itself spends four years in the plant from start of assembly to "roll-out."

After that it must be flight-checked, modified to meet changes made while it was in production, assigned to a group for organizational training, equipped and sent to combat.

Today's production of military command, transport and training planes is about 225 a month. By rule of thumb, that could be raised to 675 planes a month one year from the go-ahead signal.

FIFTY KILLED IN ANCIENT CUZCO BY EARTHQUAKE

Emergency Air Lift Rushes Supplies

Lima, Peru, May 22 — (AP)— An emergency air lift today rushed doctors, medical supplies and food to the ancient Andes city of Cuzco, devastated Sunday by an earthquake. At least 50 persons were reported killed and 178 others injured in the once-thriving seat of the Incan civilization.

Peru's president, Manuel Odria Amoretti, dispatched rescue crews by air and by train. Cuzco is 350 miles southeast of Lima. The Peruvian health director called on all available doctors and nurses to go to Cuzco at once.

The quake, which struck at 1:45 p. m. EST, sent many of the city's 45,000 residents rushing into the streets while centuries-old stone buildings crashed down. Terrified citizens knelt in prayer before a statue of Christ in Cuzco's main plaza. A radio broadcast from the isolated Andean capital said:

Until the rescue parties search the Cuzco ruins the exact number of casualties will not be known.

A government communique said the nearby town of San Sebastian also had been hit by the quake and had suffered heavy damage.

Prime Minister Makes Personal Survey of Area

Winnipeg, May 22 — (CP) — Prime Minister St. Laurent made a personal survey of southern Manitoba's flood area today and expressed belief that western spirits will prevent the flood from being a major setback to prosperity.

After a five-hour flight from Ottawa and a visit to Grand Rivers from Grand Forks, N.D., to Lake Winnipeg, 10 miles north, Mr. St. Laurent toured all major dike districts in greater Winnipeg.

He was scheduled to meet today with the provincial cabinet before flying back to Ottawa.

The Prime Minister, hip boots pulled over the trousers of his rumpled business suit, visited dikes and danger spots by car, auto and dubious truck and boat. He said at a press conference the situation seemed much improved since Justice Minister Garson, who accompanied him, made a first flood inspection visit more than a week ago.

"I was relieved by the high spirits of those whom I met," he said. "I can understand how having had weather a much more sombre impression would be received.

Remnants of Six Human Bodies Scattered Along Right-of-Way

By VICTOR LABARGE
(North Bay Nugget)

Sturgeon Falls, May 22. (CP)— This morning, I saw a sight I shall never forget. I saw the remnants of six human bodies so torn, and so defaced that I almost had I not stepped on a battlefield where a bomb had just exploded.

The stench was terrible along the railway tracks at Verner, 11 miles west of here, where six persons were killed and two others injured in a level-crossing accident involving a train and a truck.

Death, mangled and gory for the six who died. It was a ghastly, nightmarish thing to see. Curious onlookers cried when they saw the remains. Some fainted when they walked up the track and saw what I had seen. Rev. O. Racette, Roman Catholic priest, cried, a stunned man as he stood by the sight. He, like myself, could do what he had seen nothing like this before.

Man Had No Face

When I arrived at the scene, I saw a man and a woman lying under the remnants of the truck. The man had no face. The woman had one leg missing and her back was ripped open. Beside her lay a small hand and foot which belonged to two children I found further up the track.

Twenty-five feet farther, I saw a little girl lying beside the track. She had a leg missing and her face couldn't be recognized. A little further on, the same scene, the remains of a little boy. His face was covered with blood and only one would expect to see on any boy his age—but the boy was dead and his head was twisted in an ugly manner.

Body Mutilated

Farther down the track, I saw another boy with a torn face and one hand was missing. Not far from him, I saw a woman lying on her back. Her head was shattered and her body mutilated . . .

This was the last gruesome discovery I made. My legs weakened and my stomach revolted.

There were tiny shoes lying along the track, and dresses and shoes lying even 200 feet away from the scene in a lane-way.

The impact must have been terrific for parts of the shattered truck are shattered all over the area.

The dead never knew what struck them; the living will probably never forget.

This is the greatest tragedy that has ever occurred in this district. Many families have lost fathers or mothers; three families have been wiped out. Families pray that I shall never have to witness such a thing again.

GUNMEN KILL BOOKIE

Boston, May 22 — (AP) — A man described by police as "a small-time bookie" was killed and two companions were injured, one critically, early Sunday by gunmen who waited in ambush outside a north-end restaurant. George R. Killeen, 31, was killed by Edward Crimmins, 34, and Daniel (Moon) Mellett, 34, were wounded.

Baby Girl Cries Six Minutes Before Her Birth

Artesia, Calif., May 22 (AP)— Little Lynn George has a distinction few babies can claim. In her mother's womb was born, says the doctor who delivered her.

Born today, the child cried six minutes before actual delivery, Dr. Clinton E. Braken-sick reported. He said the medical rarity occurred because the baby was face up. Ordinarily, face down, and air pocket forms in the lungs, baby finds drowning in the fluid.

Both the attending nurse, Faith Bowers, and the other, Mrs. Early George, 27, under spinal anaesthetic, also heard the cries.

Believed Party Returning Home From Fishing Trip

Seven Others in Serious Condition in Hospital

Sturgeon Falls, May 22—(CP) —Six persons were killed and seven injured early today in a level-crossing smashup involving a northbound train and a truck carrying a party of fishermen.

The collision occurred shortly after midnight at a crossing in the heart of the northern Ontario village of Verner, 11 miles west of here and about 51 miles west of North Bay. All the victims were from Elk-ner Valley, 15 miles north of here.

Dead are: Mrs. Eddie Cayen, 29, and her son, Hervey, 19; Mrs. Edouard Forget, 28 and her son Robert, 3, and daughter, Denise, 5; and Julien Cormier, 25.

Injured and in hospital here are, Eddie Cayen and his sons, Hector and Roger; Mrs. Cormier and her son, Gerald Guay, 4; Edouard Forget and Lucien St. Martin.

Police said the truck carrying the fishing party crashed into the Canadian Pacific Railway train between the third and the fourth car of the sleeping section. One body smashed a window in a pullman berth and awakened a woman passenger.

Members of the train crew said they were unaware of the accident until the train reached Sturgeon Falls. Then, pieces of cloth and parts of bodies were found wedged under the platform between the pullman cars.

Scattered Along Track

First reports were that seven persons had been killed. Police said later that it had been difficult at the outset to establish the number of dead, as bodies and parts of bodies were scattered along the right-of-way by the eastbound train.

Police said the truck's 13 occupants had been fishing on the Turrene farm near here during the day. They were on their way to the homeward trip, the truck's cab was filled with passengers and every bit of space in the truck body was taken up.

A district resident said he saw the fishing party in the truck about four hours before the accident.

"One woman, dressed in white, was singing loudly and everyone seemed to be happy," he said.

Another person said he saw the party at the Turrenne farm and "they all seemed to be in good spirits."

Wreckage Strewn

Provincial police said the truck was involved in another accident while on its way to the fishing grounds. Police said the truck backed into an automobile.

The level-crossing collision spun the truck around and ripped the truck's engine. Wreckage was strewn for more than 100 yards along the track and parts of the truck body on a fence 150 feet from the crash scene.

Torn limbs and bits of flesh lay scattered on the crushed truck.

Dr. Victor Menard of Verner examined the victims at a house lying on the road, other side the right-of-way. While he was examining the dead, the town's Roger Cayen, 8, stumbled over him and complained that he was cold and wanted to go to bed.

PHOSPHORUS FIRE TOUCHES OFF NEW BLASTS IN AREA

South Amboy, N.J., May 22. (AP)—Bandaged citizens still are hearing explosions today in the ruins of the South Amboy waterfront.

Twenty tons of phosphorus shot flames 100 feet into the air Sunday, setting off scores of land explosions and the wreckage of the Friday night blast disaster that left 27 live.

Army demolition officers, combing the area with mine detectors, said blasts would continue for another day or two before the waterfront is safe. They had picked up more than 3,000 mines by late Sunday.

Four barges, laden with munitions en route from Newark, O., to Pakistan, exploded with a roar Friday. The blast left a death toll of 27, including the registrant of this port 21 miles southwest of New York, injured 350 persons with flying glass in all parts of the town, and caused property damage estimated at $7,500,000.

Chicken-Stealing Ring Solution Believed Near

Toronto, May 22. (CP)—Police say they may be close to breaking a chicken-stealing ring blamed for the theft of from $25,000 to $50,000 worth of poultry from southern Ontario farms during the last year.

They arrested Mrs. Nell's Cooper, 36, and Graham W. Ellery, 19, following what investigators say was an attempted theft at the farm of Albert Peters at nearby Coatsville. A second man is sought in connection with the case.

A burglar alarm led to the arrests. The alarm roused Peters and his son, 17, who took out-out with a shotgun and a rifle. They fired at two cars, one of them dropped a sackful of chickens he had brought out of the chicken house.

Mrs. Cooper was arrested in a parked car and Ellery was taken into custody later.

Sun Tanning Mixed With Aspirin Or Sleep Pills Can Cause Skin Trouble

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
New York, May 22 — (AP) — Sun tanning mixed with aspirin or sleep pills can cause skin trouble.

Too much exposure to the sun after use of some perfumes, hair dyes, or permanent wave chemicals.

These warnings come from Dr. Herman Goodman, New York skin specialist, as the sun-worshipping days of fun-in-the-sun begin.

He tells of an actress who took sleeping pills. She acquired a sun tan, slowly and sensibly. But then came the sun and the sudden appearance of permanent blotches broke out all over her tanned skin.

The culprit was coal tar chemicals in the sleeping pills, Dr. Goodman said. They also are contained in aspirin and some other medicines. The skin of some people becomes sensitized somehow to ultra-violet rays of the sun which are in sun tan lotions, Dr. Goodman said.

Permanent trouble is rare, But the drugs may cause itching, especially about the eyes, or outbreaks of fever blisters or cold sores upon exposure to the sun.

Stay out of the sun when you are ill, or if you have just taken such medicines, the dermatologist advises.

And, he says, be careful about sun tanning if you have been using perfumes, the ultra-violet rays can react with tiny amounts of copper in the perfume, causing darkening and blotching of any area dabbed with perfume.

Bleaches, dyes, and some permanent wave solutions also may cause the same fast reaction. Hair may over-bleach, or hairs may be damaged and break off close to the scalp.

Dr. Goodman also sounds the annual warning against too much sun, too fast. Overexposure to the sun can kill, or make you ill. Go slow during the first days of your vacation, he cautions, and for the first day. Keep turning, like a roast on a spit.

Moralist Needs Salvation Says Evangelist Parlee

Why Jesus came is a common sense question, to which there is a common sense answer, stated Evangelist Fred Olive of St. John, New Brunswick, as he addressed a large audience in Grace Chapel on Sunday evening.

"Jesus came to call the mass of humanity to Himself, not only the sinner but the moralist," pointed out the preacher. "You ask, does the moralist need salvation He certainly does. Nicodemus was a moralist. He lived a stainless and faultless life, but he came to Jesus asking what he must do to be saved. Jesus told him he needed to be born again, to be born of the spirit of God.

"Are you think you are righteous and in no need of a Saviour, your self-righteousness will take you to hell and there is no hope of redemption for you.

"The only way to come to Jesus is to be a sinner and that is the cross, realizing that you are a sinner and in need of a Saviour. The dying thief said "Lord, remember me when thou comest into Thy kingdom." He was the first one to enter into Heaven through the blood covenant of the blood of Jesus.

Came to Save Outcast

"Jesus came to save the moral outcast too." said Mr. Parlee. He made reference to the woman who was taken in adultery, whom the Pharisees wanted to stone to death but she was not because of the sin in their own lives. Jesus could look into their hearts and see through their self-righteousness.

"There never was such a day when we had so much immorality and loose living as today," asserted Mr. Parlee, "and I contend that these were the days just prior to the return or Jesus and that people should get right with God before it was eternally too late.

"We are spending all over the continent; pastors and evangelists are leading souls to Jesus because they know Him. People realized the apostles spoke with authority because they had been with Jesus."

Mr. Parlee plays the piano at each service and sings with his own accordian accompaniment. His instrumental technique is brilliant and a delight to all who are privileged to hear him. His preaching is joyous, informal, free of stuffiness and it emanates from a heart full of love and sincerity.

Mr. B. Chumbley was heard in a vocal solo, with Rev. Parlee accompanying. Pastor Laurie Price was in charge of the service.

Will Take Years To Repair Damage Done to Winnipeg

"It will take years to clear up and repair the damage done to Winnipeg by the silting of the Red River," stated Dr. H. W. Pringle Ph. D., a professor of nuclear physics at the University of Manitoba, at present visiting in Belleville with his wife's uncle, Mr. George H. Stokes, 286 George Street.

"Water to a depth of two feet is flooding the campus at the University and the road to the University has been cut for ten days," said Professor Pringle, who left the stricken city nine days ago with his wife and ten-month-old daughter, Vivian. "My laboratory which is in the basement of the science building is filled with ten feet of water."

Dr. Pringle said his research colleagues were still transferring their equipment to higher levels in the building as water came seeping in.

It is Dr. Pringle's opinion that at least 20 per cent of Winnipeg is inundated and that possibly it will be years, in Canada's fourth largest city have backed up.

"It is very encouraging to hear that the water is subsiding," Dr. Pringle continued. "The dikes, made of mud, will hold back the water under present circumstances, but should there be a storm with rains and high wind the mud would just run off the dikes which would then offer little protection against the water already contained."

Manitoba Relief Fund Growing But There's Room for More

The boat nudges the side of a house where the water has reached the window sills on the first floor.

You don't pay much attention to the man and the woman. He's old stuff now, rescuing people who have waited too long.

But now today the youngster . . . trying manfully to dash away the tears in the presence of strangers.

"Come on son. Watch your step now."

"But, gee, daddy it's a big boat. They would have room, wouldn't they?"

The man looks at you apologetically.

"He wants to bring his new bike. He only got it last Christmas. Hasn't hardly ridden it yet."

But you know you can't do it. Headquarters said to pick up only families on this trip. And you're going to need every inch for them.

The man and the woman and boy huddle in the bow of the boat. The boy hurries his head in his mother's lap.

And he put down the motor, you hear his muffled sobs.

May Find Bike Again

Maybe when the water goes down he will find his bike again. He likely is. It will be pretty mud in the debris, that only a flood can collect.

Belleville can help the children to forget their loss of prized possessions through donations to the Manitoba Relief Fund.

If you are a parent, you don't have to be told how much store a boy or girl can put into a bike or doll carriage.

The Manitoba Relief Fund does not accept such gifts—only the cash donations to restore confidence in the hearts of those who have lost all. The branches of chartered banks in the city will see that your donation reaches the proper hands.

Belleville is rallying to the urgent appeal for funds. But it can and must do more if it is to take its place with other communities of its size and population.

The fact that good news has come from Winnipeg and other flood-stricken Manitoba places does not mean that funds are no longer needed.

These flood victims must be rehabilitated. And the tremendous task will begin as soon as the water has receded enough to start the repairs.

You can help with your donation. Send or bring it to the nearest city branch of a chartered bank.

Canada Can Make Important Contribution to Nuclear Physics

"Canada is very capable of contributing to the knowledge of atomic physics," stated R. W. Pringle, Ph. D., in an interview here today. Dr. Pringle is doing research work in nuclear physics at the University of Manitoba.

"Since atomic energy does not need the vast sums of money essential for the commercial development of principles established in the lab, Canada is well able to contribute to the scientific advancement of nuclear science."

Favorites Americans

"At present all Canadian activity in this field is directed to generating pursuits with the National Research Council assuming the task of directing research into practical applications. The Oak Ridge project in the United States is the wartime application of atomic energy as well.

"Canada is in an excellent bargaining position with other nations as-well," Dr. Pringle said, "because she is one of the two great world sources of fissionable material."

In discussing the Hydrogen Bomb the professor stated: "The Hydrogen bomb is the nuclear bomb but because a greater mass of the bomb is converted to energy it is more efficient that the uranium bomb. However, a uranium bomb will probably be necessary to detonate the H-bomb and since this has not been done as yet, no one knows if the H-bomb will or will not work."

Accountants Hear Talk on Management Budget Control

Twenty members and guests of the Bay of Quinte Chapter, Society of Industrial and Cost Accountants of Ontario attended the chapter's closing meeting held at Latimer's Town Room dining room recently.

H. R. Nurrish, Secretary-Treasurer of R. L. Crain Ltd., guest speaker of the evening delivered a talk on Management Control by Budgets.

"Responsibility for control of quality, quantity and costs," is how Mr. Nurrish defined the function of management. Scientists and engineers should provide control over quality," said Mr. Nurrish, while sales managers should look after quality. The accountant's job is "to aid advance controls to give foresight of profit or loss and balance sheet statements," the speaker declared.

A discussion period followed Mr. Nurrish's address and he was thanked by Mac Dowsett.

Four new directors were also elected at the meeting. The new directors are: Bob Taylor, Art Lockley, Bill Cronin and Will Richardson. Les Lennox automatically became a director in the capacity of Past Chairman.

Les Lennox acted as chairman and Art Lockley led in community singing, assisted by Ray Lennox at the piano.

ALLEVIATION OF FLOOD SUFFERING

Thousands of Canadians remain associated with the trials their fellow-citizens in the Red River area and in the Timiskowki fire district have been compelled by flood and fire to pass through. The news has dominated the front pages of the press because of the nature of the trials and sufferings of those who have had to endure hardships of a nature that inevitably makes the hearts of their fellow-citizens beat with sympathy in their hour of trial. It is a heering experience to realize how the people of the United States have sought to aid. The stout-hearted people of Britain who have had anxieties of their own have through all their leaders in the British Commons made known their desire to be involved to the fullest degree they may can to help alleviate the distress and lighten the burden of the sufferers.

The heroism of the Manitoba people is an inspiration to people everywhere. The fact that the people of the Motherland and of the United States and their fellow-Canadians feel for them is a spirit that helps the heroic Manitobans in their ordeal. Cottage owners at Winnipeg Beach, a resort town 48 miles north of the city of Winnipeg, have opened their doors and their hearts to 5,000 flood refugees. That is the spirit of fellow-Manitobans.

The majority have made their cottages available to Winnipeg families on a rent-free basis.

Pat Irwin, Mayor of Winnipeg Beach, called an emergency meeting of service clubs and cottage owners while the flood was still in its infancy. He asked for the co-operation of cottage owners, and discovered that they had already been considering some method of assisting flood refugees.

The most obvious way of helping was to hand the keys of the cottages over to a central committee that would look after registration. Within half a week the cottages were filled. They were home, the homeless.

Refugees flocked in from as far away as Emerson on the international boundary. They found a voluntary organization of 100 persons awaiting them and ready with clothing drives, immunization clinics, and food for those left destitute by the ravages of the flood.

Red Cross vouchers were issued to provide food, coal, and medical prescriptions. A sound truck roamed the streets of Winnipeg Beach broadcasting reassuring messages from friends and relatives, while a committee of public-spirited women travelled from door to door, offering what assistance they could.

The Manitoba flood relief Fund has assumed the task of rehabilitating flood victims, a job which begins when that of Winnipeg Beach ends. On their journey homeward the people staying at Winnipeg Beach will face the cheerless prospect of warped and cracking walls, ruined furniture, weeks of unrelenting toil and years of financial worry — unless all Canada matches the example of the cottage owners at Winnipeg Beach.

Contributions may be sent to the Manitoba Flood Relief Fund, Winnipeg, or paid into the nearest bank.

KEEP DOWN TRAFFIC TOLL

"Check your driving." That is the advice of officials of the Highways Department. "The majority of accidents happen under good road and weather conditions with apparent fault lying only with the human element," they say. Common sense; caution and good motoring manners can do much to reduce the death and injury toll on streets and highways. Careless driving means accidents — it care means safety."

April brought a lower death toll from Ontario street and highway accidents. That is a happy change which it is hoped will prove that it will be maintained. There were 72 deaths last month as compared with April of 1949 when there were 66 victims of fatalities of this kind. The tenyear average of 43 for April was accordingly also beaten. Of the eight children who lost their lives, four were run down by a car hit head-on by an oncoming care in the centre of the road on a hilltop, according to the Highways Department.

Crusaders for safer driving derive encouragement from the fact that April was the fourth successive month to have a lower traffic toll than the corresponding month of 1949.

But the more dangerous time for accidents remains ahead in summer months which point to a record traffic situation this summer.

Motorists are urged to check brakes, lights, steering, tires and windshield wipers to assure the safest possible condition of vehicles.

JUST A SUGGESTION

Know nothing of business, of money and gains,
But why do great Industries throw away brains?

When good men retire, as they must, is it wise
To hold them together at times to advise?

If able, still willing, they're dropped from the list and told, "Out of the way now! You'll never be missed. — Why do they do it? Is it a suggestion:
The young men take over the business to run.
We need you no longer. Get out and have fun!"

When good men retire, Why not keep them enrolled, without hours, without hire?
Why not form an alumni devised and true,
And keep them from thinking they're nothing to do?

Mackenzie's Column:

Waves of Grief Sweep Countless German Homes

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

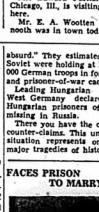
Sometime, somewhere, somebody is going to insist on an accounting for the hundreds of thousands of war prisoners and civilians who are said to have disappeared without trace into the vast fastnesses of Russia.

An outburst of heated official denials has followed Germany's recent announcements that the repatriation of Japanese and German prisoners of war has been completed. And a wave of grief is sweeping countless homes where families for five long years since the war's end have been hopefully awaiting the return of fathers and sons and brothers.

Japan was stunned when, in April, Moscow announced that Japanese repatriation was complete except for 969 prisoners serving sentences as war criminals. Tokyo retorted that more than 300,000 Japanese prisoners still are missing.

Then early this month came the Soviet announcement that German repatriation was complete. Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of the West German government bitterly cried that 1,500,000 Germans, including "tens of thousands of deported civilians," still were unaccounted for. He demanded in the name of humanity that the Kremlin account for their fate.

At the same time John J. McCloy, U.S. High Commissioner for the American zone, claimed Russia failed to account for "many hundreds of thousands of German prisoners of war," adding:



"I think the world should know what happened to them and the many thousands of German civilians who also disappeared into the Soviet Union."

State Department officials in Washington labelled the Russian announcement as "fantastic and absurd." They estimated that the Soviet were holding at least 200,000 German troops in forced-labor and prisons-of-war camps.

Leading Hungarian exiles in West Germany declare 350,000 Hungarian prisoners of war are missing in Russia.

There you have the claims and counter-claims. This unprecedented situation represents one of the major tragedies of history?

PITCHING HORSESHOES

By Billy Rose

PRETTY IS AS PRETTY DOES

Last summer a famous actress invited a group of friends to an elaborate dinner party at her Long Island home. With the exception of her lawyer, no one showed up, and at 10 o'clock that night she suffered a heart attack and died.

The obituary notices made no mention of the party which no one attended for the very good reason that the lawyer kept mum about it. But last night he told me the whole story and gave me permission to use it, provided I didn't identify the actress by name.

Harriet Reeves—to give her a name several syllables removed from her own—was an actress who had come up the hard way and acquired a lot of hard ways to go with it. She was a great success and 'marches on other actors, walking all over the walk-ons, and in general making life unbearable for everyone from porter to producer.

Even more than her tantrums, however, the big emotion she used everyone around her was her blithe way of making promises and her blither way of breaking them. Her stock excuse was that she was forgetful, but as a cold, unmoist of fact, she pointed out, she never forgot to ask for an autographed photograph of the plays she appeared in, or to make sure that no other name was featured in the billing but hers.

As her slights and oversights continued to pile up, people assumed they were due to deliberate meanness—and for the first time in years Harriet felt perfectly blissful thing happened—her forgetfulness, at first unnoticed, became chronic, and the actress became so much a victim of her own absent-mindedness that she couldn't even remember the things she wanted to.

In her middle 50's, her heart began to do nip-ups, and under doctors' orders she retired. She had plenty of money and so life was comfortable enough, but by this time everyone in the theatre hated her with a hatred which didn't even bother her in the least, and so life was lonely enough, too.

A year ago last April her birth-mail, day came and went without so much as a friendly flower or phone call, and that night, brooding about it, she had a heart attack. The physician who examined her told her bluntly that her chances of living out the years were none too good and advised her to stay in bed as much as possible.

Harriet faced up to the news like a trouper and for a couple of weeks followed the doctor's instructions, but the prospect of dying in complete isolation finally got her, and so one day she sent for her attorney.

"I want to give a big party next Saturday night," she said "and I'd appreciate it if you'd arrange for the catering and music."

"What's the occasion?" asked the lawyer.

"Nothing in particular," said Harriet, "but I'm sick and tired of being out here and I'd like to see some of my 'old friends.'"

The lawyer, who'd actress wrote out invitations to dozens of people whose names whom had worked, figuring that if she could get them all together she'd have the time of her life reminiscing in the past and ask their forgiveness.

At 8 o'clock on Saturday when the musicians arrived, the downstairs rooms were packed to the rafters with theatre posters of her past hits, and Harriet, in a sweeping black lace gown, met the butler halfway with her lawyer, waiting for the guest to arrive.

At 10 o'clock she told the servants and musicians to help themselves to food and drinks and assisted by the attorney began to climb the stairs to her bedroom.

"I can hardly blame them for not coming," she said, "I've had a break plenty of dates myself."

Soon after I began to die—we all begin to die somewhat between thirty and fifty—a New Jersey chiropractor began to tell his customers and prospective customers that Dr. Brady had turned up his toes years ago and the column published as mine was really written by a syndicate of medical practitioners who used my name to get propaganda over to the public. Every little while after that I was killed off somewhere or other.

When I say we all begin to die I mean, the decline, senescence, maturity, involution or degeneration which comes sooner or later to every one who lives out his or her natural life.

Degeneration is retrograde evolution. Webster says it is "degeneration of a tissue or an organ in which its vitality is diminished, sometimes to the point of death." The body or part of structure, either by chemical change of the tissue (true degeneration), or by deposit of abnormal matter in the tissue (infiltration)." Practically all medical Dictionary defines degeneration as "a retrogressive pathological change in cells or tissues in consequence of which the functional power is lessened (italics mine) "and the living substance becomes converted into an inert mass."

In a morbid way every one has heard of "fatty degeneration of the heart. If the very thought of it is depressing let me say that unquestionably we who are about to die, we who are now dying, all have more or less fatty degeneration of the heart—some of the living, functioning cells of heart muscle and arteries have been or been replaced by inert fatty material. So we even now are dying as fast or as far as we could when we were younger, nor compete with those who have not begun to die. This is just plain common sense as well as sound pathology. The trouble is that the majority of people fail to recognize the truth about dying. In America, for instance, we sometimes elect to the presidency a man who for all reason should instead be given his place in the chimney corner. Or we send as our representative in a world conference of the gravest importance a man who is obviously on the point of departure to another world, and then we wonder whether the poor man really had enough judgment to know just what he was doing

THE MEANING OF PHYSICAL DEGENERATION

The part of Stedman's definition about loss of functioning power of the tissues and organs, physical degeneration, that you young people should fix in mind. If you wonder whether you are degenerating, growing old, you can get an unbiased answer at any time: Try running a mile, or jumping over a hedge, or chinning yourself, or rolling a somersault, or holding your breath 45 seconds, or performing any other physical stunt that you could do when you were in your teens or early childhood. If you can do longer do it you are growing old, fast.

When I lived in Canandaigua I could do handsprings and airsprings and chin myself I forget how many times and a few dandy stunts on performing bar stages.

Can't do such things now. Every morning when I do my bed dozen to a dozen somersaults on the floor I think of the millions of poor old geezers of forty, fifty or sixty who have grown so old and stiff-jointed (infiltration?), can't do anything they used to do when they were young.

This illusion of rolling somersaults is not facetious. Please don't think I am joking about it. As I explain in the pamphlet Instructions to the unfortunate, available on written request. If you provide stamped self-addressed envelope, I can't do a few rolls before breakfast every morning and in my opinion it is good medicine for every one who has begun to die. I sincerely believe that it retards the progress of decay. Otherwise I wouldn't think about it. My pet aversion at time every morning rolling somersaults.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Chocolate.

Is chocolate, that is, the beverage or chocolate bars, beneficial in the diet of one who has had a gall bladder trouble? (S. M.)

Answer—Cardiac is just a twenty-dollar word for heart — a word a quack uses to make the ignorant believe he is one. As a quack, knows just what is wrong with him. To the best of my knowledge neither cocoa, chocolate beverage nor chocolate bar has any particular effect on the heart except that it is a mild heart stimulant, probably less active than tea in that respect.

Bringing Home the C-R-I

I am a school teacher and seem continually to be bringing illnesses home to my family. What can I do to prevent this? (H. B. W.)

Answer—It is usually a respiratory infection. All are communicable, and especially in the stage of onset, before the victim is ill enough to remain in bed or even out of school. All present similar symptoms at first, voluntary or compulsory isolation is the most effective preventive. Send twenty-five cents and stamped addressed envelope for booklet Call it C-R-I, which teaches how to prevent such illnesses.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

Church is about the last place you'll share a man can sing and nobody can stop him.

If he is a poor singer, he is as welcome to bellow to his heart's content as he is to be heard in congregation. Everybody round about will join in the singing, and lustily, completely and Christian enthusiasm.

If he is one of those unfortunates who cannot sing at all, who sings off key or is tone deaf, his every effort succeeds in giving offend: it rouses, in fact, a flush of warmth and sympathy in those unfortunate men who, at home or among his friends, has been debarred from uttering a note for years, has always discovere the spirit of Christian charity in church. And he makes the most of it.

Singing, in the homely or domestic sense, is definitely on its way out. Only a generation ago, before the advent of the radio, and when phonographs were novel and expensive luxuries, singing was commonplace in the home. Hardly an evening could go by without somebody sitting down to the piano after supper. And one, even two, or all the family would rally around for a session of lusty song. When people dropped in for the evening, a sing-song singsong was as natural and expected a part of the entertainment as were the sandwiches and coffee. And when they were served, the singing started again.

But the radio has killed all that. One of the very oldest and best forms of entertainment has just about been squelched. We sit silent now, listening, and we seldom if ever are inspired by an invitation to join in. There was a time when a man's personality, when we played a Harry Lauder record, everybody in the house, from the kitchen, those upstairs, all joined in the chorus.

But radio singing is for a long time been highly specialized. You never hear anybody on radio singing what you might call straight. It is always queer, bopped, jazz-ed, incredibly individualized. Nobody could join in, even with so classic a performer as Crosby.

Men, to tell the truth, have enjoyed singing in the bathroom, too, or alone at home after the day came and went without so much as a friendly flower or phone call, and last night, brooding about it, she had a heart attack. The physician who examined her told her bluntly that her chances of living out the years were none too good and advised her to stay in bed as much as possible.

Harriet faced up to the news like a trouper and for a couple of weeks followed the doctor's instructions, but the prospect of dying in complete isolation finally got her, and so one day she sent for her attorney.

"I want to give a big party next Saturday night," she said "and I'd appreciate it if you'd arrange for the catering and music."

"What's the occasion?" asked the lawyer.

"Nothing in particular," said Harriet, "but I'm sick and tired of being out here and I'd like to see some of my 'old friends.'"

The lawyer, who'd actress wrote out invitations to dozens of people whose names whom had worked, figuring that if she could get them all together she'd have the time of her life reminiscing in the past and ask their forgiveness.

At 8 o'clock on Saturday when the musicians arrived, the downstairs rooms were packed to the rafters with theatre posters of her past hits, and Harriet, in a sweeping black lace gown, met the butler halfway with her lawyer, waiting for the guest to arrive.

At 10 o'clock she told the servants and musicians to help themselves to food and drinks and assisted by the attorney began to climb the stairs to her bedroom.

"I can hardly blame them for not coming," she said, "I've had a break plenty of dates myself."

Soon after I began to die—we all begin to die somewhat between thirty and fifty—a New Jersey chiropractor began to tell his customers and prospective customers that Dr. Brady had turned up his toes years ago and the column published as mine was really written by a syndicate of medical practitioners who used my name to get propaganda over to the public. Every little while after that I was killed off somewhere or other.

When I say we all begin to die I mean, the decline, senescence, maturity, involution or degeneration which comes sooner or later to every one who lives out his or her natural life.

Degeneration is retrograde evolution. Webster says it is "degeneration of a tissue or an organ in which its vitality is diminished, sometimes to the point of death." The body or part of structure, either by chemical change of the tissue (true degeneration), or by deposit of abnormal matter in the tissue (infiltration)." Practically all medical Dictionary defines degeneration as "a retrogressive pathological change in cells or tissues in consequence of which the functional power is lessened (italics mine) "and the living substance becomes converted into an inert mass."

In a morbid way every one has heard of "fatty degeneration of the heart. If the very thought of it is depressing let me say that unquestionably we who are about to die, we who are now dying, all have more or less fatty degeneration of the heart—some of the living, functioning cells of heart muscle and arteries have been or been replaced by inert fatty material. So we even now are dying as fast or as far as we could when we were younger, nor compete with those who have not begun to die. This is just plain common sense as well as sound pathology. The trouble is that the majority of people fail to recognize the truth about dying. In America, for instance, we sometimes elect to the presidency a man who for all reason should instead be given his place in the chimney corner. Or we send as our representative in a world conference of the gravest importance a man who is obviously on the point of departure to another world, and then we wonder whether the poor man really had enough judgment to know just what he was doing

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

INTEREST OTHERS

Interest others and they will be interested in you. I had this fact brought to me in a striking manner several years ago when I met a gentleman wrote me from Pittsburgh, Penn., and conducts a large business.

For many years this enterprising businessman has been getting out a personal store paper, published once every few years. At first he told me, he just put in ads of his own store and its products, and hardly anyone paid any attention to it. Later he opened it to ads of those who wished to advertise in it—and then, he said, everybody read it!

This idea works out successfully in any business. If you listen to the talk of others, they will then be interested in your own talk. People who talk of mutual interests have a fine time together. Collectors of the same thing, for example. Two naturalists, also, like to back and forth in lively fashion because each learns from the other.

People who talk only about themselves and their own interest, lose audience in smart order! The newspaper that goes all out for local news and interesting stories about them is going to in the community, and which carries on a continuous campaign to improve it, becomes widely read and trusted. The readers of a newspaper want the paper to think about them.

You tie to that friend who is interested in your welfare, your aims and ambitions, and who unselfishly believes in you. In an emergency you know that you can turn to him for aid and counsel. The more we practice what we have in common with others, the closer do we draw to them. The best clock, in a retail store, is the one that has himself or herself in the place of the prospective buyer.

We create our own happiness, but we create it largely by what we do to make others happy. There is power in a crowd for there are so many common interests represented. One way to get the interest of others is to do a little more than they have ever done it

Rider Injured When Thrown From a Horse

Trenton (Special)—Thrown to the ground when the horse he was riding became frightened and fell, Clevelant J. Smith, 18, College Street received injuries to his right ankle, left knee and right side of his face Saturday afternoon. Injuries were mostly brush burns.

Smith was riding on horseback near the C.P.R. tracks on West Street. He was tossed out of the saddle, when the horse suddenly bolted and fell.

Dr. J. V. Byrne administered first aid and the injured man was taken to a trailer at the rear of Sidney Street.

Reports Quiet Weekend

Trenton—Chief of Police Jack Taylor reported a very quiet weekend and a clear crime sheet.

There were no arrests and only two minor auto accidents were reported. Only slight damage was caused in the cars involved.

To Visit California

Trenton—J. W. A. Russell, manager of the local Unemployment Insurance Office and Mrs. Russell are leaving today for Long Beach, California, to attend the 37th annual convention of the International Association of Public Employment services.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell are motoring to California and expect to be gone about three weeks. Mr. Russell attended the 1949 convention held in New Orleans.

This organization furnished a great deal of information and advice to the Canadian government when the present National Employment Service was set up. The organization is chiefly concerned with the methods of improving present employment procedures and practice, Mr. Russell said.

Many Visit Hospital

Trenton — Sunday afternoon was "Visitors' Day" at the Trenton and District Memorial Hospital.

The interest and enthusiasm shown by those attending leaves little doubt that the by-law authorizing the debenture will pass.

At least 500 people passed through the hospital doors between two and six o'clock. Several nurses residing in Trenton had charge of each floor and showed the visitors the facilities and various points of interest.

The visitors were unanimous in registering approval of the new hospital.

W. H. Ireland, chairman of the Board, and other directors were present, and welcomed the visitors.

Says No Tickets Sold for Address By 'Red Dean'

Vancouver, May 22 — (CP) — A spokesman for The Peace Assembly, sponsors of Very Rev. Hewlett Johnson, so-called "Red Dean" of Canterbury, told an audience of 4,500 at the Dean's address Sunday night that he has been informed the assembly will be prosecuted for violating the Lord's Day Act.

The spokesman, Lawrence Noury, asked for witnesses to testify that the assembly had sold no tickets for the address but had merely solicited contributions. Noury said police officers told him the assembly would be prosecuted for selling tickets.

Officially police would say only that the "matter was under investigation."

A flat from the Attorney-General would be necessary to issue a summons for violation of the Act.

The packed auditorium heard Dr. Johnson assure them that "Russia would back any proposal for the banning of mass destruction weapons."

He said he knew many Russian scientists and that they were working on atomic energy for "peaceful purposes."

LIVES ON AIR, TOBACCO, SELTZER

Willy Schmitz, 48, of Cologne, a German starvation champion who currently is drawing record crowds watching him waste away in a sealed glass cage, is examined by a doctor after Willy said he was ready to throw in the towel unless his present brand of German cigarettes is replaced immediately by another brand. Willy, out to beat his own self-claimed record of 50 days without food, chain smokes at the rate of 90 a day and claims to be the only man capable of sustaining himself on a diet of cigarettes. Commenting on his cigarette dilemmas, Willy said, "my throat is coated. I cough. I don't care what you get me, but these make me cough." Schmitz starved twice before, once in 1926 and again in 1934 in Luxembourg. His only diet besides cigarettes is seltzer. — Central Press Canadian.

Lamprey Will Be Processed As Experiment

Toronto, May 22—(CP)—It may be some time before you can order canned lamprey eel from your grocer—even if by any stretch of the imagination you would want to— but the Ontario Department of Game and Fisheries is trying to make it possible.

In fact it would seem that the department is trying to make Ontario epicure lamprey conscious. It looks as though these conservation fellows will go to any extreme to get rid of the wriggley, vacuum-mouthed eel that is reportedly playing havoc with the lake trout.

In any event the department has trapped a large number of the eels which have been brought to Toronto for processing "in preparation for the market on an experimental basis."

For some years commercial fishermen have been complaining that the succulent lake trout was being killed by the destructive parasite. As a result intensive netting operations in streams in which the lamprey run now are being conducted by the department. Included in the exterminating, and perhaps future canning program, are the big and little Thessalon Rivers, Sable River and the Saugeen in Southern Ontario.

Lamprey attach themselves to the trout by means of their disc-shaped "sucker" mouths. With their sharp teeth they make a hole in the body of the fish sucking the blood.

Western Union Open Manoeuvres, Russ Ships Near

Portland, England, May 22 — (AP) Western Union navies selfconsciously opened hush-hush sea manoeuvres today—with 30 deadpan Russian skippers within radar range.

The Russian mothership Tambov and her 29 trawlers and cossters — officially on a sprat and sardine fishing jaunt from the Baltic to the Black Sea — were off Falmouth Sunday when the Royal Navy cruisers Superb and Cleopatra plus four destroyers left Portland for the manoeuvre areas south of Britain.

Then the Russians upped anchor and moved nine miles westward to Mounts Bay, where they anchored again.

"Just changing anchorage," was the Soviet reply to a hopeful message from shore officials.

Sunday, the British aircraft carrier Theseus — which is not taking part in the manoeuvres — popped up unannounced in Mounts Bay beside the Russians.

The Admiralty said nothing officially was known of her presence there but a spokesman couldn't see "any particular significance" in it.

Since the manoeuvre areas are well down in the Bay of Biscay, the sprat fishermen would have to pass right through them if they're en route to the Black Sea as advertised.

SKULL FRACTURED

Windsor, May 22—(CP)—Harvey Bornais, 37, of Tilbury, is reported in critical condition in hospital here following an early-morning auto accident 15 miles east of Windsor today. Hospital attendants said he suffered a fractured skull, head lacerations and other injuries.

Police said that Bornais was the driver of a car which collided with a truck driven by Peter Kwasnycya of Kingsville. The top of the car was pulled off in the crash.

Fire Destroys Farm Home of Robt. Palmateer

Tweed, (Special.)—Believed to have started from an electric hot-plate, which was left on following a power interruption, fire Sunday evening destroyed the farm home of Robt. Palmateer, one mile west of Tweed.

The wife of a Ukrainian D.P., who had arrived at the farm only the day previous was trapped upstairs and jumped to safety from a second-storey window.

The family had been away for the afternoon and the hired man was at the barn doing chores when the fire was noticed. The hired man's wife smelled smoke while upstairs and when she found her escape cut off by the stairway jumped out the window. She suffered a shaking up but no bones were broken.

Mr. and Mrs. Palmateer were on their way home when they saw smoke rolling from their burning home. Most of the furniture was removed from the home but some was damaged.

Miss Lois Bush, and Miss Patsy Bush, of Frankford, were brides- maids, gowned alike in pale green taffeta, floor length gowns, made on similiar lines to that of the matron of honor, with matching half hats, and carrying corsage bouquets of mauve sweetpeas.

Little Sharon Bush, of Frank- ford, was flower girl, wearing a floor length frock of yellow taf- feta, with matching bonnet, and carrying a nosegay of sweetpeas.

Mr. James Bush, Codrington, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman, and Mr. Maurice and Mr. Earl Dafoe, were ushers.

At the reception, which was held at the home of the bride's parents, the bride's mother, gown- ed in grey gabardine with black accessories received the fifty guests, assisted by the bride- groom's mother, who was gowned in navy blue silk crepe, with matching accessories.

For the wedding trip to Niagara Falls, and points west, the bride chose a navy blue gabardine suit with matching check gabardine topcoat, and corsage of red roses. Upon their return, the young couple will reside at the bride- groom's farm, 4th Sidney.

The bridegroom's gift to his bride, was a chest of silver; the bride's gifts to her attendants, soloist and pianist, cups and saus- ers; to the groom, flower girl, coffee cup and saucer.

The bride was honored by a shower sponsored by Miss Lyra Frost, 5th of Sidney, when the bride was the recipient of many lovely cups and saucers.

Lure of North Is Too Much for Prospector's Wife

Toronto, May 22 (CP)— The lure of the north is too much for Lucy Butters Staunton, city girl turner prospector.

The dark, attractive Mrs. Staunton was raised amid the bustle of metropolitan Toronto. Now, after four years in a one- roomed log cabin at Nezah, a tiny hamlet buried in the north- ern Ontario bushland near Long Lac, she said in an interview she wouldn't leave it for the world. Long Lac is 120 miles northeast of Port Arthur.

In Toronto for a three-week stay with her parents, Mrs. Staun- ton—a prospector in her own right—said she's glad to get back north, where the air "isn't so de- pressing."

There her housewifely chores include such activities as cooking in the open, paddling a canoe, and keeping an eye peeled for gold-bearing outcroppings of rock. It's a far cry from the days when she worked for a downtown Toronto stock brokerage.

The conversion from city dweller to woods worker came in 1946, when Lucy met Stuart Staunton, just discharged from the army and heading north to hunt for gold in the Long Lac area. Lucy joined him during her holidays and they were married.

Since then the Staunton's have prospected together, one of the few man and wife prospecting teams in Canada. They agree it's a wonderful life.

This summer they will be looking for gold, and maybe ur- anium. They have yet to find the big strike that lures them back again and again.

In the winter, the Stauntons stay in Nezah, a community of 15 or 20 persons.

"I don't have much reason to buy dresses or things like that," Lucy said. "Mostly I wear slacks and boots. I don't use cosmetics much, either, except lipstick be- cause it keeps your lips from chapping.

Sack Silhouette Will be Dead Duck by Fall

By FLORENCE MILLS

Paris, May 22. (AP)—The trend toward the sack silhouette of the 1920s will be a dead duck by Fall, the Paris mid-season openings have indicated.

Forecast silhouettes shown by top designers here are slim and narrow, with well-defined waist- lines and skirts just covering the knees. Suit skirts will be straight and tight, and topcoats will be collarless with nipped waists and slightly-flared skirts.

Pierre Balmain, who devotes half his summer show to advance Fall models, favors delicate shades of "pink smoke" and beige for tweed topcoats which he trims with fox fur dyed to match. His fall dresses are ex- tremely simple, with plunging necklines, plain sleeves and straight skirts.

Jacques Griffe shows a wide- shouldered suit in checked wool, with the back of the jacket pleat- ed like an army jacket and nip- ped in with a natural calf belt.

Summer styles still go to largely for pleats. The little, straight, sleeveless dress, pleated from yoke to hem, is a tip favor- ite. Other styles feature sheath dresses with pleated flying panels.

Back in Favor

Evening dresses, long or short, have vast skirts of pleated tulle or organza.

Evening fashions indicate that the full-length formal gown is back in favor.

One-piece bathing suits are back in favor this summer, but this doesn't mean French design- ers are going puritanical. There'll be as much nudity as ever. They are cut as high as possible on the legs and as low as possible in the neckline—some being slashed to the waist and held together by a narrow ribbon "bust bridge".

Long pantaloons are shown for beach wear, with peg tops or fit- ted as tightly as long underwear. Sensation-hunters go for a pair of yellow-and-black Paisley calf- length pants designed by Piquet. They look like a sack with two leg-holes at the bottom. An intri- cately-swathed bodice manages to leave most of the top bare.

On the more practical side are plain, long trousers tapered like ski pants. The brief, tight shorts are still in high favor. Brilliant colors such as tomato and lime are used in sun and swim suits, with terry-cloth robes in match- ing colors.

Hats also make headlines. Big hats are the latest novelty, en- tirely covering the hair. Balmain shows one shaped like a beehive, covered with white daisies and yellow sunflowers. Another is black felt with fringe "hair".

Big-brimmed hats of scarlet or champagne straw have plastic windows in front, so the wearer can see where she is going.

Dried beans, as now packed in cellophane or 1-pound boxes, need very little going over. They are the liquid doesn't boil rapidly, foreign matter.

To prepare beans for soaking, wash once, and then cover with cold water to soak overnight. Don't discard this water but com- bine it with the additional liquid required. It contains the nutri- tional value of the beans as well as some of the flavor.

For bean soup, buy the best grade of small white pea beans available. They will require at least 2 hours' cooking. The cook- ing period will vary with the quality and age of the beans.

When making bean soup, be are usually clean and free from ly, but simmers. The pot should smile, not laugh. Stir the beans frequently. Because of their weight they will fall to the bot- tom of the pot, and may be char- red if not stirred.

Churchill at Top Of 'English-Speaking Funny Men'

London, May 22 — (AP) — Sir Alan Herbert, a leading British humorist, ranked Winston Churchill today at the top of his list of English-speaking funny men.

"Whatever the emotional background, Mr. Churchill can always raise a laugh without any breach of taste or tact," Sir Alan said in his presidential address to the English Association, a cultural group.

Sir Alan — better known as A. P. Hebert — said it would make a big difference to the world if "some of the gentlemen in Moscow" had more of a sense of humor.

TO GLAMORIZE MONTREAL

Montreal — (CP) — This city's 1950 beautification campaign will be held May 13-27 and was highlighted by a parade along Sherbrooke Street May 20. Citizens are expected to polish up the city for the summer.

These two sets of tiny twins and their parents are among the thousands of homeless as a result of the Manitoba floods. Shown are Mr. and Mrs. William Casovan of Point Douglas and (left to right) Barbara and Richard, 22 months, and Joan and Jane, seven months. Mrs. Casovan had just put the babies to bed while her husband laboured on the dikes, when the flood burst through and engulfed their little bungalow. For rehabilitation the Casovans, like 85,000 other Manitobans, must look to the Manitoba Flood Relief Fund, which has been organized in Winnipeg.

P.M. Has Full Confidence in Men Topping Fund

Winnipeg, May 22 — (CP) — Prime Minister St. Laurent said Sunday night in a prepared statement that he has "full confidence" in the men who are running the Manitoba Flood Relief Fund and that he is sure the fund will receive the "wholehearted support of the Canadian people."

The statement was issued to avoid misinterpretation of a remark the Prime Minister made earlier at a press conference.

Mr. St. Laurent was asked by a reporter whether he would comment on the $10,000,000 relief fund.

"I think there are Canadians everywhere who wish to make some contribution to assist those overtaken by misfortune in the Red River Valley," said the prime minister. "It would seem that such assistance should go beyond the scope of the regular activities of the Red Cross."

A public relations officer for the fund interjected that the fund would step in after governments and the Red Cross had finished their share of rehabilitation in the valley. It would replace flood victims' clothing, personal and household effects not provided by the other agencies.

Seemed Rather Tired

Reporters at the press conference said Mr. St. Laurent, who seemed tired after a strenuous day, replied rather sharply that he would not be impressed by a fund which would withhold its money until governments and other agencies had done their part. He said, however, that he had confidence in the men running the Manitoba Flood Relief Fund.

Shortly after the press conference, a statement was issued by the Prime Minister which said:

"In a supplementary statement regarding the Manitoba Flood Relief Fund, the Prime Minister said that he had been giving his attention to the responsibilities of the Federal government and had been leaving the work of voluntary agencies to those who had assumed that responsibility.

"He added that those who were directing the Manitoba flood relief fund were Canadian citizens in whose judgment and capacity he had full confidence and that he was sure the fund would receive the wholehearted support of the Canadian people."

Heroic Father Rescues Five, Critically Burned

Sudbury, May 22 — (CP) —A heroic father who rescued his five children from fire Saturday is fighting for his life in hospital. The $500,000 blaze destroyed a block of four stores and apartments on Durham Street.

Four of the children also are in hospital being treated for burns. Hospital officials said the condition of Joseph Lahaye, 46-year-old bushman is critical.

Lahaye assisted three of his children to a back roof then brought two others out a narrow, flaming stairway at the front. Three-quarters of his body is covered with burns.

The fire, of unknown origin, spread rapidly above the Dom. grocery store. Flames were reaching 100 feet in the air when firemen arrived. The blaze quickly spread to Levine's Ladies' Wear.

Mrs. V. Paul said she turned in the alarm when she heard the cries of the children on the roof. They were removed by firemen as the flames spread to Martin's Men's Wear and the Fairmount Shoe Store.

Two boys, Aurel, 11, and Donald, 13, suffered burns to arms, legs and faces. Jacqueline, 17, and Susan, 5, also were burned. The children's condition is reported favorable.

Probable British Timber Shortage Blamed on 'Fatal Strategy' in Canadian Lumber Market

By DON GILBERT
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, May 22 (CP)—Britain may run into a timber shortage because of miscalculations in the government's bulk-buying program, trade reports suggest.

One expert blamed the situation on "fatal strategy" in the Canadian market.

As a dollar-saving measure, Britain turned from British Columbia to Scandinavia for the major part of her needs. But Sweden of late has been asking prices higher than Britain wants to pay. Negotiations have all but stalled.

The Board of Trade, which supervises the government's timber-buying program, declined comment on suggestions that the matter has been mismanaged.

A political fact Britain is exploring alternate sources is seen in the departure for Moscow of timber controller Sir Edward Monkhouse. He will negotiate for increased supplies of Soviet timber, but it is considered unlikely any supplies can arrive in time to fill the summer gap.

Trade sources say Sweden's strong bargaining position is due to the fact that even if Britain modified her dollar policy, British Columbia would not be able to provide important supplies until fall or possibly next spring.

This is because British Columbia mills are busy turning out timber for the American market. Different Year Ago

But a year ago the situation was different. At that time the business recession had made American orders scarce. British bulk-buyers, the trade reports suggest, calculated that large unsold stocks in British Columbia would tend to curb Swedish price demands.

The Financial Times, which usually is critical of the Labor government's economic policies, recalled that a year ago a delegation of British Columbia shippers visited London to size up long-term prospects.

"Without a shadow of doubt that was the psychological moment to have come boldly to terms with the British Columbian producers," the Financial Times commented.

"Many believe that the shippers were 'wide open' at that point and that large quantities of timber could then have been bought at attractive prices . . but the opportunity was allowed to slip away, and within a few weeks the situation out west had changed radically."

Another newspaper, the Times, said Sweden's long-term interest in the British market probably would bring her to terms before long, but estimated Britain will get from that source not more than 100,000 standards this year compared with 250,000 agreed on in the Anglo-Canadian trade agreement.

Kitchener May Take Sunday Sport Vote

Kitchener, May 22 (CP) — A vote on Sunday sport may be held in Kitchener this year, city clerk Charles Lips said.

Numerous inquiries have been made at the city hall concerning arrangements necessary for a vote, the clerk said. It is known a committee representing various Kitchener sports groups had considered asking council for a vote last year following a long controversy with members of the K-W Ministerial Association. They delayed action, pending outcome of the Toronto vote on the same issue. Mr. Lips said a vote probably would be part of the annual municipal election.

London Express Assails Liberals, Conservatives

London, May 22 — (Reuters)— Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express Friday castigates both the Conservative and Liberal parties for their political strategy and suggests they may be supplanted by a new party if they don't mend their ways.

The editorial, headed "Sweep Them Away," was the second in two days to hammer at the two parties for their jockeying during Britain's current political dilemma, with Labor clinging to office on the strength of a slim House of Commons majority.

"The greatest blessing of all might be the sweeping out from public life of all the unimaginative Tories and Liberals who throughout the years have clung tenaciously and without ability to party office," today's editorial says.

The Canadian-born peer who owns the Express group of newspapers from time to time has been at odds with the Conservative party, headed by Winston Churchill.

Although holding only nine seats in the 625-seat House of Commons, the Liberal party has made clear it intends to maintain its identity by standing alone.

Clement Davies, Liberal leader in the House of Commons, reiterated that stand today in a speech at the annual meeting of the Welsh Liberal party in Aberystwyth, Wales.

"I want to make it clear beyond doubt and peradventure that the Liberal party lives on as an independent party, that it will not jeopardize that independence or restrict freedom of action or sacrifice in any way the principles in which it believes for any parliamentary gains," he said.

Member Wants To Reduce Voting Age to Eighteen

Ottawa, May 22 (CP) — Hazen Argue (CCF—Assiniboia) asked the Commons Friday night to reduce the voting age in federal elections from 21 to 18.

Liberal, Progressive Conservative and Social Credit speakers expressed their opposition to the proposal.

His enabling bill, still under discussion at the end of the hour set aside for private legislation, dropped to the bottom of the list of public bills.

He sought second reading—approval in principle—of a bill to amend the Dominion Elections Act to that effect.

George Fulford (L—Leeds) said 18-year-olds were at "a very impressionable age." They either were still in school or had just left school and were looking for work.

He had nothing but the highest regard for teachers, but the fact remained that the profession had a few "radicals" and their influence with youngsters was all out of proportion. After leaving school, it took three years for youths to learn realities.

Julian Ferguson (PC—Simcoe North) said that had he voted when he was 18 he might have voted C.C.F. or Liberal. Instead after learning the facts of life, he voted Progressive Conservative.

Monkey Plays on Screen Tower of Drive-in-Theatre

The monkey, newly-arrived from Africa, escaped Friday, as she was being placed in the theatre's zoo and scampered up the steel framework inside the screen tower.

Low Relief Payments Called Shortsighted

Toronto, May 22 — (CP) — Low relief payments drive parents to abandon their children in order that they may be properly fed, Mrs. R. B. Splane of Cornwall said Friday at the annual conference of the Children's Aid Societies of Ontario.

She cited the case of a family of 12 which received $40 a month relief — or $3.07 a person.

"With cases like that it is little wonder that parents consider abandoning their children..."

Relief policy, she said, was shortsighted and the administration's insensitivity to human feelings destroyed families' "moral, self-respect and capacity for self-dependence."

Fighting Reported In Macassar

JJakarta, Indonesia, May 22 — (Reuters) — Fighting has broken out between Indonesian troops of The Netherlands army and Indonesian government forces in Macassar, say unconfirmed reports reching here at the weekend.

A high Dutch source said today the forces were using mortars, machine-guns and rifles.

Dutch and Indonesian army chiefs were flying to Macassar, former capital of the state of East Indonesia, where all telegraphic communications have been cut off for the last four days, to investigate.

The silence followed a report that Macassar post office workers intended to strike.

An Indonesian defence ministry spokesman said he believes the clashes started when young guerrillas who opposed last month's revolt by the East Indonisian rebel leader, Capt. Abdul Aziz, attacked Dutch army Indonesians who were not disarmed after the revolt.

The message was sent on the occasion of the first United States Armed Forces Day, which replaces the days formerly observed individually by the U. S. Navy, Army and Air Force.

In a tribute on behalf of the Canadian forces, Mr. Claxton said:

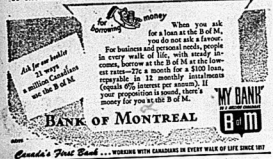
Blames Training And Early Schooling

Montreal, May 22 (CP)—Failure of many French-speaking Canadians to achieve success in industry comparable with the standing obtained by English-speaking Canadians is in a large measure the result of faults in early schooling, Dr. Robert Gauthier, director of French education in Ontario, said.



Addressing the convention of French-speaking teachers of Canada, Dr. Gauthier said that in Ontario only 50 percent of French-speaking Canadians completed elementary schooling as compared with nearly 80 percent of the English speaking population.

The director said only two per cent of French-speaking Canadians in Ontario attained the education that would enable them to command top positions in industry, the professions and government.

RED'S RESERVOIR

The forecast for today was favorable, with drying winds and only occasional scattered showers through the Red River Valley.

Optimism was the order of the day for the citizens of Greater Winnipeg.

Adults and children frolicked on the spacious lawns outside flood-controlled Legislature, in the legislative buildings. Children played catch and gaped at an R.C.A.F. helicopter moored on the grounds. Their elders took pictures and ate sandwiches in the sunshine.

Prime Minister St. Laurent, who flew here yesterday with Justice Minister Garson to check flood danger, said the situation was improved since earlier visits by federal officials. Mr. Garson also inspected the flood in his home province when rain and wind threatened to drive the river beyond the disaster level of 21 feet, when general evacuation would probably be necessary.

Disaster Bridge Closed

Louise Bridge, connecting Winnipeg with the Elmwood portion of East Kildonan on the St. Boniface side of the Red, was closed to all traffic at 3 a.m. today. Constant pressure of tons of murky water burst through the concrete Higgins Avenue underpass and flooded the subway at the eastern approach.

The army decided to leave the subway flooded. Continued pumping might weaken the walls and dump the C.P.R. track above into the river.

Brig. J. W. Price, deputy commander of flood control, said pumping would continue on a reduced scale. Water would be kept slightly above the sidewalk, but below a level that would flood Sutherland Ave., to the west.

"It is highly significant that this subway damage should occur at a time when many people feel that all danger has passed," he said. Other Winnipeg and district thoroughfares were subject to the same pressure. They might go.

Still Pushing Water

At Emerson, the Red's first Canadian port of call after its run through the northern United States, the weekend brought a three-inch drop in river level. Despite that, said Mr. Stephens in an interview, "Emerson is still pushing far more water at us than we carried in the peak of the 1948 flood."

(In 1948 the Red reached 23.4 feet at Winnipeg—more than five feet above the flood stage—compared with this year's 12 feet above flood stage.)

The river will have to go down five feet—60 one-inch drops —before we even approach that level."

The drop in the Red's level at Winnipeg was effected by an hourly flow of 10,000,000 tons of water between the twin cities' 20 miles of dikes. The army expressed concern that the dikes might not take the incessant erosion and pressure long enough to get the river down to a manageable depth.

Early today, however, all major dikes were holding.

A 24-hour patrol tramped the ramparts night and day. Inside the Red St. Boniface and its Norwood residential area, on the east side of the river opposite the Winnipeg business district. A fierce seven-mile barrier which guards to undercut and topple the top-heavy barrier into the stream, flooding hundreds more homes.

To the south in Fort Garry on the west side, the McGillivray dike held back a huge artificial lake eager to crash through and flood 200 homes in a large but as yet unbuilt residential area. The lake, one of three which must ultimately dump their water into the Red and through its narrow, winding route through the twin cities, could cut through the Fort Rouge yards of the C.N.R. and flood still further the heavily-diked Riverview district.

May Crack Dike

Rain was not expected in appreciable quantity. A shower last night brought .03 inch. Only a few scattered showers accompanied by light winds were forecast for the valley today.

One dark spot was the behavior of the Assiniboine, running from the west to join the Red opposite St. Boniface. It held steady at Brandon during the weekend after a sharp Friday rise. A further increase in run-off could cause complications at St. Boniface and flood some of Winnipeg proper.

So far, though one-sixth of the central 49 square miles of greater Winnipeg is under water, only a few riverside fringes of the business district have suffered more than basement flooding.

But some 10,500 homes in greater Winnipeg are flooded, by Mayor Garnet Coulter's estimate. Another 6,000 or more have been abandoned in the valley.

100,000 evacuated

Responsible estimates of total damage, including crop loss through late seeding, run from $100,000,000 to $300,000,000.

The gigantic task of rehabilitation is beginning to get more attention as the river's threat lessens. A joint military committee has worked out "Operation Rainbow"— a draft plan to take care of returning evacuees. It now is being studied by the provincial government.

The few hardy persons already trickling back to their homes were not welcomed by army or civic authorities. Homes must be passed as disease-free by health authorities before they may be reoccupied. Many will not be in livable conditions for months. Many are ruined beyond repair.

FIFTY KILLED

The communique said the casualty toll in Cuzco probably would have been far greater except for the fact that some 15,000 persons were watching a football game in the town stadium when the quake struck. None of the spectators was believed hurt.

City in Ruins

Much of Cuzco was reported in ruins.

"The restaurants and shops were almost totally buried," Cuzco radio report, "The task of removing the debris is extremely difficult."

"Until now," the broadcast said, "it has been impossible to calculate the damage, since almost everything has been destroyed."

The quake disrupted communications, making it difficult for officials to get a complete account of the disaster.

Authorities said they expect the death toll to mount when rescue workers are able to dig their way into wreckage of many residences.

One estimate said 40 per cent of the buildings in the city were damaged and up to 20 per cent completely ruined.

The broadcast said many persons were camping in the streets while others had fled to the country apparently in fear of renewed quakes.

It could not be learned immediately whether the famed Inca Sun Temple, which stands almost in the centre of the city, had been damaged. The towers of Santo Domingo Cathedral, which adjoins the temple, were toppled to the ground.

Cuzco was the capital of the Inca Indians who dominated Peru for 500 years before the coming of the Spaniards in the 16th century. It lies 11,380 feet above sea level. Most of its residents are Indians. Descendants of the Spaniards live in the suburban area.

PHOSPHORUS FIRE

The phosphorus fire startled residents anew as a fast-spreading blaze zigzagged through about 50 drums, raising a pall of ominous white smoke over the stricken city.

Police said the phosphorus drums may have been cracked open by Friday's blast, or by a mine detonated by army men. Phosphorus ignites when exposed to air.

The burning chemical set off about 100 mines. The fire was in the blast-shattered grounds of the American Agricultural Company, adjacent to the area of Friday's explosion.

Only Four Recovered

The 27 men lost in Friday's blast were mainly employees of the Jersey City stevedoring firm which contracted to load the munitions.

Only four bodies have been recovered, one of them mangled beyond recognition, and officers said it was doubtful if any more would be found whole. Cause of the blast is not known yet.

An ironical aspect of the disaster was that the 600-ton munitions shipment was the last to be permitted here before enforcement of new coast guard safety regulations.

The coast guard May 9 ordered that munitions shipments from South Amboy be limited to 500 pounds, because of the nearness of the docks to a congested area.

With stained-glass windows broken and boarded up, churches here held Sunday services in open lawns. Many churchgoers still were in bandages as clergymen offered thanks that the disaster had not been greater.

Margaret Truman, singing daughter of the United States President, has been invited to the performance at Toronto May 29, along with many stage, screen and radio stars. Performers who have consented to appear include George Formby, the British comedian, Fred Waring and his Pennsylvanians, and Sir Ernest MacMillan and his 100-piece Toronto Symphony Orchestra. The show will run from 8.30 to 10 p.m. EDT.

Biggest single contribution so far announced came from the T. Eaton Company of Toronto, with $207,034 from its officers and staff.

Some indication of the wide nature of the response may be gleaned from partial reports Sunday night.

By provinces they show:

Nfld. — Provincial government donated $10,000; donations of $1 to $10 reported pouring into banks (all branch banks in Canada are collecting fund donations).

Canadians Urged To Take Pride In Their Country

Peterborough, May 22 (CP) — Canada, barring war, can be greater than her pioneers ever dreamed, Prime Minister St. Laurent said Saturday.

"And about war I am an optimist," he said at a civic dinner marking Peterborough's centenary celebrations.

He urged Canadians to take a pride in their country and in their Canadian citizenship. That citizenship, he said means tolerance, respect for the rights of others and lending a helping hand to neighbors in need and it involves responsibilities extending from communities to all Canada and outward to the whole world.

Earlier, the Prime Minister, accompanied on his 12-hour visit by Mrs. St. Laurent, opened Peterborough's $3,500,000 Civic Hospital, inspected St. Joseph's Hospital and visited three of the city's largest industrial plants.

STRETCHING THINGS

Sturgis, Sask. — (CP) — Pennies can be made to stretch a long way, pupils at the public school have found. They staged a march of pennies for the Junior Red Cross and realized $21.47. The coins stretched 134 1-4 feet.

Attlee Govt. May Water Down Socialistic Projects, Strive to Keep Office for Year

London, May 22 (AP)—Labor government chieftains indicated today they may water down their socialist projects and try to rule for at least another year with their skimpy majority in parliament.

The party strategy, details of which still are secret, was mapped at a weekend meeting of Prime Minister Attlee, top cabinet ministers, trade union leaders and spokesmen for the cooperative movement, held at Dorking, Surrey.

When the talks ended Labor leaders let the news leak they were ready for an election at any time—but as some Labor stalwarts see it the next national election may be put off until as late as the autumn of 1951.

There is always a chance, however, that Winston Churchill's Conservatives can force a new election sooner.

Most Britons expect that the government will agree to an election by this fall to avoid the constant strain of requiring all Labor members to attend every session of parliament.

The new strategy of trying to stave off an election as long as possible appears to be a victory for Deputy Prime Minister Herbert Morrison, boss of the Labor party's political machinery, who long has urged wooing the British middle classes over.

To this end, Morrison is reported to have urged a moratorium on further nationalization projects. The political correspondent of the British Press Association wrote that "even such mild projects as the nationalization of cement and sugar may disappear, although it seems probable that the act making over iron and steel (which becomes effective Jan. 1) will in due course be operated."

ENGLISH VILLAGE HIT BY TORNADO. 300 HOMELESS

London, May 22 — (CP) —A freak tornado twisted through three valleys north of London Sunday leaving 500 persons homeless in one village alone and plastering the area with hailstones as big as chicken eggs.

The tornado — one of Britain's rarest weather disturbances — climaxed a day of sharp lightning storms that claimed at least three lives.

The tornado dipped to earth three times in its 23-mile course between the Thames and Ouse River Valley. Half the homes in its path were uprooted and trees were uprooted. Torrential rains sent the Ouse flooding its banks in Bedfordshire.

Damage was greatest in the Buckinghamshire villages of Lindslade and Wendover. Some 500 of Lindslade's 3,000 population spent the night in the homes of rescuers.

The adjoining town of Leighton Buzzard also suffered heavy damage from the twister.

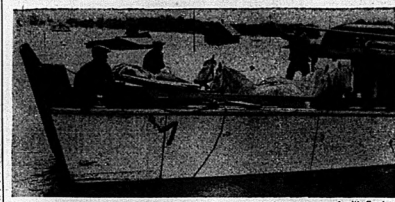
60-Vessel Halibut Fishing Fleet Menaced by Fire

Vancouver, May 22 (CP)—The 60-vessel halibut fleet of British Columbia Packers was menaced early today in a wind-fremted $600,000 Fraser River waterfront fire. There were no injuries.

Destroyed were a machine shop housing $500,000 worth of machinery and supplies and a $40,000 seiner, the 65-foot Roy Roberts.

Five other boats were damaged, three of them seriously, in the fire, which broke out shortly after midnight.

Cause of the fire is undetermined. It broke out near centre of the machine shop, a converted cannery, touching off drums of gasoline and oil with cannon-like explosions.



TWO DEAD OF DRINKING WOOD ALCOHOL

Anchorage, Alaska, May 22 — (AP) — Two soldiers were dead today, two were in critical condition and nine others were in hospital after drinking methonal (wood) alcohol taken from an army motor pool. Military officials said the 13 service men held an "experimental" drinking party Friday night.

KILLED BY LOOSE ROCK

Sudbury, May 22 (CP) — Frank Casey, miner who came here three days ago from Minto, N.B., was killed Saturday when struck by a loose rock in the Garson Nickle Mine. His father and 10 brothers, all of Minto, survive.

SAY FLOOD WILL COST FARMERS $20,000,000

Some 2,000 farms, not including market gardens, near Winnipeg, are covered with flood water and it is doubtful that this land will dry in time to plant more than small feed crops. Every day farmers have braved two and three-foot waves in their homemade barges to bring feed to their cattle, horses and pigs. Flooded farm area covers some 300,000 acres about 400,000 of which normally are sown in grain. Horses are shown being evacuated from flooded St. Adele, Loss to farmers, department of agriculture officials estimate, could run to $20,000,000, especially when allowance is made for grain and livestock lost. — Central Press Canadian.

Rawdon Passes By-Law To Detach Township From Centre Hastings H.S. Board

Members of the Rawdon township council at their May meeting passed the necessary by-law to detach Rawdon township from the Centre Hastings High School Board. The township council in turn will petition county council to take the same procedure.

Ratepayers of Rawdon township late autumn became dissatisfied with the division of costs in connection with operation of the high school area and petitioned council to be detached from the area. At the municipal election it was voted the township be detached from the area.

There is a possibility that the high school district may be formed between Stirling village and Rawdon and county council was requested to form such, a district.

George Cook was voted to be paid $25 for sheep killed by dogs.

The reeve and deputy reeve were named a committee to interview Mr. Arthur Morrison regarding construction of a road to cottages along the Crowe River.

Guelph, May 22 — (CP)—Body of Paulin Lande, seven-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Lander, was recovered from the Speed River Sunday. Search for the child was started when a fishing pole was found lying on the river bank. She is believed to have fallen into the water while fishing.

Toronto, May 22 (CP) — Sixteen hours after he was released from Millbrook Prison farm near Sudbury, in northern Ontario, Vernon Carrier was behind bars again.

Kidnapped Wife Of Police Officer Freed Unharmed

Oklahoma City, May 22—(AP) —The distraught young wife of a vice-squad officer admitted today the bizarre 21-hour kidnapping chase she led police Sunday was spurred by her own imagination.

Mrs. Ira Alice Raper, 23, abruptly hailed a frantic police hunt when she called her husband, C. V. Raper, from a suburban filling station and asked him to come get her.

But Detective Chief Dwight Brown said officers still hadn't found all the pieces to the puzzling case.

Brown said Draper and his fellow officers feared Mrs. Raper had been overpowered by kidnappers, taken nude from her bedroom and held captive as revenge on her husband.

Raper is assigned to the police gambling detail.

Brown reported Raper told officers he received threatening telephone calls last week and a note in his mail box which said in part:

"Slay out of my business or that women will have to take your punishment."

However, after long questioning, Brown said, Mrs. Raper broke down and admitted the whole affair was a "figment of my imagination."

Strip-Tease Has German Night Life Tied Firmly to a G-String

By RICHARD K. O'MALLEY

Frankfurt, May 22—(AP)—The American strip-tease has German night life tied firmly to a G-string.

Nearly every big-city night club features at least one damsel who specializes in undressing in public.

It's a new wrinkle in German entertainment and it has the customers flocking in droves.

Older Germans remember the rush of night clubs which sprang up after the First World War. Entertainment was spicy and frequently on the commercial vice level.

A similar situation prevails in west Germany today, with the strip-tease as a new and added fillip.

The girl most west Germans prefer to see is a sloe-eyed brunette named Laya Raki. She says she is half Dutch and half Indonesian.

She does a dance called "The Indian Gravestone" which definitely is out of the cemetery class and which leaves her rather chilly from the waist up. Since Miss Raki is a girl who might give pause to Jane Russell, the customers love it.

They blow foam off seidels of beer and applaud wildly when her gold scarf is discarded and she dances in a smile and a G-string.

A tour of Frankfurt night clubs yields a bounteous harvest of undressed entertainment, but the German version of the American strip-tease rarely is subtle.

In one night club a flashily-dressed master of ceremonies announced Miss so-and-so would dance a tango.

A weary orchestra thumped away while a b lack-haired Fraulein trudged aimlessly about wearing a G-string and two feathers fans. Occasionally she dropped the fans to bare her breast to the enthusiastic audience.

It was anything but a tango—but nobody seems to mind.

One night club run by a German women has rung in another version of undressed entertainment.

Every night at 12 o'clock a 10-minute motion picture of semi-nude girls is shown.

There are other clubs spoken of in whispers but they admit only special members. Some Gerstrip-tease and deal frankly in outright vice.

TABLE PROPOSAL FOR YEAR TO ADMIT WOMEN TO YMCA

Buffalo, N.Y., May 22 — (AP)— The National Council of the Young Men's Christian Association Sunday tabled for another year a proposal to admit women to its ranks. The vote was 88 to 76 on the hotly consented issue. Almost half of the 300 delegates refrained from voting at the final session of the United States Council's 24th annual meeting.

By Alice Ross Colver

The strangeness of this had to tell him this, he had said given rise to genuine alarm. What lied Frank really? Not since he had been home had he been like himself. There must be something more than Susan troubling him. She had suspected it that first night after the party, but had succeeded in sidetracking her then. Now she began asking herself again if there might not actually be another woman? Some designer whom he was remembering with nostalgic idealization for her charms?

The mere asking of the question was numbing to her. In her early confidence that such a thing was actually not so, she had told him she would be reasonable, but the threat of needing to be made her realize she would be anything but that. Why, there had never been a divorce in the King family! It was still a disgraceful thing to all of them. No, she would not be reasonable. She would fight it tooth and nail she would fight it.

She would summon reason to her rescue. She was being ridiculous. She was imagining things. Frank was after all simply upset over Susan. If she could only make him see that anyway you cut your children whether they married someone you approved of not. They were grown-ups, privileged and bound to go their way. But when she had tried it.

Her mother's vehement tones cut in on her thought.

"Well one thing. We aren't going to stay late. I think this snow is going to keep all night by the looks of it, and I certainly don't want to come back up this hill when it's much deeper. Steven, you'll have to telephone the police the minute we arrive and find out if the snow plowing. If not, they'll have to get busy right away. Oh, are we here? Thank heaven!"

The Ferguson's opened their door eagerly. It was the first time they had had a chance to express with their hospitality their thanks for the Judge's check, and they were most anxious to show him how satisfactorily the stoker worked, how easy it made life for the Reverend and how appreciative they were. Before Steven's coat was off, the Reverend was inviting him and Frank to come down the cellar with him and see for themselves.

The stoker inspected and the men returned — with Elizabeth lecturing over the whole business —they all went into the booklined library where a fire was burning. Cocktails that were offered were tomato juice in small thin glasses and as they sipped these, Ella excused herself to go to the kitchen and look after her dinner.

It was while she was there that the front door opened and someone called "May I come in? I'm in a little trouble."

Frank recognized Alcia's voice and reaching the hall first, saw her standing at the door and leaning against the door which she had shut behind her. She was very pale, Frank saw.

"Alicia!" he hurried toward her forgetful of everything and completely unaware of the pasan of joy that sounded in his tone as he spoke her name.

There was a flurry of excitement for a few moments. Alicia was helped into a chair before the fire, her boot and a sock removed, her ski pants shoved up and her swollen ankle examined. Frank, trained in first aid, took care of her and did the examining, his strong, square-tipper fingers probing gently but surely into her flesh.

"I think it's just a wrench," he said.

She nodded. "I'm sure it is. It doesn't hurt quite so badly now as it did. I'm not. I just turned it You can't see the ruts under the snow and I tripped into one."

"That's what it is all right. Just a twist. If I had a bandage. . ." Frank looked inquiringly at Ella who nodded.

"Yes, I have one." It was always in the nature of a triumph for Ella to be able to lend the right thing at the right time. Hurrying back to her kitchen, she turned off the lights under the dinner, went up the back stairs and came down presently with the bandage in her hand.

"I'm spoiling your party," Alicia said, looking around at them all with contrition. "I wish you'd go ahead. I don't want to hold up your dinner this way, Please Frank! I can manage by myself."

"Nonsense." Frank was already at work on his knees before her, cradling her foot in his big hand and winding the bandage with quick ease.

"Whatever were you doing walking in a storm like this?" Audrey asked. It was the first time she had spoken.

Alicia answered without looking up.

"I had an errand in the village. And the Country Club road isn't plowed out yet so I couldn't use the car. Do you suppose a taxi would come up for a while? I'd like to get home." Before Lester phones from the plant and finds I'm gone, she was thinking. She lifted her head with an inquiring glance toward Steven but it was Elizabeth who replied.

"There! I told you Steven. The plow isn't out. That road committee simply sits and waits on the Lord. They wait on Him to stop the snow and then they wait on Him to send the sun and to melt it. Instead of getting busy and helping themselves. I won't stand for it! Any longer! Our hill and Alicia's are a disgrace. They ought to be plowed out, both of them, today. Please go to the telephone right this minute."

"And you must stay and have dinner with us, Alicia," Ella put in. "The men won't get your road cleared for an hour or more. I'll call Lester for you and let him know where you are. When you are through, Judge," she added. And the two of them went into the hall where the telephone was.

"That feels much better," Alicia said to Frank, leaning forward to look at her swathed foot. "I wonder if I can walk on it?"

"Perhaps a little. But definitely not home." He met her eyes. "And you needn't call a taxi, either. I'll take you whenever you want to go."

"Certainly. We'll all take you when we go ourselves."

It was Audrey speaking out of a slow-growing wonder. Frank so quick to help, so compassionate, so grateful. And yet it wasn't just that. Anyone might have been that. It was the way he had spoken Alicia's name when she had first appeared. It was some indecipherable expression flickering across his stolid face as he bent his head over Alicia's bare foot. It was the way he looked up at her just now as he offered to take her home. And it was his words, too carefully nonconsidered. "But it isn't possible," she told herself, "I must be crazy." And knew it was possible and that she wasn't crazy.

Dinner at the Fergusons. An extra place set for Alicia whose foot was elevated on a stool under the table. The usual flattering comments on the food served and the usual talk of high meat prices. Then the labors' exorbitant demands. Of the problem of industries in the face of continuing strikes. And of Lester's troubles at his plant. And from this a more general conversation relating to the whole national and international picture.

Finally Steven saying, "the United Nations will never be successful in its operations until the representatives there— and all the rest of those they represent, including ourselves— learn to sink the idea of nationalism. It must be submerged in a full and complete acceptance of world government. It's our only salvation."

And the Reverend Ferguson replying, "indeed we must do more than that. We must first sink the prejudices that exist in our hearts We must eliminate the differentiations we make between certain races and 'peoples.'"

"I suppose," Ella spoke carefully but with a certain determination "the thing to do is to begin with the prejudices that exist at home. Right here, for instance, among us."

Elizabeth reared her head. "Just what are you referring to, my dear Ella?"

The answered for her. "She is referring of course, to our young cousin, Gerald Barton." He turned toward Ella, his lean, scholarly face showing no discomfiture. "Tell me. Your house has the advantage of looking down at close quarters onto the inn: Have you any news of him?"

"Well, he's been going to and from the city quite regularly for the past few weeks, so I suppose he has a job. At last," she added, with an emphasis she could not restrain. For if the Judge had only spoken a word in half a dozen places, that poor young man would have had work long before this.

Why Seagram's sells Canada first

This is an adaptation of one of a series of advertisements designed by The House of Seagram to promote the prestige of Canada and help sell Canadian products to the markets of the world.

The campaign is appearing in magazines and newspapers published in various languages and circulated throughout the world.

The peoples of many lands are told about the quality of Canadian products and see Canadian scenes illustrating these products.

The advertisements are in keeping with the belief of The House of Seagram that the future of every business enterprise in Canada is inextricably bound up in the future of Canada itself; and that it is in the interest of every Canadian manufacturer to help the sale of all Canadian products in foreign markets.

• • •

A campaign such as this not only helps Canadian industries but also puts money in the pocket of every Canadian citizen. One dollar of every three we earn comes to us as a result of foreign trade. The more we can sell abroad the more prosperous we will be at home. It is with this objective that these advertisements are being produced and published throughout the world.

COLLEGIATE NEWS

Wednesday's assembly was put on by G 11 D. A movie was shown on rugby and held the interest of all rugby fans in the high-school. Perhaps the picture will spur the boys on to having a better rugby team this fall.

Field day was called off because the track at the Fair Grounds was not in condition and because of the lack of response from the boys. It seems too bad that the few willing ones have to miss out because of the lack of School spirit of others.

Excitement flourished Wednesday afternoon when the teachers played G 12 B's ball team. Watching it made one feel that the Student Body has a "bunch of swell sports" on the teaching staff.

Studying and reviewing is being carried on now both in and out of school hours. The next few weeks will tell the tale. Let's make it a happy one.

On Saturday night a Try-It dance was held at B.C.I. with guests from St. Michael's Academy and Albert College. Lots of fun was had by all.

It was the initiation of the Keyette members on Tuesday. This information is for all those wondering why the unusual costumes and why the large keys about various students' necks.

A number of girls are saving up their hard-earned pennies to purchase dresses modelled at a teen-age fashion show Thursday after school. Now girls who have admired the famous brand of dresses in "Seventeen" can buy them right here in Belleville.

Topsy

Shavings

Would the people who so graciously put a mirror in the girl's dressing room, please see what can be done about the lack of ventilation in this same room? We know how to apply artificial respiration but we would rather not use it to revive students who have stayed more than five minutes in the dressing room. Ask any girl who takes P.T.

Sports

A few thousand B.C.I.ers filled the baseball park on Wednesday night to see the sports contest of the year, the teachers vs. the champion team of the year G12B. What went on during that game made baseball history. The teachers were very colorful in their snappy uniforms of checked shirts and various colors of pants. From the sports booth a green speck could be seen on one of the players' head. A scout was sent to investigate and he reported that it was a green cap worn by "Babe" "Slugger" Lintor Read. The pitcher for the first half was Mr. Mott and his style was just as good if not better than last year. Two newcomers were in the lineup. Mr. Snitzsinger on first and Mr. Bradley on the mound. Mr. Bradley kept up the good pitching Mr. Mott had started and Mr. Snitzsinger was constantly in the limelight.

Some remarks and incidents overheard or seen on the field:

Mr. Countryman: "I know a game that used to be fun. We played it all the time when I went to school." (The game was X's and O's). Mr. Linton Read made a spectacular leap for a fly ball. Oh well, he tried! In fact he tried so hard he flipped his cap!.

Mr. Countryman: "Is there another inning? Oh, I'm so-o-o tired!"

All joking aside, our teachers are great sports! Did I hear some one ask what was the score? Why who bothers with a little old thing like that in a game like this!

Aloft on a specially-designed servicing platform aboard the Norton Sound, U.S. navy scientists are shown making final adjustments to the 800-pounds of instruments in the nose of the navy's pocket Viking, before a record-breaking flight of the missile on May 11. After these adjustments, right, the rocket is shown at the beginning of its upward climb, with the pulse of the rocket blast clearly showing in the tail of flame left by the missile. Delicate radio instruments in the nose of the missile relayed vital information back to scientists aboard the Norton Sound, on station of the equator in mid-Pacific. This flight established a new record for American-designed, single-stage rockets, as it climbed to a height of 106.4 miles, Central Press Canadian.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

GET BEHIND 'EM!

Thanks is a group of stout-hearted sports-minded citizens, Belleville will have an intermediate baseball team. Thanks to a fellow like Speedy St. Louis who had the guts, in spite of consistent "turn-downs" by alleged sportsmen of the village, and west ahead after outside teams had conveyed to pick the cream of the local baseball crop, to organize the remnants and whip it into some kind of shape, this village will not be an orphan lassie as baseball is concerned.

* * *

Connected with Speedy are Frank Grandame, Northern Electric who has been appointed manager of the squad, Bill Lockyer, president, Charles A. Mott, vice president, Paul Mercier, secretary treasurer and executive members "Seller Lloyd, Jack McNab, Fred Symons, Aubrey Coe and yours truly.

* * *

The team is starting from scratch, literally and figuratively. The executive has not a red cent to its name, it has no equipment. It had nothing but a lot of optimism, the spirit of a few well-minded citizens and what is more, the loyalty and team spirit of a fine group of youngsters sprinkled with diamond veterans. It has scraped up a lot of second-hand equipment. Most of the "best" had their own sleeves. It is hoped the Northern Electric and Kiwanis Juniors Equipment, or what is left of it will be made available and it is quite likely it will be.

* * *

However it costs money to operate a baseball team. And the Belleville "Orphans" hope the baseball public will support it through the box-office at least. Baseballs and bats must be purchased. Officials, umpires that is, must be paid. A first-aid kit should be handy in case of accident and injury. This is not exactly an ad but any sports-minded fan who cares to toss a few shekels in the empty exchequer of the club, will find his donation more than welcome.

* * *

The Belleville team won't win the intermediate championship. It may not win its league. But it must be said that its players and officials do not lack for spirit and enthusiasm. They haven't a big name players in the province, but it is felt by Coach St. Louis and the Mayors that other teams of its league will learn once they have been in a diamond battle before playoff time rolls around.

* * *

The practices have been well-attended. Some thirty or more players have been showing lots of pep and ability. It takes time to whip them into shape but we'll bet the odd sixpence that they'll be in there battling from the opening "Play Ball".

* * *

The Belleville District League officially opens tomorrow night with the Point Anne squad guests of the Belleville team at Bayview Memorial Ground starting at 6:15 p. m. There will be opening ceremonies, with, it is hoped, Mayor Jack Allen, Bill Lockyer, vice president of the league and President Bill Lockyer taking part. The Belleville Kilty Band will be in attendance. One of the mayors being unable to attend Alderman Claude Tice will represent the city fathers.

* * *

Coach St. Louis gave the boys a stiff workout over the weekend preparatory to the opening league tomorrow night. Bobby Bunton's arm was in fine shape and the tall right-hander was whipping the ball over the plate with plenty of speed and zip. Bobby Moynes, from Wellington also showed some mound skill with Cuff or Noakes acting in a coaching role. Howie Lockyer, Mike Jones, Norm, Al. Galbraith, Jack Elliott, Russ Soules, Garry Schreiber, Harry Brown and many others were turning in fine spurts of practice. The team is based on a background of young players, and if the team doesn't win a game it will at least have kept the breath of life in the near-corpse that is baseball in this city. More power to 'em. And for the luvsmike, get out there and show some interest in them by attending the games. The first part of the league schedule appears elsewhere in this edition.

STAR-STUDDED BOXING CARD

Tonight's the night the Trenton RCAF Station stages its real-letter boxing card. It will be one of those typical air force shows with its accompanying color and thrills. It's my notion of top-flight leather-pushers from the three-armed services depots of this district. Ronny Lacelle, starry mitt-slinger from RMCC, Kingston and Don Wallace, pride of the Dinsmag Athletic Club, Toronto, will mix punches in the five-round main bout, and this should be a thrilling battle. Lacelle is rated one of the best 160-pounders in Ontario, while Wallace is likewise one of the best in his part of the world. Mac Plouffe, Rockcliffe and Joey Peters, Toronto, clash in the semi-final and Gunner Bobby Spears tangles with smart Jimmy Wise, Brockville sensation in the preliminary five-rounder.

Five other bouts including Air Cadet Doug. Hinton and Lorne McMillan, both of Trenton RCAF will round out one of the best fight cards arranged by RCAF sports officials in some time. The first bout gets under way at 8:30 in the station sports hangar.

UNKNOWN QUALITY!

Batawa faces a stiff test in its opening game against Smith's Falls in the Central Ontario Baseball League opener on Wednesday, May 24th. According to reports from the Batawa training camp, most of its regulars will be on hand this season, with Gordy Moffitt and Ken Peacock, mound veterans, ready for mound duty, augmented by probably Art. Wright, of Belleville. Johnny Acquino will be back behind the plate with Waiseo, Solmes, Spencer, Rankin and the rest helped by such Belleville players as "Mouse" Bush and Huck Reeves. Huck will likely draw an infield spot and will be available for catching duties. A couple of newcomers are on the roster, but generally speaking Manager Bill Easton, unless he has some ace up his sleeve will rely mainly on the above line-up. The strength of Smith's Falls is unknown but from all assurance it is a fierce team or the Ottawa (Border League) Nationals it should pop up with a strong aggregation.

* * *

Picton goes to Kingston tomorrow to pry the lid off the COBL season down thataway and come right back home on Wednesday against the same team for opening ceremonies. Should be a goodly gathering in the little Spanish town on a day like this and we hope to be on hand to take in the initial performance. Napanee helps Brockville celebrate opening day on the latter's diamond on May 24th.

Ronny Lacelle (left) of Ottawa, rated as one of the best 160-pound boxers in Ontario, will headline the Trenton R.C.A.F. boxing show at the station tonight. Lacelle meets Don Wallace, starry Toronto fighter, and the bout is being looked forward to with interest by not only fans of both but right authorities of the province. Mac Plouffe and Joey Peters line up in the semi-finals. Bert Bertrand (right) Trenton R.C.A.F. slugger, is scheduled for one of the bouts as is Glen Dafoe, Trenton flash, who will meet Herby Keenleyside, rated one of the fastest punchers to show his wares here. Five other top-flight bouts comprise this outstanding card.

Home-run Binge Being Staged By Bud Heslet

(By The Associated Press)

Heslet, who gained a reputation while in the New York Yankee chain as a four-base walloper, belted three out of the park in the second game of Sunday's double-header against the International-League-leading Montreal Royals.

The 205-pound giant warmed up for his red letter day with a home run in Friday and Saturday's games. Montreal pitchers blanked him in the first game of the twin bill which the Leafs won 2-1, but they couldn't him out in the nightcap which the Leafs also took 12-2.

Heslet started mildly enough with a single in the Leaf's six-run first. He followed up with home runs in the second, fourth and sixth innings of the seven-inning game. Heslet drove in four runs and scored four.

Catcher Vince Plumbo batted in as many runs as Heslet with one swing of his bat. Plumbo unloaded a grand-slam homer in the first. Johnny Mayo also homered for the Leafs who collected 12 hits to allow Paul Stuffel to coast to his first victory.

Errors in the fifth inning by Damon Phillips and Rocky Bridges enabled the Leafs to score twice and win the opener for Jocko Thompson, a recent acquisition from the parent Philadelphia Phillies.

Chiefs Move Up

The Syracuse Chiefs pulled to within 2½ games of the Royals by dividing a doubleheader with Jersey City Giants. The Giants captured the first game 7-5 and the Chiefs the second 8-5.

Seven home runs were hit in the two games. Al Rubeling, Eddie Shokes, Ben Zientara and Jerry Burmeister connected for the Chiefs and Stan Jok, Pete Milne and Mavin Blaylock for the Giants.

Bill Kennedy and Joe Payne pitched the Baltimore Orioles to brilliant 7-0 and 2-0 victories over Springfield. Cubs Kennedy allowed only three singles and Payne two.

The Orioles supported Kennedy's neat job with a 12-hit attack that included a pair of homers by Butch Wynt and one each by Al Unser and Ansel Moore. Ed Pellagrini homered in the nightcap.

Rochester moved up into fourth place, two percentage points ahead of Springfield by dividing with the Buffalo Bisons. The Bisons took the opener, 9-5 and the Red Wings the finale 6-1.

Corby's Mixed Bowling League Holds Annual

In an atmosphere of delicious roast chicken, dressing and all the trimmings the Corby Mixed Bowling League wound up a successful season Fri. night with the annual banquet held in Kiwanis centre.

President Adams presented the Corby Trophy to the champion "Embassy" team through its captain Bill Peoples. He paid tribute to the fine sportsmanship exhibited throughout the season and complimented the champions on their sterling play during the playoffs that saw them surge from sixth place to the championship.

Members of the champion "Embassy" squad are Bill Peoples, J. Miller, K. Wagner, C. Wright, C. Andrews, D. Teran, and E. Bassett.

Ralph Plumpton also paid tribute to Doug Adams' work during the season and later presented Miss Louise Graham, secretary with a handsome gift in recognition of her secretarial efforts over the season.

Mark Storms "cleaned up" the honors for men's individual scoring taking the high average, 220; high triple 856 and high single of 339.

Miss Barbara Burley took top spot for women's high scoring with a high triple of 658 and high single of 283.

Teams comprising the league were Embassy, Corby's Gin, Little Touch, Special Selected, Mill and Underwood and Hi-Liners.

No election of officers was held, it being felt there was a possibility the league might not function this year. President Adams however named a nominating committee comprised of Mark Storms, Jack Moore and Doug. McLean to bring in a slate of officers at a meeting to be held this summer.

Following the banquet members of the league spent the evening in bowling and social amenities at Corby's Recreation Hall.

Napanee Fans Enjoy Sunday Baseball Game

Napanee, May 22 — (CP) — A bases-loaded triple by shortstop Bud Green gave Napanee a 7-7 win in the season opener in the first Sunday game in the schedule of the Eastern Ontario Central Ontario Baseball League.

Napanee will open the home season at Brockville next Wednesday.

SNEAD TOO GOOD

Los Angeles, May 22—(AP)—Sam Snead still is too good for the rest of the pro golfers. He proved it again Sunday by winning the $15,000 Western Open Golf Championship for the second year in a row. It added another $2,600 to his bank account, and boosted his tournament earnings this year to $17,720.

His winning score was 282, just enough to edge E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, and Jim Ferrier, who came in with 283s.

Canadian Tug Best in Field Of Ten in Race

Detroit, May 22 — (AP)—The Canadian tug Atomic proved herself the best of a field of 10 as she snagged 10 victories in the first international tugboat race on the Detroit River Saturday.

The 80-foot craft, owned by McQueen Marine, Limited, of Amherstburg, and skippered by Capt. J. Earl McQueen, took a lead at the start and stayed well ahead of the powerful, second-place John Rom III.

The Roen, whose home port is Sheboygan, Wis., finished almost neck-and-neck with a much smaller tug, the Oregon, owned by the Great Lakes Towing Company of Detroit.

The tugs all finished the distance — from Belle Isle to the Ambassador Bridge.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Championship bridge matches are played by a method known as duplicate. How come the name duplicate? The exact hands played at one table are duplicates of those played at the other tables. Actually the same cards are not duplicated with other packs. The exact cards are simply transferred to each of the tables. The same hands go from table to table.

When players are first seated there is an undealt pack on each table. The players at that table shuffle and cut and deal this pack. Thus, the deal has not been pre-dealt or fixed in any manner. This deal is bid and played. But then the cards are played they are not thrown into the middle of the table. Instead, each player merely shows the face of his card but holds onto it.

When all four hands have played to a trick, each turns down his own card in front of himself. Thus, at the end of the 13th trick, each player has retained the 13 cards he held originally.

How does he know the number of tricks his side has taken or lost? When he turns down a card he points it toward his partner if his side won the trick; points it toward opponents if his side lost the trick.

In a duplicate tournament came this deal:

NORTH
♠Q J 8 3 2
♥K 7 4
♦A Q 3
♣K 5

WEST
♠10
♥J 9 6 3
♦8 6 5
♣Q 7 10 3 2

EAST
♠7 6
♥10 8 2
♦10 9 7
♣A 8 7 6 4

SOUTH
♠A K 9 5 4
♥A Q 5
♦K J 4 2
♣9

South was the declarer at six spades and took 12 tricks. The cards in front of him were turned down. How did they look? One of them only was pointing east and west.

When east and west looked down at their own cards, what did they see? One of them was pointing toward each other with its broad side facing declarer. The other 12 pointed toward declarer.

When the players agreed to the number each had taken, each gathered his own hand. Each hand was later taken to the next table to the same compass position. Like passing the toast.

'Tis truth. The boxom lass, also known as my friende Irma, will open June 7 in "The School for Scandal" by Richard Brinsley Sheridan. It was first presented by the Merry Players of Drury Lane on May 8, 1777.

Miss Wilson's previous stage experience was no more than a maidenly strippe tease, which she performed nightly for seven years in a bumptious show called Ken Murray's Blackouts.

Searchers Drag Rideau Lake For Two Bodies

Kingston, May 22. (CP)—Searchers are dragging Rideau Lake, 30 miles north of here, for the bodies of two men believed drowned on a fishing trip.

The body of a third man, Dr. John Lewis of Youngstown, Ohio, was recovered from the lake on Sunday.

The trio—Lewis; John R. Drew, Smiths Falls, Ont., and William Lake, Portland, Ont.,—left on a fishing trip by motor launch Friday, when they failed to return, a search was undertaken.

Lewis' body, the clothing badly scorched, was found late Sunday. Police said it appeared there was an explosion in the launch, but no wreckage was found.

Answer to Saturday's Puzzle:

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma handed me a dime to go round to the market get a dozen potato rolls at the bakery department, and I said, Can I keep change, ma?

Being one of my most famous solicitus, and ma said, There won't any change, dont worry.

I aint worrying, ma; I'm hoping, I said, and ma said, Then hope. Those potato rolls are actly 10 cents a dozzen.

Ice-la engraved in permanent lers on my memory, because we're the only things I know of this day and age that can still hawl for less than a cent apiece, she said.

Well anyways, ma, just in case there does happen to be change, can I keep it? I said, and ma said, Oh, if a miracle happens, by all means take advantige of it.

But Jimminies, ma, it wouldn't have to be a miracle, I said, and ma said, What elts would it be, for land sake?

It mite be an accident, I said. For instance the bakery lady mite not hear me rite when I asked her for a duzzen rolls, especially if I asked her while my mouth was full of chewing gum, or even while I was pretending I had a mouthful of chewing gum. So she mite accidently only give me a half duzzen rolls instead of a duzzen, and then in that case there would be change left over. That's one thing that mite happen, ma, I said.

Oh, I see, ma said. Well while we're on such an intriuting subject, do you want me to tell you what would surely happen if you showed up here with only half a duzzen rolls, either with or without change? Or do you know without being told? she said, and I said, I've got a pritty good of an

Orioles Decide To Take Action Against Curfew

Baltimore, May 22 (AP)—Baltimore Orioles, bedeviled by a curfew regulation that has caused the calling of four night games this season before they were over, are trying to do something about it.

Under an agreement between the International League Baseball Club and the Baltimore Board of Recreation and Parks, no inning shall start after 11 p.m. although any session in progress at that hour may be completed.

Jack Dunn, Oriole president, complains that the regulation already has resulted in the calling of four out of nine home games this season and added: "Doubleheaders are stacking up on us."

The Orioles have launched a two-way effort to solve a trying situation.

Beginning tonight, except Thursday, night games at the Municipal Stadium will start at 8:15 p.m., instead of 8:30. Dunn said the Thursday hour can't be changed because of television commitments.

The Orioles have petitioned the Park Board for a modification of the curfew limitation.

Comes to a Head

The situation came more or less to a head Saturday night, when a 12-inning game between the Orioles and Springfield ended at 11:45 p.m. in a 6-6 tie.

It was 11:30 p.m. when the 12th inning started, but Dunn took full responsibility for not halting the contest at the end of the 11th.

"I did not anticipate that the 12th would last almost 25 minutes," he said.

"On Saturday night," he added, "there was the extra consideration that there is no greater thrill to a fan than an extra-inning game. I thought we might get by with a few minutes overtime.

"Unfortunately, the 12th not only was much longer than I expected but also left us with a tie and another playoff."

Fifteen Years Ago First Night Game Was Played

(By The Canadian Press)

Fifteen years ago Wednesday the first night game in the history of Major League baseball was played.

This historic event took place May 24, 1935 at Crosley Field, Cincinnati, where the Reds defeated Philadelphia 2-1 before 18,422 fans in cold weather.

The innovation was greater with misgivings by officials Little did they dream that 15 years later more than 400 night games would be on the Major's schedule and that only Chicago's Wrigley Field would be without lights.

"Just a novelty that will wear off", was the consensus regarding the brain child of Larry MacPhail, then general manager of Cincinnati Reds.

But night ball games began to mushroom from its humble beginning. First, it was only seven games a season, then 14, then 21. Now, with few exceptions which are self imposed, night play is unlimited.

MacPhail's prime motive in introducing night baseball to the Majors was to jack up the attendance.

Brookmeade stable's Greek Ship surprised a crowd of 33,543 at Belmont Park Saturday by winning the $25,000-added Metropolitan handicap.

The only three-year-old in the field of 12 horses, including some of the topnotchers of the handicap division, Greek Ship proved by a half length over F. A. Markey's Piet which, in turn, was three-quarters of a length before Brandywine stable's Cochise.

Greek Ship returned mutuels of $69.30, $22.10 and $8.70. Piet paid $6.20 and $4.34 and Cochise $3.20.

At Arcadia, Calif. proximity shattered the world trotting record for 1-1-16 miles Saturday by raising a 25,000 free-for-all on the western harness racing program at Santa Anita.

Proximity, driven by Clint Hodgins of Clarddebogie, Ont. stepped the distance in 2:08 2-5 three full seconds better than Rodney's clocking.

The victory boosted the eight-year-old Proximity's total earnings to $168,579.67. She is the richest money-winning harness horse of modern times.

Ned Lofthouse, soccer forward from the famed Bolton Wanderers, scored three goals for England's touring all-star soccer team as the visitors blanked Montreal all stars 7-0 in an exhibition match Saturday at Montreal watched by 13,000 fans.

A last-minute goal by John Aston saved Manchester United from defeat Sunday at New York as the visitors tied an American soccer league team 2-2 before 13,147 fans at Triborough Stadium. The American team was made up of players from Philadelphia and Kearny, N.J.

At Yonkers, N.Y., the durable Johnny Kelley of West Acton, Mass., raced Sunday to his second national United States Amateur Marathon title in three years, finishing 50 yards ahead of the nearest of 66 pursuers. He was clocked in two hours, 45 minutes, 53.5 second for the 26-mile, 385-yard route.

Canada's only contender—cigar-smoking Gerard Cote of St. Hyacinthe, Que., finished fifth in 2:48:02.

Jesse Van Zant of Boston was a driving second after battling the winner in a tense two-man duel over the last two miles.

40-1 Shot Wins One Part of Plate Trial at Toronto

Toronto, May 22 (CP) — Blue Boar, a feather-footed three-year-old from the stable of J. R. McIntyre, hung up an easy six-length victory Saturday in the first division of the Plate trial at Woodbine Park.

J. F. Seagram's Roanite, a 40-1 shot, won the second division after a neck-and-neck run with the favored Nephisto from Rankwood Stables. The race was run in two divisions because of the large number of entries—17 in all.

A crowd of 20,000 thronged the last-ead track for the trial, a sneak preview of the King's Plate and a testing ground for entries in the turf classic for Canadian bred three-year-olds. It will be run May 27.

Blue Dancer, odds-on favorite, covered the six furlongs in 1:15 trailed to the wire by F. W. Merrill's Lady Lover and Medalmedom from the Double Blue Stable.

Roanite scampered in a length ahead of Nephisto in the second division after the pair had battled it out on even terms most of the way. Sir Stromo was third. Time was 1:15 4-5.

Victory was worth $2,500 each to Blue Dance and Roanite.

Hill Prince Will Take Some Beating In Belmont Stakes

Baltimore, May 22 (AP)—What really did happen to Hill Prince in the Kentucky Derby?

Those who missed the Louisville classic still are puzzled about that after seeing the race with which the Virginia colt took Saturday's Preakness.

Out of the welter of conjectures one fact stood out clearly—Hill Prince certainly ran a different kind of race. And if he sticks to that kind it's going to take something not now in sight to stop him.

The derby post-mortem was marked by a controversy centred on jockey Eddie Arcaro. Those who wrote about the race and those who called the official charts were agreed that Hill Prince's second to King Ranch's Middleground was due to being pulled up twice. Arcaro denied this. That flushed by the glow of victory in the Preakness, Christopher T. Chenery, who owns Hill Prince, said:

"Arcaro restrained in the derby. Today we let him run the way he wanted to."

Hill Prince proved he knew more than his board of strategy. For up to and including the derby it had been the practice to keep Hill Prince far off the lead and close to the rail for a late run. If there's lack of racing room at the critical moment this can be disastrous.

Arcaro said himself he deliberately went to the inside in the derby stretch.

Not so in the Preakness. He amazed all past-performance watchers by opening up after the field of six had gone about a quarter-mile in the 1 3-16 miles race. At the first turn Hill Prince put on a spurt and in what seemed a split second he had a three-length lead.

Coming around the second turn into the stretch, Middleground came up to Hill Prince's saddle cloth and for a moment it seemed it was going to be a head and header down to the wire. But Arcaro gave the Virginia speedster a signal and he took off until he had five lengths at the finish. C. V. Whitney's Fabius, who surprised everybody by beating his stablemate, Mr. Trouble, was another five back.

HIS "DOGS" WERE WOLVES

Bob Eagles, left, tells this story: "I was running a tractor on the farm near Flesherton, Ont., when I saw a dog sitting beside a rock. I came around a second time and saw two dogs sitting there. The third time there were four and they weren't dogs — they were wolves. Two ran alongside, leaping and snarling at me. The other two ran behind." Bob sped for home, called his brother, Lorne, right, 15, and went back to the rock where they shot the one wolf shown here. — Central Press Canadian.

Britain Develops New Watch, Clock Industry From Scratch

By ERNEST AGNEW

London, May 22 (AP)—Britain has time on her hands now as a result of the war.

She developed a new clock and watch industry, which started from almost scratch, with a lot of government aid. It now keeps 35,000 craftsmen in 40 factories and plants humming to turn out 2,250,000 clocks, 1,000,000 watches and several-million time-recorders yearly.

Exports of watches and clocks are relatively small thus far — they were about $1,500,000 last year.

But Britain is virtually independent now of watch and clock imports, says the ministry of supply, and by 1952 the exports are expected to treble.

Two hundred years ago Britain had the world's largest clock and watch industry. It employed 70,000 artisans who turned out beautifully-wrought timepieces sold throughout the world.

Then came world competition from Switzerland, Germany and the United States and the British industry declined almost to the vanishing point.

By 1939 the British industry's labor force had dropped to 4,000 turning out relatively few high quality clocks and some electric models.

By 1945 the government decided the industry should be re-established.

The government offered inducements such as machine tools to the association, doesn't expect that this industry will ever be able to export economically more than 20 per cent of its output. High protective tariffs in other countries will prevent that, he says.

and dust-free factory sites in Wales and Scotland to the watchmaking industry. Both the clock and the watch industries received special allocations of raw materials and facilities for importing goods unobtainable here.
